THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

An important duty devolves upon the coming Democratic National Convention, and we doubt not it will be discharged with wisdom. The delegates appointed to represent the Democracy of the Union at Cincinnati are gentlemen of patriotic worth, and they go to the scene of nominating action untrammeled by instructions, and, we believe, in the main uninfluenced by personal favoritism.

All that is required to win Democratic success in the approaching election is the nomination of a candidate for President fitted in every particular for the position, and one in whom the people have confidence.

There are many such in the Democratic party.

Thousands of conservative Republicans and Independents stand ready and anxious to vote for the Democratic nominee, if he is the right kind of man.

They are alarmed at the Imperial third-term conspiracy, and the efforts of Cameron, Conkling and Company to again fasten upon the country the official profligacy of Grantism.

They turn with disgust from the political record of Blaine and other like Republican aspirants.

Give us a good Democratic nomination at Cincinnati.

No matter if his name has not yet been prominently mentioned.

The next Presidential term awaits him.

The safety of the Republic demands him.

DEMOCRATIC.

It is the glorious record of the Democratic party that it has, from the very adoption of the Constitution of the United States, and against every species of opposition, firmly upheld and defended the true meaning of that wisely framed instrument, and consequently, the vitality of free government, and now, as ever, that grand old political organization seeks to promote the best interests of the whole country and to preserve the rights of all the people, irrespective of locality, creed or condition.

It is not for Democrats to advance the personal ambition of any man, but, venerating as they do the memories of the illustrious founders of the Republic, duty demands unfaltering devotion to their patriotic work.

"Principles not men" is a living maxim of Democracy, and adherence to principles is why, and only why, our battle scarred party, the party of Jefferson and Jackson, has safely braved the storms of so many years and exists to-day a mighty power in the land. Never did threatening danger to the institutions of freedom call for greater vigilance than at the present time. The hand of centralization is artfully employed undermining the temple of civil liberty, and it behooves the Democratic party to cast aside all personal considerations, and forgetting every minor issue, to rally with united strength and bid spoilation cease.

WHAT THEY ALL KNOW ABOUT IT.

If the several gentlemen named in connection with the Democratic nomination for the presidency believe all that the papers outside New Jersey say, they can all find comfort in the report of the Democratic Convention. Thus:

[New York Tribune's Report.]

"New Jersey in Stockton's hands. The delegation for Mr. Tilden, however, if he wants it badly."

[New York Star Report.]

"New Jersey for Randolph. Not a single delegate to Cincinnati in favor of Tilden."

[Philadelphia Record Report.]

"New Jersey's vote. A decided preference for Bayard."

[Philadelphia Press Report.]

"Jersey at Cincinnati. A delegation that is not bound in any way."

[Philadelphia Times Report.]

"Jersey's Democratic delegates. They go uninstructed, but Tilden gets some of them."

What a knowing lot of fellows these enterprising New York and Philadelphia reporters are! They evidently know all about it!

EVERY INDUCEMENT TO HARMONY AMONG THE DEMOCRACY.

The disturbed condition of the Republican party, and the strong probability that Grant will be forced upon the party as its candidate against the will of the majority, are very encouraging to the Democrats. With union in the ranks, the Democratic candidate for President will have every prospect of success.

These circumstances hold out very strong inducements to the Democrats to harmonize their differences by sacrificing personal prejudices and preferences.

Union and Victory! should become their watchwords now and hereafter.—N. Y. Sun.

It is really amusing to witness the efforts of the Republican press throughout the country, to make their readers believe that it is Democrats alone who commit malfeasance in office. Here is a specimen brick from a Republican journal:

"Somerset county now has five Democrats and one Republican under arrest for malfeasance in office; and that's about the way the political parties will average in the crime category the country over."

This journal of "moral ideas," however, does not say a word about the Republican thieves who have been so righteously sentenced to State Prison within the past few years for plundering public treasurys. The editor does not even remember the name of Boss Kemble, or the iniquitous Republican Board of Pardons, that allowed him and his companions in crime to go scot free after being sentenced to State Prison by an honest judge and impartial jury.

The New York Herald, the first paper in the land to warn the people of the United States against the danger of centralization and imperialism by the election of Gen. Grant to a third term as President, has changed about like a weather-cock, and now says that Grant is the only fit candidate for the Presidency. Of course there must be a reason for this sudden change, but whatever it is, the people of this country are not to be ruled by the alleged convictions of even such a great journal as the Herald.

This will be an unusually important year, politically, in New Jersey. Not alone will the people vote for President and Vice-President, but for a Governor, a United States Senator, and seven Congressmen, besides the usual county officers.

THE STATE CONVENTION.

It is with feelings of pride that New Jersey Democrats speak of the late Democratic State Convention, as being one of the most harmonious assemblages of the kind ever held in the State. The Convention was composed of Delegates who were thoroughly awake to the exigencies of the hour, and determined to send only good and true men to the Cincinnati Convention as representatives of the Democracy of the State. There was no wrangling or personal differences to settle, but a determination to stand by principles rather than men pervaded throughout the Convention. Harmony and enthusiasm were the prevailing sentiments even in the county caucuses, where personalities are apt to be shown in the expressed wish for some one particular person to represent the county as a delegate. Especially was this so in the caucus of the Union county delegates. Although the names of several prominent and capable men of the party from different sections of the county, were presented for honors, it was the unanimous wish of the delegates that they should harmonize by consolidating upon but one name for a position to be presented before the Convention. Gen. J. A. Fay, of Elizabeth was selected as the candidate for Delegate at large, and Judge Robert S. Green of the same place, for District Delegate, and it certainly must be flattering to the former to know that, although not successful in securing the position, he was the recipient of such a handsome vote. Judge Green, in his capacity as District Delegate, will ably represent his party in the National Convention. He is for the man that can win, to be nominated at Cincinnati, whoever that man may be.

EX-CASHIER FRECH FINED.

Theodore W. Frech, formerly cashier of the Somerset County Bank in Somerville, N. J., was acquitted on Friday on the charge preferred against him in the second indictment on which he was tried. This was that he took Six United States bonds intrusted to the bank for safe keeping from the bank vault, and used them as collateral for a loan to the bank. It was not shown that he was personally benefited by the transaction. In his defence he admitted the performance of the action charged, but alleged that he was obeying merely the instructions of the President of the bank, and that he had no evil intention.

The jury before which he was tried on the first indictment also rendered their verdict on Friday. In this indictment Mr Frech was accused of paying a personal debt by giving Mr. Calvin Corle permission to draw upon the bank for the amount of the debt, and crediting him with the amount on the bank's ledger. His defence was that he supposed himself worth about $20,000 at that time, and that he intended to make the bank good. He had, in fact, paid into the bank a large sum in discharge of his indebtedness. He was convicted on this charge, but the verdict was so framed that he was fined only $500 and the costs of the court.

"If pa isn't nominated," murmurs Col. Fred. Grant, "I believe it will kill me." Friends will please not send flowers.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Mrs. Ann E. Spencer, wife of Wm. F. Spencer, Esq., who has been a great sufferer from Cancer in the side for several months past, died at her residence in Washingtonville, Monday, May 24th, aged 41 years and 5 months.

The building occupied by Messrs Arnold & Van Nostrand as a grocery store on the corner of Somerset and Chatham streets, has been entirely repainted inside and out under the direction of Captain Fulton of Elizabeth. These merchants have lately added to their large stock of fine groceries, canned fresh mackerel which, we would advise everyone to try.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The experiment of introducing the fish called English soles, into American waters, after repeated failures, has at last proven successful. Captain Mortimer, of the ship Hamilton Fish, of the Black Ball line of packets, succeeded last week in transporting from Liverpool, five specimens, which were liberated on the government reservation, inside of Sandy Hook. They were seen to rise from the tanks and swim away.

There was some fine trotting at Waverly, near Elizabeth, on Saturday last, under the management of the "Gentlemen's Driving Association of Newark." Mr. Wm. Moore's horse, "Carbolic," contested with Mr. Thompson's "Doubtful." The former won two straight heats easily in 2:32½ and 2:31, driven by his handler, Lew Dunham. "Carbolic" was taken to Prospect Park on Monday, and will trot in the 2:30 class on Tuesday, June 1st. We should not be surprised to hear of Carbolic making even better time than that. He is a wonder and the pride of his owner.

It has long been a question of veracity on the part of the diciples of Isaac Walton, especially in this section, as to the possibility of catching shad with hook and line. That question is however settled at last in the affirmative. Last Friday, three gentlemen, members of the N. J. Game & Fish Protective Society, visited the Raritan river, in the vicinity of the dam below Bound Brook, with two purposes in mind. One to see that the law was being obeyed regarding the hauling of nets at that point, and another to whip the stream with flies for dace, perch and sunfish. While enjoying the latter sport, the writer was so fortunate as to have a shad strike the lead fly, and after a tussel of some fifteen minutes succeeded in landing the fish, which weighed 2½ pounds. The rod used was a nine ounce Orvis. Although much heavier black bass have been killed by this rod, in season, we must say that this shad possessed great strength and gave more sport and excitement in its capture. Keep the nets out of the river and rare sport is in store for anglers.

The American rifle team will leave on the City of Brussels, June 3rd.

Decay of the Teeth

Arises from various causes, but principally it may be attributed to early neglect or the indiscriminate use of tooth powders and pastes, which give a momentary whiteness to the teeth while they corrode the enamel. The timely use of that delicate aromatic toothwash, Fragrant SOZODONT, will speedily arrest the progress of decay, harden the gums, and impart a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes those ravages which people sustain in their teeth from the use of sweet and acid articles.

HIGGINS' GERMAN LAUNDRY SOAP

Is perfectly pure, being made of carefully selected stock, and is therefore the cheapest. Ask your grocer for it, and see that you get only the genuine article. A trial will convince you of its merits. apdy1.

NINETY degrees in the shade on Monday, 96 on Wednesday.

WM. H. CAMPBELL, Pres. of Rutgers College, will occupy the pulpit of Trinity Reformed church next Sunday, May 30th, morning and evening.

SECTION 387, Endowment Rank of Knights of Pythias, meets the third Monday of each month, corner of Park avenue and Front street.

As we go to press the succulent refreshments offered at the Congregational festival are filling the mouths of Plainfield's female sex and emptying the pockets of the male.

THE grand concert at Cranford, to which reference was made last week, will be held in the Presbyterian Church at that place next Thursday evening, June 3rd.

BESIDES the usual Newark Beer kept continually on draft by Fred Caspar on Second street, he has open on Saturdays and Mondays a superior tap of Milwaukee lager, fresh and cold.

IT will take a great many of Vennor's cold spells to efface the recollection of Wednesday's intense heat. The vendors of cool drinks and frozen cream, however, cry for more just such weather.

COUNTY Collector Sheridan's annual report of the financial condition of Union county, appears in this issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST. It is an admirable and carefully compiled document. Read it, taxpayers.

THE Plainfield Fire Board meet next Wednesday at their head-quarters, and the Republican National Convention at Chicago. Will the result of both meetings be productive of the accomplishment of nothing? Time will tell.

ON Monday June 14th, the annual commencement at the Seminary will take place. The occasion promises to be as interesting as usual, and a soiree on the evening following will pleasantly close the term of hard study.

Now that hot weather is upon us it is the duty of every one to protect his head from the rays of the sun, with one of Vermeule's latest style straw hats. He has in a new and large stock at his old stand, No. 5 West Front street.

THE ladies of the Mount Olive Baptist Church, who had a fair in Laing's Hall last Thursday and Friday afternoons and evenings, have just cause to congratulate themselves upon the success of their labors. The net profits, it is expected, will exceed $150.

A FINER assortment of oil-cloths, matting and window shades, than that now being offered by Whitney the popular dry-goods dealer under Van Deventer Hall, has seldom been in this city. Call and examine the goods, and learn how remarkably low the prices are.

A BROOK of stagnant water behind the First Baptist Church, and a stopped clock on the Methodist steeple, were circumstances derisively remarked upon by a visitor to this city last Saturday. The clock has since been started but the rippling stream continues to decline to ripple.

THE P. A. C. gymnasium classes close this coming Saturday for a period of three months. During the interval many needed conveniences will be added to the rooms, and every preparation made to accomodate the large number already signifying their intention of attending in the Fall.

MR. E. P. KELLOGG, of Mount Pleasant Dairy Farm, is out with his milk wagon re-painted in an attractive manner. Mr. K. supplies some of the best families in the city with the same pure milk that he has had the reputation of dispensing for the last ten years. Pure milk and fair price is his motto.

THE P. A. C. are much encouraged over the success of their late exhibition, and will set men at work putting their grounds in complete order for out-door sports. The public may expect opportunities very soon of witnessing interesting contests and competitions under the management of this organization.

LAST Sunday morning's service at the First Baptist Church was especially arranged for, the benefit of the Sunday School, and the participation of the scholars in it. Dr. Vincent spoke particularly to the young people in one of his able and eloquent addresses, and the entire morning's ceremonies were most impressive.

THE case of Onderdonk vs the city of Plainfield and Township of North Plainfield, was decided against the defendants, last Thursday, before Judge Van Syckle at Elizabeth. A rule was however granted to show cause why the judgment should not be set aside so that the whole matter may be passed upon by the Supreme Court.

ABOUT forty of the active members of the Plainfield Saengerbund united, last Monday evening, in doing honor to the birthday of Mr. Peters on Duer street. The evening was passed in singing and the enjoyment of national refreshments, and it was almost morning when the pleasant party seperated for their respective homes.

PLAINFIELD was honored in the caucus of the Union County Delegates to the State Democratic Convention at Trenton last week, by the selection of Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., as the Chairman of the caucus. By his thorough knowledge of parliamentary rules, the business before the meeting was finished expeditiously and satisfactorally.

A HORSE joined in the fireman's chase of the moon, last Monday evening, with considerable damage to the vehicle to which he was attached. The animal became frightened and ran; the reins were broken by the driver's endeavors to stop the horse, through Central avenue towards the moon, by the infuriated beast and a wrecked wagon.

NEXT Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Joseph Yates will throw open her extensive grounds and unbounded hospitality, to the scholars of the Crescent avenue Sunday School Infant Class. The little ones who remember with so much pleasure the enjoyable garden parties given by Mrs. Yates in previous years, are flying in impatient and excited expectancy of next Saturday's prospective happiness.

MR. ROBERT SIMPSON, of the firm of Simpson & Co., Ice Merchants, has a sort of mania for curiosities. His latest pets are two tailless cats. The variety is known as the Manx cat, natives of the Isle of Man, which were sent to Mr. S. by a friend. Now if some wicked urchin should happen to cut off the tail of your favorite tabby, don't imagine you have one of "Bob's" Manx pets.

RESIDENTS on Front street near Richmond, were the interested observers last Sunday evening about 7:30, of the equestrianship of a young gallant on horseback who put the animal through numerous evolutions calculated to display his skill and figure. The objections of the horse however culminated in its rider alighting on his head in the dirt, and the animal returned to his stable, with empty saddle and uncontrolled.

THE Amateur Rifle Club of N. Y. city, have accepted the invitation of the N. J. Rifle Association to shoot an extreme range match at Brinton. The invited Club have chosen Thursday, June 10th, as the date of the first competition, the series of which will include shooting at 1,000, 1,100 and 1,200 yards distances. This is the same association that defeated the Victoria Club of Ontario, Canada, in 1877, and some fine work is to be expected and no doubt accomplished.

VENNOR is prophesying again. In a note to the Albany Argus he says:

"I believe that June will be an intensely hot month on the whole, but the end of the present month, and probably the 'first of June,' will be fall-like, with frosts again. July will be a terrible month for storms, with terms of intense heat, but another fall-like relapse, with frosts, will in all likelihood occur a few days before the 20th. I fear the storms of thunder and hail will be of unusual severity during July."

THE Independent Athletic Club's members are not idle during these cool evenings. Many of them are spending hours of preliminary training, and good results may be expected in the future. Messrs. Platt and Foster especially are devoting much of their spare time to mile running, and one or two fine races between those two have lately occurred. Each has beaten the other, and each claims the other can beat him; consequently an open competition in which both appear, will be looked forward to with great interest.

MESSRS. J. W. Murray, J. N. Fraley, Dr. Chas. H. Stillman and others who have been rusticating in the Adirondacks for ten days past, returned last Saturday evening. Among the exploits with which they regale their friend's ears, is the catching, by Mr. Murray, of a seventeen (17) pound brook trout. We have not seen the scales on which it was weighed, and the necessary transportation for the bringing of the fish to headquarters was not possessed consequently our ear-sight must take the place of our eyesight and we are compelled to believe the fish story. Oh! yes, we believe it.

DECORATION DAY is a legal holiday. It occurs next Monday. Look out for your bank account.

WASHINGTON Rock Hotel, the popular summer resort, is now open for the season under the capable management of the genial Staats Bros.

MESSRS. Isaac Pangborn and John Chandler have the contract for the construction of the Muhlenberg Hospital Building. The former has the mason and the latter the carpenter work.

IT is expected that the profits arising from the late Park avenue Baptist Festival, will not fail very much short of $500. The Ladies Furnishing Fund are to be congratulated upon the success of their untiring efforts.

HOTEL Netherwood was illuminated from attic to basement Wednesday evening, the reason being that workmen were testing the gas pipes and fixtures, in anticipation of the early opening of this popular summer resort.

THE Board of Health must be on the alert and cause the speedy abatement of nuisance about the city if they expect to keep malaria from our midst. There are plenty of ash heaps and refuse in back yards that need looking after.

IN view of the Presidential election a call has been issued, signed by nineteen clergymen, requesting their brethren of all denominations to "make a special prayer to Almighty God on Sabbath the 30th of May," asking that "He will vouchsafe to guide and direct the assemblies in the choice of men fit for the suffrages of the people."

LAST Sunday morning a large audience attended the opening services in the new chapel of the Park avenue Baptist church. The pastor, Rev. Robert Lowry, preached a sermon most appropriate in its bearings; and so favorably was it received that a large and greatly desired fund, that it was felt necessary to raise, was subscribed by the congregation present.

"THE trial of Caspar Rhoda for the alleged murder of Daniel Mylon in an Elizabeth saloon on the night of January 23rd, reached a final termination on last Monday by the accused's counsel asking the Court to instruct the jury to render a verdict of manslaughter. This course was pursued and the verdict received. The prosecutor moved for the sentence, but the court consented to a postponement until next Monday. The prisoner was remanded to jail without bail.

Union Services.

Union Services have been arranged between the First Baptist and Congregational churches for Sabbath next, May 30th. In the morning service will be held in the First Baptist church, corner Front and Grove streets, and in the evening in the Congregational church, corner Second street and Central avenue. These services which have been arranged at the wish of the honored pastor of the Baptist church, will be conducted by Rev. William Manchee, pastor of the Congregational church.

Muhlenberg Hospital.

At the annual meeting held Tuesday evening, 25th inst.; the following gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year:

President—Bishop Scarborough.
Vice Presidents—Nathan Harper, Mason W. Tyler.
Secretary & Treasurer—Wm. R. Cock.
Finance Committee—J. Frank Hubbard, Peter Balen, John M. Whiton, E. N. Erickson, F. Chamberlain.

Before the Court.

Charles Vail, an account of whose exploits as an incendiary appeared in these columns some weeks ago, was arraigned before Judge McCormick at Elizabeth last Saturday. The boy pleaded not guilty and was remanded for trial, which was set down for, yesterday, (Thursday).

Sutphen and Cuff, jointly indicted for robbing Mr. George R. Pound's hide establishment in this city, also pleaded not guilty, and their trial was ordered for the same day as the above.

A Book Worth Purchasing.

General J. Madison Drake, editor of the Elizabeth Monitor, has written a book entitled "Fast and Loose in Dixie," being an unprejudiced narrative of personal experience as a prisoner of war at Libby, Macon, Savannah and Charleston, with an account of a desperate leap from a moving train of cars, a weary tramp of forty-five days through swamps and mountains, places and people visited, etc. By J. MADISON DRAKE, Captain 9th N. J. Vet. Vols., and Brev. Brig. Gen. N. G. N. J. THE AUTHORS' PUB. CO., 27 Bond st., New York, Publishers. Price $1.50. The book is well worth double the price.

Died.

The death of John D. Stevens a prominent architect and resident of this city, which happened on last Wednesday morning, is greatly regretted by a large circle of friends which he has gathered around him. An attack of pneumonia lasting but a short time found in him a victim unable, on account of a general depression of constitution and advanced age, to rally. His funeral will take place this (Friday) afternoon. The deceased had won for himself an enviable reputation as an architect of extraordinary merit, the Hotel Netherwood and many private residences in this vicinity, bearing flattering testimony to his great talent.

Union & Middlesex Co's. Fair.

The Board of Directors of the Union & Middlesex Counties' Mutual Agricultural Association, held a meeting at the Mansion House, this city, Monday evening last. They decided to issue 600 additional shares of stock, the proceeds to be used in making necessary improvements and additions to the buildings on the ground. Some 100 shares have already been taken. It is proposed to build commodious box stalls for horses, enlarge the present exhibition building and grand stand, and erect new buildings for use of exhibitors at the next Fair, which will be held September 27, 28, 29 and 30th. Some fine trotting will be witnessed on the grounds July 5th, for purse of $300, free for all; $250 purse for 2:40 class and $25 purse for 3:00 horses, owned in the county.

A Card.

Desirous of enjoying the exercise of our favorite sport without subjecting to inconvenience or dangers, the riders or drivers of horses which are liable to be startled at the sight of a bicycle, we would respectfully suggest as a means of intelligent communication the following simple plan, which if generally observed will result in the avoidance of all trouble.

1. The raising of a hand on the part of the driver to the height of his head to be understood by the bicycler as a signal to use caution in passing.

2. A repetition of the signal, a request to dismount.

In submitting this, it is but fair to state that it is the experience of bicyclers in general, that horses seldom take any special notice of the machine, perhaps one in a hundred being a little nervous the first time or two of seeing it, but we hope that by heeding every request, whether preferred because of real danger or mere nervousness, to avoid all cause for complaint.

If riders and drivers will aid in the dissemination of this plan, they will confer a favor upon our organization which will be heartily appreciated by the members individually and collectively.

PLAINFIELD BICYCLE CLUB.

A Fine Lecture.

The lecture "Greece Revisited," given at Assembly Hall by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe on the evening of May 20th, was decidedly successful as entertaining to its hearers, and in its pecuniary result for a worthy church in our sister village, Scotch Plains.

Mrs. Howe seemed to be quite as much at home in Athens as she would be in Newport. The lady enthusiastically feels with Mrs. Hemans, "This ancient soil has nursed a noble race." She eloquently delivered a lecture replete with choice thoughts, vivid descriptions and amusing reminiscences.

The discourse derived a charming freshness from the speaker's very recent association with the classic ground. Mrs. Howe has peculiar claims upon the Greek people through the sturdy philanthropy in their behalf of her late husband, Dr. Howe, and her welcome reception among them showed that their memory has some of the lasting attributes of their marbles. Mrs. Howe has done much to elevate women in this country, and it is no small compliment to her sex when it is noted that at the honored age of a grandmother she became a student of Greek, and now speaks the language fluently.

By request Mrs. Howe recited her celebrated poem, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," which was a delightful addition to what was before a fully satisfactory programme.

The Rev. Chas. L. Sykes of All Saints' Episcopal church desires us to express his earnest appreciation of Plainfield's liberal participation in the cause of his growing church.

Hot!

Tinners at work on tin roofs last Wednesday say the thermometer marked 140 degrees. At Reynolds' Pharmacy, the instrument marked 101 degrees.

W. M. Jacob Kirkner desires that the brethren of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, A. F. & A. M., will meet at the lodge rooms promptly at 2:30 p. m. on Monday, for the purpose of participating in the ceremonies of laying the corner stone of the Muhlenberg Hospital on that day.

Off from the New World and on to the Old.

Yesterday's steamer for Liverpool from New York sailed with a number of Plainfielders who will seek, and undoubtedly find, enjoyment during the next few months amid the scenes and pleasures of Europe. The Reverends Vincent and Ketchum with Messrs. Ernest Ackerman and George Vincent will make a short tour of the old world; Miss Potter and Miss McGee will travel with an excursion party of young ladies, and Mr. and Mrs. Milliken with their daughter will pass days of instructive amusement upon the continent. Dr. Vincent's party will sail for home again on July 8th.

National Guard, General Orders.

General orders No. 5 and 6, issued May 17th and 21st by Brigadier Gen. J. W. Plume, call upon the National Guard of N. J. to parade on Monday the 31st inst. at Newark. The commands will assemble at their respective armories in the morning and proceed to the drill ground where skirmishing, firing, attacking and defending exercises will be carried out. The field of operation is as yet kept a secret, as it is desired that only invited guests, who signify an intention of attending, will be present. Inspector General, Wm. H. Sterling, will be on the grounds the day in question to inspect the brigade.

New Jersey's Delegates to Cincinnati.

The New Jersey delegates to the Cincinnati Convention met at Trenton last Tuesday and organized by the election of the Hon. John P. Stockton as Chairman, the Hon. Orestes Cleveland as Vice-Chairman, and Col. Meyer Zulick as Secretary. It was determined that the unit rule should not be adopted, as in the sense of the delegation it was unwise and unnecessary. Senator Stockton said that all reports of expressions of delegates as to preferences or probabilities as to the person for whom they would cast their votes, were untrue. The delegation would go to Cincinnati as it had been appointed, unpledged, and would vote for the man most likely to win. A committee was appointed to make arrangements, and the delegation adjourned to meet at Cincinnati on Sunday, June 20.

A Good Improvement.

Ever since the piece of property known as the "City Park" came into the possession of the city of Plainfield, the dilapidated appearance of the fence around it, and the grounds enclosed, have been a source of annoyance and nuisance to the citizens residing near the "Park." Seeing no chance of the city authorities ever taking the matter in hand to put the premises in presentable shape, a number of residents on the Union street side of the grounds have engaged Street Commissioner Angleman to grade the sidewalks, make gutters, clear up the underbrush and vines inside the grounds, tear down the high picket fence and erect in its stead a neat, low picket fence of about four feet in height along Union street, which will be an improvement indeed. Now let the city authorities donate a sufficient sum to complete the improvement around the entire grounds.

A Private Commencement.

The Senior Class P. H. S., in view of the departure of Messrs George Vincent and Ernest Ackerman for Europe and their consequent absence upon the occasion of the coming commencement, held a reception in the class room on the afternoon of last Tuesday at half past three. The meeting was strictly secret, and its nature took the form of a private commencement and rehearsal. The essays of the coming graduation exercises were read, and a parting speech to the class-mates who were to leave, was delivered by a fellow member. Refreshments were afterwards served at the rooms of Miss Buckley and kind wishes of good speed and a pleasant time were sincerely accorded to the departing ones by the class.

The Reading Failures.

On last Tuesday, Messrs. Gowen, Lewis and Caldwell entered joint security for $500,000 as receivers of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad and the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company. The failure of these companies, although the former is more or less identified with our own road, will neither effect the Central R. R., nor the comfort and convenience of those of our citizens who have occasion to use the P & R trains from Plainfield. There is, rather, every reason to expect better management under the hands of the efficient receivers. The two companies suspended payment on Friday (21st) morning. They failed to meet their drafts for $420,000. The stock, in the morning at 22, declined to 13. The Reading R. R. stock fell from 40½ to 30½. Great excitement has been produced in financial circles, stocks in New York fell but recovered the most of the decline before the Board closed. The Railroad Company will have to relieve itself of carrying the Coal Company. The burden was just one load too much. If the coal on hand is pressed into the market it will ruin many a coal merchant, greatly to the advantage of consumers.

Laying of the Muhlenberg Hospital Corner Stone.

The corner stone of the Muhlenberg Hospital will be laid next Monday afternoon with the masonic ceremonies customary upon such occasions, and under direction of officers of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey. The committee on ceremonies consists of Messrs. E. M. Rodman, W. R. Cock and F. Chamberlain, and the marshalls of the day, Messrs. Cock and Chamberlain. The civic procession will form at the Council Chambers at 3 p. m., and escort from there to the grounds, the Board of Governors of the Hospital. This portion of the parade will include the Common Council, the Town Committee of North Plainfield, the Fire Commissioners, Caledonian and Benevolent Society, Hibernian Association, Saengerbund, Coachman's Club, Chief Engineer and assistants of Fire Department, Foremen of Fire Companies and others. The masonic order will form separately at their rooms, and among the lodges expected to take part in the programme of the day, are the Jerusalem No. 26 and Anchor No. 149 of Plainfield, Oriental and Washington of Elizabeth, Atlas of Westfield besides others from Somerville, Bound Brook, Roselle and elsewhere. The line of march will be through Front street to Plainfield avenue, and thence to Third street and the grounds. Bishop Scarborough, Rev. Thos. A. Stockton and the Hon. Wm. B. Maxson will deliver appropriate addresses.

Our Aspiring Fire Department.

Again are we called upon to testify regarding the untiring efforts of Plainfield's noble body of firemen in the discharge of their duty, and to bear witness as to their unbounded zeal and earnest desire to extinguish every conflagration that arises within their ken, incipient or otherwise. No reflection of flaming light upon the sky ever announced a fire too far distant for their passionate ardor to reach; and when the bell on Monday evening last called upon the entire department to do their duty, and wash out of existence the moon that had shone down on many scenes of love in which they had personally taken an active part—not a man flinched or shirked. Engines, hose-carriages and truck were all headed for the eastern sky, and an exciting race was begun. The gallant laddies endeavored to reach the horizon before the lunar orb arose above their reach, but their intent and purpose failed to connect. It having been remembered that the department was short of hose, it was thought best to postpone the object of the run until the new board organized and purchased additional pipe.

Since the above occasion, however, it has occurred to the mind of many a philanthropic citizen that the laudable desire of our gallant and red-shirted protectors is misplaced and should be nipped in the blossom. If the combined exertions of our different engines should culminate in the extinguishment of the moon, what would we do for street lights? The asteroids and planetoids wouldn't help us too much—not even just enough. Consequently in the absence of gas and the satellite of the earth we would dwell in total darkness, and the swift bounding burglar and the convivial tramp could pursue their nefarious pastimes unchecked. And again, who knows but that after their successful onslaught upon the moon the firemen might turn their attention to old Sol itself, and the other engines following "No. 2's first water" would succeed in placing the world in a continual state of eclipse. Firemen of Plainfield, don't!

We would be pleased to report a heavy rain shower.

Democratic State Convention.

A Large and Enthusiastic Assemblage

Delegates to Cincinnati sent Unpledged. The Great Fraud Denounced. The Constitution must be maintained. Stirring speeches and Resolutions.

Without doubt, the State Democratic Convention, to elect delegates to attend the National Convention at Cincinnati, held in Taylor's Opera House, Trenton, Thursday, May 20, was the largest and most enthusiastic assemblage of the kind ever before held by the Democracy in the State. Without alternates there were present 990 delegates, and few, if any seats could be obtained by outsiders for love nor money. The seating capacity of the Hall is 1,288. Petermann's Band discoursed inspiring music, and the stage was decorated with State and American colors, with a portrait of Andrew Jackson in the centre of the foreground.

The Convention was called to order at 12:30 o'clock, by Hon. W. W. Shippen, of Hudson county, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, who nominated Hon. Frank H. Teese, of Essex county, as Temporary President. He was elected unanimously.

Mr. Teese, on taking the chair, addressed the Convention. He said:

Fellow citizens and fellow Democrats: We meet to-day as four years ago we met for the purpose of sending delegates to the National Democratic Convention to nominate candidates for President and Vice President of the United States, to be supported by the Democratic party.

The proceedings of that Convention, held four years ago, the election which followed it, in which, beyond all controversy, the candidates of the Democracy for President and Vice President were elected, (loud applause), the manner by which the will of the people was annulled and set aside, all these things are matters of history. Looking over our record for the past four years, I, for one, have no regret to express or apology to offer for any act done by the Democratic party.

The victory of our opponents, by which Rutherford B. Hayes was placed in the Presidential chair, was most dearly bought. While it is true that the Republicans seized the spoils of office, it is true that they proved the truth of the Democratic principles given them by that party. The Republican carpet-baggers of Louisiana, by whom and to whom alone he owes the position he holds, were banished. It was an unconscious tribute paid by fraud to honesty. It was the natural wish and desire of the majority that led the de facto President to adopt the Democratic policy, because he knew that it was right, and knew that the American people approved of it. In view of this do you doubt but that the people will right the wrong? He said he did not believe that they would allow the wrong to remain on us that was perpetrated four years ago. God grant that no such second stain be given to our national honor as that electoral count had done. (Cheers.)

This was not the place or time to go into a discussion of the Democratic party, its principles, or conduct. We are met to send delegates to speak for the Democratic party of New Jersey at Cincinnati and counsel with fellow-Democrats, as to who the man is that they wish their standard bearer to be. As soon as they have chosen, all rivalry will be at an end, and they will not let our opponents conquer at the election by divided counsels of the Democracy. (Applause). In the coming fight there will be no renegades, every man will be in the ranks, and the Democratic party one, and indivisible, will march on to victory. (Cheers). New Jersey finds among her own sons names which she would be proud to have on the banner of the party, yet the choice of New Jersey will be that name most acceptable to the party, and determined upon after due deliberation.

A victory of the Democracy means the sway of the constitution of the United States over the length and breadth of the land; economy in all the departments of the government; reign of law, equally true and just administration thereof to all citizens. He said he made these brief remarks as suggestions, and he hoped that the councils of the convention might be deliberate and harmonious, and satisfactory to their constituents. In conclusion he said he thanked the convention for the honor it had done him in selecting him as temporary chairman; he would endeavor to perform the trust reposed in him impartially and to the best of his ability. His remarks was greeted with an outburst of genuine enthusiasm.

Mr. Shippen nominated for temporary Secretaries—George O. Vanderbilt, of Mercer, and William D. Rutan, of Essex. They were elected.

A letter was read by the Secretary, coming from the chairman of the State Central Committee, W. W. Shippen, as follows:

TRENTON, N. J., May 20, 1880.

Hon. F. H. Teese, Chairman, &c.:

SIR:—Under the practice hitherto prevailing, the official term of the present State Central Committee does not expire until the coming Gubernatorial Convention. Under ordinary circumstances that Convention would appoint a new committee. The present committee, however, recognize the fact that the importance of the coming campaign demands that its management should be in the same hands from its beginning to its close. Under these circumstances, they are convinced that the new committee should be appointed at as early a date as possible, and they, therefore, through you, desire to place in the hands of this Convention, their resignation of the offices held by them, with the earnest desire that it may be accepted, and steps taken for the appointment of their successors.

W. W. SHIPPEN, Chairman.

J. L. NAAR, Secretary.

Judge Robert S. Green, of Union, moved that the resignation of the State Central Committee be accepted, and that the President of the Convention be authorized to appoint a new Central Committee.

After a short debate the matter was laid on the table for action at the afternoon session.

Major James S. Yard, of Monmouth, presented a resolution that all resolutions be referred to the Committee on Resolutions without debate.

After discussion, the resolution was laid upon the table.

Upon motion, the chairman announced the Committees on Credentials, Permanent Organization, Rules and Resolutions. Those from Union county, were S. M. Williamson on Permanent Organization; Thomas G. Kingsland on Resolutions; Jas. W. Fisher on Credentials; E. B. Filbert, on Rules.

On motion, the Convention took a recess until two o'clock.

It was half-past two o'clock when the Convention was again called to order. Mr. Wm. A. Righter, of Essex, from the Committee on Permanent Organization, reported as follows:

Chairman—Hon. Frederick H. Teese, of Essex.

Secretaries—Wm. D. Rutan, of Essex; Geo. O. Vanderbilt, Mercer; S. E. Perry, Hunterdon; Acton C. Hartshorn, Monmouth; Edward L. Stratton, Gloucester; Wm. H. Price, Middlesex; Edward J. Keys, Passaic.

Vice Presidents—George Hayday, Atlantic; Captain Isaiah Rynders, Bergen; Hon. Job H. Gaskill, Burlington; John McCormick, Camden; Albert Adams, Cape May; Dr. Wm. Newell, Cumberland; Fred. B. Wismer, Essex; Thomas W. Hurff, Gloucester; Edward O. Chapman, Hudson; Hon. Jas. M. Pidcock, Hunterdon; Dr. John Woolverton, Mercer; Josephus Shann, Middlesex; Hon. Wm. S. Hendrickson, Monmouth; Hon. Halloway W. Hunt, Morris; Hon. E. P. Emson, Ocean; Robert A. Haley, Passaic; John C. Craven, Salem; John J. Baxter, Sussex; Judge Samuel Corle, Somerset; Cornelius Rankin, Union; Judge Philip H. Hann, Warren.

Judge Teese thanked the Convention for the honor bestowed, invited the Secretaries and Vice Presidents to a seat on the stage, and then proceeded to business.

The Committee on Credentials reported that there were no contested seats for delegates.

The Committee on Rules reported the following:

That each county shall be entitled to one vote for each 100 Democratic votes and one for each fraction over 50 votes cast at the last Gubernatorial election.

That in the election of delegates by the Convention a majority of the whole vote cast shall be necessary to elect.

And that otherwise the rules heretofore governing the conventions of the Democratic party in the State of New Jersey govern this Convention.

The report was adopted.

Major James S. Yard, of Monmouth, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, presented and read the following

RESOLUTIONS:

Resolved, That the Democracy of New Jersey reassert the principles of constitutional government, civil and religious liberty and the equal rights of the people, to preserve which the Democratic party was founded by the men who founded the republic, and to perpetuate which is the aim, [illegible] and the sacred duty of Democracy.

Resolved, That the preservation of the States and the maintenance of their governments, are as much within the design and care of the Constitution as the preservation of the Union and the maintenance of the National government; [illegible] that the interference by Congress with the States in the administration of their governments and the enforcement of their laws with respect to matters over which jurisdiction was not surrendered to the United States, is not authorized by the Constitution; [illegible] by a partisan judiciary is a dangerous usurpation, destructive of [illegible] and, if persisted in, will result in reducing the States to mere municipal corporations, thus effectually destroying the government of our fathers.

Resolved, That a free and fair ballot is the right prerogative of all citizens. We denounce all pretexts and subterfuges for surrounding the polls with troops, in imitation of imperial usurpers, and with petty officials clothed with the arbitrary power of arresting citizens without warrant, as their aim is to prevent an untrammeled expression of the popular will by a terrorizing and tyrannical system. We demand a free ballot as the inestimable right of free men.

Resolved, That the widespread disasters that followed the temporizing financial policy of the Republican party and its [illegible] repudiation, have served to vindicate the Democratic doctrine that a sound currency, with a specie basis is the best means of securing business stability and permanent prosperity; and to this doctrine we adhere. We favor economy in administration as the best means of strengthening the Government credit and lightening the burthens of the people; and we are opposed to all measures, class legislation and taxation, which disturb the equal operation of the laws of trade, create unequal privileges, or interfere with the legitimate opportunities of honest labor and private enterprise.

Resolved, That we look to the Democratic National Convention for a presidential candidate who will represent the foregoing principles, and whose election will secure their restored ascendancy in the administration, believing that, through their observance alone, the Government, long perverted from its original and true purposes, can be restored to the purity, simplicity and justice which should distinguish our republican institutions.

Resolved, That we favor the continuance of the two-thirds rule by the National Convention in the nomination of candidates.

Resolved, That we cannot too often reiterate our abhorrence of the monstrous fraud by which the sovereign will of the American people in the choice of their Chief Magistrate was defeated in the last Presidential contest, and through which the United States has since presented the shameful spectacle of a Republic with an Executive not elected by its people. To the execration in which the men and the party guilty of this crowning iniquity of the nineteenth century must be held, should be added their condemnation and defeat at the coming election in a warning that the people are resolved to maintain their priceless heritage of self-government.

They were adopted unanimously amid loud cheering.

Captain Gill moved that the Convention proceed to the election of Delegates-at-Large.

The counties were then called and made the following nominations:

Atlantic—John P. Stockton, Hezekiah B. Smith, J. S. Whittaker.
Bergen—John P. Stockton, A. B. Woodruff, Orestes Cleveland, C. Meyer Zulick.
Burlington—Hezekiah B. Smith, Orestes Cleveland, C. Meyer Zulick.
Camden—J. S. Whittaker.
Cape May—J. S. Whittaker, John P. Stockton, C. M. Zulick, Orestes Cleveland.
Cumberland—J. S. Whittaker.
Essex—C. M. Zulick, O. Cleveland, John P. Stockton, H. B. Smith, J. S. Whittaker.
Gloucester—J. S. Whittaker, C. M. Zulick.
Hudson—Orestes Cleveland, John P. Stockton, J. S. Whittaker, C. M. Zulick.
Hunterdon—John P. Stockton.
Mercer—John P. Stockton, H. B. Smith, J. S. Whitaker, Orestes Cleveland, A. B. Woodruff, C. M. Zulick.
Middlesex—John P. Stockton, Orestes Cleveland, C. M. Zulick, H. B. Smith.
Monmouth—No nomination.
Morris—No nomination.
Ocean—H. B. Smith, O. Cleveland.
Passaic—A. B. Woodruff, J. P. Stockton, O. Cleveland, C. M. Zulick.
Salem—J. S. Whittaker.
Somerset—No nomination.
Sussex—John P. Stockton.
Union—J. Augustus Fay.
Warren—John P. Stockton, Orestes Cleveland, C. M. Zulick, J. A. Fay.

Mr. Harris, of Warren county, as chairman of that delegation, moved the Convention elect by acclamation, for Delegate-at-Large, that distinguished citizen, honored from the mountains of Sussex to the waves of Cape May, Hon. John P. Stockton, of Mercer.

Captain Rynders rose to second the motion, saying he knew Senator Stockton and his father before him. He knew him to be a sound, determined and unwavering Democrat.

Mr. E. F. McDonald, of Hudson, said that while he was one of the many delegates of the Convention who would vote to send Hon. John P. Stockton to Cincinnati, yet he knew of no good reason why he or any other man should be singled out for nomination by acclamation. He said there were men in Hudson, Essex and other counties that were candidates, and insisted that the roll should be called. He knew that Hon. John P. Stockton would be elected, and there was no necessity of a distinction in his mode of election. He rose, he said, to a point of order, that the question was to go into election of four Delegates-at-Large; the motion to elect by acclamation was not in order.

Mr. Harris insisted that the motion was carried to go into the election, and he did not believe that the mode of election could be adopted by the convention whether by acclamation or vote.

The President decided that as the motion to go into an election had been carried, the motion to elect by acclamation was in order.

After some further discussion a motion prevailed to lay the motion of Mr. Harris on the table.

The Secretary called the roll of the counties, and the following was the result of the first ballot:

Stockton, 985; Cleveland, 731; Zulick, 854; Smith, 403; Whittaker, 386; Woodruff, 161; Fay, 418.

The President declared Messrs. Stockton, Cleveland and Zulick elected.

The result of the Second Ballot for the fourth delegate-at-large was as follows:

Whittaker, 360; Woodruff, 121; Smith, 380; Fay, 129.

The Chair decided that none of the candidates having received the majority of the convention (495), there was no election.

The third ballot resulted as follows, (Union county's vote being changed from Fay to Smith), Whittaker, 170; Smith, 812.

Capt. Wm. H. Gill, of Union, moved that the Convention proceed to the election of District Delegates. The following was the result of the election:

First District—Charles S. Ridgway and Robert Newell.

Second District—William P. McMichael and Rufus Blodgett.

Third District—Robert S. Green and Joseph J. Thompson.

Fourth District—Alvah A. Clark and Lewis Cochran.

Fifth District—Henry D. Winton and James S. Coleman.

Sixth District—Lawrence G. Fell and J. Gottlieb Krueger.

Seventh District—E. P. C. Lewis and Jeremiah Sweeney.

Hon. Allen McDermott, of Hudson, moved that the Convention proceed to the election of a State Central Committee, and that each county be called to name the person to represent it in that committee.

Mr. Simerson, of Warren, moved as an amendment, that the President appoint the committee, to consist of two delegates from each Congressional District and two at large.

After some discussion, Capt. Brice said he thought that it would be proper to first accept the resignation of the present State Central Committee.

Major A. J. Smith agreed with the former speaker that it would be well to accept the resignation of the present committee, and tender it a vote of thanks for its services. He thought that by the system of appointing one member of the committee from each county they would best reach the Democracy of the State, and that an Executive Committee could be selected. He insisted that the great want of the Democracy was a proper party organization.

A delegate inquired if it was not customary to appoint the committee at the Gubernatorial and not the State Convention.

Hon. Geo. O. Vanderbilt moved that the present State Central Committee be continued until the Gubernatorial Convention. Carried.

The Convention, on motion, then adjourned.

The Census.

From the New Brunswick Times, of which Mr. A. Gordon, Census Supervisor of the Second District, is editor, we learn that the duties of enumerators is as follows:

"To visit personally each dwelling house in his subdivision, and each family therein, and each individual living out of a family in any place of abode, and by inquiry made of the head of each family, or of the member thereof deemed most credible and worthy of trust, or of such individual living out of a family, to obtain each and every item of information and all the particulars required by this act, as of date June first, eighteen hundred and eighty. And in case no person shall be found at the usual place of abode of such family or individual living out of a family competent to answer the inquiries made in compliance with the requirements of this act, then it shall be lawful for the enumerator to obtain the required information, as nearly as may be practicable, from the family or families, or person or persons, living nearest to such place of abode.

"The compensation of enumerators shall be ascertained and fixed as follows: In subdivisions where the Superintendent of Census shall deem such an allowance sufficient, an allowance not exceeding two cents for each living inhabitant, 5 cents for each death reported, 10 cents for each farm, and 15 cents for each establishment of productive industry enumerated and returned, as full compensation, and no allowance for mileage or traveling expenses. But the compensation allowed to each enumerator east of the Rocky Mountains shall not exceed an average of four dollars a day of ten hours actual field work."

In relation to the community at large it is enacted that every person more than 20 years of age, belonging to any family residing in any enumeration district and in case of the absence of the heads and other members of any such family, then any agent of such family, shall be, and each of them hereby is required, if thereto requested by the superintendent, supervisor or enumerator, to render a true account, to the best of his or her knowledge, of every person belonging to such family, in the various particulars required by law, and whoever shall wilfully fail or refuse shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding $100. And every president, treasurer, secretary, general agent, or managing director of every corporation from which answers to any of the schedules provided for by this act are herein required, who shall, if thereto requested by the superintendent, supervisor or enumerator, wilfully neglect or refuse to give true and complete answers to any inquiries authorized by this act, such officer or agent shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than $500, nor more than $10,000, to be recovered in an action of debt in any court of competent jurisdiction, in the name and to the use of the United States, and in addition thereto shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be imprisoned for a term not exceeding one year."

Enumerators of the census shall commence their labors upon the 1st day of June 1880, the work to be finished in two weeks therefrom in cities of 10,000 population and over; but in other localities the total period of enumeration may be extended to the 30th day of June. Supervisors are entitled to use the telegraph at Government rates, where telegrams are absolutely required.

In cities having 8,000 inhabitants and over by the census of 1870, special agents will be appointed to collect the statistics of manufactures.

The provisions relative to exhibition and correction of returns will be published hereafter, for the benefit of the public at large; but each enumerator will be furnished with copies of his duty in this respect as well as of all others.

A Terrible Accident.

Last Wednesday evening about eleven o'clock the little ten year old daughter of Mr. Amos Burke of Fourth street near William, was shockingly burned by the explosion of a kerosene lamp. The child was noticed, just before the accident, chasing a bug that was fluttering near the light, and it is supposed in her endeavors to catch the insect, the lamp was knocked over upon her. Dr. T. H. Tomlinson was immediately called in and did everything in his power to allay the terrible pain which the little girl was suffering. The victim was seriously burned about the face, left arm and both of the lower limbs, but if it is possible for her to get over the shock of the occurrence, it is believed that tender care will save her.

The Sheriffs of Somerset County.

The death of Simon Van Liew, late Sheriff of Somerset county, which occurred on last Monday morning, was undoubtedly a great loss to the community. The deceased was born March 8th, 1820, in the county in which he died, and was in consequence identified, by a long life, with its interests. He superintended the laying of the South Branch road, and was paymaster of the hands on the Central Railroad when he became a candidate for Sheriff. He was never a prominent politician but a good representative man, and received the votes of both parties when elected in 1878. He was taken suddenly ill last winter, while attending to his duties in Bedminster township, and has never been out of danger since, although his long lingering gave his friends hope that he might recover. His funeral took place yesterday (Thursday) at 3 p. m., at the First Reformed church of Somerville.

The statute provides that in case of death of a Sheriff, a Coroner shall act until the Governor appoints a person to fill the vacancy, who shall serve until the next general election, when a Sheriff shall be elected to serve for the whole term—three years.

Wines for Medicine.

Some time since we stopped at Passaic, N. J., and were really surprised to see the amount of Mr. Speer's stock of Port Grape Wine on hand—it is almost fabulous. Four storehouses are filled, and tiers upon tiers of casks, up and down stairs, and in some cases huge vats occupy every available spot, leaving only little alley ways through which to walk. It is an immense quantity of wine. None is sold until it has acquired the age of four years, and the buildings 1, 2, 3 and 4, are of the first, second, third and fourth years vintage. Our druggists have some of the oldest of the above, wine direct from Mr. Speer.—(Paterson Guardian.)

This wine is now in demand for communion purposes. It is excellent for weakly persons before retiring. For sale by all druggists.

PREJUDICE OVERCOME.—Physicians, although loth to recognize any preparation, the composition of which is unknown to them, are compelled to acknowledge the beneficial results derived from the use of Ely's Cream Balm for Catarrh, Hay Fever and Catarrhal Deafness. Price 50 cts. See advt. For sale by Wm. H Voorhees.

THERE IS A BALM IN GILEAD.

The success which has marked the introduction here of Cream Balm, a Catarrh remedy, prepared by Ely Bros. Owego, N. Y., is indeed marvelous. Many persons in Pittston and vicinity are using it with most satisfactory results. A lady down-town is recovering the sense of smell, which she had not enjoyed for fifteen years, through the use of the Balm. She had given up her case as incurable. Mr. Barber, the druggist, has used it in his family, and commends it very highly. In another column, a young Tunkhannock lawyer, known to many of our readers, testifies that he was cured of partial deafness by the Balm. It is certainly a very efficacious remedy.—(From the Pittston Pa.) Gazette, August 15, 1879.

PRIVATE THEATRICALS.

"By gum! I've got it."

Mr. and Mrs. Defoe sat before a cheerful fire in their home the other evening. There had been a long period of silence, when Mr. Defoe suddenly exclaimed as above.

"What is it, dear?" she responded.

"What do you say to private theatricals?"

"How?"

"Why, we'll get three or four of the neighbors to join in and we'll meet at each other's houses and have regular plays."

"That will be splendid!" she gasped.

"Hanged if it won't! Wonder we never thought of it before. Twenty dollars will get us all the scenery we want, and each one can furnish his own wardrobe. We've got the idea now!"

"What sort of a play could we play?" she asked as he marched up and down with tragic step.

"I have it—ah!" he exclaimed as he stopped short. "Don't you remember I started to write a play about five years ago? I'll finish it and we'll bring it out. Now let's see how the characters run. There is the Count Dumdoff, who is in love with Geraldine the Fair. I'll be the Count, of course, as he is the hero. He kills four men, rescues Geraldine from several dangers, and there is a good deal of kissing and love-making and a happy marriage."

"And I'll be Geraldine."

"You? Oh, you couldn't play that part. She must be young, vivacious. Let's see! I think I'll cast you for Hannah who keeps a bakery near a park in Paris."

"I'd like to see myself playing Hannah in a bakery, I would!" she defiantly answered. "If you can play Dumdoff, I know I can play Geraldine."

"Oh, no you can't, my love. You are a little stiff in the knees; and how you'd look throwing yourself into my arms as the villains pursue. I shall cast that little Widow D. for Geraldine."

"Then there'll be two Geraldines of us! If you can play Dumdoff with your lame back and catarrh, I know I can play Geraldine with this little lameness in my left knee."

"Now you listen to reason, Mrs. Defoe. You aren't built for a Geraldine; you are too fat; your feet are too large; you haven't got the voice for it."

"And you'd make a nice Count Dumdoff you would!" she fired back. "You want to get the crook out of your back, that bald head shingled over, your mouth repaired, and your eyes touched up with a paint brush. I think I see you killing four villians! Ha, ha, ha!"

"Woman, do not anger me!" he said in a deep-toned voice, as he arose.

"And don't you anger your Geraldine, either!"

"Geraldine! Why, you don't know a sky-border from a flat!"

"Dumdoff! And you don't know a skye-terrier from the big fiddle in the orchestra!"

"'Tis well! We'll have no playing here!"

"Then you needn't! When I play Hannah in a bakery to let you hug and kiss the Widow D. or any other woman all over the stage you'll be three of four Count Dumdoff's!"

"I'll burn the play, jealous woman!"

"If you don't I will, vain man!"

Then they sat down and resumed their former occupation of looking into the fire, and the disturbed cat went back to her rug and her dreams.

PEARLS.

Hold integrity sacred.

One has only to die to be praised.

Little and often makes a heap in time.

It is easier to blame than to do better.

It is not enough to aim; you must hit.

Would you be strong, conquer yourself.

Use your leisure time for improvement.

There is no gospel in preaching to the hungry.

Speak little, speak truth; spend little, pay cash.

To change and to be better are two different things.

Everybody knows good counsel except him that hath need of it.

To teach one who has no curiosity to learn, is to sow a field without plowing it.

Above every other feature which adorns the female character, delicacy stands foremost within the province of good taste.

There is a blessing attending the ministration of mercy. The luxury of doing good surpasses every other personal enjoyment.

The world is the book of women. Whatever knowledge they may possess is more commonly acquired by observation than by reading.

If we would have powerful minds we must think; if we would have faithful hearts, we must love; if we would have strong muscles, we must labor. These include all that is valuable in life.

The man who has never tried the companionship of a little child has carelessly passed by one of the greatest pleasures of life, as one passes a rare flower without plucking it or knowing its value.

A DENIAL!
SIMPSON & CO.,
(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE of SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is UNFOUNDED, or, in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient in either of any being cut, independent of filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the Ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from
Pure Spring Water.
They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defence.

POETRY.

THE SOUL OF LOVE.

Thou think'st perchance I love thee,
O my treasure,
For flowing locks or diadem,
So without measure;
For curving lashes, rosy lips,
Or smile so gay.
Believe not so; for these are things
Which pass away.

Believe not so; that were to make
The soul of love;
To think it had no power to live
Such charms above.

Believe not so: that which I love—
Oh, know it, dear!—
Nor jealous time, nor death itself,
Can disappear.

I love because when on thy face
My fond glances rise,
My [illegible] clearly I behold
In thy dark eyes.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

FOOD FOR THE BEARS.

The other day a lady, accompanied by her son, a very small boy, boarded a train at Little Rock. The woman had a careworn expression hanging over her face like a tattered veil, and many of the rapid questions asked by the boy were answered by unconscious signs.

"Ma," said the boy, "that man's like a baby, aint he?" pointing to a bald-headed man sitting just in front of them.

"Hush."

"Why must I hush?"

After a few moments' silence: "Ma, what's the matter with that man's head?"

"Hush, I tell you. He's bald."

"What's bald?"

"His head hasn't got any hair on it."

"Did it come off?"

"I guess so."

"Will mine come off?"

"Sometime, may be."

"Then I'll be bald, wont I?"

"Yes."

"Don't ask so many questions."

After another silence the boy exclaimed "Ma, look at that fly on that man's head."

"If you don't hush I'll whip you when we get home."

"Look! There's another fly. Look at 'em fight; look at 'em!"

"Madam," said the man, putting aside a newspaper and looking around. "What's the matter with that young hyena?"

The woman blushed, stammered out something, and attempted to smooth back the boy's hair.

"One fly, two fly, three flies," said the boy innocently, following with his eyes a basket of oranges carried by the news-boy.

"Here, you young hedge-hog," said the bald-headed man, "if you don't hush I'll have the conductor put you off the train."

The poor woman not knowing what else to do, boxed the boy's ears and then gave him an orange to keep him from crying.

"Ma, have I got red [illegible] on my head?"

"I'll slap you again if you don't hush."

"Mister," said the boy after a short silence, "does it hurt to be bald-headed?"

"Youngster," said the man, "if you'll keep quiet I'll give you a quarter."

The boy promised and the money was paid over.

The man took up his paper and resumed his reading.

"This is my bald-headed money," said the boy. "When I get bald-headed I'm goin' to give boys money. Mister, have all bald-headed men got money?"

The annoyed man threw down his paper, arose and exclaimed: "Madam, hereafter when you travel leave that young gorilla at home. Hitherto I always thought that the old prophet was very cruel for calling the she bears to kill children for making sport of his head, but now I am forced to believe that he did a Christian act. If your boy had been in that crowd he would have died first. If I can't find another seat on this train I'll ride on the cow-catcher rather than remain here."

"The bald-headed man is gone," said the boy, and the woman leaned back and blew a tired sigh from her lips.

NEW POST OFFICE RULES.

"A little nonsense now and then
Is relished by the wisest men."

Postmaster General Key assures us that an arrangement has been perfected by which letters without postage will be immediately forwarded—to the dead letter office.

A pair of onions will go for two scents.

Parties are compelled to lick their own stamps and envelopes; the postmasters can not be compelled to do this.

Nitro glycerine and dynamite must be forwarded at the risk of the sender. If they should blow up in the postmaster's hands he can not be held responsible.

A stamp of the foot is not sufficient to carry a letter.

When letters are received bearing no direction, the parties for whom they are intended will please signify the fact to the postmaster, that they may be at once forwarded.

Spring chickens that are not old enough to vote, when sent by mail, should be enclosed in iron-bound boxes to save their tender bodies from injury.

It is earnestly requested that lovers in writing to their girls, will please confine their gushing rhapsodies to the inside of the envelope.

Ducks cannot be sent through the mails when alive. Their quacking disturbs the slumbers of the clerks on the postal cars. This rule however does not apply to a duck of a bonnet.

When watches are sent through the mails, if the sender will put a notice on the outside the Postmaster will wind up and keep in running order.

Old maids, inflated baloons and feather beds are unmailable.

When candy is sent through the mails it is earnestly requested that both ends of the package be left open, so that the employees of the Post Office may test its quality.

Eggs are not mailable unless they are fresh, and should they become chickens on transit, they become the property of the Post Office Dep't.

When you inclose a money order in a letter always write full and explicit directions in the same letter so that any one getting the letter can draw the money.

Letter carriers are required to have enough penetration to know when the letters should be delivered to jealous wives—beside if he delivers a letter from a young girl, to your wife, you can have him discharged.

The placing of stamps upside down on letters is prohibited. Several postmasters have recently been severely injured while trying to stand on their heads to cancel stamps placed in that manner.

The bicycle is a fine invention. We love to look upon the bicycle when some other person rides it.

SWALLOWING A MAN.

John Thomas was a man of keen wit, and strongly tinctured with the love of the humorous. He had been down to Concord and seen the Fakir of Ava perform wonderful tricks of legerdemain. He was relating his experience in the bar room of the Conway House, and among other things declared that he had gained an insight into many of the magician's manipulations, and that several of the most wonderful tricks he could perform himself.

"For instance," said he, "I can swallow a man whole."

"Bah!" cried Tom Staples, a red-faced woodsman, weighing at least two hundred pounds, "p'haps you could swallow me?"

"Yes."

"I'd like to see you do it."

"I can do it."

"I'll bet you fifty dollars you can't."

"I'll take that bet."

"Then let's us begin."

"Not now. I have just eaten my supper. I will do it to-morrow morning, in the presence of as many witnesses as you may choose; and it shall be done in the square in front of the hotel."

This was agreed to, and the money was put up. By the following morning the news that John Thomas was to swallow Tom Staples whole had become wide spread, and a vast concourse, embracing men, women and children, had assembled to witness the wonderful feat.

At the appointed time the chief actor appeared in the square. John Thomas was smiling confidently, as though sure of success, while Tom Staples looked a little timid and uneasy, as though not quite at rest concerning what was to become of him.

"Are you ready," asked John.

"All ready," answered Tom. "Begin as soon as you please."

"Will you have the good kindness to take off your hat?"

"Sartin."

"Now your boots."

Tom removed his boots.

"Next, you will remove your coat. Those big brass buttons might stick in my throat."

Tom took off his coat, and as he threw it upon the ground one of the cooks came out of the hotel with a pail of melted lard and a big white-wash brush, which he deposited by the side of John Thomas.

"Now," persued John, "you will take off your stockings, and then remove your pantaloons and shirt."

"Oh? D'ye mean for me to strip stark naked?" queried Tom, aghast.

"Of course I do. The agreement was that I should swallow you. You are meat, but your clothes are not, nor were they in bond. If you will strip I will give you a thorough greasing and double the bet if you wish. I know I can swallow you—or, at all events, I can try!"

Tom gave up the bet and invited his friends into the hotel.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

Youth looks at the possible, age at the probable.

Charms strike the sight, but merit wins the soul.

No man ever looked on the dark side of life without finding it.

One should seek for others the happiness one desires for one's self.

Truth is the foundation of all knowledge, and the cement of all societies.

They that laugh at everything, and they that fret at everything, are alike fools.

No manner of speaking is so offensive as giving praise and closing it with an exception.

As the firefly only shines when on the wing, so it is with the human mind—when at rest it darkens.

How many are there like Atalanta in the fable, who lost the race by stopping to pick up the golden apple.

Pleasant occupation tends to prolong life, for longevity is much dependent upon the feelings of the mind.

It is not merely the individual but society that suffers by every idle, every selfish, every mean, every unjust man.

As the sun appears largest when he is about to set, so does the proud man swell most magnificently just before his fall.

Real merit of any kind cannot long be concealed; it will be discovered, and nothing can depreciate it but a man's exhibiting it himself.

Leisure is time for doing something useful; this leisure the diligent man will obtain, but the lazy man never; so that, Poor Richard says: "A life of laziness and leisure are two things."

He is most secure of life who lives for his fellows. Our lives through all periods who has in all periods lived for his race. We must see humanity through our ambition always, if we would make and perpetuate that life which consists in an undying reputation.

THREE WOMEN IN COURT.

There was a jury trial in Detroit the other day, in which nearly a dozen people living in the western suburbs were mixed up as plaintiffs, defendants and witnesses. It appeared that Mrs. Blank borrowed a wash-tub of Mrs. Brown, and while in the possession of the borrower, a cow knocked the bottom out. After a neighborhood quarrel, suit was brought to recover the amount. Mrs. Blank thereupon put in as an offset that she had nursed the plaintiff for three days and received no pay.

"Nurse me!" echoed the defendant. "Why, she did nothing while she was there but hog down custard pie and tattle about the neighbors."

"Custard pie! And who lent you the sugar and eggs and lard to make it?" shrieked the other.

His Honor put his foot down and patched up a temporary truce, and the plaintiff took the stand to testify about lending the tub and what it was worth. She established the value at seventy-five cents; and here the defendant boiled over and exclaimed:

"Seventy-five cents! Why, both ears and the top hoop were off! It was the only tub she had since her marriage, and that was ten years ago."

"And I've had to lend it to you every Tuesday all that time!" retorted the plaintiff.

His Honor secured silence in the court and the defendant took the stand and said that her services as a nurse were worth at least $2.

"What ailed the plaintiff?" asked the lawyer.

"Well, I don't know as I ought to say that her husband struck her with—"

"Don't you dare say that!" interrupted the plaintiff. "You know that I fell down the cellar stairs! If my husband hit me on the head with a meat-platter as yours did, I—"

"I object!" exclaimed both lawyers in chorus.

"So do we!" added both females in a breath.

His Honor pounded the desk until everything rattled, and then a witness was put on the stand to testify that she saw the tub when it was lent and again when it had been damaged. She had scarcely got started when the defendant, whose witness she was, called out:

"You are not swearing as you agreed to!"

"Ah! ah! I make a note of that!" chuckled one of the lawyers.

"Your Honor, I object," added the other.

"And I wouldn't believe the witness under oath!" put in the defendant.

"Who wants you to?" squeaked the witness. "If I couldn't come into court with anything better than a calico dress and a ten-cent lace collar, I wouldn't hold my nose so high!"

"This is too much—ten times too much, and I want this court room cleared right out!" said his Honor, as he turned the crowd into the alley.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, MAY 20, 1880.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Your committee to take Collector's bond beg leave to report that they have examined the bond herewith submitted and the four sureties offered and find the same correct and satisfactory to the undersigned.

JOSEPH NOLTE,
WM. JEWELL,
J. F. HUBBARD,
Committee.

Freeholder Randolph moved the report be received and the bond filed in the office of the County Clerk.

Which was carried.

The committee on the payment and issue of bonds reported as follows:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

Your Committee appointed May 12th on the payment and issue of bonds this fiscal year, beg leave to report that we find the amount falling due, and to be provided for, to be one hundred and thirty-one thousand dollars, distributed as follows:

$2,000 due July 1st, 1880.
$4,000 due October 1st, 1880.
$25,000 due January 1st, 1881.
$100,000 April 1st, 1881.

We would recommend the payment this year of fourteen thousand dollars, renewing the balance, so that they may fall due in three different years, and none to be for a longer period than ten years from date.

THOMAS FORSYTH,
WILLIAM H. BRIANT,
WILLIAM JEWELL,
J. F. HUBBARD,
WILLIAM J. THOMPSON,
Committee.

May 20, 1880.

Freeholder Randolph moved that the report be received and spread upon the minutes.

Which was carried.

The Committee on Tax Levy reported as follows:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

Your Committee appointed May 13 to "take into consideration the amount of money necessary to be levied for the use of the county this year," would respectfully report that they have carefully examined the expenditures for the last few years and find items that are constantly on the increase, nearly all of them are matters fixed by the laws placing them beyond our control, yet we are compelled to make appropriations sufficient to meet all their requirements. Some of the accounts are of great uncertainty. Coroners may cost $300 and may be $1,200. The jail and others equally uncertain. We have also this year a large amount of bonds falling due. The Committee on Bonds have advised the payment of $14,000. Therefore, after examining the expenditures for the last few years, year by year, we would advise the tax levy be increased $5,000, and that $37,800 of the uncollected assets of the county now due be appropriated to the use of the county as in former years. We therefore recommend that the appropriations be made to each account as follows:

1 For courts	$32,000
2 For County Jail	5,000
3 For lunatics	19,000
4 For compensation and lawful expenses of Chosen Freeholders and for committees and the salaries of their officers	7,000
5 For fees of coroners	300
6 For elections	1,800
7 For stationery	1,000
8 For advertising, publishing and printing	1,500
9 For incidental expenses and schools	3,200
Debt and Interest:
1 Payment of principal of bonded debt	14,000
2 Payment of interest on bonded debt	29,000
3 Payment of bank interest on temporary loans	2,000
Payment of temporary loans	27,000
Public works:
1 Permanent improvements of public grounds and buildings	3,000
2 Erection and repair of bridges and culverts	12,000
	$157,800
Less uncollected assets now due above appropriated	37,800
Leaving the amount to be raised this year by taxation	$120,000

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN K. ROLL,
GEO. W. P. RANDOLPH,
DANIEL O'SULLIVAN,
WM. H. BRIANT,
Committee.

THE TRUE THEORY.

The Democratic theory of government is one of the people and for the people.

A government for the safety and welfare of the whole people, without any distinction as to avocation, worldly condition or territorial abode.

Not especially for the rich and high born;

Nor for any particular section or interest;

Nor for speculators and jobbers;

Nor for grabbing monopolists;

Nor for subsidizing adventurers;

Nor for venal politicians.

But for the people of each and every State, with perfect equality and rigid justice.

That is Democracy and it is the true meaning of the Constitution of the United States. National and State prosperity and freedom of the citizen alike demand that it be practically observed.

It cannot be truthfully denied that in many important particulars the tendency of our Government, both Executive and Legislative, has of late years been directly away from that safe standard.

It is time there was a change.

HONORING AN OLD CHANCELLOR.

A farewell dinner was given to Chancellor Runyon, of New Jersey, last Tuesday evening, at the Metropolitan Hotel, by members of New Jersey Bar. The Chancellor is going to Europe to spend the vacation, and the prominent lawyers of the State of New Jersey deemed the opportunity a fitting one to show their admiration and esteem for the distinguished jurist. Ex-Governor Bedle and Mr. Cortlandt Parker and Silas Whitehead, of Newark, besides 150 other gentlemen, sat down to table. Colonel G. N. Abeel, County Prosecutor of Essex county, N. J., who like Mr. Runyon, is a resident of Newark, occupied the chair and the numerous guests were distributed at various tables throughout the vast dining hall. After a short speech in which Colonel Abeel proposed the health of the Chancellor, and wished him a pleasant journey and plenty of rest, Governor Bedle replied to the toast of "The State." Mr. W. Paterson, of Perth Amboy, answered for the Judiciary, and the junior members of the profession were then given an opportunity to display their eloquence. Chancellor Runyon will remain in Europe during the greater part of the summer.

BEAUTIFUL SENTIMENTS.

At the Decoration ceremonies in the National Cemetery at Gettysburg, on Saturday last, the orator of the day closed his remarks with the following beautiful words:

"Speaking by these graves, we must not forget that the true soldier never cherishes any feeling of hatred toward a fallen foe. Rather let us remember that the South, as well as the North, has its maimed and dead soldiers; that its homes were made desolate and its fields laid waste by the ravages of remorseless war; that it was touched by the keenest disappointments, and wounded in its most sensitive pride. Far be it from us to utter aught here which could be construed into taunt or exultation. We can respect the filial feeling which strews flowers upon the graves of its dead or rears monuments to their memories; but we can never justify any attempt, either by word or deed, to revive or perpetuate the cause that went down in the conflict of arms. Nor can we conclude that he who attempts to destroy his country engages in a cause as sacred as he who fights to preserve it. Were we to say aught else, our late opponents would know that we utter that which we did not mean, and would justly credit us with pretentious assumption or hollow-hearted hypocrisy. Instead of this, let us cultivate a feeling of mutual frankness, mutual forbearance, and mutual respect. Let mercy to the many be coupled with justice to all, and let the rights of none be bartered to purchase the favor of any. But as a united people, lamenting the past and cherishing the future let the nation leap forward in a career of prosperity and growth which shall prove an unmixed blessing to mankind. In this spirit and to this end, would to God that the flowers which, like the dews of heaven, descend upon our country to-day, might bury beneath them the last vestige of sectional hatred and ill-will."

THE WEST POINT CASE.

WEST POINT, May 29.

The Whittaker Court of Inquiry has made a final report, finding that the colored cadet wrote the "note of warning" himself, and that he "is not ignorant of the person or persons "engaged in the affair" of the night of April 5. The Court is also of the opinion that "the imputation upon the character of Cadet Whittaker referred to in the order convening the court" is fully sustained. The report was signed by all the members of the court. Whittaker has been placed under arrest to await the decision of the authorities at Washington.

Soldiers to overawe the freedom of the ballot, and partisan Marshals to obstruct legally qualified votes at the polls, have no legitimate existence in a Republic like the United States, and the Democrats in Congress deserve thanks for their determined opposition to the advance of despotism along that line.

There was a period in the history of the United States when the entire monied affairs of Government, both receipts and disbursements, were readily and efficiently managed through an Independent Treasury, and without any outside agency. That was a prosperous financial era for the country, well worthy of recall.

Samuel Dickson representing the Receivers of the Reading Railroad and Coal and Iron Companies, appeared before Judge McKennan, United States Circuit Court, in Chambers, Thursday morning, May 27, and made application for an order authorizing them to borrow $1,000,000 for the payment of wages of employees and the interest due June 1. The order was granted.

WHAT IS THERE IN IT?

For several weeks past excitement has been at fever heat among a few of our citizens, who have been working up what they claim will yet prove a bonanza and fortune for them, and the making of Plainfield and vicinity an Eldorado. For years past it has been a well-established fact that among other mineral deposits in the range of hills extending from Plainfield to beyond Princeton, gold and silver ores existed, and specimens have been procured and exhibited, but it was never thought by the discoverers that the precious minerals existed in sufficient quantity to warrant the expense of assaying them. Recently, however, the attention of parties were again turned in the direction of these hills by certain accidental discoveries, and from experience gained in the knowledge of formation of rock containing gold and silver, in the Colorado and Arizona mining districts, and experiments have been made by them within the past three months which seem to warrant their assertion that there is gold and silver ore to be obtained in the Blue Ridge range of mountains near Plainfield in sufficient quantities to make the discoverers wealthy men and Plainfield a place of mining renown. Mr. F. M. Bacon, one of the parties interested, over his own signature, in this issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, gives facts and figures regarding the recent discoveries. It is not our purpose or desire to publish exaggerated accounts of this matter. We only trust that one hundredth part of the rumors now in circulation regarding the paying quantities of the precious metals to be obtained in our vicinity may prove true. We have visited some of the mines in person and have obtained specimens of the ore which the public are invited to examine at our office. One thing in favor of the alleged discovery is the fact that there is no stock in the market to be purchased by gullible persons. A large tract of mountain land, on which are situated abandoned mines, worked years ago for copper, have been secured by the persons directly interested, Messrs. Postmaster Wallace Vail, F. M. Bacon and H. P. Brook, while New York capitalists have agreed to furnish the money to open and work the mines and prospect for the vein of silver and gold which they are confident exists there. Of course it will take some time for an incredulous public to believe that such good fortune awaits the city of Plainfield as to be the greatest place of interest in New Jersey, but if half the expectations of the sanguine discoverers are realized, the day is not far distant when they will become convinced of such a fact. Mr. Bacon's article speaks for itself. We advise our readers to keep cool and await future developments. We are not so sceptical but that we believe there is something in the startling discoveries announced.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The National Republican Convention at Chicago, commencing June 2d, has proven a grand farce and babel of confusion, and it is extremely doubtful whether we shall be enabled to announce in this issue the name of the man the Democrats are to whip at the coming election. There has been a fierce fight among the delegates for the men of their choice for the nomination for the Presidency. At this writing it looks as though Grant would not receive the nomination, although it is hoped so. Don Cameron has been "sat upon" and the feeling is bitter against the third termers. Geo. F. Hoar was made the temporary chairman on Wednesday. Blaine, Sherman and Washburne lost ground, and it would seem as though the chances for a "dark horse" for the nomination, is looming up. With the present and probably to continue quarreling of the Republicans, it makes but little difference whom they nominate. With the united and determined Democracy, and the selection of a good candidate, the power of the party who for twenty years has misruled the government, will be wrested away from them and placed once more in honest hands.

SUICIDE AT ASBURY PARK.

Tuesday morning the dead body of a man was found hanging from a tree in the woods. Decomposition had set in and the birds had picked the face badly. A revolver, with one chamber empty, was found on the ground near the tree. In his pocket was found a card of "C. Wallner, baker, Cedar street, near Greenwich, New York." No one in the vicinity recognized the deceased.

TWO WIDOWED SISTERS KILLED.

Mrs. John Chidsey and her sister, Maria Avant, were found murdered in their house in Avon, Conn., one morning recently. Mrs. Chidsey was in her room up stairs on a bed, and a Bible was lying by her side. She was struck with a blow by a tailor's goose. The other woman, who was in the kitchen, was killed by a blow from an axe. Mrs. Chidsey's head was crushed near the top, and she was evidently asleep when the blow was given, as there was not much disturbance of the bedclothes. Her spectacles had fallen off and were caught in the bed clothing. She was lying upon one side, the blood from the wound staining the bed clothing. Her sister was found lying on the kitchen floor, her skull crushed in on the top of the head. The axe with which the blow was given was found near the stairs, some distance from the body. It was bloody. A rag carpet had been placed over the head of the dead woman and tucked around her body to the waist. Her clothing was much disturbed. A pool of blood was near her head.

The faculty of Princeton College have resolved that, in view of the state of the institution in consequence of the recent cases of sickness and death among the students, the college will take a recess till the Saturday before Commencement. Why are not the legal-tender silver dollars paid out of the United States Treasury for public dues as the law directs? They would circulate freely if the opportunity was afforded. Mr. Sherman's self vaunted resumption wont bear impartial investigation. A gold coin is rarely seen, and now he wants Congress to appropriate funds for the erection of additional rooms wherein to securely lock up the silver. Gold and silver coins are equally the money of the Constitution, and that instrument was made for the people's benefit, not for the financial advantage of any individual or combination.

DUNELLEN ITEMS.

Sabbath last was a day of special interest in the M. E. church of this place, as elsewhere. The children of the sabbath school had been on the alert for two or three weeks previous, diligently canvassing the community with little earthen receptacles, soliciting contributions for the replenishing of their library, the results of their efforts to be made known to the public at the Raike's centennial.

A very natural and proper curiosity and interest, brought together a large number of parents and friends of the sabbath school, at the usual hour on Sabbath afternoon. With the children came the little jugs laden with treasure, and their appearance arranged in rows in front of the desk, awakened expectations which were not doomed to disappointment.

The opening exercises being concluded, the lesson was briefly taught by the pastor of the church, and a short address was delivered by Mr. Williams, of Staten Island. Then followed the breaking of the jugs, and the counting of the money by a committee of gentlemen with the following very gratifying result. The sum of $40.46 was realized as the aggregate of the children's efforts, which together with the basket collections, doubtless placed nearly $45 in the treasury of the school.

Although this method of accomplishing the object was novel, yet it was so well planned and executed, that it was entirely free from all objectionable features; the breaking of the jugs and the counting being very quietly done, and really amounted to nothing more than counting a collection in the presence of the audience.

Prizes which had been offered for the three highest sums collected, were borne off by Lolita Benton, whose jug contained $8.16; Jennie Pope, $6.84 and Lulu Todd, $5.26. The first received a Bible, the second a hymn and tune book, and the third a year's lesson leaf roll. Small presents were also given to each of the others who had labored in the good cause. To the Rev. S. D. Jones, the pastor and acting superintendent, is due the success of this affair, as well as the noteworthy prosperity of both the church and sabbath school.

The evening was occupied by two addresses, one by the pastor and the other by Mr. Williams.

The announced Plainfield speakers were not on hand. The pastor gave a brief account of the founding of sabbath schools by Robert Raikes of England, about 100 years ago, and said that, however authorities might differ in regard to who it was who first suggested the idea, to Robert Raikes undoubtedly belonged the honor of establishing sabbath schools as an institution. In his position as editor and proprietor of a paper, he had given publicity through his paper to the idea, and it had been caught up and acted upon by others. Mr. Williams gave a brief account of what he personally witnessed in the sabbath schools of England, the birthplace of their founder, during a visit to Europe and the Continent last year.

The gold fever is running quite high in Dunellen at present.

But few if any boarders, have as yet put in an appearance.

The M. E. church will hold a strawberry festival next week, the Presbyterians the week following.

FIRE MATTERS.

There was a false alarm on last Saturday evening about midnight, that called many of the department out of their beds and the apparatus out of the houses. The ringing of the North Plainfield bell, induced a police officer to strike the alarm on this side of the brook, in consequence of which there was many an angry expletive hurled at his head.

The Fire Board met in regular meeting Wednesday evening at their rooms. E. L. Morris occupied the chair. Messrs. Jones, Steiner, Van Winkle, Mayer, Depew and Morris present. At the request of the chairman, Mr. Auguste Saltzman, foreman of Alert Co., acted as teller until the arrival of Second Ass't Eng. Vail, who relieved him of the duty. Ten ballots were taken during the session, each resulting in a tie between Messrs Van Winkle and Depew. In reply to an inquiry from a member of the Board, Mr. Van Winkle said that there was about $65 in the treasury, enough to pay the discount on the renewal of the note that had been given some time ago in anticipation of taxes. Also that there was about $800 worth of claims against the Department unprovided for. After an hour spent with no result, Mr. Steiner moved that the Board adjourn until the next regular meeting in July; seconded by Mr. Jones. Mr. Mayer moved to "amend the motion" so as to meet again June 15th. After much discussion, and a comparison of dates and personal engagements by the individual members, the Board adjourned until Friday the 18th inst, at 8 p. m.

Warren Engine Co. No. 3 have been off duty since last Monday by permission of Chief Voorhees. They are engaged in varnishing the wheels of the steamer and otherwise putting it in as handsome a condition as possible, in anticipation of the grand parade in which the company and its machine will take part at Elizabeth, next Tuesday, on the occasion of the Centennial Celebration of the battle of Elizabethtown. Members of other companies intend being present but unofficially; and a large number of Plainfielders propose to attend as spectators.

A Philadelphia Ledger correspondent at Reading, Pa., under date of May 30th, writes the following with reference to the explosion of a steam fire engine: About 5 o'clock last evening, while the Junior Steam Fire Engine Company, of this city, were testing their new Clapp & Jones steamer, near the Lebanon Valley bridge, on the Schuylkill Canal, the boiler of the engine exploded with terrific force, dangerously injuring two men and severely injuring others. The steamer was completely wrecked, the smoke-stack and dome being thrown a distance of over one hundred feet. The rent in the boiler, which was constructed of one-quarter inch steel, is nearly twenty inches long. There are different reports as to the cause of the accident. Some say it was caused by low water and high pressure of steam, while others say the fire-box was defective. George Mengel, the engineer, is the most seriously injured, being terribly scalded about the legs. He was removed to his home and placed under medical treatment. He says that the cause of the accident cannot be ascertained. William Servison, the fireman, is also badly injured, both legs and other parts of his body being scalded and burned by flying coals. Oliver Smith, another fireman, was badly burned. He attributes the accident to carelessness. He says that shortly before the explosion the steam gauge showed one hundred and fifty pounds of steam, when the engineer told him to run her to the full gauge. He then tried a water gauge, and, finding no water, turned it on, and immediately thereafter the explosion occurred. The force of the explosion was in a downward direction, or otherwise many persons would have been killed, as a large crowd surrounded the steamer at the time of the explosion, some of whom jumped into the canal in their fright. The steamer arrived only a few days ago and was being tested preparatory to going into service. It was to throw a 1¼ stream of water three hundred and twenty-five feet high, through 1000 feet of hose. If it proved satisfactory the price to be paid was $4,000. One of the members of the firm was present when the steamer exploded. He says the cause is a mystery. Clapp & Jones' works are located at Hudson, New York, to which place the wrecked steamer was sent.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

J. M. C. Marsh, having received the appointment of census enumerator, entered upon the discharge of his duties June 1st.

Two more old citizens have died in our village. Saturday, May 29th, John Ludlow, aged 81 years and the same night, Chas. G. Welsch, aged 69 years. The latter was an Englishman by birth and came to this country 40 years ago, coming to Westfield in 1866.

Three more new arrivals in our village, all three of the male persuasion. Parental guardians, F. Heinecke, H. P. Manning and L. Williamson.

James Lambert, a son of the late Simeon Lambert, died on Thursday of last week, after a short illness. He recently came on from Baltimore to settle up the affairs of his father's estate. He was 48 years of age.

Mr. Chas. H. Brocksmith has taken possession of his new hotel in Elizabeth (late Schwartz) and Burt Moffett now has charge of the hotel so long occupied by him here.

The old Dr. Osborn house and lot, corner of Broad street and Central ave., was sold at auction last Saturday afternoon. Mr. J. T. Pierson was the purchaser at $25,000.

The old revolutionary cannon, so long the bone of contention between the boys of Westfield and Scotch Plains, has again been returned to its former owners, Westfield. A party went to Scotch Plains Tuesday night of last week, and captured it from the "Plainites." Upon their victorious return to Westfield, three rounds were fired from the piece to apprise the foe at the Plains of their loss.

As Mr. Wm. Edgar and wife were returning from a funeral at Chatham last week, a person driving behind them ran into their vehicle, upsetting it. But for the prompt action of Mr. Edgar, who sprang up and grasped both horses by the heads, serious results might have ensued. A few bruises and scratches was the only result.

The bolters from the Presbyterian church organized themselves into a Congregational church on Friday evening last, at the Lyceum Hall, Mr. H. E. Hosford in the chair. Regular services will commence on Sunday next, June 6th, at 11 o'clock. Sunday school at 10 o'clock. Sermon by the Rev. Dr. H. M. Storrs. Seats will be free and all friends of this movement are invited.

The Mite Society of the Presbyterian church will give a Strawberry and Ice Cream Festival on Thursday evening next at the Lecture rooms.

Constable Barcalow found it very unsafe to cut wood under a clothes-line. The axe caught in the line swinging back and hit him under the eye. So now he has to go around with an ugly scar and swollen face.

Newark Lodge No. 8, I. O. O. F., paid a fraternal visit to Westfield Lodge. They arrived rather late, and so were unable to stay as long as they would have liked to. Before they went to their homes Westfield Lodge brought them to brother Darsch's where all the necessaries for a good time could be indulged in. They left in good spirits and promised to come again.

Bishop Scarborough performed the rite of confirmation at Grace church on last Sunday, and also preached in the evening.

The Best I Ever Knew Of.

J. G. Starey, a prominent and influential citizen of Iowa City, says: "I have had the Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint for several years, and have used every Remedy I could hear of, without any relief whatever, until I saw your Shiloh's Vitalizer advertised in our paper, and was persuaded to try it. I am happy to state that it has entirely Cured me. It is certainly the best Remedy I ever knew of. Price 75 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

Impure Breath.

Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most mortifying and unpleasant to its possessor, and it is the most inexcusable and offensive in society; and yet the cause of it may easily be removed by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT. It purifies and sweetens the breath, cools and refreshes the mouth, and gives a pearl-like appearance to the teeth. Gentlemen who indulge in smoking should cleanse their teeth with SOZODONT, as it removes all unpleasant odors of the weed. Ask your druggist for it.

HIGGINS' GERMAN LAUNDRY SOAP is perfectly pure, being made of carefully selected stock, and is therefore the cheapest. Ask your grocer for it, and see that you get only the genuine article. A trial will convince you of its merits.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

Largest Circulation of any Weekly Paper in Union County.

MR. John Pattinson is the census enumerator of Fanwood Township.

A RIVAL of Weston in the person of an ex-resident of Plainfield, may be observed any day pacing the county jail yard at Elizabeth.

MR. JOHN I. HOLLY, has added another attraction to his stock farm, a 550 pound 7 months old bull of imported breed.

THE absence of sunshine last Wednesday after the welcome rain of Tuesday night, allowed the moisture to be absorbed by the ground that so much needed it.

WALKER, the Baker, on Park avenue, (formerly Wooden) is doing a thriving business in consequence of the excellence of the bread and cake manufactured by him.

THE event, at present, of principal interest to the parents and lady friends of Plainfield's young collegiates, is the return home of the students for their "long vacation."

PARTIES desiring furnished rooms centrally located, within three minutes walk of depot, should call at No. 20 W. Front street, and engage them immediately. They are among the finest in the city.

THE new shades that are being placed in the windows of the rooms of the C. L. S. C., and Y. M. C. A., are exceedingly handsome, and reflect great credit upon the taste of the societies and the ability of Green & Co., who did the work.

A PROPOSED picnic, under the auspices of the Plainfield Saengerbund, is to be expected in the not far distant future. At the next business meeting of the society on Monday evening, definite arrangements will probably be decided on.

EDSALL & PRICE will have a second special sale this month, commencing 14th. The advertisement will appear in next week's paper. Their special sale may prove a grand success. They will be continued through the summer months.

THE Independents number another medal among the achievements of a member this season. Mr. E. Foster, at the games of the Central Athletic Club in Brooklyn last Monday, took second place in the mile run against a large number of competitors.

THE Central Railroad Company have reduced the price of their excursion tickets to and from this city to Elizabeth on the 8th of June, the occasion of the Sham Battle and celebration in the latter city that day in honor of the anniversary of the battle of Elizabeth Town. Read their advertisement.

THERE has just been opened by E. M. Laing of No. 4 Park avenue, one of the finest assortments of gentlemen's furnishing goods and summer underwear ever offered in this city. Call and look at the goods and low prices, and don't fail to examine his large stock of straw and light hats, before purchasing elsewhere.

JAMES Gallagher of Evona was brought to Plainfield last Sunday evening by a neighbor and consigned to the care of Capt. Dodd, who subsequently transferred him to Elizabeth. The prisoner was charged by his wife with ill-treatment of her, to which he pleaded guilty. The court remanded him for sentence until next Tuesday.

A WELL known newspaper compositor of this city, while under the influence of liquor, was arrested by officer Randolph last Monday night, on complaint of the prisoner's wife, who accused him of maltreating her. On being taken before Judge Runyon, last Tuesday, the accused was committed to the county jail at Elizabeth for fifteen days.

ON next Tuesday, June 8, a strawberry Festival will be held in the Sunday school rooms of the First Baptist Church, for the benefit of the Children's Home. The entertainment will be open from 3 to 10 o'clock p. m., and the public will, without doubt, contribute largely through such source, towards the worthy cause it is designed to promote.

THE enumerators for Plainfield to take the census, are Messrs. John F. Dunham, for the 1st District, Louis F. Wadsworth for the 2d District, and Peter I. TenBroeck for the 3d District. Messrs. Edward Degraw, who was appointed for the 1st Dist. and J. Whalen, for the 3d Dist., declined to serve, consequently others were appointed in their places.

THE funeral of Mrs. Dr. Lewis Craig at her late residence on last Wednesday afternoon, called together in sorrow and sympathy the large circle of friends that her past life of christian grace had drawn around her. After a long period of suffering she died on Monday last in the presence of the bereaved husband and son, at the age of forty-five.

THE dividend of ten per cent. declared to the old depositors in the Dime Savings Bank on the 24th of last month, is almost all paid; most of those drawing it, however, are re-depositing it in the new organization. This last dividend makes a total of sixty per cent., which is a larger proportion than has been paid so far by any other bank in the State.

THE "arguments" of Corporation Counsel Suydam and City Judge Runyon for and against the mandamus suit, were made before Judges Scudder and Magie at Trenton last Tuesday morning. The court took the papers and will give its decision in the far off future. It was requested that the case should have precedence over others, and in consequence we may hope for a settlement in 1882.

AMONG the many friendly calls we have received since occupying our new and commodious quarters, was that, last week, from our genial friend S. T. Greenfield, whose home is at Carlisle, Pa. Mr. G. is travelling agent for the house of C. F. Stadiger, Philadelphia, Pa., which has the exclusive control of the sale of the celebrated brand of "Eclat" Rye Whisky, several orders for which Mr. G. received previous to his departure from our city. Dealers in liquor consider the "Eclat" brand one of the best in the market.

ON Thursday evening of last week Mr. and Mrs Lawrence Myers and the Misses Myers were at home to a select number of Plainfield's upper ten. The hours of reception were from eight to eleven—made moments of pleasure by the kind greetings of friends, and a period of enjoyment by congenial and social intercourse. A bountiful repast was spread in the dining room, and the extensive grounds beautified by illuminating lanterns, formed pleasant promenading grounds.

A MERRY and social party of about 20 couples, from New Market, visited Feltville, above Scotch Plains, on Monday last, and enjoyed themselves in true picnic style among the deserted, but once famous habitations and mills of the place. Prof. Herlick furnished music and dancing was indulged in the spacious rooms of one of the dwellings placed at their disposal by the person having the place in charge. Messrs. Osborn and Smalley, of New Market, who were the leading spirits of the picnic were congratulated upon the perfect success of all arrangements.

THERE seems to be no doubt that the carriage of Mr. Harry H. Moore was upset last Thursday evening and one of the occupants thrown out; but whether it was the fault of the bicycles in the vicinity of the accident, or not, is yet an unsettled question. It is claimed by some that the driver was endeavoring to urge his horse past the machines "that were standing alone against a fence," when the animal became frightened and turning short upset the carriage. Others state positively that the bicycles coming up silently behind the horse, superinduced the occurrence by their sudden appearance.

THERE was held during last Tuesday and Wednesday in the First Baptist church the 39th annual anniversary of the East New Jersey Baptist Association. Rev. Robert Lowry of the Central church was re-elected moderator by a large majority; and the regular order of business, which occupied the greater part of the first day, was transacted promptly and harmoniously. Discourses by the Rev's, J. W. Searles D. D., W. W. Evarts, D. D., and F. A. Douglass, D. D., were given on Tuesday—the latter speaker expounding upon the necessity of a correct translation of the Bible. On Wednesday a sermon was delivered in the morning by the Rev. Theo. Rambaut, D. D., and a most interesting meeting of the Woman's Missionary Association was held in the afternoon.

Pure Milk.

The advertisement of Mr. A. Potter, who has purchased the milk route of Mr. L. White will be found in another column of this issue. Since purchasing, he has made valuable improvements in the manner of keeping milk cool upon his Dairy Farm by erection of spring houses through which flows living streams of water. He invites an inspection of his premises and arrangements. We can safely assert that the milk furnished by him is of a pure quality, having tested the same by purchasing and using it.

The First Excursion.

The first excursion of the season from this city for 1880, will be that of Knights of Pythias Lodge, No 74, July 12th, to Rockaway on the steamer Gen. Sedgwick. This excursion should attract the attention of families who desire to enjoy the blessing of an enjoyable sail on a fast-sailing and perfectly safe boat. The tickets are put at the low figure of $1.00 each.

Before the Elizabeth Court.

James Sutphen and Sylvester Cuff, who were arrested in this city for stealing hides, were last Saturday morning sentenced to State prison for two years each.

James Gallagher who was arrested by Captain Dodd on last Sunday evening for wife beating, was remanded for sentence until next Monday.

An Appeal.

There will be a Strawberry Festival for the benefit of the Childrens' Home on Tuesday, June 8th, in the Sunday school rooms of the First Baptist church. Rooms open from 3 to 10 p. m.

The lady officers ask as a favor that all persons interested in the children will send flowers, fruit and cake to the church, Tuesday a. m., without waiting for personal solicitation.

Money for this object may be sent to Mrs. L. W. Serrell, Treasurer, Mrs. James McGee, Vice President, or Mrs. Horace Kimball, President. Tickets for sale at all drug stores.

A Visit to the Gold Fields.

Yesterday, (Thursday) two New York capitalists, Assayer McClasey, and the parties interested in developing the gold and silver mines claimed to have been discovered near Plainfield, paid a visit to the Field and other mines. An engine and pump will be placed at the Field mine in a few days to pump the water out of the same, and active operations will at once be commenced to develop the vein claimed to exist there. An office has been taken in McIntyre's Building, North Avenue, where Mr. McClasey is daily making assays of ore found in the districts leased.

Making the Little Ones Happy.

As the little ones of the Crescent ave. Sunday School infant class expected, the garden party arranged for their benefit in the spacious grounds of the Hon. Joseph W. Yates last Saturday afternoon, was a period of unalloyed enjoyment for them. The thick turf was trimmed into velvety softness over which they could roll and run at will, while rustic seats, swings and hammocks stretched under shady trees made pleasant resting places. A bountiful feast of cake and cream was spread on long tables erected out of doors, and the untiring efforts and beneficent hospitality of Mrs. Yates and her daughters resulted in bringing satisfaction to all the little, and great appetites.

Card of Thanks.

The Ladies' Furnishing Fund Society of the Park avenue Baptist church express sincere thanks to the people of Plainfield for the cordial support extended upon the occasion of their Festival. Liberal donations from most all the merchants, the good will of the press and a bountiful supply of needful things from kind friends, contributed to the success of their entertainment and the replenishment of their exchequer. The principal display of flowers was from the private collection of Mrs. Heynliger. Couch also provided largely and gave the beautiful basket that furnished an illustration for Sunday's sermon. Mr. E. Jones, Haines and Denton were also represented, and will be remembered kindly by Society.

Make Your Entries.

There is to be some fine trotting on the grounds of the "Union & Middlesex Counties' Mutual Agricultural Association," this city, July 5th, for the following purses: Purse, $300—free to all—1st, $180; 2nd, $90; 3rd, $30. A Handsome Vehicle.

Messrs. Roberts & Cadmus have just received from the manufacturer's hands, as fine a piece of workmanship in the shape of a family stage as may be found in any livery establishment in the city. The vehicle has a seating capacity of twelve persons, and is just the thing for parties to engage who want to attend a pic-nic, visit the fishing grounds or other places of recreation. The contract for the construction of the stage was given to Mr. W. S. Chase, Jr., of New Market, and the builders were Messrs. Kitchen and Andrews of the same manufactory, Mr. Chase doing the painting. All of the several workmen who built the vehicle are to be congratulated upon the excellence of their work, which shows for itself. To be convinced of this statement, the reader should visit the establishment of Roberts & Cadmus and examine for themselves.

The Plainfield Cornet Band.

The public have lately been afforded numerous opportunities of enjoying the delightful music of the Plainfield Cornet Band. At a reception on East Front street last week, their serenading was quite a feature, while their performances at the Congregational Festival were among the many attractions of that occasion. On last Monday the entire company, in all the glory of new uniforms and polished instruments, regaled the inhabitants of Rahway with choice airs, and complimented this office with a serenade, before their departure. The members make a fine appearance in their new dress, which is the same as the Governor Island Band. Rich blue coat with gold buttons, and sleeves slashed with red; light blue pants with gilt stripes; red shoulder epaulets; white and red plume and "P. C. B." in gold letters on the cap, and white box attached to the belt.

At His Old Tricks.

Just one year ago the 17th of last month, Mr. John Bartlett commenced his career as a harness thief in this city and served a sentence for the crime then committed. Last Friday Captain Dodd again arrested the culprit, hardly six months out of jail, for the same offence, and he was taken before Justice Clark on Saturday. Two affidavits were there made against Bartlett by the coachmen of John L. Everitt of East Front street and J. W. Laing of Laing's Hotel. The latter of the victims had lost about seven dollars worth of netting from the floor of a large wagon, and the former a portion of a double harness; all of the missing articles being found in the prisoner's possession. Bartlett entered the know-nothing plea, claiming that his ignorance of the matter was superinduced by excessive drink. The Justice committed him to the county jail to await the action of the Court.

Elocution at the P. H. S.

A most interesting entertainment was given in Assembly Hall, last Tuesday afternoon, by Miss Belle Bovee and a class from the Plainfield High School, that she has been instructing in elocution for some weeks past. The occasion was a sort of public exhibition to those who were so fortunate as to know of it, and to attend; not, however, gotten up for the purpose of displaying how near perfection the pupils had reached, so much as to give parents and others interested an opportunity of witnessing the methods employed and the effects aimed at. Miss Bovee is a graduate of the Boston School of Oratory, which she attended solely for the purpose of fitting herself to teach elocution. She seems to have achieved greater command and a better understanding of the science of elocution than the majority of her profession.

The class consisted of Masters Corydon Tyler, Edward Lamson and Heywood Cuthbert, and Misses May Degraw, Lillie Newman, Madge Sutphen and Sarah Haynes. An exhibition of the methods followed by Miss Bovee was given, as well as individual examples of the powers of the class, as elocutionists. All displayed talents that their teacher will eventually bring to the surface—some of them showing special ability. Miss Julia Ketcham expounded with remarkable grace and extreme facility of interpretation the gestures used in oratory, and the positions of the body and feet necessary to express different emotions and feelings. This lady, also, as well as Miss Bovee and Mr. Charles Dewey, gave recitations calculated to show their capabilities as finished artists.

During the entertainment, the pupils presented to their teacher a magnificent basket of flowers as a token of their appreciation, and with the hope that she might read in the language of the flowers their regard.

The Congregational Festival.

Last Friday evening closed the festival that had been given in Laing's Hall by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational Church. That the occasion was a financial success the receipts bear flattering testimony. That it was a source of attractive enjoyment, the large attendance of both evenings proved. The untiring efforts of the lady waiters were futile in the attempt to serve the crowd that were present as speedily as they desired; but the patience of all were rewarded when the time came, by the freshness of the ripe fruit and the excellence of the frozen cream. The good will felt by all was proven most satisfactorily by the large number of members of other churches and denominations who by their presence and custom contributed to the success that the Congregationalists achieved.

A Narrow Escape.

Last Tuesday morning as Mr. C. Schepflin, of the firm of Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co., of this city, was driving a valuable mare, attached to a light road wagon, from his home at Dunellen to his place of business here, the animal took fright near Evona, in consequence of the breeching of the harness breaking, and ran away. Mr. S. succeeded in guiding the animal past all obstructions, until he reached Laing's Hotel, where he intended turning the mare into the stable yards. A wagon being in the way, he was obliged to make a shorter turn than he intended, the wagon just grazing the edge of the portico, and the hubs striking violently against a large elm tree. Singular enough the vehicle was not injured in the least. Mr. S. guided the animal under the wagon sheds, where she was speedily quieted down.

Drinking Ice Water.

There is no more doubt that drinking ice water arrests digestion than their is that a refrigerator would arrest perspiration. It drives from the stomach its natural heat, suspends the flow of gastric juice and shocks and weakens the delicate organs with which it comes in contact. An able writer on human diseases says: Habitual ice water drinks are usually very flabby about the regions of the stomach. They complain that their food lies heavy on that patient organ. They taste their dinner for hours after it is boited. They cultivate the use of stimulants to aid digestion. If they are intelligent they read upon food and what the physiologist has to say about it—how long it takes cabbage and pork and beef and potatoes, and other meats and esculents to go through the process of assimilation. They roar at new bread, hot cakes and fried meat, imagining these to have been the cause of their maladies. But the ice water goes down all the same, and finally friends are called in to take a farewell look at one whom a mysterious Providence has called to a clime where, as far as is known, ice water is not used. The number of immortal beings who go hence, to return no more, on account of an injudicious use of ice water, can hardly be estimated.

Military Exercises at Pompton.

The field day at Pompton, N. J., of the First Brigade on last Monday, was without doubt a magnificent military demonstration. The troops, officers and guests left Newark in special cars and were joined at the Montclair depot by Gov. McClellan and General Wm. H. Sterling. At a little after 11 o'clock the train reached Pompton and the brigade was marched to the beautiful farm of Mr. Clark W. Mills, a wealthy New York merchant, who resides there in summer. Mr. Mills' roomy and handsome carriage, drawn by a pair of elegant horses, was in waiting at the depot for the Governor and other honored guests. The Governor, accompanied by Gen. Mott, Adjutant General entered the carriage and were drawn by special order of Gen. Plume to those parts of the field most favorable for witnessing the exercises in their different stages.

During the sham battle of the day the Governor warmly praised General Plume and Col. Barnard for the skill that they displayed. Generals Mott and Stryker and Gen. Sterling also spoke in such terms of the brigade and of each command as would make every member feel proud of the field day at Pompton.

After the battle the men received their rations and had a general good time in boating and bathing. The guests of the different regiments were entertained at regimental headquarters, while the brigade guests, including the Governor, were sumptuously entertained on the lawn of Mr. Mills.

Personalia.

Among the many strangers present at the laying of the Corner Stone of the Muhlenberg Hospital in this city on Monday last, were Messrs. P. Julien, Senior Warden of Sincerite Lodge, No. 273 (French) of N. Y. city and Jules Garret, Representative of Cercle Francais de l' Harmonie of New York. Both were guests of Mr. Auguste Saltzman, which is sufficient guarantee that they were "hale fellows, well met."

Our esteemed friend S. T. Greenfield, of Carlisle, Pa., has our thanks for a fine mess of delicious brook trout, caught by himself in the streams of Pennsylvania and forwarded to us in good order.

It is with pleasure we record the convalescence of Mr. I. D. Ten Eyck from his recent severe illness. He is now able to be out of doors, but is still very weak.

City Judge, Nelson Runyon, Jr., will be his future title. He came to his father's house last Tuesday night. All well.

Mr. L. L. Martin has rented his property on Washington and Mercer avenues, and will spend the season with his family at the Lexington House, Greenwich, Conn.

Ex-Judge Good sailed for Europe, last Saturday.

Our Democratic friend, Louis F. Wadsworth has not forgotten the editor, while picking from his garden the large and luscious strawberries he is so noted for growing, as a large bowl of berries of the Boyden, No 30 and Great American varieties lying upon our table attest. They are of a large growth and of delicious flavor. Thanks for the favor.

All in One Day.

A man known as "Dutch Charlie," while walking on the track of the Delaware and Bound Brook Railroad, at Yardley, was struck by the engine of the Fast Line last Thursday morning and instantly killed.

John Knox, conductor of a freight train on the Central New Jersey Railroad, was standing on the top of a box-car last Thursday afternoon examining his way-bills, &c., when he was struck by the New Branch bridge, and killed instantly.

Hamilton Donald, an engineer on the New Jersey Southern Branch of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was instantly killed while riding on last Thursday night's freight train between Long Branch and Eatontown. He had gone back to get his dinner can, and while in the rear part of the train the train became uncoupled in the centre. Donald fell headlong between the separated cars, and the entire rear part of the train passed over him. His head and right arm were completely amputated, and his body was horribly mangled. Donald was twenty-two years of age, was single, and lived at Farmingdale.

Thomas Callahan of Haverstraw, N. Y., boarded the Central Railroad of New Jersey [illegible] on Thursday of last week and refused to pay his fare, and Conductor John Smith ejected him. At South Amboy the conductor found Callahan seated in a car, and again demanded his fare. Upon the conductor's attempting to put him off Callahan drew a pistol and fired two shots at the conductor. The shots did not take effect, but they caused great alarm among the passengers. The conductor telegraphed to Red Bank, and the police boarding the train on its arrival there, with difficulty arrested Callahan and lodged him in jail.

Important Discoveries!

Gold and Silver Mines near Plainfield!

An Important Statement from a Discoverer!

Below we publish a statement written and handed us by one of the discoverers of the existence of gold and silver among the hills back of Plainfield. The CONSTITUTIONALIST being a reliable newspaper, free from sensationalism, the writer has wisely chosen its columns to lay before the public a statement that will astound many of our readers. Since the article was written, even greater discoveries of paying gold and silver ore are claimed by Mr. Bacon, on lands leased as above stated:

For "The Constitutionalist."

MESSRS. EDITORS:—I promised you last week a full and accurate account of the mining interest which had so recently developed itself in this vicinity.

It is not a sudden development to those who are interested in it. The first discovery of importance was made over one year ago. Mr. Isaac Pangborn of this place was using for mason material a peculiar quality of sand which bore the formation of the sands of South America, also of Southern Mexico. I learned the location from which he obtained those sands, went there and dug some of them out and gave them to Thomas Stillman, Esq., for assaying. He assayed them for me and found they carried both gold and silver, but not in sufficient quantities to guarantee the working of them. The next thing was to learn the resources of those sands. The mind would naturally come to the conclusion that they must have their origin somewhere in the mountains. Then to learn the current action of the water became necessary, as it was evident these sand pits had been formed by the current of waters thousands of years ago. In order to do that, I went to several open wells found here in the city, and by dropping a shaving into the well I found invariably it would float from the northeast side to the southwest with sharp rapidity, proving without doubt the true water course evidently having its origin in mountains lying to the north of us. Then it became necessary to study up the geological formation of these rock that carried the same formation as these sand pits which I found lying in and along the base of the mountain known as Washington Valley. I obtained quite a number of these rocks, brought them to my office and kept them hid in the back room; sent a few of them in connection with some Colorado ores which I had obtained, to the firm of Stillman & Fuller, New York assayers, and obtained the results, they supposing them to all be from Colorado. I had them marked separately and assayed separately, and they understood them to be, showing the different depths of the vein in the Colorado mine. The Jersey ores assayed, one sample $19 and some cents, and the other $33 and some cents, while the Colorado ore ran from forty to two hundred and some dollars to the ton. But I dare not say anything to parties about Jersey mines producing gold and silver, for fear they might think I was a fit subject for the lunatic asylum, until about three months ago, after the return of Mr. Wallace Vail from his trip to Arizona. He and I got into conversation in regard to the mining regions of the West, and I said: "Mr. Vail; why is it that people will go so far from home when they have got better paying mines when once properly developed, right at hand." Says he, "I have been thinking of that myself, and I believe we have got them right here in these mountains lying between Plainfield and Washington Valley." I saw then, if I went to Morristown Asylum I would have company, and I was'nt afraid to open my convictions to him, and stated such facts to him, and that conversation led us into further investigation of the mineral resources of this region, by first going to what is known as the Field Copper Mine, situated one-half mile this side of Warrenville, in the Washington Valley, opened and worked by Mr. R. R. Field, of Bound Brook, some 6 years ago, for copper. There are some four shafts sunk to the depth of fifty feet, and hundreds of tons of ore are out on the dump; but copper was not found in sufficient paying quantities to guarantee the continuance of working, therefore, it has laid abandoned up to the present time. The formation of the ores out on the dump being of a peculiar composition, and so much different from the general rock, it caused us to examine more closely, and by the magnifying glass which Mr. Vail had with him, I found it corresponded very closely with the rock and sand which I had had formerly assayed by Stillman & Fuller, that we came to the conclusion to bring some home and have them assayed, and see what they contained. On the following day, Mr. Vail took some of them to the firm of Stillman & Fuller, and the results proved correct, giving us in return an assay of $37.42 per ton. We then went to the mines again and got about 80 pounds of ore, sent it to an assayer on John St., N. Y., and had it all ground up to dust, then weighed out 50 pounds of the dust and had that assayed, showing the results of $17.50 gold and $2.50 silver. This ore being from a lower depth in the shaft, proved conclusively the full facts of the mines in the Western States, that as depth is gained the richer becomes the ore. We then immediately set to work to procure the lease of the mine, which we succeeded in doing; then it became necessary to obtain leases for the different copper mines which had been opened and worked years and years ago. Mr. H. P. Brook being thoroughly conversant with the various copper mines heretofore opened, and once interested in them personally, became a very valuable man to us; so we consolidated our forces and went to work obtaining leases for all the mines of any note. In the mean time, while we were obtaining leases, I took a party of gentlemen from New York up to look at the Field's mine, because we would require capital, (that being a luxury we three did not possess); after they had examined to their satisfaction and came to the conclusion there was no humbug in it, they proposed to furnish us with all the capital that was necessary to run the mines and put up the mills for converting the ore into bullion, and take an interest directly in the mines, which arrangements were satisfactorily agreed upon. Since the matter has become public, we have had offers from several parties to furnish us with capital to run the mines, but at the present time we have a sufficient amount to do what work we propose doing. We expect to get to work on the Field's mine Monday, June 7th; our other mines we shall commence work at as fast as possible. The parties interested in the mines have become perfectly satisfied that they will pay a nice profit to work them at their present developments; and from the judgment of an old California miner who has had the experience of several years of mining in California, Colorado and Arizona, that our mines will increase in richness very rapidly as more depth is gained. We have true fissure veins in all the mines we have opened to the depth of thirty feet, carrying copper, silver and gold in paying quantities. Last Friday, the New York Sun made some errors in its statements. We have not ordered fifty or sixty thousand dollars worth of machinery, for we do not require that amount to work our ores; they are free-milling ores and can be worked by amalgamation; the whole machinery will cost some where in the neighborhood of twenty thousand dollars all told. We have assays from some of our mines running as high as one hundred and fifty dollars per ton, but we do not base our calculations upon the average of over forty dollars per ton. It will cost about one dollar per ton to put it on the dump at a depth of one hundred feet; about two dollars per ton for carting to the mills; and we have two parties which agree to work the ore and turn it into bullion at a cost not to exceed five dollars per ton. Our assayer and engineer says he can work it not to exceed four dollars per ton; total cost of raising, hauling and milling, eight dollars per ton. Many parties of course will be skeptical upon this; we do not ask any one to take our say-so in the matter; the mines are not so far off but one hours' ride will bring you to them. They can go and examine for themselves, make their own selections and satisfy themselves as to the statements made. The old adage is, "The man convinced against his will, is of the same opinion still." Therefore, we do not propose to undertake to convince the public mind, but give the opportunity to convince themselves. There is no stock-jobbing speculation, nor no stock on the market, and no money asked for. Any further information you may desire we shall always be happy to give you according to the best of our knowledge and belief.

Yours, very respectfully,
F. M. BACON.

Creditable Architecture.

The thorough success the Central Baptist church edifice proves itself to be, as it rapidly approaches completion, both as a work of art attractive to the eye and the sense of the beautiful, and as a structure commodious and substantial, reflects great credit on the architect and contractor. In consequence the public is most confident that the Muhlenberg Hospital building, which also owes its existence of design to Mr. Charles Smith, will be another and as apparent a success.

Laying of a Corner Stone.

A more memorable occasion in the history of Plainfield, than the laying of the corner stone of the Muhlenberg Hospital on the afternoon of last Monday, has probably never taken place. The Society was incorporated May 16th, 1877, under an act of the Legislature providing for the erection and maintenance of hospitals, infirmaries, orphanages, asylums and other charitable institutions. At the first meeting of its Board of Governors which was held in Grace Church on July 17, 1877, by-laws governing the Society were adopted; and at an adjourned meeting in August of the same year, the following officers were elected: Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D., President; Hon. Nathan Harper, 1st Vice President; Henry Smith, Esq., 2d Vice President, and Mr. Wm. R. Cock, Secretary and Treasurer, all of whom have held their respective offices up to the present time, with the exception of Mr. Smith, who declined on account of ill-health, a re-election in May, 1879; Mr. M. W. Tyler now filling the position.

Regular monthly meetings were held by the Board, who mainly directed their efforts towards raising the funds necessary to erect the building desired. In October, 1877, the "Ladies' Auxiliary Board" was created, and, soon after organized, and to its untiring efforts in behalf of the Hospital, the treasury is indebted for a large portion of its present funds. For a long period those having the matter at heart toiled earnestly in its interests, meeting with many discouragements. Plans for a suitable building were drawn and approved, but not until the present time has it seemed possible that the hopes of three years would ever be realized. Early in this year one of the Board of Governors, ex-Mayor Job Male, gave notice that he could purchase a lot of ground on Third street, near Plainfield avenue, which he would donate as a site for the Hospital if satisfactory. The location meeting with the approval of the Board and Medical staff, Mr. Male bought the property and presented it to the Society.

Last month a resolution was passed directing the Building Committee to complete their arrangements towards the erection of the Hospital, and instructing them that it was desirable to have the corner stone laid on "Decoration Day." Such arrangements were perfected, and on last Monday afternoon the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of N. J. laid the stone according to ancient masonic rites and customs.

The procession to the grounds, which was formed on Front street near the Common Council chamber, was headed by a drum-corps, following which in succession came the officers of the Hospital, the Board of Governors, the Common Council, the Fire Commissioners, the Engineers, Foremen and Assistants of the Fire Department, and the Caledonian Aid Benevolent Association. It being against the custom of the masonic brotherhood to unite in a procession with civic bodies, the Jerusalem and Anchor Lodges of F. and A. M. of this city, followed at some distance behind, escorting the officers of the Grand Lodge. On reaching the grounds the civic procession arranged itself each side of the entrance, allowing the masonic fraternity to pass in between the lines. The Grand Officers were formed by Grand Marshall Charles Russ in the following order upon the platform provided for the convenience of the ceremonies: E. C. Mulford, Grand Tyler; Thos. W. Tilden and Silas Dewitt, Grand Stewards; Chas. Bechtel, Grand Treasurer; T. H. Redway, Grand Secretary; Wm. Addis, bearing holy writings; Rev. B. C. Lippincott, Grand Chaplain; T. O. Doane, principal architect; L. L. Chapton and W. L. Gavett, bearing globes; H. R. Cannon, Past Grand Master; T. H. Morse, Past Deputy Grand Master; Heber Wells, Grand Instructor; James A. Norton, District Deputy Grand Master; W. Hardacre, Senior Grand Warden; Henry Vehslage, Junior Grand Warden; Henry S. Haines, Grand Pursuivant; S. O. Horton, bearing book of constitutions; J. W. Martin, Deputy Grand Master; H. Wallis, Grand Master; C. C. Stevenson and F. Beitz, Grand Deacons; Thos. Cook, Grand Sword Bearer. The Marshall of Jerusalem Lodge, was Mr. John W. Murray; and of Anchor Lodge, Mr. S. C. Peck. The other members of the fraternity arranged themselves in a circle around the grand stand and kept back the curious and interested gathering.

Most Worshipful Grand Master Wallis took charge of the ceremony and began the rites by announcing that the brotherhood had come there to lay the corner stone of the proposed building according to the custom of the Masonic fraternity—the corner stone of whose faith was charity to all men. Grand Chaplain Lippincott then invoked the blessing of God on the services, and asked His divine protection through all time for the Hospital that was to be erected. Following the placing of the stone in position, came the different forms of trial by the level, the square and the plumb. Then its consecration by casting on it of corn, signifying plenty; wine, signifying prosperity and gladness; and oil, signifying joy and peace. Principal architect Doane, upon the conclusion of these ceremonies, was handed the implements and instructed to watch over the erection of the structure. After a short speech from the Grand Master, the ceremony closed with a benediction by the chaplain.

The Rev. Thos. H. Stockton, of the Methodist Church, was then introduced, and spoke at some length. He felt that the large attendance of people were not called together out of idle curiosity to witness a beautiful ceremony, but for a reason deeper down in their hearts. They felt an interest in the Hospital, and were full of hope that it would be speedily completed; but there was another motive back of all. Even behind the original idea, and the work that was done by the Board of Governors and its officers, there was the same motive inspired by the ingressive thought of the need of the needy and the weakness of the weak. Inability occasioned by sickness, poverty and other weaknesses, invokes a power that will watch over it; and when in years to come the present edifice falls in decay, the same power will erect another to take its place.

Wm. B. Maxson, Esq., followed with an interesting review of the life and works of Dr. Muhlenberg. This building, he said, could not bear a better title—the name honored the structure, and he felt sure the structure would honor the name. The time chosen for this ceremony was also in every way fitting; it was a day when all over the nation its people were doing acts that showed their grateful hearts. The speaker closed with an earnest appeal to all for their help in pushing forward the completion of the building.

The R't. Rev. John Scarborough, D.D., President of the Hospital, delivered the closing address. He spoke eloquently of the blessings accruing to those who give as well as those who receive—those who come to minister as well as those who come to be ministered unto. The speaker called attention to the life of Florence Nightengale as an example of what woman could do, and continued—"such work is to be done here, and the avenue is opened to-day. If begun well it will be carried on well, but it must be influenced by a christian spirit, for only in christian lands is help given to the sick, the weak, the suffering and the dying. To build this Hospital is but a small part of the undertaking—when the sick and needy come, then is the work. If you build the structure and then do not support it, it will be a monument of your meanness, penury and lack of faith."

As the speaker concluded, Mr. Auguste Saltzman stepped forward and handed him an inverted fire trumpet partially filled with generous contributions of bills and specie amounting to $52.67, collected from the firemen present. The Department feeling that some of their number might one day be a patient within the Hospital's walls, and desiring to be represented among its contributors in some way—at the suggestion of Mr. Saltzman the above appropriate and generous testimonial was donated. The trumpet is a beautiful one of burnished silver, handsomely carved, and decorated with rich cord and tassels of soft silk. An engraved inscription reads as follows: "Presented to the Muhlenberg Hospital by the Fire Department of Plainfield, May 31st, 1880." Accompanying the gift was an engrossed document bearing the names of the members of the Fire Board, officers of the Department and of the separate companies, with the number of men in each.

This concluding the entertainment of the afternoon, the procession re-formed and returned to its starting place, where the bodies were dismissed.

The articles placed in the corner stone were: A copy of the General Law, adopted by the State of New Jersey, March 9, 1877, under which the Hospital Association formed.

A certificate of incorporation of the Board of Governors.

An agreement made by Job Male, Esq., for the transfer of the Hospital site, size 130x330, to the Board of Governors.

A sketch of the work and the names of the Board of Governors and officers of the Board.

A sketch of the work done by the Ladies' Auxiliary Board with their constitution and by-laws and the names of the officers and members. (The Auxiliary Board consists of 27 members and have collected $288.30). A copy each of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, and other Plainfield city papers, New York Tribune, World, Herald, of this date, and two Hymns written by Dr. Muhlenberg.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

While a gentleman from Newark was purchasing some empty barrels at the store of Wm. H. Shotwell Tuesday even'g, a young man who was with him approached the head of the horse attached to his wagon standing in front of the store. The animal seized the man's arm with his teeth and lifted him from the ground two or three times, lacerating the limb frightfully. After having his wounds dressed at Armstrong's drug store, the victim was carried to the railroad station and taken on board the train for his home in Newark. We are unable to learn how serious the injuries are.

The Board of Directors of the Somerset County Fair Society have decided to hold four days, viz: Oct 5th, 6th 7th and 8th. They have improved the track, and are now preparing the Premium list, which will be printed soon.

It is rumored that the Commissioners of Raritan have decided to purchase a steam fire engine.

Little Phil, a son of Charles E. Jacques the architect, of No. 32 Duer street, is full of happiness. The white violets he has so patiently waited for arrived last Wednesday night; and a baby sister came with them for him to love and care for in the future.

Mr. David S. Campbell of the Public school, has just received a certificate from the County Board of Education before whom he lately passed a praiseworthy examination.

The Public School closes on the 25th of the present month, and the commencement exercises will occur on the 29th. There will be twelve graduates; ten young gentlemen and two young ladies.

Assessor Isaac Brokaw received the appointment for census enumerator of North Plainfield.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The [illegible] World and Fishing Gazette, Chas. Hallock, editor, published at 112 Fulton street N. Y. city, in an able article on "Local Fish Laws," says very truly—"In the exercise of State rights, when they do not infringe the rights of other States, we have certainly full privilege and guarantee. If any State sees fit to impose a tax upon game, or upon the privilege of shooting and fishing; if it chooses to set apart close seasons when certain kinds of game and fish may not be killed or caught; if it choose to prohibit the export of such game and fish out of the State in any designated quantity; if it enact a trespass law, under which any man found with sporting implements upon another's property, is presumably a violator of the game laws, and liable to arrest; and if it decide to tax non-residents for the same privilege which it compels its own citizens to pay for; surely those regulations constitute no grievance for which outsiders ought to complain. So has done New Jersey, Delaware and Virginia; and so also are Michigan and Pennsylvania about to do. The great problem of game protection and preservation would be at once accomplished, if each and every State in the Union would enact its own special code of game laws and compel its citizens to contribute to the maintenance, observance and enforcement, by imposing a per capita tax upon each sportsman who takes the field."

KOKOMO, IND., May 28.

The rain storm of Tuesday left on the farm of I. Carpenter, near here, thousands of live fish of all sizes. Mr. Carpenter picked up several dozen and brought them to town, among them three or four pike five inches long. The remainder were bass minnows not over a quarter of an inch in length. They are now in an aquarium here.

The Fish Commissioners have deposited 200 trout in the Passaic and Saddle rivers.

There was some fine trotting on the Fair grounds, this city, on Decoration Day, in which horses driven by owners competed. The first race was to road wagons between J. W. Johnson's b. m. "Kate," Mr. Smith's bay gelding and O. T. Waring's bay mare. Johnson's Kate won in 2:51½, 2:51½, and 2:53. The next race was to sulkies between J. W. Johnson's gr. m. "Nellie," bl'k G. "Wm. Lewis," "Buckskin" "Jules Jergerson" and Elliott's blk m. "Lady Elliott" "Nellie" was the winner, in time less than 2:30.

Considerable interest has been manifested in the trotting on the Prospect Park grounds the past week, in consequence of the participation in the same of one of Plainfield's well-known horses. We allude to the stallion "Carbolic," owned by Mr. Wm. Moore, of this city. In the 2:30 class on Tuesday, he agreeably disappointed his many friends by winning three straight heats in that race, making the time of 2:24½ and 2:27, coming in a half length ahead on the third heat. By the intentional action of the driver of Hambletonian Bashaw, a formidable rival, in the third heat, the Judges declared the heat a tie, and it was ordered that another heat to decide the race should be trotted on Wednesday. That day the track was not in condition, and the race came off yesterday (Thursday) the result of which we were unable to learn as we went to press. A protest was presented by the driver of "Carbolic" who trots again to-day in the 2:22 class. He is a wonder and will make a fine record before the season is over.

We shall offer this week a large lot of goods damaged by water in our store last Tuesday. Everything will be sold less than first cost at 771 Broadway. A chance to get goods at such a great sacrifice will positively never occur again. Ladies' and Misses' Underwear, Corsets, Hosiery, [illegible] Laces and Handkerchiefs, Embroidery, Umbrellas, Sunshades, Notions, Pocket-Books, Flowers, Feathers, Boys' Clothing, Shoes, and extraordinary bargains in twenty other different departments at the GREAT FAIR STORE, 771 Broadway, corner Ninth street, opposite A.T.Stewart's, New York. Remember the great sale. Will positively last but a short time.

Various Causes—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous. For sale by all dealers.

Speer's Port Grape Wine.

This article of American Wine is highly esteemed by the best physicians in this country. The following is a testimonial we saw from the New York Hospital. We publish it for the information of our readers:

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.

I am using Speer's Port Grape Wine and find it to be an excellent tonic and gentle stimulant, and as such I believe it preferable to the commercial Port, and all other wines, as it possesses their tonic properties without the deleterious effect caused by their impurities. It is also very palatable, and this is a recommendation to many, especially females.
S. S. HARRIS, M. D., N. Y. Hospital.

This is an excellent article for family use, and for females. For sale by all druggists.

"You sow for yourself, you reap for yourself." Why continue the use of remedies that only relieve, when Ely's Cream Balm, pleasant of application and a sure cure for Catarrh, Hay Fever and Catarrhal Deafness, can be had for 50 cents? See advt. For sale by Wm. H. Vorhees.

THE puddlers at the rolling mill at Paterson, who are obliged to stand at the open doors of the red-hot furnaces all day, drink buckets of oat meal water and find it just the thing to allay their thirst, while it is nourishing as well.

A CARD.

J., being well acquainted with the merits of Ely's Cream Balm, a specific for Catarrh, Hay Fever, Cold in the Head, and impaired hearing, resulting from Catarrh, do hereby certify to its great value as a remedy for those terrible complaints, and would earnestly recommend it to our friends and the general public:

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THROW AWAY THE CIGARETTES.

Cigarette smoking is now a fashionable habit, and one which is increasing at an alarming rate among half-grown boys, and it is the opinion of a well known physician that if this habit is not checked, additions to our asylums will be in order. A physician to satisfy himself that there was death in that form of tobacco, had a cigarette analyzed. The result was a startling one. The tobacco was found to be strongly impregnated with opium, while the wrapper which was warranted to be rice paper, was proven to be the most ordinary quality of paper whitened with arsenic, the two poisons combined being present in sufficient quantities to create in the smoker a habit of using opium without his being aware of it, and which craving can only be satisfied by an incessant consumption of cigarettes.

ADVANTAGES OF A "FREE" PRESS.

The beautiful idea of getting something for nothing is nowhere more readily traceable than in a newspaper office. So much has been spoken, written and sung about a "free press" that people have come to accept the term in a sense altogether too literal.

If a man has a scheme of any kind germinated he just steps into the editorial room and details it, with the remark "I'm not quite ready to advertise yet, but a few words will help me along." He gets the few words and never gets ready to advertise.

Two tickets admitting lady and gent to the "G. R. X. M. T.'s grand ball," are expected to produce a six-line local and quarter of a column description of the ladies' toilets after the ball is over. Should a boy saw off his finger, "Dr. C. O. Plaster dressed the wound with great skill," would be a graceful way of stating it, and, besides, it is "unprofessional" to advertise.

The patent rat-trap brings in one of his combinations of wire and mouldy cheese bait, sticks it under the editor's nose and explains how they catch 'em every time the spring works. "It's something of interest to the community, and if you put in a piece save me a dozen papers," which he quietly walks off with, as though he had bestowed a favor in allowing editorial eyes to gaze on such a marvel of intricacy.

An invitation "to come down" and write up our establishment" is a great deal more common than a two square "ad" from the same firm. Newspapers must be filled up with something or other, you know.

In fact everybody, who has an axe to grind, asks the newspaper to turn the crank, and forgets to even say thank you, but will kindly take a free copy of the paper as part pay for furnishing news.

The press being "free," all hands seem bound to get aboard and ride it to death. That is why newspapers are so rich that they can afford to pay double price for white paper, and never ask Congress to aid them by removing the duty on wood pulp.

THE MISFORTUNE OF BEING AN EDITOR.

For some unaccountable reason, the fallacious idea obtains among people generally that the editor is a privileged individual. The belief exists that his pockets are lined with gold and "dead head" tickets to shows, and in view of this fact the calls made upon the poor journalist's little purse—editors are always poor and just standing on the verge of bankruptcy—by benevolent societies, church organizations, indigent persons, and those living "without any visible means of support," are simply overwhelming. Kind friends, too, are inclined to "drop in at the office," and in the blandest manner imaginable request "a couple of tickets for to-night's performance, you know." In this way it may be seen that the editor has a pretty lively time of it. He is compelled to turn a deaf ear to applications for relief, and politely dismiss the applicants with an expression of the hope that they will be successful in their several missions. If the unfortunate scribe were troubled only by his neighbors, why then the nuisance might be tolerated; but not so, for demands are made upon him almost daily by people he does not know for charitable objects with which he is totally unacquainted. A fair sample of the latter may be given in the following communication received at this office to-day:

ELDER STREET CHURCH, HARRISBURG, PA.

This church was destroyed by fire January 26, 1880. I need $5,000 to rebuild and refit it. I take this method to ask you how much of this you will assume and pay. I wish all the money paid within a year from May 1, 1880. Please fill up the blanks specifying place and date and amount, and whether by installments. I wish to make the note to suit yourself, and enable me to dedicate my church free of debt, as a free-will offering to God.

When paid the note will be returned to you with my signature on the back, and thanks and prayers for God's blessing upon you.

George M. Bonner,
Pastor of Elder Street Church,
320 Calder street, Harrisburg, Pa.

We would cordially commend the energy of the Rev. Mr. Bonner, and while we would be most happy to contribute a large sum of money to his worthy cause, we believe, under existing circumstances, we shall be obliged to forego the pleasure of receiving his autograph and accompanying thanks and prayers. That's the misfortune of being an editor.—Troy Times.

The Secretary of State has issued a circular addressed to the Governors of the several States, calling upon them to appoint Commissioners to the World's Fair, which is to be held in New York in 1883. Two Commissioners are to be appointed from each State, with the exception of New York, which has a much larger representation, and in sixty days these Commissioners will meet, in New York for the purpose of organization. The local committee in New York is now busily engaged making the necessary preparations for such organization, and in securing information as to sites and other matters.

A Western man who was recently invited to a seat on the floor of the House at Washington, indignantly refused, saying that he was accustomed to sit on chairs at home.

The girls in his native village were lighting the candles in the front parlors and pulling down the blinds, and the "Excelsior" boy reported that "the shades of night were falling fast."

"Good-morning, Patrick; you have got a new coat at last, but it seems to fit you rather too much." "Och, there's nothing surprising in that; sure I wasn't there when I was measured for it."

CHEERFULNESS.

A great deal of a man's influence and success in life depends on his appearance. We do not refer so much to his neatness of dress (although this is important) as to the expression of his countenance and his general deportment.

Let a man have a gloomy visage, and converse in a dolorous strain, and he soon will be shunned. People don't like to have intercourse with one whose mien is melancholy, and whose very look and manner are marked with a heavy shadow. If it be true that "misery loves company," it is also and equally true that company doesn't love misery. Most persons have trouble and sorrow enough of their own without being obliged to carry the load of a neighbor.

There are many men, and some women, too, who go about seeking sympathy. Meet them when and where you may, they present the aspect of persons over whom a cloud of special adversity has gathered, and which is shedding a gloomy influence upon them. Their very presence carries with it a check or a chill to those with whom they come into contact. Their conversation is of a mournful type, and tends to depress all who are compelled to listen to it. They look, talk and act as if the world was nothing but a desolate wilderness, with no meandering streams, or blooming flowers, or balmy breezes, and as if every one they meet was bound to absorb their painful experience, and share it with them, either by words of comfort, or deeds of kindness, or perhaps by both.

Now, it is of course right and reasonable to feel for others' real woes, but this is a very different thing from being compelled to listen to the complaints of constitutional croakers, and to dwell in the twilight of their habitual depression and melancholy. Such persons seem to forget that others have as many trials and annoyances as themselves, and have as good a right as they have, to wear a long face, and to groan over oppressive burdens. The rule, if it works at all, ought to work both ways, and thus the world would be filled with groans and grumblings.

Every one ought to cultivate a cheerful disposition and let it irradiate their countenances. Thus they will not only be benefitted themselves, physically and socially, but diffuse a cheering light upon the pathway of others. The world likes a person of such a spirit. It helps him, moreover, in his business. There is a wonderful power in such a temper to inspire confidence, produce popularity and attract patronage. And why should not all be cheerful? After all life's disappointments and afflictions there is more in it to be thankful for than to mourn over. Only let a man keep a "good conscience" and, though he may sorrow when reason for distress comes, he need not always seem to be treading a funeral march.

Speculation is now rife as to what the population of New Jersey is at present, compared with that of ten years ago. The New Brunswick Times, of which Census Supervisor, E. A. Gordon is editor, says, "we believe the population will not vary much from 48,000,000 of which we think New Jersey will have about 1,125,000, or an increase of 220,000 in ten years." Union County's population in 1870, was 41,859. In 1880, it will probably be 56,000.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A DENIAL!
SIMPSON & CO.,
(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE of SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is INCORRECT; or in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient to allow of any being cut, independent of filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the Ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from
Pure Spring Water.
They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defence. SIMPSON & CO. may21m3

A CARD.
Being compelled by the increase of business to have an assistant, I have taken in my employ Mr. A. J. Mafie, a mechanical specialist, his first preceptor for five years being the celebrated Norman W. Kingsly, M. D. S. D. D. S., of New York city, and for six years with Dr. Kingsly of Elizabeth, I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent, mechanical operator in every particular. I will therefore take this method of proving to those that wish to take advantage of the lowest cost price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, viz: for 3 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole sets of teeth on celluloid for $10, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect. We would strive to do only first-class work, and hope by so doing at the end of 3 months to secure favor and patronage by perfection in operations, rather than by cheap competition.
CHAS. R. THERS,
my28tf Office No. 70 Park Ave.

POETRY.

FINDING FAULT.

In speaking of a person's faults,
Pray don't forget your own;
Remember, those with homes of glass
Should seldom throw a stone.
If we have nothing else to do
Than to talk of those that sin,
'Tis better we commence at home,
And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man
Until he's fairly tried;
Should we not like his company,
We know the world is wide;
Some may have faults, and who has not,
The old as well as young?
Perhaps we may, for all we know,
Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan
And find it works full well—
To try your own defects to cure,
Ere others' faults you tell.
And though I sometimes hope to be
No worse than some I know,
My own shortcomings bid me let
The faults of others go.

Now let us all, when we begin
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word may do
To those we little know.
Remember, curses, chicken-like,
Sometimes to roost come home;
Don't speak of others' faults until
You have none of your own.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

RIGHTED AT LAST.

It was almost dark in our cosy little parlor where Aunt Claire and I were sitting in the gathering twilight. I was on a footstool at her side, and for a long time had been silently gazing up at the dear, familiar face. At last my lips framed the question which I had so longed to ask, and I broke the silence of the room by my abrupt query: "Aunt Claire, why is it you never married?"

The dusky eyes gazing so dreamily into the fire were filled with sudden pain and a look of anguish overspread her beautiful face, as she turned her head to answer me. She did not speak for a moment, and then, in a broken voice and husky with the remembrance of some great sorrow, she said: "I know not why, Lilly, but to-night I feel impelled to tell you the secret of my life. Listen, my child. Years ago, I went to spend the summer with my dearest friend, Mildred Argyle. I was just seventeen then, and possessed of a moderate amount of beauty. Mildred was then older than me, and had been married for two years to Herbert Lingerfield. I had not been with her very long ere a young friend of her husband's came to visit him, Guy Earlsford by name. He was a very handsome, fascinating man, with some Spanish blood in his veins, his mother having been a Castilian. He was pursuing the occupation of an agent for a very popular book, and had already succeeded remarkably well. I, as you perhaps know, supported my mother by teaching school. She was an invalid, and that summer was staying in the country with a dear friend of hers. I met Guy Earlsford many times, and a mutual attachment sprang up between us. The summer was far advanced when he asked me to be his wife, and I joyfully consented. He had one fault—intense jealousy. I never saw such a hot-tempered, fiery disposition as he had. I fear I did not act in the manner best calculated to set his jealous fears at rest, for in those days I was lively, pretty, and too fond of admiration.

"In the village was a Mr. Thornton, who was very attentive to me, and I, foolish girl that I was, liked and received his attentions because he was rich and sought after by the manœuvring mothers who had marriageable daughters. One night we were to attend a large party. How well I remember that fatal evening, for it was the commencement of the bitter trouble that followed. Guy was to take me, and his love and admiration were at their height. Never, he declared, had I looked so beautiful, never so bewitching. I did look well, I believe, and I never was in gayer, wilder spirits. All went merrily and well until the close of the evening, when I allowed Mr. Thornton to take me out upon the balcony. There he declared his love for me. I was grieved and surprised, for I thought he knew of my engagement, and thoughtless, and silly as my behavior had been, I had meant no harm. I had no idea he loved me with such intensity. In fact I imagined what had been to me a pleasant flirtation had been to him the same. I refused his offer gently but decidedly. His grief was terribly, and seeming to lose all control over himself he caught me in his arms, and passionately pressed kiss after kiss on my burning face. I struggled to release myself, and just then, hearing a slight noise, I looked up and saw the pale, set face of Guy Earlsford just disappearing from my view. I wrenched myself free from Mr. Thornton, unheeding his prayers for forgiveness for his temporary madness, and rushed wildly from the porch. Two miserable weeks passed by, and I heard nothing from my lover. At last one night I met him quite by accident as I was returning from a walk upon the cliffs. He seemed not to see me, but desperate in my great misery, I approached and spoke to him."

"Oh! how altered he was, merely a shadow of his former self. But his eyes, they haunt me yet. Can I never forget them? Would to heaven that I could," she moaned, covering her face with her hands for a moment. "I besought him to let me explain. He interrupted me. 'This is no place to talk, come,' he said, 'to the Cliffs.'" It was growing dark, and the silence was so intense as to be oppressive. I began to speak, but he motioned me to stop, and fixing his burning eyes on my face he told me he knew all I would say. That I found I had not the courage to wed a poor man, and I had thrown him over for a richer lover. His words were wild and sometimes incoherent, and looking at him closely I saw the fire of fever and delirium in his eyes. For the first time I thought of my danger, alone at nightfall, upon this desolate cliff with a madman, for such I saw he was for the time being. What could I do? Just then my thoughts were rudely broken in upon by a blood-curdling laugh as he exclaimed. 'But now you shall never live to be the bride of another. Mine, and mine only, shall you be,' as with outstretched arms he advanced towards me. With all my strength I pushed him from me. Oh, Father of Mercies, I had forgotten where he stood! With a despairing cry he fell over the edge of the cliff into the water below. For one awful moment of horror I stood as if turned to stone as I realized that I had sent the man that I loved to certain death; that I had killed him, for a fall from that distance would have stunned him, and the cruel, cruel water would do the rest. I tried to move, to call for help, but all power seemed to have left me, and I sank down in a deadly swoon. I know not how long I lay there, but I know it was very late when I woke from my insensibility. One look around recalled the tragedy which had been enacted, and with a piercing scream I rushed wildly in the direction of my home. How I got there, I never knew, but, Mildred since told me that when I staggered into the house, reason had fled, and I was in the first stage of brain fever. For weeks I hovered between life and death, and my mind even when strength returned was blank. Thus it was four months from that awful night before I learned what had taken place during my illness. Mildred told me that Guy Earlsford had mysteriously disappeared, drowned they thought, as they found his hat and handkerchief near Eagle Cliff. Then commenced the struggle with myself. I knew I ought to tell all that had occured, but, could I brand myself as a murderess? Oh! if I could but die, I thought. But at last cowardice triumphed, I was so weak and ill, that when the thought came, what good will it do to tell, it could not help him I loved, and would only make my name a byword and reproach, I yielded and kept my secret. No one on earth but you knows this Lilly, and I know not why I should have burdened one so young and happy with my weight of woe, but I so longed for sympathy to-night, I felt I must relieve my over burdened heart." Now you know the reason of my sadness and constant melancholy. You are aware that I am your aunt only by adoption. But, I have not yet finished," she said, as I made a moment to speak, "when I was well enough I left the place where my life had been so blighted; so changed from the bright, happy girl who thought this world was made of sunshine and flowers, that my best friends hardly knew me. All attribute it to the grief at my lover's death. I could not go to teaching again, my nerves were too unstrung so I applied for and procured the agency of an article which was just then coming into vogue. I went far away from the scene of my wretched secret. Oh! how hard my life was. I was totally unused to my new duties, and there were trials and difficulties which beset me on every hand. Many times did I almost despair, but the beacon of hope at length shown dimly across my pathway, and after a weary year of trials and struggles I began to earn a comfortable livelihood. Then came another blow. My mother, the patient companion of my checkered life, was taken from me. Then indeed was I desolate. My life had been dreary and miserable before, but now the only gleam of brightness, which had kept up my often failing courage was snatched from me. I continued in my occupation, until nearly a year ago, when I once more met my girlhood's friend, Mildred Argyle. She besought me so earnestly to make my home with her that I consented, making only one condition, that I should become your teacher."

Here the sad tones ceased, and I gazed in profound pity upon the woman rarely beautiful, yet whose load of sorrow was such a heavy one.

A few weeks after the talk with Aunt Clarie, I accepted an invitation to visit a friend in Canada. She was very fashionable and we lived in a constant whirl of gaiety. One evening at a reception, the [illegible] of the season, I was introduced to a handsome, distinguished looking man, whose name I did not catch. He interested me greatly, and there was a sad look in the beautiful brown eyes which I could not fathom. After he left me I inquired his name and was almost struck dumb with amazement when I heard it, Guy Earlsford. Could he be Aunt Claire's lover? Was she after all mistaken and he lived? I must find out, and oh! if I could but restore some of the lost brightness to her life.

Mr. Earlsford became a frequent visitor at our house. One morning I was surprised by a letter from mamma, saying that she had just heard from Mrs. Spencer, my hostess, asking her to let me extend my visit, and also hinting at the probability of my presenting her with a son-in-law, mentioning Guy Earlsford's name, and the many rumors in circulation about us. Mamma said Aunt Clarie had seen the letter and was dreadfully excited about it, the name being the same as her lover's who was drowned, or supposed to be, many years before. I answered it once, telling mamma I believed Guy Earlsford to be the same man for so many years thought dead. Then feeling that I must find out the truth, I spoke to Mr. Earlsford, himself, and found out that I was right in my surmise. He told me of his almost miraculous escape. How he was seen by a party of sailors and carried by them to their ship. As he was sick and unable to give an account of himself, and as they sailed immediately, they heard nothing of the accident. His heart was very bitter toward Claire. He did not believe she pushed him on purpose, but he did think she had cruelly left him to his fate, and when some months after he heard of the marriage of a Miss Nordom (Aunt Claire's name) to a Mr. Tornton, he was convinced of her utter faithfulness. He went far away, resolving to let his friends think him dead, and punish Claire. But when I told him of her noble life since then, and of the reason she made no effort to save him, all the old love came surging up in his heart, and he urged me to let him accompany me home at once. Our preparations were all made, when what was my dismay, to get a letter from mamma informing me that Aunt Claire had gone leaving no clue to her whereabouts. She left a note stating that she was convinced that her former lover and mine as she now believed him to be, were the same, and that she could not yet stay and see us happy together, but, as soon as she could school her heart to submission to return. Mr. Earlsford was frantic, and we started home immediately. Our search was unavailing for several months, and we at last settled down in despair. I was sitting in the parlor some four months after, when a lady and gentleman were ushered in. One hurried look, and I was folded in Aunt Claire's arms. How happy she looked, her face softly flushed and the love-light beaming from her eyes. To my eager questions, Mr. Earlsford, for he was her companion, told me of their meeting and, drawing her gently to him said: Let us hope that Claire Earlsford's life may be happier than Claire Nordom's that the shadows resting upon it may be swept away, and that peace and happiness may glorify her path, for she is purified through suffering."

THE BOY IN LOVE.

In a man's life, falling in love is a revolution. It is, in fact, the one thing that makes him a man. The world of boyhood is strictly a world of boys. Sisters, cousins, aunts, mothers are mixed up in the general crowd of barbarians that stand without the playground. There are few warmer or more poetic affections than the chivalrous friendship of schoolfellows; there is no truer or more genuine worship than the boy's worship of the hero of scrimmage or playground. It is a fine world in itself, but it is a wonderfully narrow and restricted world. Not a girl may peep over the palings. Girls can't jump, or fag out, or swarm up a tree; they have nothing to talk about as boys talk; they never heard of that glorious swipe of old Brown's; they are awful milksops; they cry and tell mamma; they are afraid of a governess, and of a cow.

It is impossible to conceive a creature more utterly contemptible in a boy's eyes than a girl of his own age generally is. Then in some fatal moment comes the revolution. The barrier of contempt goes down with a crash. The boy-world disappears. Brown, that god of the playground, is cast to the owls and the bats. There is a sudden coldness in the friendship that was to last from the school to the grave. Paper chases and the annual match with the old "fellows" cease to be the highest object of human interest. There is less excitement than there was last year when a great cheer welcomes the news that Mugby has won the prize. The boy's life has become muddled and confused. The old existence is sheering off, and the new comes slyly, fitfully. It is only by a sort of compulsion that he will own that he is making all this fuss about a girl. For a moment he rebels against the spell of that one little face, the witchery of that one little hand.

He lingers on the border of his new country from which there is no return to the old playing fields. He is shy, strange to this world of woman and woman's talk and woman's ways. The surest, steadiest foot on the playground tumbles over foot-stools and tangles itself in colored wools. The sturdiest arm that ever wielded a bat trembles at the touch of a tiny finger. The voice that rang out like a trumpet among tumult of foot-balls hushes and trembles and falters in saying half a dozen common-place words. The old sense of mastery has gone. He blushes—and a boy's blush is a hot, painful thing—when the sisterly heads bend together and he hears them whispering what a fool he is. Yes, he is a fool—that is one thing which he feels quite certain about. There is only one other thing he feels even more certain about—that he is in love, and that love has made him a man.—Home Journal.

DISCOURAGING.

A man who said he was trying to get enough money together to reach Toledo, entered an office on Griswold street and told his story, and added that his name was Caesar.

"Any relation to Julius or Augustus?" queried the citizen.

"Well, no, I want to be honest and square about this thing, and I tell you honestly that I am not related to either."

"Then I can't help you any. You are nothing but a common sort of plug, and it won't make any difference whether you ever go to Toledo or not. If you were related to the great Julius I should feel in duty bound to help you."

The man backed out without another word, and entering the office next door he walked to the occupant with the remark: "My name is Caesar, and I am closely related to Julius and Augustus. Can you spare me ten cents to help me to get to Toledo?"

"Sir, you are a base deceiver!" replied the other.

"You are no more related to the Caesars than I am? Had you come in here and told me a straight, truthful story, I should have given you a quarter. You can go, sir!"

The man went out, and he determined to tell the truth and nothing but the truth. Halting the first man who came along, he said:

"I have been telling folks that my name was Caesar, and that I was trying to collect money enough to take me to Toledo. Now, the real truth of the matter is that I am named Clark, and I wanted the money to buy whisky. That's the solemn truth, and can you help me with ten cents?"

"Ten cents! Why, you base liar and deceiver. I'll hand you over to the police!" exclaimed the other.

"I've told the truth."

"And it's enough to send you up for six months! Don't you dare ask me for money!"

The tramp sat down on a cold stone block, took his last chew of tobacco, and mused:

"I've lied and I've told the truth. I've told the truth and I've lied. I made as much one way as the other, and nothing out of either. Looks now as if I'd got to play deaf and dumb or go to work."—Detroit Free Press.

A DARKEY'S THANKS.

Some time ago, says the Pittsburg Leader, one of Arkansas' most widely-known statesmen, who is now dead, was passing along a street in Little Rock, when an old colored man, who had once belonged to him, approached, took off his hat, and passed his hand over his white wool, as he said:

"Master, gib de ole man fifty cent."

"Dan, you are a robber."

"How?" asked the astonished darkey, opening his eyes, around which rough shod age had walked.

"Didn't you see me put my hand into my pocket?"

"Yes, sah."

"Well, you old rascal, you rob me of the pleasure of giving you money without being asked."

The old man received a dollar. Bowing almost to the ground, while tears came out and coursed through the aggravated furrows around his eyes, he replied:

"Master, wid such a heart as you hab, and wid Abraham and Isaac and the Lord on your side, I don't see what can keep you out of heaven."

A LAW FOR BICYCLES.

The frequent annoyance caused by swiftly moving bicycles in the public streets, occasionally resulting in serious accidents, suggests the need of some attempt to bring bicycle-riders under proper control. It may be well to call attention, therefore, to a number of "by-laws" presented to the general reformers at Warwick, England, "for the better regulation of the bicycle and vehicular traffic along the main roads of the country." The by-laws provide that the expression "bicycle" shall include a "tricycle" and any similar sort of conveyance having four wheels. The following are the regulations having reference to bicycles and their riders: "Every bicyclist who meets or overtakes or passes any wagon, wain, cart, or carriage or any horse, mule or other beast of burden, shall observe the ordinary rules of the road required to be observed by carriages, as to the side on which he shall so meet, overtake or pass. Every bicyclist shall, during the hours between sunset and sunrise, carry attached to his bicycle a lamp, so constructed, lighted and placed as at all times, to exhibit a clear light in the direction in which he is proceeding, and shall at all times, as well during the day as the night, carry attached to his bicycle a bell so constructed and kept as to afford adequate notice to all persons near of the approach or position of such bicycle. Two or more bicyclists shall not proceed or go abreast along any main road or other highway when meeting, passing, or overtaking any wagon, wain, cart, or carriage, or any horse, mule, or other beast of burden. A bicyclist shall not at any time ride, impel, or use any bicycle on any footpath. If a bicycle cause any horse, whether ridden or driven, to be restive or shy, the bicyclist shall immediately dismount and draw aside till the horse has passed. A bicyclist while passing through any village or town shall never travel at a greater speed than seven miles an hour." Some such rules as these might with advantage be adopted here.

A CURIOUS DUEL.

A truly romantic duel was lately fought in the environs of the not very romantic capital of Prussia. A young lady, it is stated, of good family, having accidentally come into possession of a challenge addressed to her lover, resolved upon withholding the letter and fighting herself. Incredible as it may appear, this intention she carried out. Dressed in manly habiliments she met the challenger, Jungfern Haide, in a forest in the neighborhood of the capital and her opponent having once seen, and that imperfectly, at night, the man who had offended him, unconsciously accepted the new comer as his legitimate foe. Distances were measured, seconds placed, pistols fired, when the lady came out scatheless, after wounding her antagonist in the shoulder. The name of the fighting fair is unknown; but a judicial inquiry having been sent on foot concerning the crime of "intentional manslaughter," the details of the affair will probably soon gratify the curiosity of the public.

The Constitutionalist.

A REPUBLICAN MOUTH PIECE.

The speech of Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, on assuming the chairmanship of the Chicago Republican National Convention, was a marked example of political pettifoggery, and conferred no honor either upon himself or the party he there represented. Instead of a manly advocacy of his own partisan side, and a dignified arraignment of the opposition, the gentleman launched forth a specimen of third-class stump oratory, filled with coarse thread-bare invective against the Democracy, well calculated to win the applause of a Puritanical audience in a New England village club room, but nowhere else.

The speech in question was a rehash of false charges, which such bitter enemies of Democracy and the People as Hoar, Conkling, Cameron, Kilpatrick and Bob Ingersoll, have over and over fulminated throughout the land, and which every sensible and impartial citizen knows to be the invention of partisan depravity and therefore treats with deserving contempt. Among the more modern accusations, the great Massachusetts orator, poised on tip-toe and with right arm extended as though to clutch the roof, let fly the following—"In Maine its (the Democracy) ambitious larceny tries to pilfer a whole State Government at once."

"Ambitious larceny."

That was very fine.

"Tries to pilfer a whole State Government at once."

That would have been superb, had not the fact stood forth in history, known and read by all truthful men, that less than four years ago the Republican party, Hoar's immaculate organization, not only tried to pilfer, but actually did pilfer the whole Government of the United States, and installed as President a man who was not elected, and defrauded a Democrat of that office who had been fairly chosen by the people.

There is where pilfering attaches.

"The least-said about Maine by the Republican leaders, the better. The Louisiana Returning Board and the Washington Electoral Commission were the great frauds of the age, and connected therewith such self assumed champions of integrity as Messrs. Hoar, Edmunds and Sherman were up to their eyes in the slime of political corruption.

Furthermore the Massachusetts chairman at Chicago remarked—"In Delaware it (the Democratic party) looks with complacency on the whipping post."

Is it possible!

The silly attempt to stigmatize the Democracy on that score shows plainly how hard up the speaker was for something to say. With precisely as much reason might the whole Republican party be held accountable for the disfranchisement of naturalized citizens in Rhode Island. The Delaware whipping post is an ancient local institution. It flourished there in the Whig days of Henry Clay, when John M. Clayton, a life long opponent of Democracy, ruled the State.

We cannot speak as to the good or bad effects of a whipping post, that being the business of Delaware, not New Jersey, but we are confident, if Senator Hoar's friends composing that disgraceful Republican Pardoning Board in Pennsylvania, that let a batch of convicted bribery mongers escape imprisonment for partisan cause alone, were subjected to its lashing argument, Justice would not shed a single tear.

Not a tear.

CHICAGO.

The contest waged so long and bitterly between the Grant and Blaine factions at Chicago, finally terminated in the selection of James A. Garfield, of Ohio, as the Republican candidate for President, and Chester A. Arthur, of New York, for that of Vice President.

Although personally respectable, the nomination of Mr. Garfield is, in many respects, exceedingly weak. He is no doubt a gentleman of fair abilities, but with a Congressional record of the Credit Mobilier order, which will surely rise in judgment against him. Taken as a hasty necessity to defeat Grant in the Convention, he lacks the popular strength of either Blaine or Sherman, and furthermore, starts out with the disadvantage of being yoked to a Vice Presidential nominee that will prove a heavy drag in the race.

Now for Cincinnati! Let the Democratic Convention soon to meet there act wisely, and victory will perch upon its banners in November.

THE PLATFORM.

Never did master hand hit a political nail more squarely on the head than was done by Mr. Flanigan, of Texas, a delegate to the Republican National Convention, when, in contempt of a proposed Civil Service Reform resolution, he spoke out in meeting and boldly declared—What are we here for except to get offices.

There you have the Republican platform in a nut-shell. Plain and simple, pure and sweet.

Unmeaning assertions, violent denunciations, buncombe flourishes, though piled mountain high in the shape of resolves, cut, dried and adopted, amount to nothing alongside of Flanigan's honest admission—"We are here to get offices."

Poor fellows! Cincinnati will spoil their calculations.

A TWIST.

The Committee on Resolutions of the Republican National Convention reported a series minus Civil Service Reform.

Subsequently such, additional plank was inserted.

Then the Convention endorsed the Civil Service Administration of Mr. Hayes.

Then it nominated for Vice President a man whom Mr. Hayes had removed from office in obedience to Civil Service Reform.

As Senator Beck remarked to Senator Blaine, there was a "twist" at Chicago.

There is a piece of news for the taxpayers in the Republican platform. It announces that the amount of the public debt that has been liquidated has been paid by the Republican party. Considering the amount the Republican party has stolen, the statement ought to be true, because it would only have been returning part of the plunder. But unfortunately there is an impression, which the platform cannot very well get rid of, that the taxpayers have paid off what has been liquidated of the debt, by taxes levied upon the people without regard to party.

John Brougham, the famous actor, is dead.

OPINIONS OF REPUBLICANS ON THEIR NOMINEES.

The opinion of Grant's ex-Secretary of War, Belknap, as given Tuesday, is:

"Garfield is the most corrupt man in America, and would steal Heaven's livery to serve the devil in."

President Hayes in a letter to Chester A. Arthur said:

"You have made the Custom House a centre of partisan political management."

BRIGHTENING PROSPECTS OF THE DEMOCRACY.

The feeling is rapidly spreading that if the Democrats do not carry the next Presidential election it will be their own fault; and there is evidently a general resolve that they will not commit such a fault.

We believe now that great care will be taken in the selection of a candidate, and that the candidate, whoever he may be, will receive the hearty and almost unanimous support of the party.

Beyond the disagreement in reference to candidates, beyond the difference on the third-term question, there seems to be a feeling in the ranks of the Republicans that their party has survived its usefulness and might as well be disbanded.

The prospects of the Democracy are brightening.

THE CENSUS OF NEW JERSEY.

The coming census of New Jersey will make some important changes in the Assembly branch of our Legislature. The present membership is sixty, but the census will show a large increase of population in some of the counties and there will be a consequent increase in their representation in the Assembly branch. The counties bordering on New York increase much more rapidly in population than the agricultural counties, causing the latter to lose representation in the Assembly, where the former gains. Essex, Hudson, Union, Bergen and Passaic will probably each gain one or more Assemblymen under the new census, and the rural counties are concerned to know which of them will be the losers. It is estimated that the census will show the total population of the State to be about 1,125,000, or an increase of 200,000 within the last decade. Under this estimate it will require from 18,000 to 19,000 population for a representation in the Assembly. The effect of this will be to give populous counties like Essex and Hudson, in which are located important cities, additional weight in the legislative body. It is expected that Salem, Gloucester and Burlington will each lose a member.

What will poor Fred do now, since his pa has been "sat down on." Flowers may be sent in abundance on this occasion.

Garfield was nominated by the following vote: Grant, 306; Garfield, 399; Blaine, 42; Washburne, 5; Sherman, 3. Conkling moved to make the nomination unanimous.

Bob Ingersoll, the infidel, was an attendant at the late Chicago Republican Convention. Since then it is stated he has been convinced that there is a bad place commencing with an H to spell it.

The Chicago Convention accomplished one good deed. It extinguished the Imperial hopes of Grant and his Marshals. The third term conspiracy is dead. Americans will not have a king.

For Conkling to place an unsavory New York Custom House politician as Vice President on the Garfield ticket, looks very much like throwing a poisoned arrow at the Republican enemies of Grant.

The National Greenback Labor Convention, to nominate a candidate for President and Vice President, convened at Chicago on Wednesday. Gilbert A. De La Matyr, of Indianapolis, was made the temporary Chairman.

"Empty champagne baskets and bottles encumber the passages of the hotels." It was a Convention of the party of "great moral ideas," and it was held in Chicago. Mind you, the despatch says the bottles were empty!

Garfield, the Republican candidate for the Presidency, is familiarly known at Washington as "DE GOLYER GARFIELD," in allusion to the fee he received, as a member of the House, from the parties interested in the De Golyer job.

The man who cheered the loudest at Washington over the nomination of Garfield was a former Secretary of the Navy named Robeson.

Flanigan went to Chicago for an office. What is Robeson after?

"The colored troops fought nobly" at the Chicago Convention. Dispatches from there say that "niggers" were selling for $2,000 a head during the Convention. And yet the "niggers" vote the Republican ticket after hearing such remarks about their race.

Never in the history of the Democratic party, have the skies looked so bright politically as at present. Let but the Cincinnati Convention nominate a good man and the Imperialists and misrulers of our country will be swept out of existence.

The muddle into which the Convention at Chicago got into at one time on Saturday, may be judged from the fact that one of the delegates asked leave to speak so that he might, after hearing himself, find out which side of the pending question he was on. The Convention, sympathizing with him, granted the permission!

On January 1, 1879, the total assets were $16,589,890.50; liabilities, $15,812,647.25; surplus over liabilities, $778,480.94; total number of depositors, 62,990. This shows a large increase in depositors, and capital over the previous years. Assets, $1,771,120.97; liabilities, $1,721,008.15; surplus, $53,111.98; depositors, 5,467. The increase in assets is chiefly in Government bonds.

Since Florida was redeemed from radical rule and carpet-bag plunder in 1876, the State's taxes have been reduced from $422,247 to $249,879 per annum, a considerable floating debt has been paid off, and the State's credit has been raised from between 60 and 70 to par. This illustrates the difference between the rule of carpet-bag adventurers who go to prey upon a people with whom they have nothing in common and over whom they are put by the bayonets of a central power, and the government of men of the people, chosen by the people.

At a meeting of Bishops of the M. E. Church a table of the time and place of meeting of the annual conferences, with the Bishops who will preside over each, was made out. The Bishops then chose their residences from the list of cities selected by the General Conference as follows: Bishop Scott, at Odessa, Del.; Bishop Simpson, at Philadelphia; Bishop Wiley, at Cincinnati; Bishop Harris, at New York; Bishop Foster, at Boston; Bishop Peck, at Syracuse; Bishop Bowman, at Saint Louis; Bishop Merrill, at Chicago; Bishop Andrews, at Washington, D. C.; Bishop Warren, at Atlanta; Bishop Hurst, at Des Moines; Bishop Foss, at St. Paul; Bishop Haven, at San Francisco.

The relations existing between the Highland Falls and West Point academies, naturally lead people to believe that a certain spirit of imitation has probably been imbibed by the former, and the hazing practices of the latter are to some extent followed. But young Buck who shot his fellow student at Highland Falls, was only preparing to enter West Point and the lamentable affair happened outside the military academy. It seems that Buck came from the South with exaggerated notions of what he was to go through, and appeared to be determined to repel any "indignity" with force however slight the provocation. If Thompson had only been a "darkey" what political capital the Republicans would have made of the incident.

Chancellor Runyon has given his decision in the case of the contested will of Joseph L. Lewis, the Hoboken millionaire, who bequeathed his fortune, now amounting to over $1,400,000 to the United States to assist in paying the National debt. Among the contestants it will be remembered was a bogus widow and a band of conspirators, four of whom were convicted and are now in the New Jersey State Prison, while the widow, who made a confession, remains in the Mercer County Jail. The executors are ordered to dispose of the estate in accordance with the will, which does not direct the estate to be delivered to the Government, but that it should be applied by the executors to the extinguishment of the National debt. Most of the estate consists of Government bonds.

Some curious results of the heat are reported, and possibly some accidents might be avoided if people realized the excessive power of the sun's rays the recent heated days. A Boston apothecary mourns an accident to his show-window. The thermometer in the early morning stood at 88 degrees, and the sun's rays fell upon the upper part of his three-story show bottles, filled with different colored liquids. The heat forced out the cork of the stopple-bottle and its acid contents flowed into an alkali mixture in the big bottle underneath. Thus was generated a gas which expanded and threw out the stopple-bottle and it went crashing down through the show-case on which the whole stood, damaging a quantity of fancy goods. At Lowell a barrel of ale incautiously left for several hours on the sidewalk suddenly exploded, and one of a party of children playing by it was knocked insensible and only recovered after some time.

The Supreme Court of Indiana has decided that selling cigars at a hotel stand on Sunday is a "work of necessity," and hence that the seller cannot be indicted under the statute. The Court says that smoking a cigar is as much a necessity to those who have acquired the habit as drinking tea or coffee is; that there is as much necessity for continuing this habit on Sunday as on any day of the week, and that whatever is necessary and proper to do on Sunday to supply this constant daily need is a work of necessity within the meaning of the law. It is not unlawful, the Court holds, to keep a hotel on Sunday in the same way that is usually kept on a week day, and if a hotel keeps a cigar stand, which is part of its establishment, and from which it sells a cigar to its guests and customers on a week day, it is not unlawful to sell cigars from the same stand in the same way on Sunday. "There is no difference legally between the act of selling a cigar under such circumstances and the act of furnishing a cup of tea or coffee, a meal of victuals, or supplying any other daily want to a customer on Sunday for pay." If we err not, the ruling in New Jersey is diametrically opposed to this Indiana decision.—Warren Journal.

GENERAL SPINNER'S WEATHER RECORD.

General F. E. Spinner, who so long filled the office of Treasurer of the United States, has been now a resident of Florida for some years. He is one of the most careful and accurate observers. At the request of Dr. French, Commissioner of the Bureau of Immigration of Florida, General Spinner furnished him with a record of his observations of the temperature for the year commencing April 1st, 1879, and ending March 31st, 1880. The full tables the Commissioner will publish in the new edition of the Florida pamphlet. We publish here the general statement only, believing that it would be of interest to our readers, especially strangers visiting here:

	Mean Max.	Mean Min.	Mean Av.
Spring	78.18	61.86	69.62
Summer	84.61	73.17	78.76
Autumn	75.95	64.61	69.09
Winter	69.09	53.79	61.45
For year	76.10	63.29	69.65

Highest temperature July 11, 98 deg.

Lowest temperature November 21, 33 deg.

Mercury reached 90 deg. but seven times during the year.

Mercury fell below 40 deg. but 7 times during the year.

The General, in his letter, says: "I was more comfortable here in regard to excessive heat than in any summer spent in Washington, or in Mohawk, my home in northern New York."

People who have never lived here through the whole year cannot understand why our summers are pleasant and comfortable. The Atlantic breezes by day from the east, the Gulf breezes by night from the west, and the trade winds, have cooling influences which moderate and freshen the atmosphere.—Sun and Press, Jacksonville, Fla.

An Important Decision by the State Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court of the State has recently made a decision which will cause more than one wry face among inculpated public officers in this State, and possibly strengthen the delegation by which their self-sacrificing calling is now represented in the New Jersey State Prison. In 1878 the Legislature enacted a law raising the two-year limit which had theretofore been fixed between the commission of crime and the finding of an indictment in other than capital cases. The new law provided that all public officers and other persons holding positions of judiciary trust, against whom indictments were found for violation of such trusts, would thereafter be punishable for offences committed at any time within five years before the finding of the indictment. The argument in favor of the change was that this class of persons frequently remain in office for five years and more, and should a deficit be found at the close of their incumbency, which they had managed to conceal by having control of the books, they could laugh at justice by showing that the defalcation occurred more than two years before it was found out.

This decision materially affects the case of Hart Moore, former Collector of Middlesex County, indicted for defalcation in office, as well as the Somerset County cases of indicted Freeholders for malfeasance in office. At the trial of Hart Moore on the indictments against him, his counsel claimed that the two-year law was unconstitutional.

Only one transaction could be found in Moore's books for which he could be held liable under the two-year limit, and it was doubtful whether a conviction could be had upon that. State Prosecutor Cowenhoven therefore determined to frame an indictment under the new law for all of Moore's delinquencies that came within five years before the finding of the indictment. By this means a large deficiency was shown. A. V. Schenck, Moore's counsel, at the close of the State's testimony, argued strenuously that the Court should hold that the new law was unconstitutional. He showed where Chief Justice Beasley had decided in a civil case that a right which had become vested under the statute of limitations could not be divested by subsequent legislation. If this doctrine was sound as applied to property, how much more important was it when the rights of the citizens were at stake. Two years after the offence alleged against Hart Moore was committed, the law, as it then stood, said that he could go free. The Legislature afterward passed the law of 1878, under which his client was indicted for a crime for which the State had already granted him immunity under the statute of limitations. This, he argued, was clearly an ex post facto law.

Ex-Judges Cowenhoven and Strong earnestly combated this doctrine on behalf of the State, and Judge Scudder refused to hold the law unconstitutional.

Moore's counsel thereupon refused, on his behalf, to go into any defence, preferring to refer the question to the Supreme Court. The other indictment against Hart Moore which came within the two-year limit was then moved, and resulted in his speedy acquittal.

Indictments against public officers under the new law were found in Bergen county, of Judge Dixon's Circuit and in Somerset county, of Judge Magie's Circuit, but the trials were deferred to abide the decision of the Hart Moore case. Investigations into public affairs in Somerset county, of Chief Justice Beasley's Circuit and elsewhere, have been held back for the same reason.

Chief Justice Beasley delivered the opinion of the court, holding, in an able and learned discussion of the legal principles involved, that the law is not ex post facto, and is constitutional.

More Princeton Students Dead.

John C. Rainsford of 35 West Thirty-ninth street N. Y. city, died on Sunday of typhoid fever contracted at Princeton College. He was 22 years of age. His mother is a widow. Francis Pennington another Princeton student, age 19, the son of J. P. Pennington of Newark, died late on Monday night from the effects of malaria contracted at the college. Charles Parker, the son of the Hon. Cortlandt Parker of Newark, and another young man in the same city, both students of Princeton, are very ill from the same cause.

Bart Stanchfield, a son of Dr. J. K. Stanchfield, a prominent physican of Elmira, N. Y. died Wednesday morning from the same cause.

Suggestions About Drowning.

Our State Board of Health has just issued a circular concerning bathing, and the best method of reviving persons supposed to be drowned. From July 1st, 1878, to July 1st, 1879, no less than 193 persons were drowned in this State. Not all of these, however, perished from real drowning. Some had heart disease, made fatal by a nervous shock, others apoplexy or intense congestion; others syncope from exhaustion. It is not easy to decide at the time of weather the drowning is from any of these causes, and it is better to resort to some means of reviving the victim. Cases where the hands are clasped and the fingers contracted are the most hopeful. Five minutes under water is the usual limit after which recovery is improbable in a case of drowning, but as there is not always the same amount of air exclusion; as the time cannot always be accurately stated; as syncope or nervous shock may have modified the lung and air condition, and as there may be slight inhalation of air before it is perceived, no case not known to be UNDER WATER half an hour should be regarded as hopeless. Persons have been recovered who for an hour have shown no outward sign of life.

Important Decision.

Among the decisions filed in the Supreme Court is one by Chief Justice Beasley, in the case of Conover vs. Doughty, in which the constitutionality of the supplement to the act for the preservation of fish, of April 5th, 1878, was questioned. The first section provides that it shall not be lawful to put, place or haul any gill or other net or nets in any waters of this State or in the tide waters of Atlantic county, between May 15 and July 15. The second section provides that it shall not be lawful to fish with nets in Atlantic or Burlington counties between June 1st and September 1st. Nothing in the act prevents fishing above tidewater or the catching of moss bunkers. The question was whether the act was unconstitutional on account of its providing different times for catching fish in different counties—whether it was a general law containing provisions of a private, local or special character. Objection was also made to the form of the pleading and the manner of the entering of the judgment by the Justice. The action was tried before E. B. Riley, Justice of the Peace of Atlantic county, who fined the defendant $20 and costs and committed him to jail in default. It was held by the Chief Justice that the act was constitutional, but that the judgment must be set aside on account of irregularity of the Justice's proceedings.

Impure Breath.

Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most mortifying and unpleasant to its possessor, and it is the most inexcusable and offensive in society; and yet the cause of it may easily be removed by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT. It purifies and sweetens the breath, cools and refreshes the mouth, and gives a pearl-like appearance to the teeth. Gentlemen who indulge in smoking should cleanse their teeth with SOZODONT, as it removes all unpleasant odors of the weed. Ask your druggist for it.

Careful drivers are always one of the requisites to be obtained at this establishment. Among them we may make mention of Mr. Geo. Butcher, who has a host of friends among Mr. Laing's customers. Geo. is a safe and reliable driver.

HOLLYWOOD PARK, the summer dwelling at Long Branch of John Hoey, of New York, and one of the finest of summer houses in Long Branch, has been almost devastated of its beautiful lawns by the army worm, forty acres having been destroyed since Saturday. The worms are moving in multitudes toward the sea, and have taken possession of the piazzas of the hotels. The drives are also black with them.

Is the city of Plainfield going to do her duty in the matter of celebrating the coming anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence? We hope our citizens will all attend church on the "Fourth," and we trust that their patriotism will urge them to make some demonstration on the following day, appropriate to the occasion. These remarks are not intended to start a "sham battle" boom, and all that sort of thing; but it really seems as if our firemen might put their suits on and give a parade, or our philanthropists donate the wherewithal for, at least a modest pyrotechnic [illegible]

THAT touching ballad of "Mary and her little lamb," which we all remember as among the pleasant reading of our younger days, has long been the subject of pictorial and tableau representation, besides being translated into thirty-two different languages and set to music both secular and religious. Monday morning, however, was probably the first time the public were treated to a sight of the heroine and hero. Little Mary Sutton, a bright faced maiden was in town, accompanied by a "lamb whose fleece was white as snow," and the loving pair attracted the attention and kind smiles of all who saw them.

HIGH School Commencement exercises begin June 24th.

IT is stated that a new time table for the Central Railroad will go into effect on the 14th of this month.

ARGUMENT in the Linfield avenue survey appeal suit, was made by the Corporation Counsel last Monday.

ENTRIES for the trots to come off on the Fair Grounds, July 5th, will close on the 15th at the Mansion House.

THE Washington Monument & Historical Association will celebrate the anniversary of our national independence at Washington Rock.

THE season at the Park House was formally opened with a hop on last Saturday evening. Applications for rooms give promise of a successful summer.

EXCURSION tickets to Long Branch, Ocean Grove and other summer resorts on the New Jersey coast, are now for sale at the ticket offices of the C. R. R.

THE Sons of Temperance instead of the Y. M. C. A., will commence the usual series of out-door meetings, next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the grove back of Laing's Hotel. Rev. A. H. Lewis will address the assemblage.

A USEFUL patent was exhibited at the Mansion House on Wednesday last, in the shape of a portable ironing board. It is very simple and durable in construction. Mr. C. B. Rogers has taken the agency for the sale of the patent in this city.

THE public should not neglect to attend the really fine though gratuitous concert that is offered them every evening in front of Laing's Hotel. Not only will they be greatly amused, but a chance is given for all to benefit themselves physically.

THE gentlemen requested by the Board of Education, to act as a committee to award the Brown prize for excellence in English composition at the coming Commencement of the Plainfield High School, are: Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, Hon. Joseph W. Yates and J. Evarts Tracy, Esq.

WE had not the space this week to publish Councilman Whiton's last monthly report of the city's finances. It shows a total of receipts from licenses of $509 and taxes, $286.32; disbursements $743.75. On account of the Poor Fund the receipts from taxes were $28.64, and disbursements, $109.66.

They have just begun to organize Boards of Health up in Sussex county.—Iron Era.

Plainfield has been the possessor of a Board of Health for a long time, and the wonderment of our citizens at present is, to know what they are doing toward averting malaria by the abatement of existing nuisances.

OWING to the absence of Mr. John Taylor Johnston in Europe, it was found impossible for the Saengerbund to secure his pleasant grove for the holding therein of a grand summer picnic and out-door festival. A committee was appointed at the last meeting of the Society, with power to secure some suitable place for the purpose in view.

THE Wednesday evening Medical Society of this State, composed of prominent physicians, met at Dr. Charles H. Stillman's residence on Front street last Wednesday evening. The organization is a most select one, a single vote against a proposed member being sufficient to prevent his admittance; and the meetings held at the houses of the members are occasions of cordial re-union and congenial intercourse.

CENTENNIAL celebrations being in order, why not celebrate the anniversary when Washington, the Father of his Country, visited the famous rock named after him near this city, and viewed the movements of the enemy's troops on the plain below him in the far off distance. Pick out some important data during his stay in this vicinity, and then let's celebrate. Between such a demonstration, and a visit to the gold fields in the immediate vicinity, we will wager such a crowd could be gotten together in Plainfield as to tax to the utmost the efforts of our hotel keepers and citizens to entertain them.

STEALING cherries is undoubtedly a reprehensible practice, but it may be the indirect cause of certain consummations devoutly to be wished. Innate wickedness impelled the gamins of Plainfield to strip the tree that was once laden with cherries on the corner of Second street and Central avenue. That was bad! But in order to reach the limbs, the spoilers stood upon the barbed wire fence that surrounded this tree and consequently broke the wire from its fastenings in the posts. That was good! Dresses unmentionable have been torn and hands innumerable scarred, by coming in contact with the sharp points of the fence during the last few weeks.

That Old Cannon.

And now a bet has been offered and taken by the "Plainites" as follows: "Five Dollars to Four Dollars that if the Westfielders fire that cannon at midnight on the occasion of the nation's birthday, then will that cannon be fired at sunrise in Scotch Plains on the same auspicious occasion." There is music in the air, and to settle the dispute, it is just as well for a few Plainfield braves to go and take possession of the piece and bring it back where it belongs.

Scenes in Plainfield During the Chicago Contest.

The long contest in Chicago has been lately the absorbing topic of conversation in this city, and during the days and nights of balloting quite a fervor of excitement was created. The Republicans were probably the most interested in the final result, as there was a decided lack of unanimity in their individual preferences. But the Democrats were not far behind in their feeling of concern over the nomination, as the choice of different men made the coming victory for their party more or less easy of achievement. The action of the managers of the different factions at Chicago, displaying their intent to nominate not the choice of the people or the strongest of the party, but their own particular friend or patron, was a source of ignominy to the respectable Republicans of this city, and they felt that they could not reply in justice to the remarks of contempt and feelings of derision expressed by their Democratic friends and neighbors at the unscrupulous action of the different cliques for their own private ends and the distraction of the common good of their party.

Through the extreme kindness of Mr. Charles Schermerhorn, the Western Union Telegraph manager at this point, THE CONSTITUTIONALIST was enabled to display on the large bulletin board that had been erected in front of its business office, the result of the several ballots as they were taken. In spite of the positive averments of newspaper correspondents "on the spot," who almost universally coincided in their statement that Grant had lost power during the first four days of the convention, the first balloting received in Plainfield at 12:30 p. m. Monday showed that his original strength was unimpaired. The announcements that followed on that day and night were monotonous in their stereotyped statements of almost the same result, but the infrequency of their arrival kept the interest whetted by intense expectation of a "break" that was sure of accomplishment. The rising generation gathered at the telegraph office, were promised astounding developments "during the next two or three ballots" by older heads who had had years of experience in the same direction; and the hearts of interested third-termers, gathered around the bulletin, were filled with joy upon the assurance that if "Grant holds his own he will be nominated"—disregarding the fact that the candidate would have to get and hold some competitor's "own" before his choice was consummated.

The same obliging spirit was shown by Mr. Schermerhorn in the evening, and the words of the wire were available to all until the adjournment of the convention at eleven o'clock p. m. on Monday. The Common Council adjourned early and assembled again at the telegraph office to discuss the situation and outlook of the Chicago bear-garden. The ballots showing no change of feeling among the delegates, the operators along the line varied the dull uniformity of their dispatches by ticking to each other "Bully for Grant;" "Windom's supporters have sent for their winter clothes;" "Ingersoll believes in a hot hereafter for Conkling;" "Send the next backwards so we can change hands;" &c. The principal topic of wonderment among our city fathers was the reason why New Jersey who has nothing to thank Blaine for, should stand by him. A prominent school official stated it was for the same reason that the people of Plainfield voted for a good many things—"out of pure cussedness."

Watching for the "compromise" was the occupation of Tuesday, and the receipt of the 35th ballot, nominating Mr. De Golyer Mobilier Garfield, was the occasion of various feeling. Blaine men looked disappointed, Grant men looked vindictive and the Democrats winked at each other. Five minutes after the news passed over the wire the result was printed and posted in front of this office, and sixty-three men, two women and a real estate agent had said "I knew they'd nominate Garfield." And so what had for a week been the cause of great excitement in the city, resulted in a weak selection by the anti-Grantites, with a sop to Cerberus Conkling as a tail-piece.

Fourth of July.

Is it possible that there is not patriotism enough left in the citizens of Plainfield, to get up some sort of a celebration in recognition of the nation's birthday. It did not used to be so.

Hotel Opening.

Mr. C. H. Brocksmith, late proprietor of the Westfield Hotel, who recently leased the well-known Schwartz' Hotel building in Elizabeth, threw open his doors to the public on Monday evening last. He will be pleased to see his many friends from this section at the "County House" at all times. "Brock" knows how to keep a Hotel and the citizens of Elizabeth will find in him a popular landlord.

Acquitted.

The young incendiary, Charlie Vail—who upon his capture some time ago confessed to the starting of enough fires to place him at the head of the list of past and present followers of such questionable pastime—was acquitted by the jury called together in the Elizabeth court during the past week, to try his case. The majority of those interested unite in the opinion that the accused's late sojourn in jail has been sufficient punishment, and the majestic judge and intellectual jury are credited with kind hearts and sympathetic feelings not usually found in Jersey courts.

Another Old Resident Gone.

Jonah Vail, aged 80 years and some months, an old resident of Green Brook, died on Monday last. His funeral on Wednesday, from the Friend's Meeting House on Peace street, was largely attended. Mr. Vail was one of the oldest settlers along Green Brook. An honest and upright man, good neighbor and a believer in the simple and true religion of the Friend's Society, his presence will be missed in the section wherein he lived and from among a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Mr. Vail was father of Mr. Adelbert Vail, clerk in the 1st National Bank of this city.

At the Methodist Church.

The pleasing services arranged in honor of the Raikes' Centennial, were most praiseworthily carried out last Sunday evening in the Methodist Church. A large number were present of all denominations; many visitors in fact, being unable to obtain admittance. The ideas followed were designed to teach important lessons from the bible in an original but most pleasing way, and the ceremonies passed off admirably. A number of prettily dressed children, each representing a chapter from the Bible, marched through the aisles and around the room, carrying appropriately inscribed banners.

The Excursion Season Commenced.

Coney Island's new Iron pier was publicly opened last Saturday by a party of invited guests, to the number of about 600, including members of the press and prominent merchants and citizens of New York and adjoining sections. The invited ones were taken to the island on the steamer Kill Von Kull (which will be retained on this route during the season) and were pleasantly lunched and otherwise entertained at the pier. We were not able to avail ourselves of the kind invitation extended to us by the managers, but trust everything was consummated satisfactorily in our absence, as our presence would have assured.

High School Commencement.

The high school commencement occurs on the last Thursday in June. The following named pupils have received appointments:

Ernest R. Ackerman, Mary Mullen, Winfield S. Angleman, Jean B. Murray, George F. T. Carter, Nellie M. Pangborn, L. May Coffin, Mary C. K. Rocap, R. Henry Depew, Jean B. Skidmore, Libbie Dusenbury, Franklin S. Smith, Lizzie Jeffers, George E. Vincent, May M. Grace, Lizzie A. Van Winkle.

Miss May M. Grace will be valedictorian.

Among those, appointed seven are distinguished for special excellence as follows:

L. May Coffin, May M. Grace, Jean B. Skidmore, Ernest R. Ackerman, Winfield S. Angleman, R. Henry Depew, George E. Vincent.

The Children's Home Festival.

Out of town attractions probably somewhat lessened the attendance at the festival, Tuesday evening, given in the First Baptist Church, for the benefit of the Children's Home. Net receipts of about $100, however, will make quite an addition to the treasury of this most worthy object. The managers of the affair, and their helping friends, are to be praised for the work that was unsparingly done towards making the occasion an attractive one. A handsome flower bower was erected in the centre of the room, and a pretty lemonade well and beautifully arranged fruit table showed the taste and judgment of their designers. Enjoyable music was rendered during the evening by four pieces under the leadership of Prof. DeBona, of New York, in a manner that called forth unanimous approval.

A New Church Choir in the Prospective.

Grace Church is at present negotiating with certain prominent vocalists of this city with the end in view of forming a choir that will excel in individual and combined merits anything heretofore in Plainfield. The persons who will, it is expected, compose the quartette, are possessive of much and commendable talent, but we are not, as yet, at liberty to divulge their names. Suffice it to say that the soprano is a lady who has not lately been heard in public outside of one or two entertainments, and has spent much time during the past months in perfecting herself in her art, and training her remarkably fine voice, The alto is well known and greatly admired as a vocalist; the basso is at present occupying a prominent position in the best church choir our city possesses, and a change in the tenor part will no doubt be found unnecessary.

A Church Loafer Sentenced.

Frank Hall, one of the nice young men of Dover, who lounge around church doors and annoy the attendants, last Sunday evening assumed a loafing attitude in the vestibule of the Second M. E. Church, and refused to move till the sexton ordered him out of doors. Then he went out doors and lighted a cigar, and while the smoke was blown inside the church, abused the sexton and gave him to understand that he could there do as he pleased. The law was invoked, and Frank listened with a defiant what-are-you-going-to-do-about-it air while the pastor and sexton testified to the facts, which was somewhat changed when Judge Wood decided that he should be committed to the county jail for six days and pay a bill of $10 and costs and stand committed till both were paid. This took the starch out of the young gentleman's stiffness and he shifted to the begging tack. But it was too late and the young gentleman went down to the county seat. Another offender was fined $3.—Exchange.

A Favorite Summer Resort.

Washington Rock, the famous locality situated on the brow of the mountain just back of Plainfield, is yearly becoming more and more popular, as strangers begin to appreciate the advantages to be obtained there for health and pleasure, beside the magnificent scenery afforded. The "Rock House" is now open for summer guests, and the several approaches to this historic spot have been put in the best possible shape, which makes it easy of access. The proprietors, Messrs Stanta Bros., have spared no pains or expense to make the surroundings and interior of the "Rock House" pleasing and attractive. Board can be secured there at fair rates, and already the house has a number of permanent summer guests, while but few rooms remain unengaged. Stages are run daily, to and from the "Rock House" to the Dunellen depot for the accommodation of guests and transient visitors. The recent discoveries of gold and silver ore in paying quantities in its immediate vicinity, is sure to add additional attraction to the "Rock House" the present season.

An Urgent Necessity.

We urge upon the Board of Health the necessity of at once taking immediate steps toward securing a perfect sanitary condition of our city before extreme and continued hot weather sets in. There are many places situated within the very heart of the city where filth abounds, caused by accumulation of garbage and refuse thrown into a heap in rear yards of stores and dwellings, which even now are breeding malaria in the vicinity, and which have not received the attention from the Board of Health which that body should give it. It is also time that some action was taken regarding the matter of sewerage and construction of cess pools in the city. At the rate which our city is growing it may not be very long before such a mysterious disease as prevails among the students of Princeton College, ascertained after medical examination to emanate from too close proximity to the College buildings of foul cess pools, may crop out in Plainfield and injure its fair name the same as it has done Princeton. Careful attention to the [illegible] devolving upon the proper city officials in seeing that such nuisances do not exist may save our citizens sickness and the city its good name.

Young Men Wanted.

Next Sunday evening, June 13th, the Rev. Mr. Stockton will preach a sermon to young men, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., at the M. E. church. All the young men of Plainfield are invited to attend this service. Subject, "Recruiting for Christ," or young men wanted.

Somerset's New Sheriff.

Governor McClellan, on Tuesday last appointed ex-Freeholder Geo. Vroom of Hillsborough Township, as Sheriff of Somerset County, to fill vacancy occasioned by the death of Sheriff Van Liew, until the next general election, when a Sheriff will be voted for by the people to serve for the whole term of three years. Mr. V. is a Democrat.

Census Humor.

The enumerators now taking the census throughout this city, meet with many humorous incidents in the discharge of their arduous duties. Mr. Louis F. Wadsworth, enumerator for the 2nd District, had the extreme pleasure of recording in one case the age of a mother as 40 years, while her eldest daughter was modest enough to own that her age was 29 years. Well, this is an age of improvement.

Sudden Death.

While Mrs. Mary Zukschwert, mother of Charles Zukschwert, of this city, was engaged in feeding a brood of chickens on her farm at Union Village last Friday afternoon, she was observed by members of her family to suddenly fall to the ground. She was carried into the house but only gave a gasp before she expired. She was in excellent health up to within a few moments before she was thus stricken by what the physician declared to be heart disease. Her remains were interred in the burial ground attached to the M. E. Church, Union Village, on Monday.

The Mines.

The parties interested in the recently discovered gold and silver mines in our vicinity, not only still retain their faith in the prospective bonanza, but that feeling is continually being increased within them by more promising assays which they report as resulting from the findings of new mines. The "assay department" of the corporation is kept open during the day and sometimes at night, where the public are allowed to inspect the grinding, smelting and such other processes as are gone through with before the little "button" of gold or silver is reclaimed from its native abiding place. The steam pump for the raising of the water from the old mines is being manufactured by Mr. John N. Schenck of this city, and will be ready as soon as the necessary engine and other appliances are put into working shape.

An Unfortunate Accident.

A very distressing calamity occurred at the drug store of Mr. Anthony Killgore on the morning of last Monday, resulting in the terrible burning by sulphuric acid of Mr. William Day, a clerk. The victim was engaged with his employer in filling the soda-water generators, and had already carried one or two measures of acid to the top of a low pair of steps, when just as he was ascending with another the step broke under him, or tipped forward, and the unfortunate man was thrown to the floor. As he fell, a large quantity of the terrible liquid was thrown over his face and arms, inflicting fearful burns wherever it touched. The remarkable presence of mind displayed upon the occasion by Mr. Killgore, partially counteracted what would have resulted fatally. Immediately seizing a pan of water he dashed it over the injured man, and followed the action with a pouring of oil on the burns. A physician passing the store was called in and his powers brought into requisition to allay the fearful pain, after which Mr. Day was removed to his home in North Plainfield. The power of the acid may be understood by its consuming the entire sleeve that covered one of the unfortunate man's arms. Not a trace of the material was left.

Personalia.

Our editorial sanctum was on Saturday last honored with the presence of our oft thought of, though never before met, friend R. Aylmer Barnewell, an able writer and attachee of the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph. Mr. B. comes to our city with a double purpose in view, that of recruiting his health, after laborious work, and also to view the surroundings of New Jersey's future Eldorado, when the gold and silver mines hereabouts shall be in active operation. We shall always be glad to welcome and extend the journalistic hand to brother Barnewell, when he visits Plainfield.

Mr. Ferdinand Buttman, Jr., of this city, is an Engineer of Mines; that degree having been conferred upon him by Columbia College last Wednesday morning.

Abraham Runyon, Esq., father of Chancellor Runyon is spending the season at Dunellen.

Rev. A. H. Lewis has returned from the Seventh Day Baptist Convention, which he had been attending at Rockville, R. I.

Anthony De Baud, Jr., is his name, and all are doing well.

Attorney General J. P. Stockton was in Plainfield on Wednesday. His visit was not an official one, it pertaining to family matters, members of his family residing in this city.

Mr. William Archibald Dunning of this city, a member of the Class of '81 at Columbia, was highly honored at the commencement exercises of that college last Wednesday morning. He was awarded the Greek scholarship and the Logic and English Literature scholarship of the Junior class; awards worth $100 each.

Elizabeth's Centennial.

The celebration of the centennial anniversary of the Battle of Elizabethtown will be remembered for the next one hundred years as an occasion when the city of Elizabeth was a scene of unalloyed enjoyment of hours in duration. A sham battle occurred in the morning, whereat the peaceful citizens of Elizabeth re-enacted the warlike scenes of the eighteenth century, and counterfeited the victory (or defeat, whichever it was) of the Americans in Elizabethtown in 1780. There was a portrayal of the most approved styles of skirmishing, fighting, advancing and retreating, and countermarching, until both sides should have been entirely annihilated, but neither was out of breath. The largest guns of modern manufacture had been procured, so that the presence of illimitable noise might make up for the absence of blood. In the evening nature's darkness was frustrated by electric lights, colored fires and pyrotechnic displays, so that a portion of the fine parade that concluded the day's festivities was visible at times. The procession was undoubtedly a remarkably good one and might have been viewed with pleasure by the thousands assembled to witness it, if it had taken place at six o'clock when it should, instead of eight o'clock when it did. A number of excellent bands were scattered through the line, but these did not have to be seen to be appreciated; while occasional flashes of a few calcium lights carried on wagons in the procession, served to show for a moment the admirable display the fire companies made, and also to effectually blind the spectators for the subsequent ten minutes. "Warren" Engine Co. No. 3, were invited and took part in the parade, being entertained most generously during their visit by "Washington" Engine Co., No. 3, of Elizabeth. Their appearance in the procession when seen, was a cause of just pride to the Plainfielders present. About forty members in uniform turned out, composing one of the handsomest bodies in the parade, headed by their Foreman, George Kosselring, Foreman Saltsman, and Chief Voorhees. The steamer was drawn by a span of spirited horses, and was as bright in all its glory of new varnish and polish as possible. Invitations to attend as the guests of "Warren" were issued by that Company to the officers of the department, Hon. Wm. B. Maxson, Wm. E. Jones, and the editors of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, for which compliment, wherein it concerned us, we are greatly indebted. The visitors were enthusiastically cheered at many points along the line of march by friends and admiring strangers, and when passing the establishment of Mr. L. A. Dunn a storm of applause and the flashing of fireworks greeted them, and "a hundred cheers for Warren" were demanded and cheerfully given.

The attendance of pleasure seekers from this city was very large. The number of excursion tickets sold was 778, not including 180 taken by "Warren" Company, and the excursionists probably swelled the assemblage of Plainfielders to nearly a thousand. Mr. Chas. Brocksmith's new Hotel on Broad street had, fortunately for the comfort and convenience of strangers, just been opened and was extensively patronized by the hungry traveler and thirsty pilgrim. The special arrangements made by the railroad company in addition to the regular trains were a great benefit, and nothing occurred to mar the day's pleasure.

Hotel Netherwood.

The opening of the Hotel Netherwood is always looked forward to as the beginning of the season in our city. Bringing together by its attractions of situation and management a large number of the best class of New York society, its hops and balls are occasions of the most refined enjoyment; while the existence in our suburbs of so perfect a building under such unexcelled superintendence, enables our permanent residents to gather around them their chosen friends from other places and widen their circle of congenial summer acquaintance. This season will be far ahead of even those past, as the many additional comforts and conveniences that have been consummated cannot fail to redound to the benefit of the resort. Servant's quarters have been recently erected separate from the main building, and a house exclusively for the coachmen and footmen of the guests is just completed. Drennan, the well known liveryman of 36th Street, New York, will open a branch of his large establishment to accommodate such guests as desire to engage by the day or season, landaus, coupes, phætons and other fine turn-outs, with all the accessories of liveried coachmen, footmen, etc.

The management will be, as it always has been, perfect in every detail. The reputation of Mr. King who takes the place of Mr. Mower, attests that he will be fully as solicitous in his attention to the desires and wishes of his patrons as was his predecessor. Mr. Merritt, the former clerk, occupies his old place to the just satisfaction of the many friends his cordial bearing and gentlemanly breeding has gained him. The culinary department is under the supervision of a chef whose talents in his peculiar art are unrivalled, while the corps of waiters, chambermaids, bell-boys and other servants have been selected with great care and in accordance with their fitness for their individual positions.

Gardeners are kept continually at work ornamenting the grounds about the hotel, which present a most pleasing appearance to the eye and command the commendation of all whose tastes appreciate the beauties of nature. The many available drives through valley, plain and mountain are too well known by flattering reputation to need mentioning.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The unfinished heat between Mr. Wm. Moore's "Carbolic" and "Hambletonian Bashaw" was trotted on the Prospect Park grounds last Thursday, as last week's CONSTITUTIONALIST announced would be done, to decide whether the purse should be given to "Carbolic" the rightful winner, who won three straight heats the day before, which was then declared by the judges to be a "dead heat," or to "Bashaw" whose driver drove "foul." That the whole affair was "unfair" was apparent to all who witnessed the trot. Mr. Moore presented the following protest to the judges after their decision of Wednesday:

"I hereby notify the Prospect Fair Grounds Association that I protest against the payment of first money to any horse except "Carbolic," in the 2:30 class trotted June 1st, 1880, trotted over the track of the said Association on said date and day. And I also appeal from the Judge's decision on the grounds that there was no fraud on my part, as I won the race in three straight heats."

We clip the following from the Brooklyn Eagle:

"There was considerable running during the heat by Martha and Bashaw. The judges conferred some time before announcing the result, and then declared it to be 'no heat.' This decision took the spectators by surprise, as Carbolic clearly won the last heat and should have been given the race. The judges assigned as their reason for declaring it 'no heat' that Columbus had not been driven to win. Under the circumstances this was a very lame excuse for taking the heat from Carbolic, who won the three heats very fairly and in the face of considerable odds, having been put in a pocket several times. There appears to be no doubt that the decision was given in a spirit of fairness, but however that may be, there is no question that the judges made a very grave blunder in making Carbolic suffer for what they considered the delinquencies of another horse, instead of punishing the chief offender alone."

A penalty of $5 for each offence is attached to robbing bird's nests. Young lads who are in the habit of following this pernicious pastime, should remember this.

It is a noticeable fact that since the stringent laws enacted by our Legislature a few years since prohibiting the shooting or destroying of song and insectiverous birds, and by the earnest efforts of the members of Protective Societies to enforce said laws, there is a great increase of such birds, who are a blessing to the farmer, because they help keep his crops free from insects and vermin, and are also a source of pleasure to the lover of song birds by their sweet warbling.

Remember the amended woodcock law. This bird cannot be shot until Sept. 1st.

The shad season closed June 10th.

Another shad was taken on an artificial fly with light rod, in the Raritan river by a Plainfield gentleman, since our last issue. And yet the seine fisherman always contended that such a thing as catching shad with hook and line was an impossibility. The cause is too apparent; there were no shad left to catch after they drew their nets. Since these fishermen have been prohibited from drawing their nets in certain parts of the river, however, there are a few shad left to take a fly.

The effect of the law against seine fishing begins to be noticeable in the abundance of fish in the bays and thoroughfares. The coming season promises well for the hook and liner and lover of fresh fish. Weak fish, sheepshead, blue fish and crabs are plenty. Pleasure boats and fishing tackle are beginning to be patronized.—Atlantic News.

The season for black bass fishing began on Tuesday.—Iron Era.

Not so, Mr. Era. The opening of the season in this State for catching that delectable fish commences July 1st.

The Mosholu(?) Park races begin on Saturday, July 3d.

There is to be a Grand Pigeon Shooting Tournament held at Easton, on the 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th of June, under the auspices of the Easton Sportsmen's Association. Among other interesting matches on the occasion will be an exhibition shoot by the Champion of the World, Capt. Bogardus and his son Eugene, with shotgun and rifle. This occurs on the 16th. On the 17th, a match will be shot between the Champion, Bogardus, and the Western boy wonder, Fred. Erb, Jr. Terms as follows: One hundred single birds, $500 a side. Entrance to grounds 25 cents.

FIRE MATTERS.

The annual election for officers of the "Plainfield Firemen's Relief Association" will be held in the parlors of Gazelle Engine House, on Second street, Monday evening, June 14th.

There will be a "Wash" of "Gazelle" No. 1, next Thursday evening, June 17th, at 7:30 o'clock, "sharp." The members are requested to present themselves in fatigue uniform the evening in question.

Wines for Medicine.

Some time since we stopped at Passaic, N. J., and were really surprised to see the amount of Mr. Speer's stock of Port Grape Wine on hand—it is almost fabulous. Four storehouses are filled, and tiers upon tiers of casks, up and down stairs, and in some cases huge vats occupy every available spot, leaving only little alley ways through which to walk. It is an enormous quantity of wine. None is sold until it has acquired the age of four years, and the buildings 1, 2, 3 and 4, are of the first, second, third and fourth years vintage. Our druggists have some of the oldest of the above wine direct from Mr. Speer.—Paterson Guardian.

This wine is now in demand for communion purposes. It is excellent for weakly persons before retiring. For sale by all druggists.

Speer's Port Grape Wine.

This article of American Wine is highly esteemed by the best physicians in this country. The following is a testimonial we saw from the New York Hospital. We publish it for the information of our readers:

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.

I am using Speer's Port Grape Wine and find it to be an excellent tonic and genial stimulant, and as such I believe it preferable to the commercial Port, and all other wines, as it possesses their tonic properties without the deleterious effect caused by their impurities. It is also very palatable, and this is a recommendation to many, especially females.

This is an excellent article for family use, and for females. For sale by all druggists.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A QUEER DOG.

A letter from Salina, Kansas, to the Spirit of the Times, says: Frank Wilkeson came into town to-day from his ranch with his dog Rupert. I met him on the sidewalk, and stopped to look at the setter and talk with his owner. I said to him: "Frank, Rupert has seemingly every point of a first-rate dog; but conflicting accounts of him come to us from the Gypsum. It is said that he hunts perfectly. It is also said that he won't hunt at all, and is worse than useless in the field."

Frank looked lovingly down on the handsome dog, and smiled a smile that evidently covered amusing experiences. Then, squaring himself for a plea for character, he replied to me: "Rupert is to-day the best dog in Kansas. He can get over more ground, find more birds and stand more beating with clubs (looks for about three sound thrashings a day, and is unhappy if he misses them) than any dog I ever saw. And no one but myself can hunt with him. I can make him do any thing. I know he knows what I want him to do. He knows I know it. So I make it a point to whip him until he executes my will. No one else is allowed to do this. He knows this, too; and what a time he has when he hunts with a party and I am not along! His reputation? Very bad. He is a thief; is headstrong; is mean; and the most exasperating dog in the world. A man borrowed him from me the other day. I smiled when he went off happy. When he came back, gameless, he said: 'Rupert may be a prince, but he is a prince of devils. I had as soon have a tornado hunt birds for me as that dog. He won't hunt.'

"Hold on! Come to the creek with me," I said. So I took my gun and a pocketful of shells. Sharply I spoke to the dog. 'To hee!' and he followed mildly. At the creek he flushed a bird. I pulled up a sunflower stalk and wore it out on him. Then he put in the big licks. He beat over twenty acres of ground at the full run, and set every bird (thirteen) in the grass, and I shot them all. He dropped to shot; brought in every bird; never flushed a bird; worked to my motions. Everything was done perfectly. My friend was astonished. Open-eyed, he looked on, and many times he said: 'Well, I'm blowed!' and when the dog, with bird in mouth, set a live quail and stood staunch while a rabbit ran six inches in front of his nose, my friend got even stronger in his expressions. I wound up the show, and, turning to him, said: 'This dog is the prince of dogs. He will hunt—for me. When he goes out with you he goes for pleasure. When he goes with me he goes on business. Now I am through shooting. You take him.'

"I put my gun in a hollow tree. Rupert saw I had finished, and off he went. Every bird he came to he flushed and chased. He ran rabbits. He set meadow larks. He fought a cat; and as my friend expressed it, 'had a deuce of a time.' What a laugh I had; and when Rupert came to me with his handsome black face fairly beaming with delight, I hugged him, and said he had done well. No, sir! The dog after my own heart is mine, and I don't want any other in the world."

WANTED.

A clergyman who can preach three sermons consecutively without mentioning Galileo.

A man who will refrain from calling his friend's speech a "happy effort."

A woman who remembers last Sunday's text, but is unable to speak understandingly of the trimmings on the bonnet of the lady in the pew next in front.

An editor who never feels pleased to have his good things credited, or mad when they are stolen.

A pencil that is always in the first pocket you put your hand into.

A man who has been a fool sometime during his life, and knew enough to keep the knowledge of it to himself.

A married man who does not think all the girls envy his wife the prize she has captured.

A married woman who never said, "No wonder the girls don't get married nowadays, they are altogether different from what they were when I was a girl."

An unmarried woman who never had an offer.

A man who had never intimated that the economies of the universe were subject to his movements, by saying, "I knew if I took an umbrella it wouldn't rain," or some similar asinine remark.

A pocket-knife that is never in "them other pants."

A mother who never said she "would rather do it herself," when she should have taught her child to do that thing.

A father who never forgets that his duties to his children are as many and as weighty as theirs to him.

A child who would not rather eat between meals than at meals.

A converted brother who does not exaggerate his forsaken wickedness when relating his experience.

A person, age or sex immaterial, who does not experience a flush of pride upon being thought what he is not and may never hope to be.

A button on the male garmenture that never comes off except when the person whose mission in life is to sew buttons on is near at hand with her utensils.

A singer who never complains of a cold when asked to sing.

A woman when caught in her second best dress, who will make no apology for her dreadful appearance.

WHY THE BOOKKEEPER STOLE.

He had a wife.
His salary was $1,500 per annum.
But she complained.
She wanted a better house.
Better clothes.
Nothing to go out in.
No country cottage.
Nor carriage.
Nor front pews.
More society.
She coveted a place on the ragged edge of the select 500.
She kept it up
Night and day.
And moaned and Groaned and Growled and Wept.
He lacked style, also,
As well as new clothes every six weeks, and various other things.
He knew how his employer made several hundreds daily on the street.
A thousand or so would not be missed for a few hours.
So he took it, went up the street, and won.
He took more and lost.
More to get that back and lost.
More yet.
Defalcation discovered.
He wears a Penitentiary check.
Others are doing so too.
Beware.
But if you win regularly, society won't be hard on you.
But if you lose, society will sit down on you.
Beware.
Better is a modest room up two pairs of back stairs than a cell in the Tombs.
And a plain woolen jacket rather than a pair of prison pants as on poor Charley's legs.

HE REMEMBERED EXACTLY.

A lying witness will often tell a very glib story, but he generally fails to guard all his weak points. At a recent trial in court the following took place in attempting to prove an alibi:

Attorney S.—You say that Elias plowed for you all day on the 29th of November?

Witness referring to his note-book—Yes.

S.—What did he do on the 30th?

W.—We chopped wood.

S.—On the 31st?

W.—That was Sunday, and we went squirrel hunting.

S.—What did he do on the 32nd?

W.—He thrashed wheat on that day.

S.—What did he do on the 33?

W.—It was raining, and he shaved out some handles.

S.—What did he do on the 34?

W.—He chopped wood.

S.—What did he do on the—?

But before the question could be finished, the witness's wife seized him by the collar and whisked him outside of the witness-box yelling in his affrighted ear: "You old fool don't you know there are only thirty days in the month of November?"

A SAFER PLAN.

A gentleman who's face had a look anything but pleasant yesterday purchased a postal card at the post office, and took up a pen and wrote for about two minutes with a determined hand. Then, as he blotted the card, he asked the stamp clerk:

"Is it against postal rules to call a man a liar on a postal card?"

The clerk thought it was, and the man tore up the card, bought another, and after writing a few lines inquired:

"It can't be against the rules to call him a villain, can it?"

The clerk again decided it was, and a third card was purchased. This time the man pondered over his lines, signed his name and said:

"I have written here that he ought to be in jail for his conduct. Is that against the postal rules?"

The clerk said he wouldn't dare run the risk himself and the indignant citizen tore the card into a dozen pieces and exclaimed:

"Go to Halifax with your old post office! I won't send any card at all but I'll waylay the fellow and knock the top of his head off!"—Detroit Free Press.

A DENIAL!
SIMPSON & CO.,

(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE off SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is INCORRECT; or in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient to allow of any being cut, independent of the filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from

Pure Spring Water.

They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defence.

A CARD.

Being compelled by the increase of business to have an assistant, I have taken in my employ Mr. A. J. Mills, a mechanical specialist, his first preceptor for five years being the celebrated Norman W. Kingsly, M. D. S., D. D. S., of New York city, and for six years with Dr. Kingsly of Elizabeth. I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent, mechanical operator in every particular. I will therefore take this method of serving notice that wish to take advantage of the lowest cash price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, viz: for 2 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole set of teeth on rubber for $10, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect. We would strive to do only first-class work, and hope by so doing at the end of 2 months to secure favor and patronage by perfection in operations, rather than by cheap competition.

CHAS. L. THEIRS,
my28 Office No. 12 PARK AVE.

POETRY.

For "The Constitutionalist."

IN MEMORY OF MR. CHARLES GREEN WELCH, OF WESTFIELD.

BY [illegible] WELCH.

Oh, teach me submission, and me control
The anguish that's searching the depths of my soul;
Yes, teach me submission, help me to cast
A veil o'er this sorrow too painful to last.
On cease these heart-throbbings, they're sadder the [illegible]
Of the ones save myself, the last of our race.
The dread summons came in like a flash—in a day—
And with pitiless hand drove his spirit away.
But it wafted aloft to those fields bright and vernal,
And there rests in peace in that bliss that's eternal.
We humbly submit and would fain kiss the rod
That is lovingly used—by a merciful God.
We acknowledge the discipline Providence brought us,
And this is the lesson God's spirit has taught us:
"Be ye likewise ready—prepared for the flight,
For Death sometimes steals in like a thief in the night."

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A CASE OF COURTSHIP.

Here was a case of courtship a la mode, or the widow bewitched.

The widow Cumiskey was standing at the door of her little millinery store in Newark avenue the other evening, as Mr. Costello came along. Mr. Costello stopped.

"Good evenin' to you, ma'am," said he.

"Good evenin' to you, Mr. Costello," answered the widow.

"It's fine weather we're havin', ma'am," continued Mr. Castello.

"It is that, thank God," replied Mrs. Cumiskey, "but the Winter's comin' at last, and it comes to all, both great and small."

"Ah!" said Mr. Costello, "but for all that it doesn't come to us alike. Now, here are you, ma'am, fat, rosy and good lookin', equally swate as a Summer pippin or a Winter russet—"

"Arrah, hould yer whist, now," interrupted the fair widow, laughing. "Much an old bachelor like you knows about apples or women. But come in, Mr. Costello, an' take a cup o' tay with me, for I was only standin' be the doore, lookin' at the people passin' for company sake, like, an' I'm sure the kettle must have sung itself hoarse."

Mr. Costello needed no second invitation, and he followed his hostess in her snug back room. There was a bright fire burning in the little stove, the tea kettle was sending forth a cloud of steam that took a ruddy glow from the fire, the shadow lamp on the table gave a mellow and subdued light to the room, and it was all very suggestive of comfort.

"It's very cosy ye are here, Mrs. Cumiskey," said Mr. Costello, casting a look of approbation around the apartment.

"Yes," replied the widow, as she laid the supper, "it is that, whin I do be havin' company."

"Ah," said Mr. Castello, "it must be lonesome for you with only the cat and yer cup o' tay."

"Sure it is," answered the widow. "But take a sate, and set down, Mr. Costello. Help yerself to this fish, an' don't forget the purtaties. Look at them; they're splittin' their sides with laughing."

Mr. Costello helped himself and paused. He looked at the plump widow, with her arm in that graceful position assumed in pouring out tea, and remarked: "I'm sinsible of the comforts of a home, Mrs. Cumiskey, though I've none myself. Mind now the difference between the tastes o' tay made and served that way and the tay they give you in an 'ating house."

"Sure," said the widow, "there's nothin' like a little home o' your own. I wonder you never got marrit, Mr. Costello."

"I was about to make the same remark in reference to yourself, ma'am," answered Mr. Costello."

"God keep us," exclaimed Mrs. Cumiskey, "aren't I a widder woman this seven years?"

"Ah," rejoined Mr. Castello, "but it's thinkin' I was why ye didn't get marrit again."

"Well, it's sure I am," said the widow, thoughtfully, setting down her teacup, and raising her hand by way of emphasis, "there never was a better husband to any woman than him that's dead and gone. Heaven save an' rest his sowl. He was that aisy a child could do anythin' with him, and he was as handsome as a monkey. You favor him very much, Mr. Costello. He was about your height, and complected like you."

"Ah!" exclaimed Mr. Costello.

"He often used to say to me in his bantering way, 'Sure, Norah, what's the worrold to a man whin his wife is a widder,' manin', you know, that all the temptations an' luxuries of this life can never folly a man beyant the grave. 'Sure, Nora,' says he, 'what's the worrold to a man whin his wife is a widder?' Ah, poor John!"

"It was a sinsible sayin', that," remarked Mr. Costello, as he helped himself to more fish.

"I mind the day John died," continued the widow. "He knew everything to the last, and about four in the afternoon—it was seventeen minutes past five exactly be the clock that he died—he says to me, 'Nora,' says he, 'you've been a good husband,' says he, 'an' there's no love lost between us,' says he, 'an' I can give you a good character any place,' says he, 'an' I wish you could do the same for me where I'm going,' says he, 'but it's case equal,' says he, 'ev'ry dog has his day, and some has a day and a half,' says he; 'an',' says he, 'I'll know more in a bit than Father Corrigan himself,' says he, 'but I'll say now,' says he, 'that I've always been a true son of the church,' says he, 'so I'll not bother me brains about it,' and he says, says he, 'I lave you in good hands, Nora, for I lave you in your own hands,' says he, 'an' if, at any time ye see a man ye like better nor me, marry him,' says he. 'Ah, Nora,' says he, for the first time speaking it solemn like, 'what's the worrold to a man when his wife is a widow? And,' says he, 'I lave $50 for masses, and the rest I lave to yourself,' says he, 'and I needn't tell ye to be a good mother to the childer,' says he, 'for well we know there are none.' Ah, poor John. Will ye have another cup of tay, Mr. Costello?"

"It must have been hard on ye," said Mr. Costello. "Thank ye, ma'am, no more."

"It was hard," said Mrs. Cumiskey; "but time will tell. I must cast about me for my own livin'; and so I got intil this place, and here I am to-day."

"Ah!" said Mr. Costello, as they rose from the table and seated themselves before the fire, "and here we are both of us this evenin'."

"Here we are, sure enough," rejoined the widow.

"An' so, mind ye of—him, do I?" asked Mr. Costello, after a pause, during which he had gazed contemplatively into the fire.

"That ye do," answered the widow. "Ye favor him greatly. Dark complected and the same pleasant smile."

"Now, with me sittin' here and you sittin' there forninst me, ye might almost think ye were marrit again," said Mr. Costello, insinuatingly.

"Ah, go away now, for a taze that ye are," exclaimed the widow, mussing her clean apron by rolling the corners of it.

"I disremember what it was he said about seein' any man you liked better nor him," said Mr. Costello, moving his chair a little nearer to that of the widow.

"He said, said he," answered the widow, smoothing the apron over her knees with her plump, white hands, "'Nora,' says he, 'if any time ye see any man better nor me, marry him,' says he."

"Did he say anything about any man ye liked as good as him?" asked Mr. Costello.

"I don't mind that he did," answered the widow, reflectively, folding her hands in her lap.

"I suppose he left that to yourself?" pursued Mr. Costello.

"Faith, an' I don't know, then," answered Mrs. Cumiskey.

"Do ye think ye like me as well as ye did him?" asked Mr. Costello, persuasively, leaning forward to look into the widow's eyes, which were cast down.

"Ah, go away now for a taze," exclaimed the widow, straightening herself and playfully slapping Mr. Costello on the face.

He moved his chair still nearer and moved his arm around her waist.

"Niver you think I'm ticklesome, Mr. Costello," said the widow, looking boldly at him.

"Tell me," he insisted, "do ye like me as well as ye did him?"

"I—I—most—I most disremember now how much I liked him," answered the widow, naturally embarrassed by such a question.

"Well, then," asked Mr. Costello, enforcing his question by gentle squeezes of the widow's round waist, "do ye like me well enough as meself?"

"Hear the man," exclaimed Mrs. Cumiskey, derisively; "do I like him well enough as himself?"

"Ah, now, don't be breakin' me heart," pleaded Mr. Costello. "Answer me this question, Mrs. Cumiskey, is your heart tender towards me?"

"It is," whispered the widow; "an' there now ye have it."

"Glory be to God," exclaimed the happy lover, and he drew the most unwilling widow to his bosom.

A few minutes after, Mrs. Cumiskey looked up, and, as she smoothed her hair, said: "But, James, you haven't told me how you would like your tay."

"Ah, Nora, me jewell," answered Mr. Costello, "the taste of that first kiss would take away the taste of all the tay that ever was brewed."

WHAT SHALL WE DO FOR FODDER.

The month of May, just closed, has been the dryest recorded for 45 years, less than one fifth of an inch of rain having fallen in the neighborhood of New York, as against over three fifths of an inch in 1836, and a fraction less than one inch in 1877, the only two years since 1836, in which the rainfall in May has been less than one inch. The exact rainfall in May for each year since 1836, is furnished by Professor Draper, of New York, as follows, the quantities being given in inches and hundredths of an inch:

"A dry May, no hay," is a maxim with farmers, and it is well known that April and May are the most important months to pasture and hay crops. The drouth which has prevailed in this country, has extended over a very large area of country and in some sections has been worse than here. It is pretty clear that nine-tenths of our farmers now have more stock than they will be able to carry until next spring unless they resort to the culture of sowed fodder crops; and of these there are but two worthy of consideration—Hungarian grass and corn. On this farm we are now pasturing 20 acres which we had intended to mow early in July; we shall plow it and put it in fine teeth, and sow Hungarian—1 bushel to the acre—using about 400 pounds of superphosphate to the acre, and thus get not less than 30 tons of prime hay—provided it is cut very green—not allowed to stand, if the weather is fair, more than 55, or at the most 60 days from the day it is sowed. We have never failed to get a fine, satisfactory and profitable crop of Hungarian, except last year, when we sowed 16 acres about the middle of May, which came up badly either because of poor seed or the very dry weather—after it was sown, but it paid well as feed on the ground for cows, of which it yielded a fine and succulent crop at a time when all other pasture was almost destroyed by dry weather. In 1877 we tried the experiment of taking off two crops of Hungarian in one season. An eighth of an acre was carefully measured, and on the 15th day of May sowed at the rate of 1 bushel per acre; on the 13th of July, (in 59 days) we housed 825 pounds of perfectly cured, excellent hay, or at the rate of 3 tons 680 pounds per acre; on the 14th day of July we again sowed it, and on September 19th, (66 days) took in 580 pounds of hay, or 2 tons 640 pounds per acre, in all, 5 tons 1,320 pounds per acre. The last crop requires more time to mature because of the weather growing cooler. I do not mean to say that such a result could be attained in a general crop of many acres—but I do mean to say that on good land, if the crop is properly put in, harvested and housed, at least 2 tons per acre can be depended upon from one crop, and of hay better in every respect for all stock than ordinary upland hay.

SPUNKY SPINSTERS.

"If every girl was as spunky as those two women you see in that 'ere sleigh," recently remarked a farmer on a Main street sidewalk in Auburn, "there would not be so many useless do-nothings in the world," and the speaker threw his goad-stick down with emphasis as he ran the remark against an exclamation point.

"What's the peculiarity of their case?" inquired the reporter.

"Why, they farm it on their own hook—and farm it successfully, too," said the gentleman with the goadstick.

One of the ladies at that moment stepped from the sleigh, and lifting a bag containing a bushel and a half of beans, carried them into a store. That happened to be the store in which the reporter had business, and he hastened at once to interview the woman, who was accompanied by a younger sister. She kindly consented to give the desired information, and as an illustration of what women can do we submit her statement:

"I am the eldest of three sisters. My father died and left us a farm of 130 acres in South Auburn. My brother spent a small part of his time with us until ten years ago, when one day he left us in good health. Before night he was killed on the railroad. Then we three girls were left to carry on the farm on our own account. The farm was first settled by my grandfather, who found his way to South Auburn by spotted trees, more than a century ago. The acres have always been in the family, and of course we are much attached to them. My name is Margaret Jordan; my sister next youngest, is Deborah, and the youngest of us is Adeleana. Adeleana is in rather poor health. On me falls most of the care. I have to be financier, cook, field hand and barn hand. I have to stand the racket from pantry to cornfield—in sickness and death. I nurse the sick, feed the hens, hold the plow, hoe the corn, harness the horse, shovel the soil—maid of all work, and do anything and everything on the farm.

"At first it came pretty hard on us, and we used to get pretty tired. As I grow older, it comes very hard; but I don't know why we haven't got on pretty well. We always pay our bills, and in good times have a little over. Last year we raised about twenty tons of hay, 120 bushels of potatoes, 9 bushels of wheat, 40 bushels of oats, 11 bushels of barley, 11 acres of corn, and had a large garden."

"Yes," said a bystander, "and that is not all, for Margaret is a great florist, and has a wonderful flower garden."

"Yes" continued Margaret, "I love flowers, and we have a very good garden."

"Do you attend to it all yourself?"

"Well about all," replied Margaret. "We generally hire a little help in haying time—perhaps spend $25 or $30 a year for hired help. The rest we do ourselves. We have thirteen head of cattle, ten sheep, one horse, beside a flock of hens."

"Yes, and turkeys, too; for I bought the best lot of turkeys that I ever saw in this market last Thanksgiving Day of Margaret," said the provision dealer as he paid out the cash for Margaret's beans and head eggs, which she had just marketed. "I always make it a point to buy Margaret's produce, because its always nice. Just look at those beans and see how perfect they are. And her measure always overruns. For instance, I pay her to-day for a pint of beans over measure."

Miss Deborah then began to stroke the big cat of the store, and remarked:

"We have a bigger cat than that at home."

Obviously the three spinsters lavish their hearts' affections on the dumb animals of the barn, the hennery and the kitchen corner and fortunate creatures they are to have such worthy mistresses.

So it seems that not only does masculine farming pay in Maine, but farming in the feminine gender and in the nominative case also agrees with the verb "boom"—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

A NEW YORK ORPHAN.

One of the little lambs picked up in the streets of New York by Whitelaw Reid and sent West to find a home was adopted by a Detroit family about two months ago, and ere this is published Mr. Reid has received a big postal card announcing that his dear lamb had gone West to fight the Indians, and that he needn't mind about sending on another to take his place.

This New York lamb was 13 years old. He said so at the depot on his arrival, and half an hour later he reiterated the statement at the house, and added:

"And if you don't believe it, then call me a liar! That's the sort of spring-gun I am, and don't you forget it."

They didn't forget it. He gave them no chance to. He ate with his fingers, wiped his mouth on his sleeve, and gave the family to understand before supper was over that he didn't come West to have his hair combed or his face washed as a regular business. On his first evening he slipped out, had three fights and stole a dog, and when hunted up he was about to take his beer in a saloon.

The family expected to wrestle with the boy for awhile, and they didn't sit down on him until it became a painful necessity. During his first week he stole $3 in money, a gold chain, a revolver and a pair of ear-rings, and he got drunk twice. When reasoned with, and asked to do better, he took a fresh chew of plug tobacco, and replied:

"Oh you Michigan folks are too soft. If a feller can't have a good time what's the use of being an orphan?"

On Monday of the second week he sold the family dog to a stranger for a quarter, threw the saw and axe into the alley, and when locked up in a closet he tore a Sunday coat to pieces. It was thought best to have a policeman to talk to him, and one was called in. He put on his fiercest look, and lectured the lamb for fifteen minutes, but as soon as he stopped for breath the young sinner replied:

"Now, see here, old buttons, you are wasting time. I know my little gait, I do, and if you think I've come to a village like this to be bluffed by anybody, you've missed your train."

He was taken to Sunday-school by the hand. He hadn't been there half an hour when he was taken out by the collar. He seemed anxious to punch the head of every good little boy within half a mile of him, and he told the teacher of his class that when she could stuff Moses in the bull-rushes down him it would be after she had bleached her freckles. They gave him a Sunday school book to fit his case, but he fitted it to a crack in the sidewalk on his way home.

When moral suasion had no effect on the wicked youth, his guardian tried the rod. He was bigger than the boy, and he walloped him, but within three hours two of the nuts were taken off his buggy and thrown away. There was a second seance in the woodshed, and before dark a window glass worth $8 was broken.

That orphan was faithfully and duly and persistently wrestled with. He was coaxed and flattered. He was whipped and reasoned with. Ambition, gratitude, fear and avarice were alike appealed to in turn, but as he was the first day so he was the last. One day recently he was told he would be sent to the Reform School at Lansing if there was any further trouble with him. That night he stole $5 from the cook, a butcher-knife from the pantry, and a pie from the sideboard, and departed the house, leaving on his bed a note reading as follows:

"This town ar no place fur a N. York orfun. I'm going out on the planes to fite Injuns. It will be yuseless to foller me, fur I can't be took Alive."—Detroit Free Press.

HOW HERRING ARE BOXED.

A correspondent of the Boston Transcript writing from Eastport, Me., says: Another new and interesting work is that of boxing herring. A New York house has an extensive establishment here, giving employment to some seventy persons, mostly females. The present capacity is 14,000 fish per week. An excellent account of the process and business I quote from the Journal of Commerce:

The fish are placed in numbered barrels, holding about 2,500 herrings each, and at suitable stands, numbered to correspond, sit the girls whose deft fingers are to remove all but the eatable portion of the fish. Large sharp shears are used to cut off the heads, bellies and tails, and with a short-bladed knife the golden yellow skin is stripped off, and the half of the nicely-smoked muscle detached. The backbone and its adhering ribs are as quickly removed from the other half, and the prepared meat goes to other operatives to be bunched and tied.

The prepared halves are rapidly bunched to a ring guage, and secured by knotting with fancy twine, the object being to pack the fish so closely as to retain their freshness and flavor. This object is fully secured by this process, which, simple as it appears, is the most important feature of the whole process, and in its entirety is secured under letters patent of the United States, No. 207,980, issued to Mr. George Peters, the manager of the Eastport establishment, September 10, 1878.

The boxes are now lined with tin foil, and five of the bunches just described placed in each and carefully covered with the upper layer of tin foil after which the covers are closed.

Perfect cleanliness, method and accuracy is apparent throughout the establishment, and, as the work is paid for by the piece, the operatives are busy, intelligent and contented in appearance, the work going on with dispatch, although the amount of noise and bustle is singularly small.

It is intended soon to ship the fish in the bunched form in barrels to New York, thus saving largely in freight, where they will be packed in boxes.

GARFIELD.

It is evident that the Republican Convention at Chicago would not have selected Mr. Garfield as a Presidential candidate, had sober judgment ruled that assemblage instead of faction, strife and tumult. He was made the nominee not because of personal fitness and distinguished services, but for the reason of his being at the moment a ready and willing instrument to defeat the aspirations of Grant.

Doing as they have, the Republicans are saddled with a candidate whose Congressional record is sadly blurred, and therefore, justly open to assault.

Credit Mobilier drove Schuyler Colfax in dishonor from public life, why should Credit Mobilier elevate James A. Garfield, who was as deep in that fraudulent mire as Colfax, to the highest office in the country?

That is a question fact sustained and will be seriously pondered by intelligent voters.

Mr. Garfield represents in Congress a section of Ohio overwhelmingly Republican, but even there his public misdeeds have been the topic of earnest comment, as the following resolutions, adopted by some of Mr. Representative Garfield's own Republican constituents in 1876, emphatically attest:

Resolved, That there is no other man to-day officially connected with the administration of the national Government against whom are justly preferred more and graver charges of corruption than are publicly made and abundantly sustained against James A. Garfield, the present representative of this Congressional district, and the nominee of the Republican Convention for re-election.

Resolved, That since he first entered Congress to this day there is scarcely an instance in which Rings and monopolies have been arrayed against the interests of the people; that he has been found active in speech or vote upon the side of the latter, but in almost every case he has been the ready champion of the Rings and monopolies.

Resolved, That we especially charge him with venality and cowardice in permitting Benjamin F. Butler to attach to the Appropriation bill of 1873 that ever to be remembered infamy, the salary steal, and in speaking and voting for that measure upon its final passage; and charge him with corrupt disregard of the clearly expressed demand of his constituents that he should vote for its repeal and with evading said demand by voting for the Hutchinson amendment.

Resolved, That we further arraign and denounce him for his corrupt connection with the Credit Mobilier, for his false denials thereof before his constituents, for his perjured denial thereof before a committee of his peers in Congress, for fraud upon his constituents in circulating among them a pamphlet purporting to set forth the finding of said committee and the evidence against him, when in fact material portions thereof were omitted and garbled.

Resolved, That we further arraign and charge him with corrupt bribery in selling his official influence as Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations for $5,000 to the De Golyer Pavement Ring to aid them in securing a contract from the Board of Public Works of the District of Columbia; selling his influence to aid said Ring in imposing upon the people of said district a pavement which is almost worthless at a price three times its cost, as sworn to by one of the contractors; selling his influence to aid said Ring in procuring a contract, to procure which it corruptly paid $97,000 "for influence;" selling his influence in a matter that involved no question of law, upon the shallow pretext that he was acting as a lawyer; selling his influence in a manner so palpable and clear as to be so found and declared by an impartial and competent court upon an issue solemnly tried.

Resolved, That we arraign him for gross dereliction of duty as a member of Congress in failing to bring to light and expose the corruption and abuse in the sale of post traderships, for which the late Secretary Belknap was impeached; when the same was brought to his knowledge by Gen. Hazen, in 1872, and can only account for it upon the supposition that his manhood was debauched by the corruption funds then by him just received and in his own purse.

Resolved, That neither great ability and experience nor eloquent partisan discussion of the dead issues of the late war will excuse or justify past dishonesty and corruption, or be viewed as a guarantee of integrity and purity for the future.

Resolved, That, believing the statements in the foregoing resolutions set forth, we cannot, without stultifying our manhood and debasing our self respect, support at the polls the nominee of the Republican Convention of this district for re-election, nor can we, without surrendering our rights as electors and citizens, sit silently by and see a man so unworthy again sent to represent us in the national Legislature; That, strong in the conviction of right we call upon the electors of the district, irrespective of former or present party attachment, who desire honest government, to unite with us in an earnest, faithful effort to defeat the re-election of Gen. Garfield, and elect in his stead an honest and reliable man.

Such damaging public testimony was not partisan hostility on the part of Democratic opponents, but the expressed opinion of a portion of his own party friends at home.

He is not the man for President of the United States.

ARTHUR.

In selecting Vice Presidential candidates blunders have frequently been made, and the recent action of the Republican National Convention in hastily tacking Arthur on to the Garfield ticket is one of them.

It certainly appears strange that of the many well reputed public men belonging to the Republican party in New York, New Jersey and New England, no one of them was named for the second office, but all thrust aside to make room for a ward political wirepuller, and he of doubtful reputation.

Mr. Conkling's disregard of common propriety in that particular will cost the Republicans many votes, and so it ought.

Mr. Arthur may be well qualified to manage a corrupt Custom House ring, but he is not the man to preside over the American Senate.

So will the people say.

TITLED CANDIDATES.

UNWRITTEN LAW.

Unwritten law may be of as much binding effect upon a patriotic citizen as statutory enactment.

We have such a law in these United States.

It was established by the example of George Washington, and has been loyally obeyed by Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Jackson.

It is eight years term of office for a President and no longer.

For the first time in the history of the Constitution an attempt has been made to overthrow that most salutary law.

Fortunately the conspirators have found what public sentiment means.

A knave or a fool might possibly get into the Presidential chair for a season, but no Emperor or King will ever be allowed to wield impious sceptre over the land of Washington.

He would come down quicker than he went up.

"Mud" they call it. The publication of the report of a Republican committee of a Republican House of Representatives, condemning JAMES A. GARFIELD of having taken bribes and sworn falsely, is, according to the Republican organs, "throwing mud." Could anything be more puerile? The conclusion of the Republican committee, with POLAND, of Vermont, at its head, was not "mud." It was the solemn truth, the conviction of which was forced upon them, and which they uttered with reluctance against a man of their own party. The American people cannot be put off by being told that this arraignment of JAMES A. GARFIELD, by a Republican committee of a Republican Congress, as a corruptionist and a perjurer, was "mud."

FOR CONGRESS.

Among the important offices to be voted for at the approaching Fall election is that of Congressman, the term of Hon. Miles Ross for this District expiring at that time. We have heard the names of several gentlemen mentioned in connection with the nomination who are qualified to fill so important an office. As Union County is certainly entitled to the nomination this Fall, of course, naturally there are more candidates, names mentioned within its limits than either Middlesex or Monmouth, which, with Union, comprise the District. It is only necessary to concentrate the entire strength of the delegates from Union upon some one man from our county to secure the nomination. To do this the candidate must be a man of fitness for the office; one who can win. Plainfield can present the name of such a man, one whom, if nominated and elected, as he surely would be, will ably represent the Third District at Washington. We allude to Hon. Wm. B. Maxson, who is a candidate for the honor. He is a lawyer of acknowledged ability, a fine debator, and deserves some such recognition for faithful services performed for the Democratic party. Unless Union County concentrates upon one candidate and demand their right to the nomination, she will again be left out in the cold. Nominate Wm. B. Maxson.

TO BE SCALPED.

A "Union Soldier," writes from Springfield, Mass., to the Sun as follows:

SIR:—Can you inform the country whether James A. Garfield has ever been scalped? If he has not, the Republican party has an immediate duty to perform before taking any steps to elevate him to the Presidency. His hair must be lifted at once. His party, which "metes out justice to all," has pronounced that doom upon all such as he. Among the Republican campaign devices of 1876, nothing did better service nor was more constantly put to use than the apocryphal story about Hayes' reply to the committee of his Congressional district when apprised of his nomination for Congress in 1864 and asked to come home and take the stump:

> Yours received. Thanks. I have other business just now. Any man who would leave the army at this time to electioneer for Congress or any other place ought to be scalped."
> Yours, "R. B. HAYES."

Garfield entered the army in August, 1861. In less than a year he "left the army to electioneer for Congress," he having been nominated in the Nineteenth Ohio District. The army record shows that he was absent "on account of sickness." But the newspaper files of the period show that he was on the stump in the Ashtabula district until after the election in October. Then he returned to the army only to remain till the assembling of Congress in 1863, when he resigned for good. Now, according to Hayes and the whole army of Republican orators and newspapers four years ago, Garfield "ought to be scalped." In the very darkest period of the whole war he "left the army to electioneer for Congress." With the characteristic hypocrisy of the Republican "reformer" also, he pretended that "sickness" was the cause of his absence.

UNION SOLDIER.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 10, 1880.

The people will scalp him in November.

Ex-Senator Bayard, father of Senator Bayard, whose death has long been looked for, died in Washington Sunday. He was born in 1799, received a portion of his education at Princeton, and was admitted to the bar, of which he has been a brilliant member, in 1822.

Said Don Cameron a few weeks ago when told that there would be a revolt among the Pennsylvania delegates—"the hounds will vote as I tell them to vote," but it seems that the hounds were not so well trained as Don thought them to be. Some of them would persist in running after the Blaine hare and when they found that a losing chase, they just as eagerly took up the yell for Garfield and left Cameron in his vain pursuit for Grant and glory.

The Secretary of State at Washing*ton* has been notified that the schooner Ethel, just arrived at Philadelphia, was fired into and boarded by a Spanish man-of-war, off the Cuban coast. The Ethel flew the American flag at the time, and the shot passed through her rigging. The Spanish officer who boarded her could not speak English and merely looked around and left. The owners of the Ethel have called upon the Government to demand redress.

Extract from a letter written to his prinicipals by one Chittenden, agent for the firm of DE GOLYER & MCCLELLAN, contractors, for wooden pavements under the infamous SHEPHERD Ring at Washington, in 1872:

"To day's and to night's work has secured the assistance of Gen. Garfield. You cannot overrate the importance of this accession. He is Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations and holds the purse strings of the National Treasury. Through him must come every dollar of appropriations. I need not say that I now feel certain of success."

The man who held "the purse strings of the National Treasury" did not disappoint the expectations based on Chittenden's belief in his venality. According to his own testimony before the Investigating Committee he received $5,000 for his influence and service in putting this infamous job through. And this is the man whom the Chicago Convention has nominated for President of the United States!

At twenty minutes past one o'clock on Sunday afternoon, in latitude 40 deg. 39 min. north, longitude 67 deg. 42 min. west, the National line steamship Queen, from London to New York, was in collision with the Anchor line steamship Anchoria, from New York to Glasgow. A dense fog prevailed at the time, so that when the two ships were seen from each other's decks they were not more than two ship's lengths apart. The bow of the Queen struck on the port bow of the Anchoria about twenty feet abaft of the latter's foremast, cutting its way through the iron hull ten feet inboard from the rail and from the spar deck clear to the bottom. Instantly the water rushed in and filled hold No. 2 of the Anchoria, and breaking down the iron bulkhead that separated it from No. 3, filled it also. The vessel settled rapidly, but, buoyed by the other compartments, did not sink. The bow of the Queen was crushed in so that the water flooded her forward compartment, which extends from the stem post twenty-five feet aft. Her head was weighed down so that she was steered with difficulty, but, like the compartments of the Anchoria, the bulkhead was water tight and she floated. The passengers of the Anchoria were transferred to the Queen and the two vessels made their way back to New York, where they arrived safely Tuesday afternoon. No one was lost and no one was fatally injured.

A despatch from West Point states that the Academic Board has found Cadet Whittaker deficient in philosophy.

TERRIBLE DISASTER.

Some time between half-past eleven and a quarter to twelve o'clock on Friday night just the steamer Stonington, of the Stonington line, while on her way to New York ran into the steamer Narragansett, of the same line. A dense fog prevailed. Both steamers were loaded with passengers. The Narragansett was struck amidships on the starboard side and raked clear to the wheelhouse. A flood of water poured in and swamped the steamer. In less than five minutes she sank to the main deck and grounded. Shortly after fire broke out, from the explosion of the gas tank, it is believed, and in a few moments wrapped the whole boat in flames. Terrible and heartrending scenes occurred. Soon all who could escape were struggling in the water. The Stonington sent out boats and rescued a number. The steamer City of New York also assisted materially in saving life. Of 350 on board, it is believed that fifty have perished. So far thirteen bodies have been recovered. The Stonington, although, badly crushed at the stem, remained afloat. The fact that no list of passengers on the Narragansett is to be obtained makes it impossible to give a full list of the lost and saved. The accident is believed to have been the result of carelessness.

Congress adjourned on Wednesday last.

COMMENTS.

J. G. B.—"Who sawed my boat?"

Prince Fred.—Father and I are out.

James G. Blaine should move to Ohio.

DeGolyer Garfield—why that's a familiar name.

Not a Clear Field—Garfield. C. ARTHUR.

Mr. Ladd of Maine says Garfield cannot carry Maine.

Mr. Cox of New York says Garfield cannot carry New York.

What shall we do with Master Fred? Put him in his little bed.

After Cincinnati, what?—Ex. Garfield against the Field, perhaps.

Mr. Clymer of Pennsylvania says "Jewett is the man to beat Garfield."

And now Col. Fred. can go away into the wilderness and be a howling dervish.

Fred. Grant has clapped his smelling salts to his nose and gone into retirement.

Democrats think that there is no necessity for Mr. Arthur to learn the art of fishing.

"If father is elected he will give the people a taste of Imperialism."—COL. FRED. GRANT.

Senator Vest thinks that the nomination at Chicago is a lucky one for the Democrats.

Wanted by the Republican party—An expert whitewasher. Steady work during the campaign.

"The nomination is very satisfactory to the Democrats and secures a united South."—Richmond State.

Speaker Randall says: "I am not expressing opinions of the Republican party or its nominations."

"We do not know whether we ought to congratulate the Republican party or condole with it."—N. Y. Herald (Ind.)

It's better to be born in Ohio than rich they say, but the Ohio idea, Mr. Garfield will find will be too much of a handicap for him to win with.

The fashionable bet is a fall hat. The reason it is fashionable is because the betters are not obliged to put up the stakes in advance.

It takes 856 blows of the hammer to make a horseshoe, and it takes over 856 blows with a stick to make a hen "shoo" after the garden is made.

Senator McPherson: "Garfield will make an enthusiastic campaign, but we can beat him with an eastern man. He can't carry New Jersey."

Potter Palmer, of the Palmer House, Chicago, says that for every day the convention sat it cost him $5,000 for cleaning and repairs in his great caravansary.

Mr. Conkling's idea, probably, in the nomination of Arthur, was to "load the ticket," as if Credit Mobilier at the other end was not sufficient to sink it.

Judge Taft is reported by the Cincinnati Gazette as saying that it was the most corrupt Convention ever held in this country, and that oceans of money were spent.

The Philadelphia Record is of the opinion that if the crow is cut away from the beginning of the Chicago platform and the croak from the end of it there's nothing left.

The man who subjected Rutherford B. Hayes to the indignity of one vote ought to be taken out of that convention and put into a Federal office without a moment's delay.

Let it be borne in mind that James A. Garfield, of Credit Mobilier fame and De Golyer pavement fragrance, was one of the infamous eight of the Electoral Commission which stole the Presidency and seated a Fraud.

Senator Wade Hampton of South Carolina thinks it is too soon to express an opinion, but thinks Garfield can be beaten if the Democrats nominate the right man. The Senator favors Senator Bayard's nomination.

Senator Kernan said of the nomination: "Any good Democrat can carry New York against Garfield. To nominate him the machine element had to be thrown overboard. Democratic success next fall in that State is unquestionable."

The Egyptian obelisk, or Cleopatra's Needle is expected to arrive in New York shortly, and the question naturally arises as to what shall be done with it. An exchange suggests that it be used to sew up Whitaker's ears and Fred Grant's mouth.

The Bruce boom got into the Chicago Convention to the extent of the colored Senator being allowed by Mr. Hoar to preside for a few minutes. This is a poor sop to the black man. Even a rebel brigadier Congress did better by Bruce than that. It made him chairman of an important committee.

Isn't it a piece of amazing effrontery for the Chicago Convention to talk about Democrats putting rebel captains in office in place of one-armed and one legged Union soldiers? What about Longstreet, who has just been made a foreign minister, and Key, who has just been made a United States Judge, and has held the Postmaster-Generalship for three years?

WESTFIELD WHIPS.

The Mite Society's Festival on last Thursday evening met with good success; the evening remained clear and a large number were present.

Last Sunday the congregation of the Presbyterian church raised by subscription, the whole amount of the church debt, $2,200. It was somewhat of a surprise to a great many of the bolters, as they had claimed that the largest pew renters had seceded.

All the boys want to take that Scotch Plains bet, and are half wild over the old cannon. And that old cannon will be fired at midnight, on the nation's birthday, and also at sunrise, all the sayings of the Plainites notwithstanding.

The new Congregational church elected their board of Trustees on Monday night. The following were elected to serve one year: Messrs. Geo. A. Gray and J. R. Carberry; two years, L. V. Clark and J. L. Miller; three years, E. Embree and J. R. Worth.

Dr. Gale's new building goes way above his neighbors.

FIRE MATTERS.

About 1:30 p. m. Saturday a false alarm called out the department to the scene of a supposed fire on the corner of Fourth street and Park avenue. Gazelle was ahead but Providence got the first water on, most effectively. A few minutes after the firemen and runners had left their houses under the rays of the sun, they returned wet to the skin, devoutly wishing there had been a fire if only to dry their persons.

The Firemen's Relief Association held their annual meeting at Gazelle Engine house on last Monday evening. The association was reported as being in a most flourishing condition with a balance in the treasury of [illegible]. It was [illegible] been given to one injured fireman since the last quarterly meeting. It was suggested that the companies should be prompt in the payment of their dues to the association. The following officers for the ensuing term were elected:

President—J. A. Hubbard.

Vice President—D. S. Pope.

Secretary—W. L. Cook.

Treasurer—H. J. Shaw.

Finance Committee—J. A. Hubbard, Andrew Jennings, Hugo Weigman.

Relief Committee—D. W. Rogers, D. S. Pope, Wm. H. Voorhees.

Gazelle steamer, No 1 was out for a wash on Wednesday night, locating at the end of Washington avenue bridge. The engine never worked better under the management of Engineer Wm. Grant, who thoroughly understands his business as a practical engineer.

It is rumored among the fire laddies that the formation of a new truck company is in contemplation.

DUNELLEN ITEMS.

The hall of the public school building was well filled on Friday afternoon last by parents and friends, on the occasion of the closing exercises of the school, which were of an interesting character.

At 5 o'clock on the same afternoon, the closing exercises of Mrs. Collin's private school took place.

The closing exercises of Miss Allen's private school were held on Thursday morning.

The M. E. church festival on Thursday evening, placed about sixty dollars in the church treasury.

The festival and concert of the Presbyterian church, was held on Wednesday evening last.

The pulpit of the Presbyterian church was filled on Sabbath last by Rev. Mr. Newhall, of Plainfield; that of the M. E. church by Rev. Mr. Cammann, of Bound Brook.

The congregational meeting of the Presbyterian church, held on Monday evening, unanimously resolved to unite with the pastor, Rev. T. S. Brown, in his request to resign his pastoral charge, and appointed Commissioners to a special meeting to be held at Elizabeth, Monday June 21st.

Impure Breath.

Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow the decay of the teeth, an impure breath is one of the most mortifying and unpleasant to its possessor, and it is the most inexcusable and offensive in society; and yet the cause of it may easily be removed by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT. It purifies and sweetens the breath, cools and refreshes the mouth, and gives a pearl-like appearance to the teeth. Gentlemen who indulge in smoking should cleanse their teeth with SOZODONT, as it removes all unpleasant odors of the weed. Ask your druggist for it.

HIGGINS' GERMAN LAUNDRY SOAP is perfectly pure, being made of carefully selected stock, and is therefore the cheapest. Ask your grocer for it, and see that you get only the genuine article. A trial will convince you of its merits.

NATHAN HARPER, Mayor.

Dated, Plainfield, June 18th, 1880.

The Fire Department wants more hose.

COMMENCEMENT, Thursday evening, June 24th.

FOURTH of July is coming. Who has thought of it?

WILL the Fire Board organize to-night? Answer next week.

HOTEL Netherwood is rapidly filling up with summer guests.

THE Firemen talk of having an old-time parade next Fall. So mote it be.

THE new Time Table of the Central Railroad will not be issued until the 21st of this month.

EIGHT new families arrived at the Hotel Netherwood last Saturday, and more are on the way.

THE Census enumerators meet with many funny experiences during the performance of their duties.

THE street sprinklers are content and happy since the rain began to fall. Their pay goes on all the same.

THE neat and tasteful bills of fare at the Hotel Netherwood are printed at THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office.

THE Rev. A. H. Lewis will occupy the pulpit of the Trinity Reformed church next Sabbath morning and evening.

NEW styles of type, border, &c., are constantly being received at THE CONSTITUTIONALIST Steam Printing House.

THE colored voters are requested to "hook on" this Fall. One of their number has been made a Vice President.

MRS. John C. Bliss entertained the teachers of the Crescent Avenue Sunday School, at her residence, last Wednesday evening.

REV. T. H. Stockton preached a most interesting and instructive sermon to young men, at the Methodist church last Sunday evening.

VENNOR, the weather prophet, says that July will be a month of severe thunder and hail storms. Where are the lightning rod men?

THE scholars of Miss Burrough's select school in North Plainfield gave a reception last week which was most interesting and enjoyable.

ACCORDING to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction's report there have been 383 sets of metric apparatus issued to the Public Schools of this State.

EVERY member of Plainfield Lodge No. 44 I. O. of O. F. is particularly requested to be at its Lodge room on Monday evening next, 21st inst. Business of importance.

IT is to be hoped that the loss by the bride of her sight, is not an affliction that will be experienced by a lately married couple of this city so early in their wedded career.

PLAINFIELD Lodge No. 44 I. O. of O. F. of this city will visit Somerville on Wednesday evening next to take part in the institution of a new Lodge of Odd Fellows in that place.

THE open-air prayer meetings under the auspices of the Sons of Temperance, which were begun last Sunday afternoon in the grove back of Laing's Hotel, will be continued until further notice.

THE fame of tobacco dust and stems for exterminating insects on trees, shrubbery, etc., is daily increasing. You can obtain the article at Young & Huffman's, cor. Park avenue and Second street, tobacconists.

MARTIN BROS., on the corner of Park avenue and Second street, are selling the Gem and New Process flours in quantities and at prices to suit the purchaser. They also keep on hand a large stock of all kinds of family groceries of the finest quality.

THE finishing touches of the painters is being put upon the exterior of Vanderbeek's Chatauqua building, by Messrs. Woolston & Buckle, the contractors. A gilt band on the top and bottom of the iron columns only remain to be put on to complete their work.

ANOTHER of Plainfield's sons, having graduated with honors, has hung his shingle on the "outer walls" of the building wherein he invites a call from all who desire legal advice. We refer to Mr. Wm. H. Stillman, whose card appears in another part of this issue.

THE expectations of many a young lady will be nipped in the bud, and the pocket of many a young man rejoice at the news which rumor carries, to the effect that neither the First Baptist or Methodist Sunday Schools will give a "summer excursion" this season.

CLEAN up your yards and cellars and thus prevent malarial troubles. A coat of whitewash for the cellar, and a solution of copperas for the cess-pools make admirable disinfectants and cost much less than a doctor's bill or a prescription. An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

FARLEY, the hackman, was so unfortunate as to have another runaway on Tuesday morning, the horse starting from the depot and running through Peace street toward Front street. Colliding with a tree near Second street, the wagon was demolished and the horse was shortly afterward captured.

THE backing of a wagon into the horse and phaeton of Mr. King of the Hotel Netherwood, caused the animal to throw back his head, break his bridle and run away on Front street, one morning last week. The horse and vehicle were stopped before they had gone far, but slight damages will probably lay them both up for a short time.

A LAW passed by the last legislature, compels every person practicing as a physician, to have a diploma and register their names with the County Clerk. Mrs. Dr. Grey, who has been stopping at Laing's Hotel for some weeks, announces that she has conformed to the law in that particular, and shall probably remain another month in Plainfield.

RECENT additions have made the button factory at Stirling one thousand feet long and three stories high. Five hundred persons are employed, and the demand so great that the factory is run day and night. The goods are shipped mostly to England and France. The buttons are made from artificial ivory composition, and are first-class. They also manufacture button hooks, knife handles and many other fancy articles.

THE census enumerators are going their rounds among the people. It is to be hoped that everybody will aid them in their unpleasant task. Some of the questions are difficult to be answered and seem too personal, but the enumerators are bound not to disclose any information, so that it will not be public property. Besides there is a section, making persons liable to arrest who refuse to answer questions in a proper manner.

DURING the high wind accompanying the thunder shower of Saturday, one of the walls of the new brick store building in course of erection by the Belvidere Land Improvement Company, opposite the depot, at Netherwood, was blown down. In its fall a workman was slightly injured. The contractor, Bernard Grey, speedily had the debris cleared away and the work of re-erecting the wall commenced. The wall being green was the cause of its collapse.

IN many parts of the State, in consequence of the recent drouth, the hay crop has proven an entire failure. Farmers have cut their fields of clover, trusting to rain to moisten the earth sufficiently to insure a passable second crop. In some localities the hay crop is a complete failure. Oats are very short. Rye and wheat show full heads of grain, but the straw will be very short. Corn looks tolerably well. The welcome rains will make a wonderful sight of difference in the growth of all manner of grain.

WE notice the familiar face of "Boss Jenkins" in town again after an absence of two months in Trenton, where he has been engaged in moving a two-story brick house 30x40 feet, weighing about 200 tons. The Trenton papers say it was "very nicely done," moving as smoothly as a "canal boat," and as "greased boards" as they call the 14-inch yellow pine timber. He has moved a house and family at [illegible] and another at Clinton, N. J., and is now trying to make Elizabeth happy by moving him and his storehouse to the corner of Fourth and Peace, where there is to be another coal yard.

WE second the motion of North Plainfield that they be given more school room.

TWENTY shares of 1st National Bank stock is offered for sale in our columns this week.

THE Commencement exercises of the Plainfield High School occur Thursday evening, June 24th, in the First Baptist Church.

THE teachers of the Crescent avenue Sunday School have decided to give a summer excursion. The selection of the destination is left to the judgement of the committee, who will probably decide in favor of Ocean Grove.

WALTER SCOTT a young lad, aged 15 years, in the employ of Wm. B. Maxson Esq., while engaged in picking cherries from a tree on the latter named gentleman's premises, on Wednesday, fell from the tree, and striking on the palings of a fence beneath him, was seriously injured about the head.

A HANDSOME counter is another attraction in the business room of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST establishment.—Messrs. Shepherd, Johnson & Godown are the builders of it, while the beautiful graining on it is due to the artistic skill of Messrs. Woolston & Buckle, painters of North avenue.

LARGE crowds nightly assemble about Laing's Hotel, to listen to the witty sayings and songs of Messrs Williams and Radcliffe, who are dispensing of Electric Liver Pads, a large number of which they have sold since their advent here. Parties who have worn the pad testify as to its beneficial properties.

THOSE of our readers in search of Clothing would do well to call on Lilienstern. He is selling Clothing way down in order to make room for the fall trade. In fact he is the cheapest Clothier in Union County. There is no need for any to go out of town when they can buy at such prices as Lilienstern is advertising to sell for, and the goods are made up in a No. 1 style.

Our School Census.

Assessor J. A. Hubbard has concluded the school census. The number of school children in our city between the ages of 5 and 18 years is 2,019, an increase only of 11 over last year's report.

Our Population.

The Census Enumerators are busily engaged in taking the census of our city, and will be through with their labors in a few days. From conjecture the population in the 1st District will be about 3,000; in the 2d District about 2,800; in the 3d District, about 2,500.

New Grocery Store.

The Messrs. Huff Bros., Alexander and Frank, have opened a Grocery and Provision store in the new brick building lately erected on Park avenue, near the railroad. Their stock consists of fresh stock, marked down low in price. They ask a call and trial of their goods from the public.

Sylvan Lake.

This is the title given the pond of stagnant water situated nearly in the heart of our beautiful city, and which from the experience and testimony of citizens residing in its vicinity, is a breeder of malaria. The sooner the dam below this "Lake" is torn down and the water allowed to run unobstructed through a proper channel the better will it be for the health of the city.

Important to Commissioners of Deeds.

The Legislature of this State, at its last session, passed "A further supplement to an act entitled 'An act relative to oaths and affidavits,'" approved March 27, 1874, amending the first section of the original act, but it did not repeal, in any way, the act of 1875, which authorizes Commissioners of Deeds to take oaths and affidavits. Any Commissioner of Deeds, commissioned in accordance with the laws of this State, may, as heretofore, administer oaths, affirmations and affidavits.

A Mammoth Enterprise.

Through the kindness and courtesy of Mr. Judson A. Brown of this city, cashier of the New York Herald, one of the editors of this paper was enabled recently to make an interesting tour of inspection through the establishment of the most extensively circulated journal in the United States. A deputy was selected by Mr. Brown to conduct us through the many departments and explain the workings of the mammoth enterprise, and the immense engine and presses were started for our benefit. It is an experience that none can forget; and the wonder inspired upon watching the systematic efforts that result in such great achievement, can be felt only upon personal inspection.

An Upset.

Monday evening last about six o'clock, as Mr. Bennet Brittin, proprietor of "Brittin's Hotel," Scotch Plains, was driving through Front street, at a smart gait, his horse suddenly shied at the sight of an awning advertisement near Washington street, and turning short, upset the wagon. Mr. B. was thrown violently to the ground and dragged a short distance before he relinquished his hold upon the reins. He was assisted into the residence of Dr. Titsworth, near by, where his injuries, which consisted of bruises and scratches, were attended to. The wagon righted itself after Mr. B. was thrown out and the horse ran as far as Third street, where he was captured. Neither horse nor wagon were injured. Mr. Brittin has been confined to his bed since from his injuries.

Wanted—A Public Hall.

The usual dissatisfaction will probably exist this year among parents of school children and citizens generally as that of previous years, regarding their failure to secure tickets of admission to the High School Commencement. This is in consequence of there being no public Hall or Church in the city large enough to accommodate all desiring to attend these exercises, the Board of School Trustees being compelled in consequence to limit the distribution of tickets to two in each family. Had we a large and commodious Public Hall or Opera House in Plainfield, capable of holding 2,500 or more people, it could be filled on like occasions. Plainfield would surely support a first-class Hall of this kind, and we wonder that capitalists do not invest in the enterprise.

College of New Jersey.

The following action was taken, on Saturday, at a meeting of a committee of the Trustees of Princeton College:

WHEREAS, Notwithstanding active measure being taken under the direction of competent experts, it is found impracticable in the limited time at our command fully to remedy the defects in the College drainage and thoroughly to cleanse and disinfect the tanks and drain pipes in the building; therefore,

Resolved That the Commencement exercises be confined strictly to delivering orations and conferring of degrees on Commencement Day, June 23d, and that all other exercises and festivities be dispensed with.

Resolved, That all the other usual Commencement exercises be postponed until the opening of the next term in September.

Any applicants for admission who may present themselves will be examined on Thursday, June 24th. There will be another examination September 7th.

Muzzle Your Dog.

Mayor Harper has issued his annual proclamation regarding the muzzling of dogs. The announcement will be found in another column. Now who will be dog pounder?

An Unfortunate Fall.

A most distressing accident happened last Thursday afternoon to Mr. Charles W. Fisher, stepson of Justice Wadsworth of this city. While engaged picking cherries from a tree at his residence, the unfortunate young man was precipitated some fifteen feet to the ground by the breaking of a limb, on which he was standing. Striking heavily upon his left shoulder the socket and other bones were broken in a most serious manner. It being impossible on account of the location of the fracture to bind the bones in place by splints, the victim will be compelled to hold his arm in a certain position for probably four months; and when it is considered that the patient has just recovered from a nineteen-month's sickness, his ill-fortune is the more to be regretted.

The Welcome Rain.

At last, after weeks of incessant drouth, copious showers of rain have visited this section since last Saturday, which have proven of incalculable benefit to the growing crops and parched earth. On that day, a shower of rain, accompanied by high winds, passed over Plainfield. While the streets of our city were flooded with water, it was a noticeable fact that the shower did not extend westward much farther than Plainfield avenue. On Sunday, there was another welcome shower, accompanied also with high winds, which did considerable damage by blowing down trees, etc., in this city. From accounts, heavy rains and high winds prevailed on that day throughout the greater portion of the State, as well as in many parts of the United States, and much damage was done in certain localities by the wind. Trees were blown down, houses unroofed, buildings in course of erection demolished and lives lost. On Tuesday a steady rain storm set in, which continuing until Wednesday morning has proven a blessing to the farmer, and will assist materially in benefiting the crops.

New Jersey's Public Schools.

The report of the State Board of Education for the past year is before us, and from it we glean the following statistics:

There are 1,538 school houses in the State, an increase of seven over the previous year. There are 3,332 teachers employed, a decrease of 97. The average salary of male teachers was $56.94, a decrease of $3.56 and of female teachers $33.73, a decrease of $2.41. The whole receipts from all sources, including the amount of $362,599.15 raised for building and repairing, were $1,863,548.32. The report says that "it is a source of regret that there is again a diminution in the product of the two-mill tax, which, during the past year, yielded only $1,063,703.70, showing a decrease of $68,797.68."

The total valuation of school property in the State is $6,401,805, and the total census of children between five and eighteen years of age is 327,216. The average cost, per pupil, calculated on the school census, was $4.71 against $5.14 in 1878, a decrease of 43 cents. The average cost per pupil calculated on the average attendance was $12.87, against $13.19 in 1878, a decrease of 32 cents.

Washington Monument Association.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION.

At a meeting of the WASHINGTON MONUMENT ASSOCIATION held Thursday evening, 10th inst., the President in the chair, on motion of Mr. Horton, it was Attention Ladies!

The success of the ladies belonging to the Nottingham Club of Elizabeth, who took part in the archery tournament at Central Park last Saturday afternoon, is referred to with great pride by the press of our sister city. Why are we not in a position to boast of a like skill possessed by the gentle sex of Plainfield? Is it because the weakly and affectedly sentimental game of croquet, in its unaimable, unskillful and unintellectual prettiness, has more attraction for them than a strength giving and inspiring sport? Let us hope not, but rather that when it is brought to the attention of our ladies herewith, an archery boom will be started among them. The Plainfield Athletic Club are in possession of most convenient grounds for the purpose of practice meetings and matches, and without doubt the use of the grounds could be secured on certain days for such purpose; consequently it is to be hoped that in the not far distant future, the ladies' archery club of Plainfield will be a well established organization with achieved records to be proud of.

The Seminary Commencement.

The Commencement exercises at Miss Kenyon's Seminary on Seventh street last Monday morning, consisting as they did principally of the reading of original essays by the scholars, were consequently most praiseworthy in character and decidedly interesting. The room in which the entertainment was given to a large assemblage of friends and parents, was most tastefully decorated with flags and evergreens; the spicy aroma of the latter mingling pleasantly with the perfumes of Lubin and Atkinson. The pupils themselves, in their dresses of pure white, were models of quiet simplicity, and commanded admiration not only for the combined picture of prettiness they individually contributed to, but for the judgment they displayed in resisting the temptation to over-dress that leads graduates and prospective graduates to adopt costumes inappropriate to such occasions. From among the many who took part in the programme of the morning that was of such general excellence, it would be ungenerous if not unjust to mention any in particular. The valedictorian, Miss Emily Sandford, displayed remarkable merit as a writer and reader. Her words of farewell to school and teachers, and of appeal to classmates to follow paths of glory, were well chosen and reflected great credit not only on herself but on the tutors and tuition that had been instrumental in forming the mind and intellect. The essay of Miss Louise Fox, and the salutatory of Miss Florence White, were also most admirable productions; but if mention is made of all who were deserving of praise, it can only be done by publishing the full programme as below. Miss Knowland, who was also to read an essay, was prevented by circumstances from preparing herself, and her part was in consequence omitted. The instrumental music and recitations interspersed through the exercises were well rendered; the part of Miss Florence Potter being particularly admirable, calling forth as it did her talents both as an elocutionist and a singer. The address of the Rev. E. M. Rodman, after his presentation of diplomas to the graduates—Miss Louise Fox, Miss Florence White, Miss Emily Sandford and Miss Laura Hayes—was most appropriate and full of good advice. His suggestions to the "reporters present" we, however, decline to follow, out of regard for the desires of the ladies interested. The following is the complete programme:

SONG, without words, in E major. Mendelssohn
Miss L. Van Kaster.
SALUTATORY: [illegible] Miss White
ESSAY: "Beethoven," Miss Reed
ESSAY: "Our Woods," Miss Hayes
"Cujus Animam, air from 'Stabat Mater.'" Rossini
Miss L. [illegible].
ESSAY: "El Dorado," Miss Tomlinson
RECITATION: "The Last Hymn," Miss Porter
GAVOTTE, in D major, S. Bach
Miss Carrie Jackson.
ESSAY: "The Constellations," Miss Potter
RECITATION: "A Telephone Conversation." Miss E. McKeane.
IDYLLE SUISSE. G. Lange
Miss Laura Sandford.
ESSAY: "Womanhood in Tennyson," Miss Fox
VALEDICTORY: [illegible] Miss E. Sandford
NOCTURNE: [illegible] Leybach
Miss McGee.
Presentation of Diplomas and Address by Rev. E. M. Rodman.
"Ojos Criollos," Caprice for four hands, L. M. Gottschalk
Misses Potter and Marsh.
BENEDICTION.—Rev. A. H. Lewis.

The evening following was spent in the usual musical and social manner that the Seminary is so justly renowned for. Instrumental and vocal music, both separate and combined, and performed in remarkable meritorious manner and style, comprised the early portion of the entertainment; while promenading and dancing to the inspiring strains of orchestral execution, continued during the finishing hours of the night.

After a most successful term, Mrs. Austin's school on Craig place closed this (Friday) morning with the customary class exercises.

"20" is back from the repair shop in all the glory of a summer suit of new paint. Engineer John Monahan is consequently very proud of the attractive appearance "his pet" presents.

The Gold and Silver Mines.

Each succeeding day brings some new and fresh evidence to the parties interested that their discovery of gold and silver ore near Plainfield in paying quantities, is not a myth. An assayer is kept busy daily making assays of ore procured from new localities on the tract leased by them.

Out with a Razor.

Charles Layton, a colored individual of Scotch Plains, concluded on Monday evening last to give his left-handed partner of connubial joys, a "dressing out." Lizzie however, proved to be the best man of the two, for she whipped out her little razor and slashed Charles across his back, making a deep gash from shoulder to hip. Dr. Wescott sewed up the wound and the injured man is getting along very nicely. No arrests.

A Rare Entertainment.

Cook and Nelson will exhibit their trained horses under a canvass in Plainfield to-day, (Friday.) Full particulars may be obtained from posters and circulars. The exhibition is well worth attending. Prof. Cook has no equal in the world in training animals. Many of our citizens may remember seeing him and his famous trick horses perform some months since at the Aquarium, N. Y. city. The tent will be pitched on Park avenue, just beyond the Park House.

4th of July Celebration.

A Grand Celebration in honor of the coming anniversary of our National Independence, will be held at Washington Rock, near this city, on Monday July 5th. The exercises will consist of an Oration by Mayor Nathan Harper, Reading of the Declaration of Independence by Prof. James Lyon, Music by the Plainfield Cornet Band, etc. In the afternoon there will be a Grand Promenade Concert given by the Band on the Pavillion and Observatory. Prof. Franze will furnish music for dancing. In the evening the large hotel and grove will be brilliantly illuminated. The approaches to this popular summer resort have been put in excellent shape by the proprietor, S. O. Staats, and no doubt but that a large gathering will be attracted to the "Rock" on the 5th.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person who takes a newspaper regularly from the post-office—whether directed to his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the payment.

2. If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers, they are held responsible. Notice should always be given of the removal.

A Plainfielder's Experience.

The experience of Mr. Nathan W. Crandall of this city, who was a passenger on the ill-fated Narragansett last Friday night, adds a most interesting chapter to the history of the calamity. The gentleman is in the employ of the Potter Press Works Company, and was on his way to visit his mother who resides at Potter Hill, R. I. when the accident occurred. He was brought back to New York upon his rescue; and after a Sunday spent in Plainfield, continued, on Monday, the trip that had been deferred from such unfortunate causes. Mr. Crandall was undressed and in his berth when awakened by the shock of the collision, and before he could put his clothes on the water was up to his waist. Reaching the deck with apparel in hand he finished dressing, and jumping overboard swam at least two miles before reaching the steamer that brought him to New York. His account as related to friends, of the saving of a lady and child, is most thrilling and interesting.

Trotting.

There is every prospect of there being a very large attendance on the grounds of the "Union & Middlesex Counties' Mutual Agricultural Association," this city, on Monday, July 5th, to witness the excellent trotting that will take place there that day. The races are divided into three classes, "free to all," 2:40 and 3:00 class. The Committee met on Tuesday evening last to receive entries, but in consequence of none being sent in for the 3:00 class, and the "free for all" not being filled, the entries were left open until next Monday evening. The following are the entries received thus far:

FREE FOR ALL.
Wm. Moore,	Plainfield, b. g.	Carbolic
J. W. Johnson,	Plainfield, b. m.	Sciola
2:40 CLASS.
W. S. Wells,	New York, gr. g.	Wisdom
H. C. Eke,	Newark, blk. m.	Laura B
Allie Dunham,	Newark, b. m.	Addie E. C
J. W. Johnson,	Plainfield, gr. m.	Nettie
Henry Clerr,	Parkville, L. I. b. g.	Hugh McLaughlin
D. S. Quinton,	Trenton, br. m.	Lillie Mac
Mount Morris,	Plainfield, blk. m.	Maggie

As the Trotting Association of Plainfield are members of the National Trotting Association, the public may depend upon all the trots on the 5th being "on the square." There will be no "Prospect Park" decisions given. The trotting on the above day promises to be the best ever witnessed on the track. Some fast horses are already entered.

A Republican Campaign Club.

Twenty four old and three young republicans met at Association Hall last Monday evening for the purpose of forming a "young men's" campaign club. The call was made for eight o'clock, but it was long after that hour before the expectation of a respectable number was given up in despair and those present were called to order by Mr. Joseph B. Coward. That gentleman stated that he could "find no life among the republicans" and thought he'd try what a campaign club would do. After being made temporary chairman, he announced as the purpose of the organization—"to elect, if possible, Garfield and Arthur." The usual number of permanent officers were then chosen, after which, by the manipulation of Messrs Vincent Nash and Albro Lyon, the office of third vice president was created for the occupancy of Mr. Theodore Bounds (colored) who thereupon stated that he was a "black republican all the way through, inside and out"—a sentiment we need hardly say, that was received with "unbounded applause. Mr. E. L. Morris on taking the chair as permanent president, expressed the hope that "Garfield and Plainfield will be identified in the coming election;" (applause). This was without doubt a grand puff for the republican kite, but as the tail was forgotten some of those present asked, "how about Arthur?" The speaker hastened to announce that he meant him too; (long and continued applause). Three minutes forty-two and six-fifths seconds was then expended in the enrollment of members, and the meeting adjourned after appointing a committee on constitution and bylaws, consisting of Messrs. Dunham, Nash and Marsh.

School Board.

At a meeting of the Board of Education held last Monday evening, the Committee on Teachers reported as follows: That, in the High School, Miss Buckley, Miss Niles, Miss Stevens and Miss Morton should be reappointed; that in the Grammar School, Miss Kenyon should be reappointed to the first class; Miss Marianna Shreve be promoted to the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Laing and Miss Gavett and Miss Edwards be reappointed; that in the Fourth street Primary School, Miss Josephine Shreve, Miss Florence A. Willets, Miss E. M. Force, Miss Julia J. Ketcham and Miss Ellen A. Holmes be reappointed; that in the Fifth street Primary, Miss M. M. Roraup, Miss Adeline B. Miller, Miss Anna W. Boorraem and Miss S. L. Wood be retained. The vacancies caused by the promotion of Miss Shreve and the resignations of Misses Gordon and Frazee remaining open.

The report was received and will probably be acted upon at the next meeting. The arrangements in regard to tickets will be, excepting some slight changes, the same as last year; a special request from former graduates asking for more tickets being laid on the table.

A number of bills were ordered paid and the use of Assembly Hall on the night of June 25th was granted for the purpose of giving a reception to the graduates by the classes of '78 and '79.

The principalship was not acted upon; and the Board adjourned until next Monday evening.

It was resolved that but two tickets for the Commencement should be given to each family in the city. The tickets will not be distributed by Secretary Clark until after next Monday.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

News of the discovery of the dead bodies of two men in the upper room of a house in the vicinity of Bound Brook, caused intense excitement in this city on the morning of last Wednesday. A few minutes after the report of the occurence, a representative of this paper was on his way to the scene of the affair, and found upon arrival a large gathering of curious neighbors assembled on the premises awaiting the arrival of the physician of Middlesex Co., who had telegraphed from New Brunswick that he was en route for the spot. It was late in the afternoon, however, before that official arrived, and the intervening time that elapsed was not uselessly spent in listening to the many causes assigned by individual members of the crowd for the committance of the murder imagined, or the supposed theories presented as to the cause and effect. The appearance of County Phyician Williamson, accompanied by Dr. Chauncey Field of Bound Brook, Constable Pierce of Dunellen and Chief Dodd of Plainfield, seemed to shut the mouths of those who were so ready to volunteer combative evidence; and leaving an assemblage of about fifty wondering spectators on the outside of the house whose walls were speechless witnesses of the terrible tragedy, a chosen few accompanied the officials in their inspection of the interior.

The kitchen which was the first room to undergo an examination, furnished no clue that was considered valuable except a pictureless frame from which the portrait it had contained was removed and the glass it had surrounded was shivered to atoms. An open closet door, a coffee pot and cup, and a few empty beer bottles told only of a necessary meal that had recently been partaken of by a single individual. Three pairs of shoes were scattered around the floor, while in the parlor (the only other room in that story) were spread on sofa and chairs an assortment of under and outer wear that would form a respectable suit of apparel. In the back room above, however, the sight of the tragedy, a scene was presented that appalled even those who were called upon by their professions to look upon most distressing pictures. Stretched upon a bed near an open window was a young man who seemed merely asleep, with no covering but a woolen shirt and whose limbs were spread with graceful ease as though just lain down to rest. But a glance at the face showed that the breath of death had cast over the complexion an ashen hue, and its grip had contracted the muscles with stern and relentless force. On the floor by the side of the bed lay an older man entirely nude, whose burnt chest and arms were a terrible sight and emitted a most sickening odor. Around his lower limbs were scattered a quantity of half burnt feathers, while the remains of a partly consumed shirt still clung to the shoulders of the body. Near the latter's right hand, when the room was first entered, was found a large revolver, three barrels of which were emptied; one it is supposed into the heart of the victim on the bed and the others into the person of the murderer and suicidist on the floor. No cause for the double death further than what was gleaned, as follows, from adjacent neighbors, was discovered. In consequence we can only speak from the testimony of those who knew the parties.

A well to do German by the name of Hugo Fischer of about thirty five years of age, who was believed to be a bachelor with no relations, has for the past eight or nine years occupied a property of about eight acres on the main road from Dunellen to Bound Brook. The place is quite a valuable one, with a comfortable two story dwelling and substantial barn and out houses. Fischer was considered by his neighbors as a thrifty and industrious farmer, whose crops were generally profitable; to his possessions he also added in the way of live stock a fine horse, pigs and chickens. The attentions of the farmer, during his residence on the place, had frequently been paid to many of the young maidens in the surrounding towns and country; and it was generally believed that when the opportunity arrived Fischer would willingly enter the matrimonial state. Rumors of the fiery temper he possessed, however, seemed to defer all chances of his securing a wife in the neighborhood. Some time ago a finely built German over six feet in height, and possessing a well knit frame of about twenty-three years growth, took up his residence with Fischer and occupied his days in field work for farmers in the vicinity. This young man, Curtis Lunges by name, seems to have been generally liked by such acquaintances as he made. To some of them Lunges confided the history of his life. He said that his father had been, before his death, the minister of a large church in Germany and owner of quite a little money. His mother was still living with a daughter in the old country, where he himself had been an artilleryman and also a bookkeeper. After a while it was made known by this same young man that he had sent for his sister, who was coming to America and upon her arrival she intended to become the bride of his friend Fischer. The latter also freely spoke of his approaching marriage, and it was understood by the neighbors that the future Mrs. F. was an heiress and her intended husband, although he had only seen her picture, was very desirous that the nuptials should be consummated as soon as possible. But the waiting lover and his prospective brother-in-law were lately concerned in many angry quarrels. On one occasion, in particular, the threats and intentions expressed by Fischer were so loud and seemingly determined, that Lunges spent the night in a neighbor's barn; stating that he was afraid that his companion would take his life if he remained in the house with him. The morning after this occurrence, Fischer begged his friend's pardon most earnestly, and deeply regretted the "nasty temper" that he said would at times get the better of him. It began to leak out, about this time, that new developments, regarding the circumstances of Lunges sister had greatly disappointed her future husband. Fischer, it is said, by degrees learned that the mother was a drinking woman, and had by such habit used up all the possessions of the Lunges family. In consequence, he was to take a portionless bride instead of the heiress he expected. The state of things that seems to have been the most vexatious to Fischer, however, was the intention expressed by his friend to prevent the marriage taking place immediately. He desired that his sister should have some experience of her husband's ways before the ceremony was performed. This so exasperated Fischer that, as he remarked to a neighbor, "he was so mad when he heard it that he could kill him"—referring to Lunges. Preparations for the reception of the bride still went on. As late as Tuesday morning of this week, Fischer stopped Charles Greader of this city who was passing the house, and requested him to leave a box of bottled beer. Greader left what he had and promised to bring more the next morning. He was told by Fischer that a window would be left open through which he could put the box if no one was around when he arrived. The next morning, Wednesday, a telegram arrived for Fischer from the expected sister, announcing her arrival at Castle Garden. The boy that brought the message was unable to get into the house, and although told by a laborer in an adjacent field that the occupants had probably overslept themselves, it was found impossible to arouse any one. Mr. Greader arriving about nine o'clock, met with the same lack of success. Finding no way to get his box of beer inside of the building he was about to deposit it in an out-house at the back, when he noticed smoke issuing from a window in the rear of the dwelling. Succeeding in raising a lower sash he helped the hired boy of a neighbor into the house, who after going up stairs returned shaking with excitement and almost unable to describe what he had discovered. Mr. Greader thereupon entered and found the situation of affairs in the back bedroom up stairs as portrayed above; and he then notified the authorities of the matter.

The position of the bodies and the condition of surrounding features, all tend to bear out the following theory. Tuesday evening was probably spent by the two in talking over the coming change in their family arrangements, and the drinking of beer in honor of the new relationship that was to be entered into. Whether money matters were discussed or not is merely a surmise, but as Lunges had lately insisted upon the deeding of Fischer's property to his (Lunges) sister upon their marriage (which plan had never met with Fischer's approval) it is fair to suppose from what afterwards happened that such arrangement was spoken of. Lunges afterwards laid down and fell asleep as the easy position of the body showed, and his friend for some unknown reason shot him through the heart while standing at some distance off. The accuracy of aim shows the murder to have been most deliberate, and Lunges undoubtedly died instantly with no knowledge of his fate. After committing the deed Fischer procured a hammer and chisel and burst apart the lock of his victim's valise. For what reason, or in search of what is unknown, as the contents, a neat assortment of clean linen and clothes laid carefully within, were undisturbed. It is by some believed that a picture of the girl who had indirectly been the cause of the tragedy was in the valise, and it was the remains of it that were found smashed to pieces in the kitchen. How long a time elapsed between the murder and the suicide is unknown, but it was probably far into Wednesday morning before Fischer tore open a feather bed, such as the Germans sleep under in winter, and spreading it over his body, as he stretched himself on the floor, set it on fire and, immediately afterwards shot himself in the side.

Financial embarrassment had nothing to do with the tragedy. In the pocket of a pair of pants were found $8 and in a purse $11.80; while a garden flourishing with all kinds of vegetables, fruit and grain, and a stable containing a handsome horse, a valuable collection of farming tools and a fine supply of hay and feed, showed thrift and frugality. A receipted tax bill was found assessing the property at a value of 1,600.

The Cashier of the Third National Bank was sent to Newark to investigate the condition of the institution and discover the deficiency in its account, and for the reason its drafts were protested.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

I BLOT OUT A DAY.

I keep on a desk before me a calendar of the year, with the day of each week by numerals. When the day is passed I draw my pen across a figure or the figures representing a day. It is gone, and I blot it out. So far as the column of numerals is concerned, I can do so.

But I am startled by the words, "I blot out a day." A day is a wheel in the great machinery of life,—a link in the chain of my probation. It is as truly a part of vital and essential being as a year or a century. The day is given me. Will it vanish at my bidding? I did not originate it; I only received it. I have no more power to blot it out than to bring it in.

It was a gift. How should I treat the giver if I could and would blot it out? It came as a proof of the love of the Giver. To many that day came not. It was on its way, but the chain broke. But Divine kindness would not allow me to be a loser. Shall I not honor the Giver?

A day of sadness perhaps! Blot it out for that reason? If my sins made the sadness of the day, then let the day stand—a memento of and reminder of my folly. That day is worth saving that brings such a voice of reproof. Perhaps the day was sad under divine discipline. Surely, then, it ought to stand lest, blotting it out, offence be given to him who afflicts "for our profit that we might be partakers of his holiness."

A day of gladness, perhaps—the sky bright, the air balmy, joy in friends and all worldly comfort—above all, joy in the Lord and gladness in his salvation. Shall I mar such a beautiful picture? Shall I blot out such a day? As I erase the figure with a pen shall I drop it out of my mind as if there had never been such a day? Is this the kind return?

A day! That day just erased from my calendar, how much could have been accomplished in it! What a noble river of holy emotions might have rolled throug my soul in that one day?—what fervor of love, ardor in prayer, and workings of faith, bringing the light and joy of heaven unto the soul! There hangs my calendar, I cannot blot out much longer. The last day of the year is at hand. The symbols of what remains may be erased by my driving pen; but these links of life—these waymarks of the path to eternity, these gifts of God, these opportunities of usefulness,—my gratitude shall welcome them, my love and zeal carry out their great design. They shall aid in the grand result, that my name shall not be blotted out of the Book of Life.

"HAIL COLUMBIA!"

We all know how "the Star Spangled Banner" and the "Marseillaise," originated, but it is safe to say that few of us know anything about the composition of "Hail Columbia." When Washington passed over Trenton Bridge on his way from Philadelphia to New York to be inaugurated, a march by Prof. P. Fyle, a well-known musician of the time, was played. It was called the "President's March." In speaking of "Hail Columbia," Judge Francis Hopkinson says:

"This song was written in the Summer of 1798, when a war with France was thought to be inevitable, Congress being then in session in Philadelphia deliberating upon that important subject, and acts of hostility having actually occurred. About that time a young man by the name of Fox, attached to the Chestnut Street Theatre, was getting up some attraction for his benefit. I had known him when at school. On this acquaintance he called on me on Saturday afternoon, his benefit being announced for the following Monday. He said there were no boxes taken, and his prospect was that he should suffer a loss instead of receiving a benefit from his performance, but that if he could get a patriotic song adapted to the tune of the 'President's March,' (then the popular air) he has no doubt of a full house; what the poets of the theatrical corps had been trying to accomplish it, but were satisfied that no words could be composed to suit the music of the march. I told him I would try for him. He came the next afternoon, and the song, such as it was, was read for him. It was announced on Monday morning, and the theatre was crowded to excess, and so continued, night after night, for the rest of the season, the song being encored and repeated many times each night, the audience joining in the chorus. It was also sung at night in the streets by large assemblies of citizens, including members of Congress. The enthusiasm was general; and the song was heard, I may say, in every part of the United States."

It is interesting to know, too, that when Francis S. Key wrote the "Star Spangled Banner" he adapted it to the tune of a song under the curious title of "Anacreon in Heaven," the present air having been chosen later.

ONE WHO WON'T GO.

There are some men who do not lose their presence of mind when confronted with startling political news. One of this class, an easy-going, honest-minded elector, was mysteriously approached the other day by an "unknown," who carefully locked the office door and whispered:

"I have been deputized to wait on you and say that the boys are talking you up as a Congressional candidate."

"Yes."

"You are known to be honest and reliable, and if you are nominated you will carry the masses."

"Perhaps."

"All you've got to do is to keep still," continued the unknown. "Just let us work the boom for you. You are our man. You have our respect and confidence. Mum's the word—we'll fix things. You'll accept?"

"Well, I guess so."

"Good! You are in the hands of your friends. Don't say a word."

The unknown left the office on tiptoe, but in ten minutes he returned, and then carelessly observed:

"Oh! by the way, I'm $5 short on a little bill to-day. If you could spare it I'd be ever so much obliged, and I'd return it on Saturday."

"Say," replied the citizen in a whisper, as he beckoned the other to the door—"all you've got to do is to keep still! You are in the hands of your friends! Don't say a word! Let me fix this boom for you."

He shoved the unknown gently out, locked the door and went back to his desk with the firm conviction that some one else would be tendered the nomination.

"I am astonished, my dear young lady, at your sentiments—you make me start!" "Well, sir, I've been waiting for you to start for the last hour."

FICTION IN TWO ASPECTS.

A writer in Chambers's Journal says: Human nature presents many curious phenomenas, but none, perhaps, more curious than the interest and the sympathy which can be felt by men and women for the imaginary creations of the novelist. Herein lies the power of the novel. Were it not for this interest and sympathy, the novel could have no raison de etre. Thus the novel does more than supply a demand—it draws its readers away from the consciousness of self, and arouses those feelings of sympathy which always have a humanizing tendency. A good novel may exercise a beneficial influence, of which the reader is quite unconscious, but which will nevertheless bear fruit in its effect upon the character.

To look upon novels as mere inventions for giving idle people and frivolous young men and women an occupation, is to take not only a very low view, but a very unjust view of their utility. This view might be justified if they never rose beyond the standard aimed at by a certain class of French and English novelists; but writers with high aims have devoted their intellects to the production of novels which cannot fail to raise the moral tone of those who read them. An eminent Oxford lecturer recommends students for holy orders to read good novels as a means of enlarging their ideas, and educating themselves for the social work of the ministry. And quite lately, Canon Farrar, in a lecture delivered before the members of the Homiletical Society, gave his testimony to the value of a good novel when he said: "The occasional reading of a good novel may be the very fruitful occupation of the brief leisure of the clergyman's study; may enable him far more successfully to touch the hearts and consciences of his hearers; may furnish him with new thoughts and topics for many fresh and interesting sermons."

Collectively, novels are mischievous only to those who spend all their time in reading nothing else. Individually, they are harmful only when they have an immoral or irreligious tendency. And this leads us to the worst aspect of the subject. Unhappily, too many novels written now, not only by French but by English novelists, are nothing better than the embodiment of gross impurity, which makes an Englishman who has any feeling of decency blush for his countrymen, and especially for so-called lady novelists.

A DENIAL!
SIMPSON & CO.,
(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE of SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is INCORRECT; or in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient to allow of any being cut, independent of filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from
Pure Spring Water.
They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defence.
SIMPSON & CO.

The subscriber having purchased the milk route of Mr. L. White, is now supplying the same with milk from the

A CARD.
Being compelled by the increase of business to have an assistant, I have taken in my employ Mr. A. J. Mills, a mechanical specialist, his first preceptor for five years being the celebrated Norman W. Kingsley, M. D. S., D. D. S., of New York city, and for six years with Dr. Kingsly of Elizabeth, I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent mechanical operator in every particular. I will therefore take this method of proving to those that wish to take advantage of the lowest cost price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, viz: for 3 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole sets of teeth on celluloid for $10, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect. We would strive to do only first-class work, and hope by so doing at the end of 3 months to secure favor and patronage by perfection in operations, rather than by cheap competition.
CHAS. H. THEIRS,
Office No. 13 Park Ave.

POETRY.

A GIRL OF THE PERIOD.

Put away the curling irons
Lately used by darling Claire,
For she nevermore shall need them,
She has banged her golden hair.

Place the [illegible] in the bureau,
Where her eyes may on them fall,
As she goes around the bedroom
Getting ready for the ball.

Set her toothbrush in the tumbler
Hang her stockings on the chair,
So that when her young man cometh
She will not be in despair.

Don't forget the zebra garters
That go with her silken hose,
And get out a perfumed rag
For her to blow her tiny nose.

Now are darling's fairly ready:
Soon she'll face the Wintry breeze;
And her younger brother murmurs,
"Oh, my! ain't she just the cheese!"

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE BROTHERS.

In a quiet street off one of the quiet squares in the vicinity of Holborn, there is a tall, gloomy house, with narrow, dusty windows and a massive double door, that still bears a brass plate with the words "Gourlay Brothers" engraved thereon.

The lower part of the house was used as an office, but the blinds were rarely drawn up, the door seldom swung back to the energetic push of customers, the long passage echoed no hurried footsteps, and Eli Haggart, the clerk, was, to all appearances, the idlest man in London till one came to know his masters.

The Gourlay Brothers were never any busier than their faithful old servant—never hurried, flurried or worried; never late and never early. Every morning at ten o'clock they entered their office together, read their letters, glanced at the Times, left instructions for possible callers, and then went to the city. They always took the same route; at eleven they might be seen passing along the sunny side of Cannon street; at half-past one they entered the same restaurant and sat at the same table for luncheon. Wet or dry, shade or shine, Summer or Winter, every working day for thirty years they had gone through the same routine, always excepting the month of September, when they took their annual holiday.

They were elderly men: John, tall, thin, melancholy-looking, with light gray eyes, scanty gray hair and whiskers, and a general expression of drabness pervading his whole face and faultless neat attire. Roger was shorter, rounder, and more cheerful and generally warmer in color. His pervading hue was brown, keen reddish eyes that must have been merry once, crisp auburn hair that time had not yet transmuted to silver, a clean-shaved, ruddy face, and brown hands full of dents and dimples. John was the elder, still he looked up to Roger with great respect, consulted him on every subject, and never, either in or out of business, took any step without his advice or approval. And Roger was no less deferential; without any profession of affections, or display of feeling, the Gourlay Brothers dwelt together in closest friendship and love; their life was a long harmony, and during all the years of their partnership no shadow had fallen between them, and their public life was as harmonious as though private intercourse. In business they were successful; every speculation they made prospered, everything they touched turned to gold; and as their whole lives were spent in getting, not spending, they were believed, and with reason, to be immensely wealthy. "Cold, hard, stern, enterprising," men called them; with an acuteness of vision and steadiness of purpose only to be acquired by long and close application to business. Reserved in manner, simple in their tastes, economical in their habits, the Gourlay Brothers were the last men in the world to be suspected of sentiment, their lives the least likely to contain even the germs of a romance. And yet they had not been always mere business machines; the sole end and aim of their existence had not always been money. In earlier years they had had brighter dreams, nobler ambitions.

At school John had distinguished himself, and his brief university career gave promise of a brilliant future. Roger had been a bright, ardent boy, with a taste for music that was almost a passion, and a talent little short of genius. With his deep earnestness, intense steadiness of purpose, and clear, vigorous intellect, John could scarcely have failed to made a distinguished lawyer. Roger was a born artist, with a restless, lofty ambition. Life seemed very bright for the brothers. There was nothing to prevent, and everything to assist each in following his inclination. But in the very dawn of their career, their father died, and they were suddenly reduced from affluence to actual poverty. Nothing remained from the wreck of a magnificent fortune but the bitter experience that always accompanies such reverses. Fine friends failed them, flatterers looked coldly on their distress; those who had most frequently partaken of their lavish hospitality passed by on the other side. Not a friend remained in their adversity but one, and he had indeed the will but not the power to help them. The boys left college and turned their thoughts to business. It was hopeless to attempt to follow up their professions, with an invalid mother and idolized only sister depending on them for support. John secured a situation as clerk in a city warehouse. Roger accepted a desk in the office of Bernard Russell, an old friend of his father's. They moved to cheap lodgings, and for several years plodded on wearily, the only gleam of sunshine in their altered home being the occasional visits of Alice Russell to their sister. Maude Gourlay and Alice had been school-fellows and friends; they usually spent their vacations together, and Alice felt the misfortune that had fallen on the family as if it had overtaken her own. But she could do nothing except pay them flying visits, send trifling gifts of fruit and flowers, and write pretty, sympathetic notes to Maude.

A few years of hardship and poverty told on Mrs. Gourlay's always feeble frame; still for her daughter's sake she clung to life with a strange tenacity; but when Maude's lover, who had gone to Australia to make his fortune, returned, not wealthy, but sufficiently so to claim his bride in her altered circumstances, Mrs. Gourlay seemed to have no other object to live for. Maude's marriage was hastened, and the very day after the ceremony the poor, weary, broken-hearted mother died. George Leslie took his wife back with him to Sydney, and John and Roger Gourlay were literally alone in the world.

As if in bitter mockery of their loss and loneliness, immediately after their mother's death the brothers inherited a small fortune. But it was too late for John to go back to his studies, too late for Roger to return to his piano; they had fallen into the groove of business, and John, at least, was seized with a feverish eagerness to turn his small fortune into a large one and become wealthy. So they went into business on their own account as Gourlay Brothers, with the firm resolution of retrieving the position their father had lost, and a few years later saw them established in Whitler street, and fairly on the high road to fortune. Then, one quiet Summer evening, as they sat over their dessert, John opened his heart to his brother and told him of his hopes, dreams and ambitions for the future.

"You will be surprised, and I trust pleased to hear, Roger, that I love Alice Russel," he said, laying his hand on his brother's arm; "I can hardly remember the time when she was not dearer to me than all the world besides. The bitterest part of our misfortune to me was that it separated me from her; the only thing that has sustained me through our long struggle was the hope of some day winning her; nothing else can ever compensate me for the ruin of all my hopes and glorious ambitions. I once dreamed of being famous, Roger; for her sake I put that behind me, and have grubbed for gold like a miser. We, Gourlay Brothers, are on the high road to fortune; I may aspire to the hand of Alice now!"

"Surely, John," and the younger brother's voice was husky, and his hand shook as he took up his glass; "I drink to your success."

"Thanks, brother, I should have told you all this before, I should have confided in you, but I feared troubling you on my account. You would have seen a thousand shadows across my path; you would have been more unhappy than I was myself. And now I want you to promise that it shall make no difference between us. We shall be Gourlay Brothers still."

Roger stretched his hand across the table, and John grasped it heartily. "Gourlay Brothers to the end of the chapter, old fellow, and may you be as happy as you deserve. God bless you, John!"

John's face became a shade or two paler with emotion, and he walked up and down the room a few times; then he stood behind his brother's chair.

"Roger, you will think me very weak, very nervous, but I dare not speak to Alice myself. I could not endure a refusal from her. I have never even given her the most distant hint of my feeling. I have not the slightest reason to suppose that she regards me as other than a mere acquaintance, at most as Maude's brother. Roger, we have always been friends as well as brothers; stand by me in this; you are less shy and more accustomed to women; see Alice for me and ask her to be my wife."

"John, you are mad! You do not mean it!"

"I do; it is my only chance. Plead for my happiness, brother, as I would plead for yours; I am a man of few words, but I feel deeply. A refusal from her would kill me; I could bear it from you."

"As you will, John; I'll do my best," and Roger leaned his head on his hand, and shaded his face from the light. "I'll call on Alice to-morrow."

The next day was the longest of John Gourlay's life, a bright, warm, happy day, that made people, even in the city, look glad and cheerful. He went about his business as usual, ate his luncheon, and walked home leisurely. Roger was standing at the window watching for him, and he kept his back to him when he entered the room.

"Well!" John said, gently. "Well, Roger! have you seen her?"

"Yes, I've seen her," and Roger faced round suddenly; "John, old fellow, it's no use!"

"Brother!" and he lifted his hand as if to ward off a blow.

"It's no use," Roger went on, in a hard voice; "she does not love you. She loves some one else. Be a man, John, and bear it, for there's no hope."

One slow, stifled groan, and then John Gourlay wrung his brother's hand and walked steadily out of the room. What he suffered in the hours that followed no one ever knew; and when he appeared at the dinner table he was calm and self-possessed, but something had either come into his face, or gone out of it, that altered him. But of the two, Roger looked the most unhappy. The blow had really fallen most heavily on him.

"Jack, old fellow, we're Gourlay Brothers now, to the end of the chapter," he said, huskily. "I know you'll never marry, and neither will I." And somehow John felt that Roger meant what he said.

* * * * *

Twenty-five years passed by, a quarter of a century of changes and chances, and still the Gourlay Brothers held the even tenor of their way. They were rich beyond their wishes or desires, and not altogether unhappy in their solitary friendship. Alice Russell seemed to have drifted completely out of their lives; her name was never mentioned, and whether she was married or dead, they did not know.

One morning, about the middle of September, as they walked along the King's Road, at Brighton, whither they had gone for their annual holiday, Roger entered a shop to purchase something, and John stood outside, looking dreamily at the passers-by. Suddenly he started and advanced a step, as a lady in an invalid chair was wheeled by. Chancing to look, she met his glance with a smile of recognition.

"Mr Gourlay, it surely is, it must be you. I am so glad to see you!"

"And I to meet you," John said with a courteous bow; "I have not the pleasure of knowing—"

"My name—I am Alice Russell still," she said, frankly.

At that moment Roger appeared. For an instant the blood forsook his ruddy face, while a hot crimson flush rose to Alice's pale cheek as she tried to stammer out some words of greeting. Roger was no less confused, and the expression of both faces was a revelation to John Gourlay. He felt as if the world had suddenly drifted away from him, and he was left solitary in some unknown, infinite space. But there was nothing of that in his voice as he asked Alice for her address, and permission to call upon her in the afternoon; then, taking his brother by the arm he led him away, and they continued their walk without exchanging a single word about the strange encounter.

In the afternoon John called at Miss Russell's hotel, and in a few moments he found himself seated beside her in a pleasant sitting-room overlooking the sea.

"Alice," he said, plunging into the subject at once, "do you remember a conversation you had with my brother a long time ago?"

"Yes, I remember, Mr. Gourlay," she replied, sadly.

"He made a request for me then which it was not in your power to grant; I am come to make a similar one now. Roger loves you, Alice. He has loved you all these long, weary years, though you will at least believe I did not know it then."

"Poor Roger!" Alice said, softly.

"You care about him? You will make him happy, even at this late hour? Tell me, Alice, that you love my brother!"

"Yes, Mr. Gourlay, I do. Why should I deny it? I have loved him always, though I did not know that he cared about me; and if the little life that is left me can make him happier, I will devote it to him gladly, proudly—poor Roger! You see I am too old for pretences, Mr. Gourlay, and I fear I am dying; therefore I tell you all."

"Dying, Alice? No, no! you will live many years yet, I hope, to make my dear brother happy—brave, loyal, great-hearted Roger. Let me send him to you now; and, Alice, for my old and long affection's sake, make him happy. He deserves it, and that is the only way I can ever help to repay the devotion of his life."

"I love him," Alice replied, simply; "I cannot do any more."

In their lodging John Gourlay found his brother pacing restlessly up and down.

"Roger, I've found out your secret and hers," he said, laying both his hands on his shoulders; "loyal, faithful friend, go to her; she loves you—she is waiting for you."

"Poor Alice! How she must have suffered!"

"How we all have suffered! but it's nearly over now, Roger—the grief, pain, regret. It's all clear and bright. Roger, dear friend, can you forgive me?"

"Forgive you, John? Say rather can you forgive me?"

"True to the last," John murmured, as he wrung his brother's hand. "Now, Roger, go to her; she is waiting for you. She loves you—loves you, Roger. Good-bye, and may you be happy!"

Late that evening, when Roger Gourlay returned home, full of deep, quiet gladness, he found his brother sitting in an easy chair near the window apparently asleep. The full moon shone down on his pale face, and showed a smile on his lips; his hands were clasped on an open book that rested on his knee. The attitude was life-like, but at the very first glance Roger felt that his brother was dead. The doctors said he had died of disease of the heart. Perhaps they were right. More people die of that malady than the world knows of.

STREET ACQUAINTANCES.

You know a great many people you are not acquainted with.

Your accustomed walks on the street bring you face to face with men, women and children every day, who grow familiar to you, but you know them not.

Just about so far from the same corner every morning you meet the careworn man weighted with life's burdens, his face wrinkled with the history of struggles. You always feel like taking off you hat to him and offering a sympathetic word.

The spruce young clerk, with one hundred and twenty steps to the minute, glances at you sharply and whizzes by as if the world wouldn't move till he got there.

The dignified old gentleman who "toes out" after the style of a drum major, slowly wends his way along, noticing nobody, but always noticed.

The distressed-looking woman, with pale face, shabby-genteel dress and a bit of resolution expressed by her closed mouth, tiresomely comes down the walk. Her face has moved you to pity every morning for a year.

What is this little breeze coming? With metallic heel-plate clicking on the sidewalk like the ring of a clog dancer's steps, jaunty hat to one side of her head, neat costume, and a saucy, piquant air! Meet her every day, but don't dare to speak to her.

This little toddling girl with bangs protected by an older brother playing on the sidewalk, with hoop and dolly. A gleam of childhood's sunshine that greets you cheerily.

Those two jolly fellows coming, telling stories and laughing all the way to their work. Light-hearted, because they were born so. You feel like turning about and having a laugh with them, but they are only street acquaintances.

The "grumbling" sort of men whom you meet every day carrying a pipe between their teeth, round shouldered, and having a hang-dog sort of gait, perfectly indifferent to everything. It makes a man feel blue to see them.

The gray-haired and much-bowed veteran, whose life is near adjournment. You meet him on sunny mornings only, leaning on his staff, his white locks streaming in the breeze, a picture which we all look upon with reference.

These are but a few types of the people we meet every day in the street and know, but are not acquainted with; that are as much a part of our every-day life as are our duties, that add as much to our pleasure and opportunity for study, and more than books or newspapers.—New Haven Register.

ORIGIN OF AMBER.

Nearly 2,000 years ago, Pliny, the naturalist, wrote that amber was the fossil resin of an extinct cone-bearing tree, and modern science can say of it but little more. The original amber-producing forest probably reached from Holland over the German coast, through Siberia and Kamschatka, even to North America. One of the most celebrated deposits is on the Peninsula of Samland, a portion of Prussia, nearly surrounded by the Baltic sea. The northern part of this region, constituting the promontory of Brusterort is hilly, and the coast banks are often 150 to 300 feet high. At one time all the amber found here, even by the peasants in plowing, belonged to the German government, the finder, however, receiving one-tenth of its value. For a piece in the Berlin museum, weighing eighteen pounds, the finder is said to have received a thousand dollars. During stormy weather, when the wind and waves beat violently against the coast, a great quantity of amber is washed up. The total yearly product is, however, apparently on the decrease, and so the price of amber is on the increase.

Professor Zaddach, of Konisberg, concludes that the trees yielding the amber resin must have grown upon the greensand beds of the cretaceous formation, which at the time formed the shores of estuaries where the lower division of the tertiary accumulated. Immediately over the amber-producing strata rest the brown-coal beds, the fossil plants found in which differ entirely from the amber-bed flora. Many insects and plants are found embalmed in the amber. Over 800 species of the former have been named, and over 150 of the latter.

IT IS A MISTAKE.

It is a mistake to suppose that a man is never employed a conductor of a horse car unless he can bring a certificate of a respectable physician testifying to his total deafness. It only seems so to you because you happen not to attract his attraction when particularly desirous to take his car.

It is a mistake to think that your actions or desires have any influence on the Dispenser of weather. You should be thankful they do not. If they did, Old Prob. would go mad and your fellow countrymen go madder.

It is a mistake to think that your interlocutor is listening to what you say. He is thinking either of what he has said or is going to say, just as you were and will be.

It is a mistake, young man, when you think the girls are just dying after you. It is only you who are thoroughly in love with yourself.

It is a mistake for a preacher to say, "Just one word more and I am done." He but lengthened his discourse by so much without deceiving any one of his hearers for an instant.

It is a mistake to suppose that everybody is thinking about you. You do so much of that kind of work yourself that you exhaust the subject.

It is a mistake to expect a direct answer from a politician. His life is given to dodging questions before election and giving evasive answers after election.

It is a mistake to suppose that your friend is consumedly interested in your eloquent description of your liver troubles. On the contrary, he is excessively anxious to tell you of his catarrh.

FACTS ABOUT THE HUMAN BODY.

Every adult man has 1,400 square feet of lungs, or rather, the mucous membrane lining the air-cells of his lungs, if spread upon a smooth, plane surface, would cover an extent of 1,400 square feet.

These figures are doubled in the case of a street hawk, or stationery drummer. The howling member on the top of his back shed is a perpetual reminder of his wickedness. Spread both out on a smooth plane surface, with plenty of gravy, serve hot—no cover.

About two-thirds of a pint of air is inhaled at each breath in ordinary respiration.

About two-thirds of an ordinary tumbler of whisky, with a little wormwood and snakeroot added, is the usual quantity inhaled before breakfast in New Orleans. Respiration and appetite to correspond. No water.

A man breathes eighteen times a minute, and uses 3,000 cubic feet, or about 375 hogsheads of air per hour.

This is slightly increased when a note is presented, and no money in the bank. In Prince Edward Island some printers breath about four times an hour, and never thing of paying anything. This is a grave subject, but the hogs' heads are plenty there.

The weight of the heart is from eight to twelve ounces. It beats about 100,000 times in twenty-four hours.

This is for the average man. The individual who wrote the travelling bore circular is blessed and happy in the fact of being an exception. One hundred thousand beats are a greater honor to this country than one of such a kind as is produced by that concern.

The stomach daily produces about nine pounds of gastric juice for the digestion of the food; its capacity is about five pints.

Fourteen glasses of lager equal five pints. One glass of soda makes sixty-four pounds, five ounces of gastric juice; one trip to Halifax by boat makes a sick drummer; one sick drummer spoils a target shoot; one target shoot makes five rows; five rows fourteen black eyes.

An amount of agony, equal to a big, big D, when one sits on a tack standing on its head, passes out of the mouth of the average Bagman when he finds his labor lost on an order, and a countermand by telegraph reaches the "Home Office" before the letter which encloses the order.

Democratic Nominations.

FOR PRESIDENT,
Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock,
OF PENNSYLVANIA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
Hon. William H. English,
OF INDIANA.

OUR CANDIDATES.

We nail to our mast head to-day the names of GEN. WINFIELD S. HANCOCK for President of the United States, and WM. H. ENGLISH for Vice President, as our candidates for so distinguished an honor. That they will be elected we have not the slightest doubt. Both men have an unblemished record, Hancock as a gallant and brilliant soldier of the late war and English as a statesman. There is no taint of dishonesty or incapacity attached to their names. Their nomination gives universal satisfaction in all sections of the country. They possess all the requisites required by candidates for the highest offices in the gift of the people.

THEY ARE HONEST,
THEY ARE CAPABLE.

MUD.

Some Republican editors are sorely troubled about what they call Democratic mud-throwing at their Chicago nominee for President.

We presume that figure of speech means the casting of unfounded charges against a candidate for public office.

If so, the gentlemen who conduct Republican journals should be the last of living men to find fault with political mud-throwing, because most of them have earned notoriety as skilled professionals thereat.

To call Democrats mud-throwers is a strange piece of inconsistency, in view of the well remembered personal abuse and malignant falsehoods heaped upon Samuel J. Tilden, as the Democratic Presidential candidate, four years ago, by Republican editors and speakers.

No, no, Messrs. Garfielders, the charge of mud-throwing does not apply to the Democratic press. It deals in hard facts, not soft mud, and that is what hurts your feelings, and furthermore, it intends to keep on hurling sound truths, without fear or favor.

You have given the people a candidate whose Congressional record is very vulnerable, and you must not object if it is riddled through and through.

Mud wont do it, but truth will.

It is not and never has been the Democratic style of warfare to traduce personal character and outrage private rights. Democrats despise that depraved kind of opposition, but the actions of a public man are public property and therefore open to rigid criticism.

It is the slime of Credit Mobilier and De Golyer that sticks to Mr. Garfield. He placed it there himself and it wont rub off.

That's what's the matter?

REPUBLICAN EVIDENCE.

"'You have made the Custom House a centre of partisan political management.'—R. B. Hayes to Collector Arthur, January 31, 1879.

"'With a deep sense of my obligations under the Constitution, I regard it as my plain duty to suspend you in order that the office may be honestly administered.'—R. B. Hayes to Collector Arthur, January 31, 1879.

"'Gross abuses of administration have continued and increased during your incumbency.'—John Sherman to Collector Arthur, January, 31, 1879.

"'Persons have been regularly paid by you who have rendered little or no service; the expenses of your office have increased, while its receipts have diminished. Bribes, or gratuities in the shape of bribes, have been received by your subordinates in several branches of the Custom House, and you have in no case supported the effort to correct these abuses.'—Secretary Sherman to Collector Arthur, January, 31, 1879."

HOW THE NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED.

The nominations of Hancock and English, for President and Vice President of the United States was enthusiastically received in this city by the Democracy and all citizens who desire good government, while on the Republicans the news fell like a death knell. The streets resounded with cheers, flags were displayed, and the Plainfield Cornet Band discoursed joyful music in front of the Democratic headquarters, which was thronged at night by enthusiastic supporters of the ticket. THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office was besieged with visitors who came to read the bulletins displayed and gaze on a portrait of their next President, conspicuously displayed in the window, and to offer congratulations. The occasion was so observably different from that when the Republicans made their nominations a week ago, as to be very, very noticeable. In fact we don't believe the Reps. like the nominations at all and we wonder not at it. Now, let the mud slingers yell—"who hung Mrs. Surratt," because it is to be expected. Hurrah for our next President and Vice President—Hancock and English.

An immense throng followed the band about from one point to another as they gave serenades. Stirring speeches were made by Mayor Harper, James E. Martine, Esq., Justice Louis F. Wadsworth and others. In front of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office speeches were made by Mr. Harper, Mr. Martine and others, while the welkin rang with cheers for Hancock & English, the speakers, the band and THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office; and the surroundings were illuminated by a pyrotechnic display. The Democracy are alive to the issue at stake, and will report this Fall.

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

What we want is to nominate and elect a stalwart President who will divide the offices among us. What else are we here for?—[Lt. Gov. Flanagan, in National Republican Convention, June 4, 1880.

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION.

The National Democratic Convention to nominate candidates for President and Vice President of the United States assembled at Cincinnati on Tuesday, June 22nd. The Convention was called to order by ex-Senator Barnum, of New York.

Rev. C. W. Wendte offered up a prayer, referring in the same to the young Democracy of America as having become a refuge and asylum for the distressed and downtrodden throughout the world, and the light and hope of the nations. Hon. Geo. Hoadley, of Ohio, was then announced by Mr. Barnum to be the choice of the Convention for temporary chairman.

Messrs. W. L. Scott, of Pennsylvania and Henry McHenry, of Kentucky were appointed by the chair to conduct Mr. Hoadley to the chair. The nomination of Judge Hoadley was received with hearty applause, and was renewed when he appeared upon the platform.

Capt. Wm. H. Gill of Elizabeth was appointed one of the assistant Secretaries.

Most of the State delegates organized on Monday. Hon. John P. Stockton was made Chairman of the New Jersey delegation.

Hon. Orestes Cleveland was chosen member of the National Committee from New Jersey.

Col. C. Meyer Zulick of Essex was selected to represent New Jersey on the Committee on Resolutions, Robert C. Green of Union on Committee on Rules, L. T. Fell of Mercer on Credentials and H. Blodgett of Ocean on Organization.

Upon proceeding to call the roll of States, when New York was reached, John Kelly, the leader of the Tammany forces arose to his feet and shouted "Mr Chairman." He was greeted with hisses and cheers, and President Hoadley refused to recognize him. After the roll call of committees appointed, the Convention adjourned to 10 o'clock a. m. Wednesday.

After adjournment there was a Committee meeting of the delegates to determine whether Kelly and his Tammany bulldozers should be allowed a seat in the Convention. The Committee decided by a vote of 32 to 4 not to admit the disorganizers. The 4 dissenting votes were cast by Arkansas New Jersey, Delaware and Colorado.

The Convention upon re-assembling Wednesday morning elected Ex-Gov. John W. Stevenson, of Kentucky as permanent President.

A roll of the States was called to decide whether the Tammany delegates should be allowed a seat in the Convention. It was decided not to recognize them by a vote of 205 to 360.

After the usual speeches nominations were called for, resulting in the names of the following being presented to the Convention.

Stephen J. Field, of California.
Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware.
Wm. R. Morrison, of Illinois.
Thos. A. Hendricks, of Indiana.
Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio.
Winfield S. Hancock, of Pennsylvania.

Efforts were made to adjourn but the motion was voted down and the Convention proceeded to ballot. The first ballot resulted as follows:

Whole number of votes cast	[illegible]
Thomas F. Bayard	153½
Stephen J. Field	65
William R. Morrison	62
Thomas A. Hendricks	49½
Winfield S. Hancock	171
Allen G. Thurman	68½
Horatio Seymour	8
W. A. H. Loveland	5
Henry B. Payne	81
Joseph E. McDonald	3
Samuel J. Randall	6
Samuel J. Tilden	38
George V. N. Lothrop	1
George B. McClellan	3
J. S. Black	1
James E. English	1
Joel Parker	1
Hugh J. Jewett	1
Thomas Ewing	10

New Jersey cast 10 votes for Bayard, 4 for Hendricks and 4 scattering. Three of the latter were for Randall and one for Parker.

The platform adopted by the Committee on Resolutions re-affirms the St. Louis platform and strongly denounces the fraud which placed Hayes in President Tilden's chair. It condemns the use of the Presidential veto for arbitrary partisan purposes, and favors free ships. The platform also contains a labor plank and favors pro rata freight on railroads. It is lauditory to President Tilden. It speaks of his patriotic sacrifices and thoroughly endorses his action. It also contains a plank opposed to Chinese immigration, favors a reduction of the tariff, and opposes Communism.

The Convention adjourned to ten o'clock Thursday morning.

Upon re-assembling the following proved to be the 1ST BALLOT.—Hancock, 316; Bayard, 113; Payne, 0; Thurman, 50; Field, 65½; Morrison, 0; Tilden, 6½; Hendricks, 31; Seymour, 0; Randall, 129; McDonald, 0; Loveland, 0; Lothrop, 0; McClellan, 0; Black, 0; English, 19; Parker, 2; Jewett, 2; Ewing, 0.

On the second ballot Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock of Pennsylvania received the unanimous nomination for President, amid the greatest enthusiasm and cheering.

The vote stood, Hancock 705; Hendricks 30; Bayard 2; Tilden 1.

The names of Tilden and Randall were hissed when mentioned.

Missouri was the first state to turn her votes over to Hancock. New Jersey passed, but soon announced her 18 votes for Hancock.

The Convention then proceeded to ballot for Vice President. Hon. Wm. H. English, of Indiana was unanimously chosen, upon motion of General Prentice of Alabama.

John Kelly made a speech and asked that past differences be buried, and that all now work together. He said to the Convention and New York delegates, "let us return home and work together for the success of the party." He was loudly cheered.

SKETCH OF THE NEXT PRESIDENT.

General Winfield Scott Hancock was born in Montgomery county, Pa., the 14th day of February, 1824. He graduated at West Point in 1844 and served in the Mexican and Seminole wars. He became a brigadier general in September, 1861, and distinguished himself at Williamsburg, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville as Commander of a division, becoming commander of the second corps in Sept., 1863. He was severely wounded at Gettysburgh and highly distinguished himself in the Wilderness campaign. He commanded at Washington in 1865. He was prominent in 1876 for the nomination of Pres*ident at St. Louis. He is a staunch* Democrat and will be elected to the Presidency.

THE VICE PRESIDENT.

William H. English, was born in Scott county, Indiana, Aug. 27th 1822. He received a collegiate education, and is a successful lawyer. He has been Speaker of the Indiana Legislature and was member of Congress in 1853-61.

His record is unimpeachable and he will also be elected.

A Washington despatch says that the National Republican Committee has begun to "show signs of active life." The symptoms of vitality develop themselves in a raid upon the clerks in the departments for money.

A Clever Capture.

About eight months ago Mr. Constant Cramer of North Plainfield, on the road to Dunellen, was robbed of about sixty dollars in money besides some wearing apparel and a few articles of jewelry. Suspecting one Christain Hanson Taft, who was at the time engaged in working with him a small farm on shares, a search has since been kept up in order to discover his whereabouts. Last Wednesday, while attending a "sham battle" at Springfield, Captain Dodd of this city succeeded in arresting a man who answered to the description of Taft, and brought him to Plainfield's "city jail" where he was lodged for the night. Upon searching the person of the prisoner a stud he wore was found that perfectly matched the one still in the possession of Mr. Cramer, whose mate was stolen at the time of the robbery. Officer Dodd deserves great credit for his service in which he was partly assisted by Detective Barber of the N. J. Bureau. The prisoner was transferred to Somerville the next mornig.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Messrs. Coddington Bros., Ice Merchants, have commenced using their supply of ice gathered winter before last from their spring water pond. The ice is remarkably clear and solid, about ten inches thick, and free from grass, leaves or filth.

That ancient structure, situated along side of Somerset street, just below Watampka Falls, near Demler's Hotel, and known as the old woolen factory, has at last succumbed to the fiery element. Wind and flood has failed to accomplish what fire did on Sunday afternoon last. Parties riding by the site discovered flames and smoke issuing from the half-demolished building, and as there was no chance of saving the frame, even if there had been means at hand, the fire was left, to do the public a good by ridding the locality of this dilapidated eye-sore. How the fire originated is a mystery. The property belonged to Messrs. P. M. French, Esq., of North Plainfield and Nathan Vail, and was uninsured. There was no alarm given to turn out the Department.

There is nothing like clear Spring Water Ice for Summer use in families. That cut and stored by Simpson & Co., two Winter's ago, from their pond of spring water, is being delivered to customers by them. They do not cut ice from Sylvan(?) Lake.

The Commencement exercises of the North Plainfield Public School, Prof. E. W. Rarick, Principal, will take place on Tuesday evening, June 29th. The following compose the Graduating Class:

Florella A. Cass, Lizzie Keegan,
H. Isabella Lunger, Annie J. Nolan,
Lizzie M. Smalley, H. Louise Trembley,
Annie B. Woodland, Lizzie Wilcox,
Daniel C. Nolan, Charles W. Taynor.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

Brittin's Hotel has been much improved in its exterior appearance by a fresh coat of paint.

Mr. Brittin's injuries, reported in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST last week, as having been received in consequence of his being thrown out of his wagon, are more serious than at first reported. Indeed, but for the prompt attendance and skill of Dr. Coutin, of Scotch Plains, it is doubtful if Mr. B. would have recovered from his injuries, which were found to be principally about the lungs and spinal column. He has been confined to his bed ever since the accident, which occurred on Monday evening of last week, scarcely able to turn over. We trust to soon see his familiar countenance once more on the streets.

FIRE MATTERS.

A number of the citizens of Somerville have resolved to organize a Truck Company. Over $1,000 has already been raised to purchase the apparatus.

After three ineffectual attempts of the Fire Board to hold a meeting during the present month, the members came together last Wednesday evening. Mr. E. L. Morris occupied the chair and Messrs. Steiner, Jones, Van Winkle, Mayer and Depew were also present. The first ballot taken for President resulted in Van Winkle receiving and Steiner 3. The latter thereupon arose and withdrew his name, stating he was not a candidate for any position as an officer of the Board. The next four ballots gave Depew 3, Van Winkle 2, and 1 blank vote cast by Mr. Van Winkle. Then five ballots were taken with a result evenly divided between Messrs. Van Winkle and Depew.

Mr. Depew then offered his opponent the same proposition he had previously made to Mr. Jones, adding "otherwise we might stay here until the end of the year. Some one must give way, as we should not go on in this manner. If it falls to my lot to vote for you I will do so cheerfully, and request my friends to do so that your election may be made unanimous. I do not think we are doing our duty to the people by sitting here and accomplishing nothing."

Mr. Van Winkle replied, "I will accept no such proposition nor will I make one. I must decidedly refuse to play any game, and decline to settle the matter in any way except by open ballot. Neither do I think we are doing our duty to the people."

Ten more ballots were taken, each showing a result of "3 for Depew and 3 for Van Winkle." On motion of Mr. Mayer the Board adjourned until Wednesday June 30th.

A little after midnight of last Monday some intoxicated persons over the brook caused the ringing of Warren's alarm bell. Chief Voorhees was out in time to give orders preventing the ringing of the bell in this city, and the firemen were in consequence saved a vexatious run. The Chief expresses an intention to put a stop to the frequently occurring false alarms.

All, Coughs, Croup, Asthma, and Bronchitis, yield at once, hence it is that every body speaks in its praise. To those who have not used it, let us say, if you have a Cough, or your child the Croup, and you value life don't fail to try it. For Lame Back Side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by your Druggists, W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

A Strange People.

Do you know that there are strange people in our community, we say strange because they seem to prefer to suffer and pass their days miserably, made so by Dyspepsia, and Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation, and General Debility, when SHILOH'S VITALIZER is guaranteed to cure them. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds.

We have a speedy and positive Cure for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker mouth, and Head Ache in SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A nasal injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health, and sweet breath. Price 50 cts. Sold by W. H. Voorhees and H. P. Reynolds. ja9eowtm.

Impure Breath.

Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most mortifying and unpleasant to its possessor, and it is the most inexcusable and offensive in society; and yet the cause of it may easily be removed by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT. It purifies and sweetens the breath, cools and refreshes the mouth, and gives a pearl-like appearance to the teeth. Gentlemen who indulge in smoking should cleanse their teeth with SOZODONT, as it removes all unpleasant odors of the weed. Ask your druggist for it.

A DELIGHTFUL shower on Monday evening did what the street sprinklers had failed to do—laid the dust on the streets.

THE first excursion of the season from Plainfield will be that of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, July 12th. See posters.

PLAINFIELD'S young folks and old folks had an opportunity, last Friday, of enjoying one of the best circus shows that have visited the city for years.

PAT. FLANAGAN, well known to many of our citizens, has opened a fine and commodious shooting gallery at New Rockaway, where he will always be pleased to meet his friends from this section.

THE Plainfield Cornet Band have lately been doing some gratuitous serenading in this city and the surrounding country. Mr. Auguste Saltzman and Mr. Christian Schepflin were recently favored with such flattering attention.

THE region known as "over-the-second-mountain" was a scene of uninterrupted and continued enjoyment one day recently. The Leap Year Social Club held a joyous picnic with plenty to eat and some one to Cook it.

"HYDE'S Grove" has been decided upon as the place for holding the forthcoming out-door festival of the Plainfield Saengerbund. The date fixed is Monday, July 26th, and tickets will soon be in the hands of members for sale.

THE Plainfield Saengerbund, after their regular rehearsal of last Friday evening, visited the residence of Messrs. Karl Polak and Brigham, at Netherwood, and serenaded the families of those gentlemen in a very pleasant manner.

THE handsome silk flag displayed about the portrait of Gen Hancock in the front window of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office, was carried during the war in the Third corps by a Vermont regiment, and is now the property of Julian Scott, Esq.

PEANUTS—JOHN, the children's favorite, will shortly remove his place of business to McIntyre's building, North avenue, where he will have more commodious quarters. It is rumored that "John" has entered the matrimonial state.

THE enterprising druggist Anthony Killgore seems determined to enlarge his trade and earn a living from many sales and small profits. He is at present selling all articles in his line at prices from 25 to 50 per cent. lower than his competitors.

THE Unknown Athletic Club of Westfield will as usual give a series of competitions for amateurs and professionals, on July 5th. P. A. C., and I. A. C. members please take notice; the public expects every one of you to do your duty and bring honor on Plainfield.

A KEROSENE lamp exploded in James Conneeley's "Madison Avenue House" on Monday evening last, creating consternation and danger of a conflagration for a short time. By prompt action in throwing the flaming lamp out into the street, serious consequences were averted.

THE ceremony that united Mr. and Mrs. William Myers (nee Martine) took place at the residence of the bride last Wednesday evening. Dr. John C. Bliss performed the service before a large gathering of relatives and friends; after which the happy couple departed for Niagara and elsewhere.

A NUMBER of bicyclists with their "machines" are quartered at the Hotel Netherwood, and swell the ranks of the riders of the wheel residing in our city. The organization that has been formed here is rapidly growing, and four English machines are being made in the old country for use on our thoroughfares.

PROMPTLY following the changes made in the C. R. R. time, Mr. H. P. Reynolds, the druggist, issued a handsomely printed and engraved pocket table of the arrival and departure of trains from this city. The work was delivered from THE CONSTITUTIONALIST steam presses the same day as the changes were made.

THE Electric-Liver Pad Co., whose agents Messrs. Williams and Radcliffe have been gratuitously entertaining the public for the past two weeks, met with remarkable success in this city. Parties who bought their goods say that relief is obtained from their use, and in consequence about 1,200 of the pads are being worn at the present moment in Plainfield alone.

FOUR empty cars are now drawn up each morning on a side track at the depot by drill engine "30," awaiting the arrival of the 8:20 express train which takes them in tow, bound for New York. Passengers and commuters appreciate the comfort afforded them by this means to secure a comfortable seat and a perusal of their morning paper fifteen minutes before they start on their journey.

THE streets resound with music from the Plainfield Cornet Band and cheers from the populace, as we go to press, in honor of HANCOCK and ENGLISH. THE CONSTITUTIONALIST was favored with a serenade. The Democracy of Plainfield are alive, and will show their strength in November. The headquarters of the Democratic Association is overflowing with friends of the ticket, offering their congratulations.

A MAN named M. F. Marcly, had a narrow escape from death on Wednesday night last. He insisted upon sitting on the side of the railroad bridge at Liberty street, and an approaching coal train warned him by shrill shrieks from the locomotive's whistle that he was not in the right place. He refused to listen to the warning, and was struck by the engine and thrown to the street beneath, a distance of some 15 feet. Singular to relate, he received but a few bruises.

MR. L. S. BOICE, ex-Collector of North Plainfield Township was subjected to an insult and indignity on Wednesday morning last that may result seriously to the parties concerned. It seems he had leased of the Central N. J. Land Improvement Company a piece of property near Netherwood on which he had expended over $50 in sowing rye. Afterward the land was leased to a man named Jukes. The latter claimed he owned the rye. Mr. Boice began to gather it as the law in the case directs. Jukes complained to Justice Nicholl of Scotch Plains, who gave him a written notice to the parties gathering the rye to desist, but did not give him a warrant to arrest. Jukes took the newly elected Constable of Fanwood Township, Parker Miller, and a man named Waldron to the scene, and after reading the order, proceeded to arrest Mr. Boice, who says he did not resist him only to prevent personal injury. The trio finally secured Mr. B's hands behind his back with handcuffs and took him like a felon to Justice Nicholl's office. That functionary immediately released him. Mr. Boice issued warrants for the arrest of Jukes, Waldron and Miller, through advice of his counsel, Suydam & Jackson, and on Thursday morning the parties were arrested and brought before Justice Nodyne of this city. They were, after a hearing, placed under bonds in the sum of $300 and $200 to appear at the Elizabeth Courts in October to answer to a charge of assault and battery.

The Bound Brook Tragedy.

Since our last issue, the coroner's jury in the Bound Brook murder and suicide case has brought in a verdict in accordance with the theory and facts published in this paper. The evidence brought forth by the questioning of the witnesses summoned, contained nothing tending to throw any additional light on the terrible acts of Fischer. The dead has in the meanwhile, been very thoroughly ventilated by the New York papers, which, however, seem to have absorbed their information through the medium of their ears rather than their eyes. The opinions expressed in his testimony, by County Physician Williamson (of whom experience should have made an "expert") appear almost ridiculous when it is remembered that officer was present when the positions of the bodies, and the accompanying surroundings were first examined. Fischer most undoubtedly did not lean over the sleeping Lunges and shoot him from the side of the bed where he (Fischer) was found; as the absence of any signs of burnt powder in the flesh or shirt of Lunges plainly proved that the murderer stood at the foot of the bed and at some distance from his victim when the fatal shot was fired. After killing Lunges the murderer most indisputably did not immediately shoot himself, if only for the reason that the presence of a hammer and chisel showed that the necessary noise made in forcing open the hand trunk would have awakened a person who was merely sleeping. That Fischer was standing up when he shot himself and then fell to the floor and into the burning feathers, is equally as foolish a supposition. His body was stretched at full length with the legs straightened out to their utmost extent; and the burnt chest proves conclusively that fire was above the body as well as around it. Further convincing proof of the absence of acuteness on the part of the press, without exception, outside of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, is the fact that no other paper had the name of Lunges spelt correctly, when they could have obtained it from the marked hand trunk that was found in the room.

Board of Education.

The Board of Education met last Monday evening at the High School building. Present—Messrs. Stillman, Murray, Kirkner, Harper and Stewart. Applications for vacant teacherships were read; and the petitions of two gentlemen that their sons be examined and promoted if found worthy, without reference to their being absent during the term, were received. It was ordered that a letter of recommendation be given by the Board to Miss Laing. The Committee on teachers reported progress in the matter of filling vacancies and recommended the re-appointment of Mr. John P. Gross as Principal for the coming year, with a reduction of $500 from the salary at present paid.

Mr. Murray thereupon said: "Mr. President, I move you as an amendment that the salary remain the same. Making such an offer as we do at this time compels the party interested to accept it out of necessity and not out of choice. By our action, no opportunity is given him to consider the matter, no chance to look for another place; and should he decline, the Board is compelled to choose hastily. We might err by a hasty conclusion and also might the other party by a hasty decision. It is no new thing for this school to change principals. We have experimented in that direction often and have been the losers by such course. If you hold that we do not lose by the frequent change of principals, then I claim that we can run the school without a head. If the efficiency of the teachers prevents the deterioration of the school while it is without an established head, then we have no use for a Principal. Mr. Gross has been with us six years and has never been found wanting, but has been compelled to submit to the curtailing of his salary while we say to the public that the school is progressing. It is the hasty action you are about to take and the short notice you are about to give, that I object to. If, after the re-appointment of Mr. Gross and the beginning of another year, we meet at our leisure, discuss the matter fully and then decide that a reduction of salary is the best plan—we can thereupon acquaint the gentleman with our intention, and allow him a chance to consider the proposition."

Mr. Harper followed, saying: "I have always been a friend of Mr. Gross and am yet; and in voting to reduce his salary I do it as a matter of duty. The public claim that the amount formerly paid is too large, and (with all due respect to Mr. Gross) I am told that $2,500 is the amount usually paid those occupying similar positions."

Mr. Stewart agreed with the last speaker. In view of the slight responsibility connected with the position, he felt that the proposed salary was sufficient. He stated that he did not think Mr. Murray's position in relation to the short notice given, was well taken.

Mr. Kirkner fully concurred in the remarks of the two last members of the Board who had spoken. He considered that with the proposed reduction, Mr. Gross would be abundantly well paid for what he did.

Mr. Murray, in continuation, said: "According to the manual of the New York schools, whenever there is over 500 scholars the Principal's pay is fixed at $3,000, and vice-principals are appointed where the scholarship is larger. We have a school of over 1,000 pupils and yet you insist that Mr. Gross does no work, although we claim that the school is superior and the grade a high one [Mr. Kirkner: "we do not so claim."] I have examined the tax books of the city and find that those who complain are the ones who do not pay their taxes and always have children in the school. This institution is run at a cheaper rate than other schools in the State; whereas we sit here not to hire a cheap superintendent but an efficient one. If we let Mr. Gross go we engage another principal of whom we know nothing, and pay him the same sum we offer one who has served us for six years. If he has not done his duty he should go without a dollar; but if he has, we are taking the chances at the rate of fifty cents a child, of bringing in somebody of whom we know nothing about, to save that simple sum, in the place of one who had served us faithfully and gained the respect of the entire community. Are men not worth more after each year's work? Is it of no value to us that Mr. Gross' experience of six years enables him at any moment to tell the character, standing and ability of any under him? Since I have lived in this place we have had one, two, three, four principals that have been found inefficient. I am here not alone as the custodian of the people's money, but as the custodian of their children's education. The Committee counsel a reduction of salary, although they recommend Mr. Gross for re-appointment as an efficient person."

Mr. Kirkner replied that he as one member of the Committee, did not consider Mr. Gross was an "efficient person," and continued: "I was entirely opposed to the recommendation of Mr. Gross for re-appointment, but as the rest of the Committee were in favor of such a course I afterwards agreed. I am perfectly willing to take the chances of getting another principal if Mr. Gross should decline."

Mr. Murray was not willing to take any such chances for so small an amount. He called for a division of the question that he might vote for re-appointment and against the reduction of salary.

On the motion that the principal's salary for the coming year should be $2,500—Messrs. Kirkner, Stewart and Harper voted aye; and Messrs. Murray and Stillman, nay.

On the motion for the re-appointment of Mr. Gross, the entire Board voted in its favor.

It was decided that all absences of Teachers during the past year, be excused and their full salaries paid. The Board then adjourned.

Aunt Polly Bassett's

Big Boy Jedediah will present his new and charming entertainment, entitled, "Brie a Brae." Our citizens will not forget that this company gave a delightful evening's performance at Van Deventer Hall last Winter, and gave perfect satisfaction. Since then it has been greatly strengthened, and affords two hours of solid fun. Don't forget to visit Jedediah and Margery at Assembly Hall, next Wednesday evening.

Congregational Anniversary.

The anniversary of the Congregational Sunday school was celebrated on Thursday evening of last week in a manner both instructive to the minds of the scholars and satisfactory to their physical tastes. The school assembled in the church where they were addressed by the Rev. J. L. Hurlbut on the importance of little things, and by their pastor. Singing by Miss Newhall, the choir and the scholars, added greatly to the entertainment; and a representation of the girding of a soldier of the cross, in all the protective armor of faith and righteousness, was most admirably rendered by a number of little maidens. At the conclusion of these exercises, a generous spread of those eatables that delight the young (and old too) was furnished for all.

Death of John R. Emery.

The many friends and acquaintances of Mr. John R. Emery, in this city, were surprised last Thursday to learn of the death of that gentleman, which sad event occurred about 6 o'clock in the morning. He had been ailing for some weeks, and indeed, a false rumor of his death was circulated the week previous. His disease was typhoid fever. He only recently moved into his new house at Bound Brook, the handsome residence built by Mr. Ayers Codington, to be nearer his business. A very wide circle of business and social friends will mourn his death with deep abiding sorrow, for everybody spoke well and nobody ill of John R. Emery. From the Somerset Gazette we glean the following:

Mr. Emery was born on his father's farm near Dreahook, Hunterdon Co. His father was Peter R. Emery. After being brought up a farmer boy, he went into mercantile business at White House; then moved to Somerville and became a mere "hand" upon the Central Railroad. By attention to business he was given charge of a wood train, and finally became the financial agent of the Company, collecting rents, buying and selling real estate, etc. He was strictly honest, accounting for every penny he received. He moved to Lebanon a few years ago, but a month since came back to Somerset.

In 1867 he became a partner of D. K. Craig in the coal and lumber business, the firm being D. K. Craig & Co. The partnership was not dissolved until 1872, and was a successful one. Then Mr. Emery remained in the Railroad Company's employ until the formation of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company, when he became its Line Agent, and subsequently opened an office opposite the depot in Somerville. This was his business at the time of his death. Only recently he spoke of his ill-health, and of taking his son-in-law as a partner, while he took a trip "to get well." Alas! he postponed it too late.

Mr. Emery was married four times. He was a domestic man, and as Providence removed one partner of his household after another, and left him alone with small children to bring up, he deemed it his duty to give them maternal care. His oldest child was a daughter, who is the wife of Mr. C. Stewart Hoffman, of this place. He has two sons grown; William H. just returned from Omaha, a telegraph operator, and Benjamine S., who is in business at White Haven. He has four children beside,—all seven. By frugality and industry he amassed a comfortable estate, being, in the usual sense of the word, a wealthy man. He was also a Christian man, having been for many years a member of and pillar in the churches with which he has been connected. He has been sick about three weeks. The disease reached its crisis a few days ago and his physician hoped the worst was over and he would recover. During the last night it took a new turn, and speedily before his friends generally could receive word, he breathed his last.

His funeral, which occurred on Saturday, from his late place of residence, was largely attended.

An Evening's Enjoyment Under the Skies.

After a winter just past that was prolific in Church "Sociables," and while we are yet in a season that promises to propagate an unusually extensive crop of Church "Festivals," the ladies of Dr. Lewis' flock exerted themselves in arranging an entertainment under a roof not planned by mortal architects or frescoed by "sunny" Italians at so much per day. It was an entertainment so entirely out of the line and style of the hackneyed festivities usually indulged in by congregations of all sects, that those who were so fortunate as to participate in it, thanked the ladies who conceived and carried it out, drew deep breaths of pleasant relief and felt in consequence able (by retaining a remembrance of the affair) to do their duty in attending the many anniversaries, excursions and other seasonable enjoyments (?) that were yet to come. For some time past the untiring efforts and unceasing labor of the Seventh Day Baptist mothers, sisters and daughters (not excepting the cousins and the aunts) had been generously expended in perfecting the attractive features of the evening. For the sake of our health, we must not neglect to also accord the gentlemen such praise as their assistance earned for them. When it came to lighting the candles, standing on unsubstantial stepladders to hang lanterns, and building dense forests and fairy grottos, the ladies found the male sex indispensable. But we seem to be saying a great deal about the means employed and nothing about the ends accomplished.

The situation selected for the entertainment was the well kept lawn attached to the residences of Messrs. C. Potter, Jr., and R. W. Titsworth, and the time appointed was last Tuesday. At nine o'clock on the evening of that day, the darkness that followed the setting of the sun was overcome by the combined exertion of a hundred Japanese lanterns of all imaginable shapes, that shed bright lights of every color over a seated assemblage of many people gathered under the rustling trees and twinkling stars. The spectators were composed of human beings decidedly unlike in regard to their sex, age, beauty, religious belief, color and condition of servitude; but for the evening the objects of their presence were identical, and their verdict of approval of the mental and physical feasts provided, was a unanimous one. Nature had provided a stage carpeted with velvet turf, and human hands had built facing the audience a pretty cottage near a thick grove. Between the two arose a bank of green moss and white daisies, that sloped down to the brink of a sparkling fountain. From a distance came the sound of sweet music that floated softly over the fern leaves and roses behind which the fairies that caused the sounds, were concealed. Amid these surroundings was enacted by little lads and lassies (and a blushing young lady of a certain age) one of those stories which have yet the power to recall to us, of advanced years, the memory of our childhood days and the fond mother who used to delight our ears with tales of the good fairies. The acting of the parts was most admirable, and received the sincere approval of all. Little Bo-peep and her Boy-blue being especially commendable for that conception of the characters given by their childish appreciation of the joys and sorrows of hero and heroine of the familiar rhymes. The young lady before referred to succeeded in sustaining in a remarkably efficient manner the difficult part assigned her. Besides being the mother of daughters who spake forth toads and diamonds, she eventually became the mother-in-law of a prince (although she never said a word afterward) and combined with these trials the harrowing duty of overseeing a boarding-house at which resided an innumerable number of personages of all professions and persuasions. Had she lived in a shoe we would have known who she was, or had the title not been most obviously unfitted she might have been confounded by some with Mother Goose herself; as it is, her character remains unnamed and indescribable. At the conclusion of the little drama which brought happiness to even the disappointed and wicked sister—a May Pole was erected, around which a number of bright-eyed and happy-hearted girls and boys lightly tripped, backwards and forwards, twisting the many hued ribbons into fantastic braids of bright color. Through an opening in the trees the silvery light of the moon was cast on the picture, and the subdued tones of organ music lent an additional charm to the animated tableau. The food for the mind having been thus satisfactorily furnished and partaken of, food for the gratification of bodily desires, was forthcoming in bountifulness. Tables were placed under the trees, and fair hands, willing feet and earnest hearts, united to serve all whose appetites demanded an appeasing. In other parts of the spacious grounds pleasant nooks removed from the sight of the older ones were sought by fascinating maidens and gay cavaliers, where in happy intercourse,

"Hearts spake love to hearts that spake again."

At least, so we were told.

The High School Commencement.

As customary, long before the hour of the commencing of the Commencement, the exterior of the First Baptist Church was a scene of fierce strife to enter the building first, in which every individual member of an assemblage of at least two hundred people of all ages and sexes, took part. More stringent rules than usual regarding the distribution of tickets had been followed by the Board of Education, but in spite of their endeavors a building twice the size of the one engaged would hardly seat in comfort the seekers after intellectual entertainment who crowded through the doors of the First Baptist Church, last evening. The managers of the affairs of the evening, however, did everything possible to insure the convenience of those present, and to some extent relieve them from the discomforts that were only brought upon themselves by each other. Camp chairs were placed in the aisles after the pews had been filled, and an equal number of individuals were thereby provided with seats. Still a great many were compelled to stand throughout the programme; but the continued interest that the exercises commanded prevented thoughts of exhaustion from entering any one's mind. At the time set for the beginning of the entertainment the interior of the church presented an appearance that bore flattering testimony as to the just pride the Plainfield public take in their school, and the affection it commands from their hearts. The Common Council, the clerical, medical and other professions, and the School Trustees and their families, occupied seats of honor that had been reserved for them. The "Star Roll" of pupils for the past years were allowed admittance through a private door and ushered to seats of easy observation from which those who did not graduate but expected to, could take notes for future use from the trial their embarrassed and departing school-mates were experiencing on the platform. The remainder of the church's occupancy seemed to be composed of feathered bonnets, fluttering ribbons, waving fans, bald heads, embryo moustaches, and now and then a cane announced its presence by a clattering fall. The Band furnished for the occasion was under the leadership of Grafulla, and in consequence it demanded and received none but favorable criticism. The music rendered was one of the features of the programme, and only granted the palm of superior attractiveness to those praiseworthy products of mind and thought that claimed for the essayists the triumph of success. The exercises to be pursued were set forth in the following order, and it is needless to say that each participant was received with unbounded applause from the audience in general, and floral testimonials from parents and friends in particular.

MR. R. HENRY DEPEW,

The first speaker had chosen his subject with rare judgment of his powers and acquaintance with the matter of which he spoke. "A Plea for the Indians" was made in words most striking in sentiment and persuasive in thought. The writer portrayed the former boundless freedom of territory and uninterrupted life of satisfaction possessed by the red men of the continent before the coming of the whites. He referred to the acts of unscrupulous "agents" appointed by the government to protect rights, but who violated them—drawing a comparison of the similar injustice of those burdens put upon American people one hundred years ago, and which they were warranted in rebelling against. The essay closed with a glowing appeal to the "sons of freemen," if they were not that in name alone, to arise and protect their red brethren from the cruel hand of the oppressor. The delivery of the speaker was all that could be desired. The enunciation of the sentences and tone of voice not only enabled all in the audience to distinctly hear every word, but added greatly to the power of the composition. Mr. Depew showed remarkable talent, both as a composer and as an elocutionist, and his efforts were well worthy the applause of approval that followed his retirement.

MISS MARY E. ROCAP,

Who followed, had already aroused the anticipation of the perusers of the programme by the slight ambiguity of the title of her essay. The expectation that uncertainty had caused was rewarded by a production of the reader's intellect, that showed careful study and untiring research into the struggles and triumphs of the warriors of ancient times. She told of Ceaser's dangers and the self-denial that taught his soldiers, by its practice, to endure trials and tribulations, and gain victories against barriers that seems impenetrable. Miss Rocap's manner of reading was most praiseworthy. Her earnest endeavor to give the production of her brain all the benefit that perfect elocution would add to its effect, was recompensed by the unanimous verdict of the hearers, expressed audibly by their applause.

MISS JENNIE B. SKIDMORE'S

"Medly" of familiar quotations, making apt and caustic hits at the lives, thoughts, feelings, actions and sentiments of mortal man and woman, was a remarkably clever exposition of the ways of the world. The young lady graphically pictured the situation of the many hundred poor people whom a little exertion on the part of others, would clothe; and drew on the other side a perfect representation of the character of the more favored class of women, who spent their time crocheting and working in worsteds, useless and purposeless constructions. Other such errors and fallacies of daily life, were dissected with relentless but just adroitness; while the entire thought and intention of the composition was handled with consummate skill and tact, and the essay must be numbered among the first productions of the kind. The style of Miss Skidmore's oratory was conspicuous for its fluency, its ease and the absence of affectation. Every syllable was clearly and volubly spoken in smoothly flowing tones, that reached the ears of all. Hurriedly written encomiums must fail to convey the perfection reached by the successes of her mind and voice.

MR. GEO. T. CARTER

Told of the principals contained in "The Monroe Doctrine" in a way that carried with it flattering testimony of his knowledge the matter he treated. His earnest summons to all to continue their adherence to their time honored legacy of precept, and to remain true to their trust in the belief of others on the subject—were glowingly conveyed, and calculated to awaken like inspiration from the hearers. The essay closed with an invocation not to imperil our liberty by withdrawing a single one of its supports. Mr. Carter developed a large amount of oratorical power, the possession of which, after experience in its use comes with the passing years, will be of great benefit and a source of much pride.

MISS L. MAY COFFIN

Entertained and interested her audience with "An Hour in the Kindergarten," which was a remarkably instructive comparison between the schools for the young of the past and the present century. She described how object lessons that attract wonder and remark from the children, bring answers to their inquiries that convey knowledge and develope accuracy, self-reliance and an appreciation of the beautiful. Also how good habits are inculcated that form the rock on which character is built. The composition, with its many new features of entertaining thought, was one of the most absorbingly interesting of all. Much beauty was lost it by the sweet voice that read it, and added attractiveness was given by the power to express tender thoughts in a pleasant way, that the speaker indisputably possessed. The heart too, seemed to be enwrapped in the kind thoughts for the little ones that filled the composition, and the additional charm of thorough sympathy with its views, was not wanting.

Mr. Gross at this point referred to the absence of two members of the class and most appropriately read a letter from the absent ones, Messrs. George Vincent and Ernest Ackerman. The communication spoke pleasantly of their trip as far as completed, and the many scenes in Old England that had been visited. It was signed by both the scholars, and closed with an expression of their regret at not being able to be present in person.

MISS LIZZIE DUSENBURY

Was prevented by indisposition from reading an essay on "The Mission of Music." For poetic beauty it was unsurpassed during the evening, and far ahead of many productions which owe their existence to authors of world-wide reputation and renown. Miss Jennie Skidmore kindly volunteered to read what might otherwise have been illy spared from the evening's entertainment. It was in the form of an allegory, which told of the voyage of a dreamer floating on a zephyr in an angel's company, around the universe. In the open air and the interiors of hovel and palace, the magic power possessed by music was experienced. Harvesters, soldiers, the choirs of cathedrals and the singers of opera houses alike bowed before its grandeur as they felt its intensity of influence. The mother at the cradle's side, watching anxiously in the sick-room, and bending over the bed of death, felt comforted by its power. To high and low, rich and poor, it brought rest and happiness. A strain of harmony, richly sung, that was embodied in the composition, formed a happily chosen feature only regretted for its brevity.

W. S. ANGLEMAN,

In a portrayal of "The Modern Utopia" this graduate described a village where all things were equal and the rich could not take by right from the poor, nor the idle from the active. A state of things that was greatly to be wished if successful in bringing more equality of condition. For a while all the inhabitants of this imaginary spot increased in wealth and affluence, but the doings of the outside world reached their ears and an earnest desire to take an active part in the struggles of the universe, induced many to leave. Those who remained behind became mere automatons, through the restraint to their ambition that such a life brought with each uneventful day. The founder of the village gazed sadly upon the rapidly fading away of the scheme he had so heartily established which refused to achieve success through a false system of philosophy. The rendition of the essay commanded the undivided attention of the assemblage. Its reading plainly showed the conscientious pains taken by the speaker to do his best in spite of the embarrassment justly felt by those facing for the first time an audience intent upon every word and action.

THE VALEDICTORIAN.

The Class of '80 surpassed in good fortune even the fortunate classes of previous years, in the possession of a member so thoroughly well fitted to deliver their farewell oration. Miss May Grace in her essay displayed all the requisite attributes of mental and intellectual development, fine powers of elocution and a most pleasing address and appearance. Her essay was listened to attentively throughout, and its closing words of farewell were sincerely felt by the whole class, and the sentiments expressed cordially endorsed by the audience. We take pleasure in publishing the oration in full.

"LOOK TO THE END."—AN ALLEGORY OF LIFE.

Just before the rich green opening of the forest, stood a hermit and a little child. The old man, well-acquainted with the forest paths, was trying to persuade the child not to enter, while uncertainty and doubt were plainly depicted on her face. The wood looked cool and inviting, but was the path safe which led to the other side? [illegible]

[illegible]

In order to bring the literary part of the exercises within reasonable time, the graduates whose names are marked on the programme with an *, were excused, however, for no reasons of lack of intellectual ability [illegible] or insufficiency of the literary power possessed.

To Miss Buckley, who has [illegible] the graduating point the [illegible] of the P. H. S., praise is largely due [illegible] the capabilities shown and achieved by the class of '80 [illegible] also, who has superintended [illegible] tion of its members from [illegible] in their course of instruction [illegible] ing of the highest praise as tutor of the mind and intellect.

At the close of the music [illegible] last essay, the awarding of [illegible] the year was made according to [illegible] cisions of the Judges [illegible] of the Stillman prizes for mathematics ($15 in gold) to R. Henry Depew. The se[illegible] gold to Winfield S. Angleman [illegible] sentation was made by Mayor Nathan Harper.

Rev. Dr. Yerkes the Chairman of the Committee on English Composition, then reported fully. He spoke glowing words of the present commencement, and greatly praised those who had taken part. The prize was one offered by Mr. E. M. Brown, formerly of this city. A book valued at twenty dollars were given to Mr. George Carter whose subject was "A Descriptive Picture of Imaginary Travel," and Miss May Grace was accorded Honorable Mention.

The Murray prize of a handsome volume, for the most perfect in United States History was given Miss S. Leon Bass and Honorable Mention was made of Miss Allice Holmes. Mr. Jacob Kirkner made this presentation as well as the following two.

The Kirkner prize for spelling was secured by Kittie S. Hazen; Mr. Charles Baldwin who was also perfect was ruled out on account of receiving it the previous year. Misses Annie C. Flaig, Augusta Ackerman, Cassie K. Murray and Emily A. Williams received Honorable Mention.

The Botany prize given by Mrs. C. A. Rutter, was awarded to Miss Bessie Shepperson. Honorable Mention being made of Mr. Charles Winslow.

The presentation of badges to the "Star Roll of Honor" pupils of the High and Grammar Schools, was made by John W. Murray, Esq. The number of years in succession that each had been on the Roll, was represented by the number of "bars" from which the medal was suspended—one for each year. The following had been on for three successive years:

R. Harry Depew, Augusta A. Quass, Mary Robinson, Frank D. Heyniger, Irving Daniel, Alice Holmes, Florence G. Hawkins.

The following for two successive years:

May M. Grace, C. Franc Goddard, Nora H. Thorn, Ashley Grace, Wm. J. Marsh, Charles W. Sandford, J. Heywood Cuthbert, M. Lillian Newman, Carrie E. Lowrie, Victoria Hand, Matie Breen, Percy Stewart, Emily A. Williams, Clarence A. Bilyeu.

The following for one year:

Winfield S. Angleman, Flora A. Randolph, Jennie V. Harriot, Alice M. Pennoyer, Seymour W. Bonsall, M. Lulu Kaufman, Rose E. Carter, Annie Flaig, Gussie Murray, Charles Baldwin, Frank E. Newman, Carrie F. Schneiderwind, Henrietta Lilienstern, Frederick T. Cuthbert, Irene M. Randolph, Annie B. Jones, Carrie E. Miller, Augusta Holmes, Lucia N. Wood.

Professor Gross who had just received the following cablegram, read it.

BIRMINGHAM, ENG. June 24th, 1880.

"Our greetings to you at Commencement.

"ACKERMAN & VINCENT."

The diplomas were then conferred on the graduates by the President of the Board of Education, Dr. C. H. Stillman; and the Commencement was ended.

The following was written by Miss May M. Grace:

CLASS ODE.

Oft in the days to come,
Sweet memories of the past will blend
With thoughts of labor done,
While hopeful, look we to the end.
Thoughts of happy days,
Bright with knowledge rays,
The words of kindness then exchanged,
And future hopes and dreams,
Fill our minds with noble themes,
Though we mourn our lives estranged.
So in the years to come,
As our pathways widely trend,
Pleasant thoughts of work well done
May crown us, as we wait the end.

Commencement at the Craig Place School.

The closing exercises of Mrs. Austin's school took place Friday morning, June 18th.

The pleasant school room was filled with parents and friends, and the following programme was varied and ably sustained by the pupils:

Selection from Scripture.
The Lord's Prayer.
Singing.	By the School.
Recitation, "Little Duties."	Theresa Stine.
READING CLASS.
Recitation, "The Wonderful World,"	Mabel Gillies.
" "The Fashions,"	Emma Whitlock.
" "School Days."	Ella Snook.
Singing. "Little Sunbeams."
Recitation, "The Lilies,"	Dollie Clawson.
EXAMINATION, RHETORIC CLASS.
Recitation, "Little Cries' Letter to Jesus,"	Addie Winter.
" "Barbara Frietchie."	Henrietta Taylor.
" "The District School Master,"	Kittie D. Glen.
" "Little Dandie,"	Maggie Vochl.
" "Liberty's Bell,"	Mary Adams.
"Uncle Daniel's Apparition & Prayer,"	Emma Adams.
" "Lilli-Golden Hair,"	Lillie Force.
" "The Relief at Lucknow,"	Mary Branson.

An interesting feature was the examination of the Rhetoric Class. This class consisted of twelve pupils. The questions were written on slips of paper and drawn by the members of the class. Each pupil answering in turn the questions that they drew. Letters of various kinds of friendship, introduction, congratulation, notes of invitation and replies, advertisements, and answers were prepared and read by the class. Compositions entitled, "Summer Amusements" and "Humming Birds" were well written and very nicely read by Addie Winter and Mary Adams. A recitation, "High Tide at Lincolnshire" by Emma Adams concluded the examination. Every member of this class did themselves honor. The recitations of the pupils were excellently well rendered, all showing a marked improvement. Special mention might be given to Emma Adams, Kittie Glen and Mary Branson, who all exhibited talents of no inferior order. The rendering of Uncle Daniel's Apparition & Prayer deserves high commendation and praise—it was humorous and created much laughing and good feeling among the visitors.

The report of examinations was excellent, many pupils attaining a high standing.

A Spelling class of five pupils about eight years of age did nobly. The names of this class are Davie Rossel, Harry Williams, Ellie Pope, Willie Spencer, and Mabel Gillies.

In an oral examination of the entire book, Monroe's Primary Speller, commencing with words of one syllable and ending with three, they failed only on ten words. To do so well their daily recitations must have been carefully prepared.

The reception was a success and shows that the school ranks among the first in thorough teaching, excellent discipline and good moral training.

The First Fire Cracker Goes Off.

On Thursday afternoon of last week the store, Post Office, and dwelling in one building, belonging to Daniel Rhinesmith, in Pepton Plains, were blown up by a terrible explosion and completely destroyed. His son, John Rhinesmith, had exploded a large fire cracker, and was in the act of filling the shell from a canister of powder, which was ignited by some fire remaining in the cracker. The building was completely ruined. The boy was buried in the ruins, and badly injured, but enough to say his hurts are thought not to be fatal. The loss on stock alone was $3,000, which is insured for $2,000.—Iron Era.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J

-[OFFICIAL.]

The Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union met at the Court House, Elizabeth, on Thursday, June 3d, 1880, at 2 o'clock p. m., stated meeting.

Present—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Ball, Crowell, Doty, Forsyth, Hubbard, Isenmann, Jewell, Miller, Nolte, O'Sullivan, Randolph, Roll, Smith, Thompson—16.

Absent—Freeholder Wilcox.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and on motion approved.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication from Mr. U. M. Osborn, asking that "The Semi-Weekly Advertiser" of Rahway, be placed on the list of the official papers of the county, was on motion of Freeholder Doty received and referred to the Committee on Publication.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The Committee on Bridge, Madison avenue, Rahway, reported as follows:

Report of Committee on Bridge street draw-bridge, Elizabeth.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

Your Committee on Bridge street draw-bridge of the city of Elizabeth respectfully report that they have awarded the contract for the superstructure complete to the N. Y. Bridge Company for the sum of $2,980. The bridge is to be first-class in every particular, to have roadway of 14 ft. and two sidewalks of 4 ft. each; the strength to be 100 lb. to the square foot, with a factor of 5. All to be in accordance with plan, specification and strain sheet on file. In regard to the old bridge, the committee think it might be advisable to take it down and reserve the old beams and some other of the wrought iron, together with the railings; the beams are such as might be used to advantage in many places through the county for deck or girder bridges of short spans; the railings and other wrought iron would also come in use. We would, therefore, recommend that it be taken down, and such parts as are desirable to retain for the above purposes be piled on the lot in the rear of the Court House, and the balance disposed of to the best advantage. All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOS. FORSYTH,
GEORGE W. DOTY,
JOHN BALL,
DANIEL O'SULLIVAN,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Randolph the report was received and placed on file.

JOHN L. CROWELL, Clerk.

June 3, 1880.

The army worm is ravaging the wheat, corn and timothy crops in Ocean and Monmouth counties, and other parts of New Jersey. Farmers who at sundown see their grass and rye doing well, wake at sunrise to find acres on acres ruined. The speed and the thoroughness with which these insect destroyers do their work are appalling; and coupled with the late drought, this new scourge is likely to make the year 1880, which opened so promisingly, one of serious disaster to a large part of New Jersey.

The total number of Indians in the United States is 250,000 to 300,000, of which number 100,000 are either Catholic or descended from Catholic parents. Some 15,000 are Protestants, and the remainder, about 180,000, all pagan. These Indians live on 200 reservations, and these in turn, spiritually and materially, are subjected to the absolute control of seventy-two Indian agents.

Shakespeare says: "Delays have dangerous ends." The same may be truthfully said of the wasp and the hornet, albeit they are not "delays." They don't delay a second.

When a good-looking Indiana girl has the measles it always follows that from ten to fifteen of the young men in the neighborhood are soon taken down with the same disease.

A Southern paper has an article headed "Facts about Beavers and how to catch them." This will be interesting reading for people whose beavers blow off and lead them on an exasperating chase on windy days.

The Republican candidate for President rejoices in more than one alias. At Washington they call him De Golyer. In the West he is known as "The Pulp Congressman," a title which he earned as the champion of the selfish and sordid paper pulp monopoly.

The New York Tribune has this:

General Garfield is said to have been a good little reader at three years old, and to have had a remarkable memory.

He gave proof of a remarkable memory when he swore before the POLAND Committee that he did not take any stock or receive any dividends in the Credit Mobilier, both of which things the Committee proved he did.

The editor of a Philadelphia paper had sent to his office during his absence, nicely rolled in paper, a huge hickory stick, with the following comments: "I see you advertise that if anyone will send you a club you will send them a paper. As I don't know what you want it for unless it is to knock down subscribers as don't pay, I hope you will have good luck in carrying it out."

General Garfield, leaving for the present out of the question certain scandalous transactions which are matters of record at Washington, starts out on his political voyage with favoring wind and weather.—Exchange.

"Gentlemen of the jury," said the attorney for the defence, "the prisoner at the bar stands before you with a spotless reputation, leaving out of the question two convictions for petty larceny and a third for horse stealing."

A DENIAL!

SIMPSON & CO.,

(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE off SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is INCORRECT; or in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at most of times is insufficient to allow of any being cut, independent of filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the ice harvested by them is cut off their OWN pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from

Pure Spring Water.

They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defence.

I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent mechanical operator in every particular. I will therefore take this method of proving to those that wish to take advantage of the lowest cost price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, for 3 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole sets of teeth on celluloid for $10, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced. POETRY.

LOVE.

BY ADA CARNAHAN.

A lowly cot is grand indeed,
If love be there;
A palace, if it love doth need,
Is blank and bare.

The heaviest tasks will lighter grow
When love inspires;
And iron hardships melt as though
In furnace fires.

Love is a lamp that sheds its light
O'er sorrow's way,
Even though the darkness of midnight
Fall in midday.

Love is a power whose mighty rod
The whole world moves;
And man is likest unto God
When most he loves.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

"FOR PITY'S SAKE."

"Fred, Miss Houghton is to arrive this evening. Would you mind going down in the carriage to meet her? I can't get off myself, and it will seem forlorn enough to find only an empty carriage awaiting her."

A prolonged whistle proceeded from the depths of the luxurious armchair into which the young man addressed, (pretty little Mrs. Vere's bachelor brother) had ensconced himself.

He was a handsome man of the blonde type, enjoying a few weeks' furlough from his army duties at his sister's house.

The laziest man in the regiment he was called, but the bravest as well, with now and then a sudden light in his clear gray eyes which lent momentary insight to the hidden strength and meaning of his real nature.

"Miss Houghton?" he now drawled out somewhat interrogatively, in response to the demand made upon him. "You mean the children's new governess, I suppose—a demure spinster of forty or thereabouts, or, worse still, a young gushing creature, bereft, in one fell blow, of fortune and friends. Seriously, Nannie, it's an awful bore, and, considering that my captain's pay won't admit of any matrimonial schemes, I think, perhaps, it would be as well not to put false ideas in this young (?) woman's head by sending me to greet her."

"Don't go, Uncle Fred," chimed in the children, aged respectively six and eight. "We don't want any governess."

"Hush, children! Don't worry me, Fred! Do go, like a good fellow! I assure you, from all I hear of Miss Houghton, she is a charming medium between your two absurd comparisons, and will probably give you no second thought. Here comes the carriage to the door. Now, Fred, don't miss her?"

"No hope of that," he groaned, as he lifted himself to his six-feet stature, and moved leisurely to the door.

A half hour later the Eastern train came puffing and snorting into the station. Only a few passengers had this point for their destination. He watched them descend with calm indifference, when suddenly he started. A young lady, quietly but richly dressed, passed him, the light from the lamps falling full on clear-cut features, and revealing their faultless beauty. In her arms she carried a little dog. She directed her course to the station-master.

"Can I get a vehicle here to take me to Mrs. Vere's?" she questioned.

"Mrs. Vere's own carriage is in waiting. Her brother, Captain Osgood, came down, expecting some friends."

"Then I will not intrude upon them."

But at this instant the young officer stepped to her side.

"The carriage is at your service, miss. Pardon me, and allow me to introduce myself as Captain Osgood, Mrs. Vere's brother."

"I have heard of you," she answered, smiling, and disclosing two rows of white, even teeth. "I am very glad to meet you."

And in proof of the words, she extended one tiny, perfectly-gloved hand.

"Cool for a governess, upon my word, and doesn't answer much to Nan's description," thought Mr. Fred.

But, notwithstanding, he felt quite warranted in meeting the frank advance very cordially, and soon, in their homeward drive, after first disposing of what seemed to him an unwarrantable amount of baggage, they were chatting away like old friends.

When the house was reached, Captain Osgood withdrew. He would let the women meet alone, and not betray the momentary weakness into which he had been beguiled.

"Mrs. Vere is in the library, miss" proclaimed the butler.

The young lady followed him to the door indicated.

"Well, Fred, your were disappointed, after all," began the mistress of the room, without turning her head, as her quick ear detected the opening of the door. "Miss Houghton's letter, apprising me of her sudden illness and consequent detention, arrived just after you left the house. It was to—"

But her sentence remained unfinished, as some one stole softly behind her and clasped two tiny gloved hands close over her eyes.

"Who can it be?" she questioned.

The hands were withdrawn. She looked up.

"Flossie!" she exclaimed, and rapturously clasped the girl in her arms. Where did you come from?" was her first question, when she found breath.

"Straight from Paris, dear. When I reached New York, I heard that you were up in your country-home, and so I determined to come immediately up and take you by surprise. I intend to spend at least a fortnight with you, ma chere, so you must make the best of it."

"A fortnight! I shall hold you garrisoned for the Summer. But tell me—did you see Fred, and introduce yourself?"

"My dear, he seemed to know me. I found your carriage waiting; he presented himself in due form; I accepted the goods the gods gave, and asked no further questions."

Mrs. Vere burst into a a ripple of irrepressible laughter.

"Flossie," she exclaimed, "he has mistaken you for the children's governess. What will he say when he learns the truth?"

And she repeated the conversation as it had occurred before his leaving the house. A sudden idea seemed to seize upon her listener.

"Let us keep it up, Nannie," she proposed, gleefully. "We can tease him to our heart's content. I will sink my identity in that of Miss Houghton, and prosecute him with my intentions."

For a moment the sister's heart misgave her, but, after all, what real harm could it do her? And so it was agreed; and next morning the children were duly presented to their new governess.

They had anticipated her advent somewhat as a region of terror. They now wondered, as the days wore on, why they had always heretofore been deprived of such luxury.

For two hours they were closeted each morning in Miss Houghton's own, pretty morning room, the prettiest room in the house mamma had given her; but, strange to say, brother Fred seemed to consider it quite the proper thing, under the circumstances.

For two hours, then, it was their daily prison! Candies and story-books were generously distributed, with but one prohibition, that when Uncle Fred questioned them about their studies, they should not divulge to him the fact that they were growing fat and lazy.

But Uncle Fred was too absorbed in his own thoughts to watch the children. For the first time in his life he began to make serious calculations as to how far a captain's pay might go, and whether by any amount of stretching, and any improbable bachelor sacrifices, it might be enabled to supply two, when heretofore it had been considered wholly inadequate for one.

"I have sworn I would never marry an heiress," he said to himself, when the household had glided on without change for some two weeks, "lest the world would consider me that despicable thing, a fortune-hunter, or that the woman herself might one day misjudge me; and I have sworn never to marry a poor woman, because it would entail too much mutual sacrifice. And yet, I wonder if she loves me—I wonder if I could make her happy?"

He had found in these three weeks, the two morning hours of the children's tasks the longest of the day.

He had insisted that the governess looked pale, and prescribed for her a daily ride. She had had no opportunity, as she laughingly declared, to persecute him with her attentions, but rather, as time wore on, to show them with a certain shyness, new and foreign to the girl's nature.

Meantime the conspirators sat in the library, scanning, with perplexed brows, a letter open before them.

It announced Miss Houghton's arrival on the evening of that day.

What was to be done? The arch-conspirators solved the question.

"Say you are displeased with me, and I will return to New York to-night. The new governess will arrive. His leave expires in a week. After he goes, I will return."

"Very like Victor Hugo, my dear," retorted Mrs. Vere, "as to the pithiness of your sentences; but I fear it won't flow as smoothly as you imagine."

"What does this mean?" questioned Captain Osgood, a few hours later, of his sister. "I hear the carriage is ordered for the seven o'clock train to take Miss Houghton to the depot."

"She is not quite my idea of a governess," meekly and tremblingly answered Mrs. Vere, quailing before his pale face and flashing eyes.

He cast upon her the first look of contempt he had given her, and turned away just in time to catch the flutter of a white dress upon the lawn. Straightway he went toward it.

"I did not mean to be abrupt, Miss Houghton," he began, when, with quick strides, he had gained her side, "but I hear that you must find another home. Would you accept one if offered you—very unworthy your beauty and your grace, but guarded by a man's honest love? I love you, darling! Will you be my wife, and share a soldier's fortune?"

The rich color flushed into the girl's cheeks, as she met the clear, frank gaze of the soul-lit eyes.

Ah, she had meant only to play, but she, too, had been burned by the fire's fierce flame!

"You offer me this from pity, Captain Osgood," she said, in low, trembling tones. "I appreciate your noble generosity, but I must not accept it."

"From pity?" he questioned. "Do men pity thus? Look in my eyes—do you read there? Listen to my voice—is it pity moves it? Let my past speak for my future. Has pity actuated it? Oh, my love, tell me that you love me, and you shall never more know what it is to stand alone in the world."

"Your sister has not discharged me, Captain Osgood. I have discharged myself," she said, with sudden resolution.

And then, standing before him, she told him all the story. His face, as he listened, grew deathly white.

When the last word had left her lips, he turned and strode toward the house, leaving her standing motionless and alone. His sister met him in the doorway.

"Who is she?" he questioned, in harsh tones, "this girl whom you have called Miss Houghton."

She knew then that he would have the truth:

"It is Florence Maxwell," she answered. "Fred, forgive me."

He laughed, a jarring laugh.

"Miss Maxwell, the heiress, eh?—the girl whom all men seek for her beauty and her gold. Tell her, for me, it was Miss Houghton that I asked to become my wife, and not Miss Maxwell, who has made of my honest love her sport."

And he strode out of the house again, and up the road, all unconscious of the little white figure following him.

He had thrown himself down, under the shadow of a great oak, when she overtook him.

"Pardon me!" she said.

And, at the sound of her voice, he raised his haggard face, with a groan.

The sight, the sound, overcame her scruples. She fell on her knees beside him.

"You loved me for myself," she said. "Oh, Fred, I am so alone in the world! You said, dear, it was for love's sake, not for pity. Now, for pity's sake, give me the love, without which, I have learned, all my life would be poor and barren, but with which I shall be alone nevermore."

Then for pity's sake—only for pity's sake—but with a great joy in his eyes, he opened wide his arms and took her in.

McCLELLAN VINDICATED.

Mr. George Tickner Curtis, in "McClellan's last service to the Republic," published in three parts by the North American Review, treats in the third part of two theories to account for reasons in the mind of the President which actuated him to relieve General McClellan from the command of the army of the Potomac at the moment when his strategy had penetrated Lee's center, dividing his wings under Longstreet and Jackson, thirty miles apart, and crossing Hedgmand's creek to the attack of Longstreet, which would have left the way to Richmond unprotected. Mr. Curtiss in the honest effort to say rather less than more than the truth, and in the legal rule to give the benefit of a doubt to the seeming wrong doer, struggles hard to account for the act which Mr. Lincoln himself never accounted for either privately or publicly, because, as Mr. Curtis suggests, he could not. Mr. Curtis looking from a distance of eighteen years with the history of the war written everywhere in the interest of the successful, conceives, in his first theory, the act of removal to be the result of matters growing out of the Harrison bar letter and the after Pope Campaign. His second theory takes a larger field, but he approaches it like an explorer into a hidden cave, dark, dangerous and filled with unknown spirits which he would fain avoid. At the mouth he encounters "Cerberus" in the shadow of Stanton and uses the language of Dante's "Inferno" to apostrophize him, but draws back in sacred dread and covers the chasm with a veil of doubt as to the forms beyond. Shakespeare says "The evil that men do lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones" and then proceeds to magnify the pretended good of Cesar and even extol the evil. It is said that charity with its sable cloak covers a multitude of sins and that the laws refuse to hear witnesses against the interest of the dead. Perhaps this is the christian spirit; but it is not for the benefit of posterity. Public good as well as public evil recorded in history are the lights of experience to guide the future. If it was necessary to sacrifice General McClellan upon a policy of state craft, which requires secrecy, no blame can attach to the administration. If abolition of slavery was the son on the body politic which required the surgeon's knife, unknown to the unwilling patient, anodynes were proper to prevent the pain. No one will deny that the people would have refused to change the Constitution in 1862 to abolish slavery, if the rebellion had been then crushed. It was not possible to intrust the secret to the army! and the people were clamorous for success. There was no remedy for the conflict, but save our Capital and at the same time to prevent the capture of that of the enemy. The people must charge themselves with the destruction of life and treasure when they demanded the maintenance of the Constitution with the restoration of the Union from an administration elected upon the principle that slavery should not exist in a free country.

Mr. Seward had said "there was an irrepressible conflict between free and slave labor and that if our country all labor must be free or must all be slave." Mr. Lincoln had said that "a house divided against itself must fall and that labor must be all slave or free." Such were the utterances and echoes of the party in power.

Now eighteen years after we are trying our best to account for a protracted war, and the sacrifice of our generals, our soldiers and our treasury, afraid to gaze boldly at the sunlight of truth, that abolition of slavery was a condition precedent to conquest of the rebellion. This is certainly higher patriotism than the theory of jealousy, hatred, and malice. How cunning were Mr. Lincoln's jokes, how astute the wily state craft of Mr. Seward, how shameless the financial schemes of Chase, making paper rags a legal tender and denying them on the supreme bench, how deceitful the apostate Stanton, assuming the airs of a bully while his heart throbbed with fear, how innocent the ignorant Wells and Blair groping in the dark, representing the gullible people.

There was not one military step in the East from first Bull Run down to the relieving of McClellan while Lee's army was within his grasp (when the war should have closed) which did not demonstrate a double purpose. The firing upon Sumter in the name of slavery was its death-knell, but how and when, was for the future to develop. Congress declared the war was for the maintenance of the Constitution. The people were not ready to alter the Constitution.

Mr. Lincoln remarked in 1862 that a "proclamation of emancipation would be as effective as a Pope's bull against a Count."

The invasion of Maryland aroused the spirit of vengeance and he issued it; but the destruction of Lee's army at Warrenton would have stultified that proclamation. McClellan must not succeed. He must be sacrificed. An atonement was necessary for a new covenant; blood alone could cement it. Alas, how much blood, misery and treasure! It is useless to discuss now how it could have been accomplished by open and honest dealing. State craft has never been open and honest. But posterity owes to truth and justice that the victims of state craft be released and restored when the end is accomplished. The monuments and public cemeteries watered with the tears of the people and annually decorated with flowers, testify for the dead. Should not then the survivors receive some token of regret? George B. McClellan represents in his personality the great sacrifice inflicted upon his devoted army. He was reaching out with patriotic fervor to inclose rebellion in the grasp of his gallant army. A few days more would have made his name a shibboleth of glory and his army immortal, when state craft silently, secretly, fiendishly palsied his arm and silently his victorious guns.

Had the assassin's bullet spared the martyr President he must have sooner or later answered Mr. Curtis' query; "Why was McClellan relieved when between the two wings of Lee's army?" Surely not because he complained that his men had no shoes at Harper's Ferry. Not because he "had let Lee get away" when at the moment Lee was pierced as with a spear. Von Moltke, the general of Europe, said that McClellan's plans and material would have closed the war in 1862 had he been supported by his Government.

Not one word from the lips or pen of McClellan has announced a complaint for himself. Mr. Curtis in his search for truth was astounded at his discovery and in closing says: "That he (McClellan) will at some time break this silence, so far as relates to facts, which he alone can tell." He will not probably tell unless the people authorize him to go to the public archives and produce the proof from official records. He will not tell while under the ban of the order, sending him in disgrace to Trenton, N. J., where now he resides as Governor. Providence moves in a mysterious way. May be he is to be called from Trenton under a new order to vindicate the truth.

A FEW REMARKS.

Several gentlemen were sitting on the veranda of the Plankinton house one warm evening recently, when the conversation turned upon the subject of profits in the various kinds of business. A banker who was present inquired of a newspaper man whose name we suppress on account of respect for his family, if newspapers ever made any money. The newspaper man said there were instances of that kind, but they were rare, and pointed to the fact that Mr. Cramer, of the Evening Wisconsin, had made so much money that he was obliged to start a bank of his own to hold it all. Yes, he said, newspapers quite frequently make money, but instead of hoarding it away they put it into their business, adding [illegible] to their paper. He said [illegible] country newspapers to make [illegible] as two or three dollars a [illegible] during harvest when the editor [illegible] printer in charge of the office [illegible] took his customary vacation [illegible] gist who was present said he always had an idea the newspapers made all the money that was made, except what was made by the meat market men. This was intended to wake up a leading meat man who sat in a chair tipped back against the building. The druggist said he had often watched a butcher when he sold a roast. The butcher would saw off a roast, and throw it on the scales and it would weigh eight pounds, and then he began to trim it. He would chop out about two pounds of the backbone with his cleaver, then dissect out a pound of ribs, remove the kidney tallow, and when he has got done, and spiked it up in a ball with skewers, it would weigh about four pounds. The druggist said if he could have the profits of a meat market for three months he would pay the national debt and stop so much talk about it. The gentleman from the meat market here arose, and was recognized by the speaker of the house. He said he had thought seriously of becoming a druggist when he was a young man, but when he saw that prescriptions containing only five cents worth of drugs were sold to customers for fifty cents, his conscience would not permit him, and he had sold meat in order that he might lead a Christian life and stand some sh[illegible] after death. He said if the druggist wanted to go into the business of selling meat, and undersell the present dealers, he could probably find a vacant building somewhere that could be had for a reasonable rent. The druggist said he supposed a man in business had to live, but he was sorry the man of meat had such a tender conscience, as he would have starved to death years ago if he had kept a drug store. A druggist, he said, charged something for his knowledge, the same as a lawyer, as it took years to learn the profession so as not to get strychnine in the place of assafetida. "A druggist," said he casting a withering glance at the market man, "must know something, and perhaps it is as well that you didn't attempt—"

Friends rushed in and separated them; but the thread of pleasant conversation had been broken, and the porch was soon after deserted. We are convinced that it is unwise for men to speak of business matters while engaged in social conversation.—Milwaukee Sun.

CHICAGO AND CINCINNATI.

The contrast between the Republican Convention at Chicago and the Democratic at Cincinnati was striking.

The Republican was a mob, wrangling for a week, and full of bitter personal animosities to the last.

The Democratic was a dignified deliberative body, finishing its business in reasonable time, acting with wisdom and re-establishing party harmony.

For President,
WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.
For Vice President,
WILLIAM H. ENGLISH.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH.

All of the gentlemen balloted for in the Democratic National Convention possessed ample qualifications to fill the positions in connection with which they were named, but with due deference to the others, we think the nominations for President and Vice President were given to those pre-eminently worthy to receive them. The Cincinnati Convention faithfully represented the Democracy of the Union by placing in nomination

WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK,
of Pennsylvania,
and
WILLIAM H. ENGLISH,
of Indiana.

Better selections could not possibly have been made, as the enthusiastic approval of not only Democrats, but Independent voters throughout the length and breadth of the country abundantly attests.

They are both nominees of the highest order of merit, stainless in personal character, intelligent and capable, patriotic and fearless for the right.

It is an honor to support such candidates, and it becomes the duty of Democrats and Conservatives to rally in might and make their majority next November overwhelming.

We are proud of the ticket made at Cincinnati.

A thousand cheers for
and
HONEST GOVERNMENT.

Then conquer we must, for our cause it is just—
In Hancock and English we may well put our trust,
And the flag of our party, in victory shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

HANCOCK AND VICTORY.

Never before did a nomination for President elicit such general and enthusiastic congratulations as has that of General Hancock. Telegrams from every section of the United States have been pouring in upon him. It is the old Jacksonian spirit. The following are a few specimen despatches:

SAMUEL J. TILDEN,
New York.

"Accept my sincere congratulations on your nomination. That you will be elected I have no doubt."

A. G. THURMAN,

For President,
WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.

BASE SLANDER REFUTED.

(From the New York World of Nov. 14 & 26, 1879.)

"WASHINGTON, November 13.—The mention of General Hancock's name in connection with the Presidential nomination has led, as his friends supposed it would lead, to spiteful outcroppings over the hanging of Mrs. Surratt, an affair which his official position just after the war compelled him to direct. A few days ago in the Indianapolis Journal an interview was printed about General Hancock, of which the following is part:

"The Democrats can't nominate General Hancock," said a Catholic priest to me the other day, in response to my expression of opinion.

"Why not?" I asked.

"Because," he said with much feeling, "he hanged Mrs. Surratt without cause, and persecuted her for her religion."

"I don't see how he hanged her," said I, "more than General Holt, who was Judge Advocate, or Stanton, who was Secretary of War, or Andy Johnson, who was President."

"Hancock," exclaimed the priest, "had her immediate custody, and he absolutely refused to let her see her clergyman or any clergyman of her Church after she was sentenced. He did all he could to send the woman to——; but no doubt her earnest request for clergy was passed to her credit in the books beyond the sky."

"I never heard of that," I said.

"Well, Catholics have," said the priest, "and if Hancock should arise and have the impudence to ask for Catholic votes they would bury him under their indignation."

"The above extract appeared in the Post of this city this morning. The reporter of the World called upon Rev. Father Walter, of St. Patrick's Church, with this interview. He was Mrs. Surratt's adviser, and he it was whom General Hancock was credited with having insulted. Father Walter is a tall, square-shouldered man, with enough fire in his face and vigor in his movements to make one almost wish that he and General Hancock could put on the gloves together, they are so nearly matched.

"'I am glad you come,' he said, 'for this isn't the first of these flings at General Hancock. I have blamed myself often for not declaring the truth in the matter, for I am the only one that should tell it, so far as it concerns myself. Yet, being a priest, I have felt bound to hold my peace. Besides, so far no tangible harm has resulted from silence. For some weeks back, though, I have seen that circumstances might arise which should change my determination; this attack seems to me to call for the kind of response that will make such objections to General Hancock impossible in the future. That is what I said to-day to Bishop Keane, of Richmond, when I informed him that I had about decided to brand all such stories as false over my own signature.'

"'Would you object to doing it now?' the reporter asked.

"'Not at all,' Father Walter replied, and seating himself at a table he wrote this denial:

Truth and justice compel me to deny the statement with reference to General Hancock's participation in the execution of Mrs. Surratt, which appeared in the Washington Post of this morning. I attended Mrs. Surrat on that occasion, and met with no interference on the part of General Hancock. General Hancock had great sympathy for this unfortunate lady, and waited until the last moment, hoping for a reprieve. I consider it an act of justice to General Hancock that this statement should be made.

(Signed), J. A. WALTER,
Pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Washington.

"'There. That is the first statement I have made for the public in all these years,' Father Walter said a trifle sadly. 'I hope it may be the means of enough good to compensate for all the harm that these stories have done.'

"An assertion made to-day by an ex-army officer was abundantly corroborated in the War Department that so strong was General Hancock's hope for a reprieve for Mrs. Surratt that on the day of the execution he stationed relays of cavalry along the streets from the White House to the Arsenal that no delay might ensue in communicating the fact. In the arsenal are photographs of the scaffold at the time of the execution. They show Father Walter at Mrs. Surratt's side."

This was followed by another despatch published November 25, as follows:

"WASHINGTON, November 24.—When General Hancock was here last week he met the Rev. Father Walter at the house of a mutual friend. General Hancock's carriage was at the door, and after the visit Father Walter entered the carriage at General Hancock's request and they drove off together. Their conversation lasted for nearly an hour. From an army officer who knew what was said it seemed that General Hancock began the conversation by thanking Father Walter for the statement and card he had published in the World about the defamatory stories in connection with the hanging of Mrs. Surratt. 'That denial alone was necessary,' General Hancock said, 'to destroy a vicious falsehood, and it was sufficient to do it.' Father Walter replied that he felt he had done merely his duty, and that while he was by no means inclined to arouse bad feeling in the matter he thought that while the press were disposing of it they might as well at the same time place the blame for the execution where it belonged, upon Andrew Johnson. 'When the time for the execution had been fixed,' he said, 'I went to President Johnson to urge a postponement for a few days. Mr. Johnson peremptorily refused to postpone the execution and acted as though he suspected I would be led to hope that one favor might be followed by others and that eventually a reprieve might justly be demanded. I tried to disabuse him of such an impression by declaring that if he would grant us but ten days no other favor would be asked of him. Shortly before the execution I called at the White *House a second time. My card was re*turned with a message that Mr. Johnson would not see me. I asked him then for a hearing of ten minutes, but he refused; then for two minutes, and he still refused. There was no reason in his refusal, and I hope he felt at the time of his impeachment trial that the refusal of the Senate to grant him ten days in which to prepare a defense was in a measure retributive.'

"A letter was received by an army officer here from one of General Hancock's most intimate associates a few days after the publication in the World of Father Walter's statement, which said that General Hancock was highly gratified at the course of the World regarding the affair, and that both he and his friends felt that the prompt refutation through the World had set the infamous stories at rest forever.

"Ex-Governor Hartranft, in conversation to-day about the stories in connection with the execution of Mrs. Surratt, said he was glad that they had been effectually disproved; that he himself had immediate charge of the execution, and that afterwards he received letters from Mrs. Surrat's daughter and others thanking him for the consideration he had shown both to the prisoners and their friends."

No Credit Mobilier bribery and corruption, no Boss Shepherd wooden pavement swindle, no New York Custom House rascality attaches to Hancock and English. Their reputations are as pure as the driven snow. Honest men can vote for them.

Another Sound steamer has been burned and forty or fifty lives lost. The steamer Seawanhaka, plying between New York and Glen Cove, was discovered to be on fire about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, when she was just off Ward's Island, from some unknown cause. The captain steered the burning vessel to a marshy shore, where she grounded and was entirely destroyed. [illegible] however, there was a terrible loss of life from fire and water.

THE PLATFORM.

The Democrats of the United States, in convention assembled, declare:

First. We pledge ourselves anew to the constitutional doctrines and traditions of the Democratic party as illustrated by the teaching and example of a long line of Democratic statesmen and patriots and embodied in the platform of the last National Convention of the party.

Second. Opposition to centralization and to that dangerous spirit of encroachment which tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever be the form of government, a real despotism. No sumptuary laws, separation of Church and State, for the good of each; common schools fostered and protected.

Third. Home rule; honest money—the strict maintenance of the public faith—consisting of gold and silver and paper convertible into coin on demand; the strict maintenance of the public faith, State and national, and a tariff for revenue only.

Fourth. The subordination of the military to the civil power, and a general and thorough reform of the civil service.

Fifth. The right to a free ballot is the right preservative of all rights, and must and shall be maintained in every part of the United States.

Sixth. The existing Administration is the representative of conspiracy only, and its claim of right to surround the ballot boxes with troops and deputy marshals to intimidate and obstruct the electors, and the unprecedented use of the veto to maintain its corrupt and despotic power, insults the people and imperils their institutions.

Seventh. The great fraud of 1876–77 by which, upon a false count of the electoral votes of two States, the candidate defeated at the polls was declared to be President, and for the first time in American history the will of the people was set aside under a threat of military violence, struck a deadly blow at our system of representative government. The Democratic party, to preserve the country from the horrors of a civil war, submitted for the time, in firm and patriotic faith that the people would punish this crime in 1880. This issue precedes and dwarfs every other. It imposes a more sacred duty upon the people of the Union than ever addressed the conscience of a nation of freemen.

Eighth. We execrate the course of this Administration in making places in the civil service a reward for political crime, and demand a reform by statute which shall make it forever impossible for the defeated candidate to bribe his way to the seat of a usurper by billetting villains upon the people.

Ninth. The resolution of Samuel J. Tilden not again to be candidate for the exalted place to which he was elected by a majority of his countrymen, and from which he was excluded by the leaders of the Republican party, is received by the Democrats of the United States with sensibility; and they declare their confidence in his wisdom, patriotism and integrity unshaken by the assaults of a common enemy; and they further assure him that he is followed into the retirement he has chosen for himself by the sympathy and respect of his fellow-citizens, who regard him as one who, by elevating the standards of public morality and adorning and purifying the public service, merits the lasting gratitude of his country and his party.

Tenth. Free ships and a living chance for American commerce on the seas and on the land. No discrimination in favor of transportation lines, corporations or monopolies.

Eleventh. Amendment of the Burlingame treaty. No more Chinese immigration except for travel, education and foreign commerce, and therein carefully guarded.

Twelfth. Public money and public credit for public purposes solely, and public land for actual settlers.

Thirteenth. The Democratic party is the friend of labor and the laboring man, and pledges itself to protect him alike against the cormorants and the Commune.

Fourteenth. We congratulate the country upon the honesty and thrift of a Democratic Congress, which has reduced the public expenditure $40,000,000 a year; upon the continuation of prosperity at home and the national honor abroad, and, above all, upon the promise of such a change in the administration of the Government as shall insure us genuine and lasting reform in every department of the public service.

DEMOCRATIC ENTHUSIASM.

In no past campaign have the Democrats of Plainfield been so united, harmonious or joyful over nominations as that of Hancock and English. The headquarters of the party, on Front street, opposite the Post Office, are nightly filled with earnest friends of the ticket who gather there to read and discuss the political situation of the day. Arrangements have been made to swing to the breeze a handsome Hancock & English banner in a few days, while an organization is being perfected among the soldiers of the late war, to be known as the Hancock Veteran's Association. Already over one hundred names have been signed, and next Wednesday evening the Association will be perfected, as may be seen by a call in another column. A suitable piece of ordnance will be procured in a few days, which placed in the hands of veterans, will in thunder tones announce to the party of fraud and Credit Mobilier that the friends of true government and Hancock & English are numerous in this vicinity. As soon as arrangements can be perfected a Grand Mass Meeting will be held in some suitable place in the city. The Democracy of Plainfield intend to make the invalid party of fraud "git up and git" in this city at the coming election. Their war cry will be

HANCOCK AND VICTORY.

There was another narrow escape from a steamboat disaster on the East river Tuesday last. The steamboat Long Branch, with an excursion party of seven or eight hundred sunday school children and adults, collided with an oil scow, being towed up the river by a propeller, just after she had left her dock at Brooklyn. The bows of the Long Branch were stove in. There was no panic, the boat being immediately run into a slip on the New York side, and the passengers disembarked.

The American rifle team have again won a victory, beating the Irish team at Dollymount on Tuesday. The shooting on both sides was marvellous. On the 800 yards match the teams tied, each gaining 436 points. In the 900 yards match the Americans scored 436 to the Irish team's 428 points. In the 1000 yards match, the Americans stood 420 points and the Irishmen 416 points. The grand total at the finish was Amer*ica, 1292; Ireland, 1280 points.* Such shooting has never been witnessed before, and every American's heart must throb with pleasure over the victory, while according just praise to the gallant riflemen of Ireland, who gave them such a close contest.

DUNELLEN ITEMS.

On Sabbath, last Rev. T. S. Brown, closed his ministerial labors as pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, (the pulpit of which by appointment of Presbytery) he declared vacant, at the close of the evening service. Mr. Brown has served that church faithfully and efficiently for the past six or seven years.

On Monday evening the explosion of a lamp in the dwelling of Captain Jones, set fire to chairs, table, carpet, etc., and but for the timely aid of neighbors who rushed in and extinguished the flames, the building and contents would doubtless soon have been consumed. Mrs. J. who was alone with her family and a female servant, was so shocked and terrified that she fainted, thus diverting the attention of some who were fighting the fire, to her restoration to consciousness.

A second narrow escape from a disastrous conflagration, occurred at the residence of Mr. S. D. Marlow, on Church street, at about 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. Some children were playing about the yard in front of the house, when suddenly, Mrs. Marlow discovered the front porch to be on fire. She immediately sounded an alarm, and neighbors responded so quickly, that the fire was confined entirely to the floor of the porch, and was soon extinguished. When the first man appeared upon the scene, the entire floor and lattice work of the porch was already ablaze, and quite a stiff breeze was blowing—fortunately, however, rather away from than toward the house. The extemporised bucket brigade worked with a will, and the fire being so accessible, they soon had it under control. The fire seemed to have originated in the dry leaves under the porch, which, of course, burned like tinder. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been the thoughtlessness of little children playing with matches. Had ten minutes more time elapsed or help have been less promptly summoned, nothing could have saved the building; and had it gone that of Mr. Charles West would have been in great peril, and would probably have gone as the wind was in that direction.

Personals.

Mr. Wm. Smalley, son-in-law of Geo. Headley, Esq., and family, started for the White Mountains on Tuesday afternoon last, where Mr. S. hopes to gain renewed strength and health.

B. F. Depew, Esq., and wife started yesterday for a visit to Mouse Island, Maine, where they will remain a month or two. The Captain has our best wishes for success in capturing members of the finny tribe.

Gen. Eli Long and family, of North Plainfield, are sojourning at Bluff Point, Yates Co., N. Y. The Gen. will miss his bass fishing in the Raritan, but will make up for that pleasure by big catches in the streams about Bluff Point.

Mr. Walters, father of ex-Councilman S. C. Ryder, attained the age of 79 years on Sunday last, and is in very good health.

Mr. John P. Gross has left for his usual sojourn among the mountains of the Adirondacks. The fact is indisputable that owing to certain enviable circumstances that have come to pass, this will be the first summer's enjoyment that he ever experienced. No cards.

The many friends of Dr. Westcott, of Scotch Plains, are still congratulating him on his recent marriage with a most estimable lady.

The wife and family of Mr. Charles Potter, Jr., left Plainfield last Monday morning for their summer residence, where they will spend about two months.

From the letters sent home by Messrs. George Vincent and Ernest Ackerman, it is easy to understand these gentlemen are having a most enjoyable time in the Old World.

Mr. Charles Foster, one of our licensed hackmen, is trying his hand at building fires for his brother-in-law, who is an engineer on the New York and Long Branch R. R.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

A warrant has been issued to Collector E. C. Van Norstrand by the Township Committee of North Plainfield, and that officer will proceed immediately to collect all taxes for the year 1878 that are unpaid. Wherever the amount due is not forthcoming, the property on which the tax is levied will be sold at once.

FIRE MATTERS.

No. 2 steamer is again ready for duty, having received a thorough overhauling since her pumps were found packed with sand after a "wash," about a week ago.

The fire alarm bell in the tower will be rung at daybreak, July 5th, in honor of the celebration of the nation's birthday.

Resolution of Condolence.

At a regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge No. 44, I. O. O. F., held June 29th, 1880, the following Preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The Supreme and Almighty Being of the Universe, in his divine wisdom, has seen fit to remove by death the wife of our beloved brother, Clarkson M. Hammond: Therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy to our brother in his great bereavement; and that we tender are affectionate consolation to him, in the confident hope that from this world of care and sorrow she has been transported to the enjoyment of Eternal Life Above.

Resolved, That while we deeply deplore our dear brother's loss, and bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, in the dispensation of Divine Providence, we extend our sympathy to our sorrowing brother in his great affliction. We cannot but feel for our dear sorrowing brother for his great loss. May God in his mercy support him in his great bereavement and spare him to be a shining light in our Order.

Resolved, That a copy of the above resolutions of consolation to our dear brother be entered on the minutes of the Lodge.

Resolved, That a copy of the above resolutions be sent to our beloved brother and published in the Plainfield papers.

Impure Breath.

Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most mortifying and unpleasant to its possessor, and it is the most inexcusable and offensive in society; and yet the cause of it may easily be removed by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT. It purifies and sweetens the breath, cools and refreshes the mouth, and gives a pearl-like appearance to the teeth. Gentlemen who indulge in smoking should cleanse their teeth with SOZODONT, as it removes all unpleasant odors of the weed. Ask your druggist for it.

HIGGINS' GERMAN LAUNDRY SOAP Is perfectly pure, being made of carefully selected stock, and is therefore the cheapest. Ask your grocer for it, and see that you get only the genuine article. A trial will convince you of its merits. ap2y1.

FOR the benefit of future generations who shall peruse the files of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, we state that the weather has been extremely HOT for the past week, the thermometer cavorting around among the nineties. Welcome showers visited us on Sunday and Monday, which proved blessings to suffering humanity and comfort to the proprietors of street sprinklers.

MANY conveniences, accommodations and comforts that are sought for by "picnickers," have been added to that "deserted region" called Feltville, during the past few months. GENERAL complaint was made by citizens on Monday afternoon last, at the insufferable smell arising from the streets when the hot rays of the sun began to pour down on them after they had been deluged by showers. This is in consequence of the filthy condition of the streets, an existing nuisance which the Board of Health should at once look after, before Plainfield becomes a second Princeton. It is a well-known fact that sweepings and refuse matter from groceries, saloons and other places, are thrown into the gutters, even though there be an ordinance prohibiting it, and are there allowed to lie and rot. Neither the Street Committee nor the Street Commissioner take any interest in the matter by ordering the filth lying on the streets to be cleaned up. Our public streets to-day are a disgrace to the city and reflect discredit upon the Common Council and all city officials directly interested, who allow them to remain so.

A MINING lease was filed in the office of the County Clerk, on June 12th, a synopsis of which will undoubtedly be of interest to our readers. The lease is made between Bloomfield H. It is further agreed that "the lease shall expire in one year from June 1st, and that the said Kise shall receive one-tenth part of the net profits of all mining operations carried on under the lease.—Trenton True American.

THE enormity of the orders for ice cream received by Mr. L. L. Compton, of Front street, has made it necessary for that merchant to put in a steam engine to turn his freezers. At times, although employing a large number of workmen, Mr. Compton has found it impossible to satisfy the demands of his customers.

PER order of the Central R. R. authorities a fire hydrant has been located near the freight house at the depot, connecting with the tanks for supplying locomotives with water. THE death of Mrs. Sarah Lee on Tuesday afternoon, at Alton, on the road to Rahway, recalls to mind the remarkable longevity of her immediate family. The deceased was a widow, whose maiden name was Helfield, and was 92 years of age the first of last March. She has lived in this vicinity all her life, and probably never saw a large city or visited any other State. She was one of five children, the youngest of whom is past 80, and leaves two sons to survive her, aged respectively 75 and 70.

S. graduating class by their friends of the classes of '78 and '79, was attended by about three hundred of the young people of our city, on Thursday evening of last week. A WRITER in the New York Herald deprecates the existence of the law prohibiting summer woodcock shooting in New Jersey, as it does not afford recreation and sport for the New Yorker who delights to roam the wilds of New Jersey in quest of this prime bird. It would be well for the writer to further investigate the laws of New Jersey. He will find that non-residents of that Democratic State is not allowed to shoot game during any season of the year, within its ridiculed (by New Yorkers) limits, unless he be a member of a Game Protective Society.

MR. JOHN W. LAING, the veteran Livery merchant of Plainfield, is continually making additions to his already large stock of his horses and carriages for livery hire. There is no city of the size of Plainfield in the State which can produce as elegant turn-outs as may be procured from Plainfield's Livery stables, and Mr Laing ranks among the highest for the elegant landaus, barouches, brets, buggies, family carriages, &c., which are to be found at this old-established Livery. His prices are also reasonable. Careful drivers are another requisite to be found there. Summer guests of our city in need of a fine turn-out should call at Mr. Laing's.

Perfection in Mechanism.

The wonderful working of the "perfecting presses" manufactured at the Potter Press Works of Plainfield, was shown on last Tuesday afternoon to a number of gentlemen representing the journalistic profession of this and New York city. The acme of capability and efficiency has been reached by Messrs. Potter & Co., in the additional improvements, attachments and inventions, that owe their existence to Mr. Walter Scott, a workman of remarkable conception in their employ. The press of which this manufactory is now making a specialty combines all the advantages of compactness, simplicity, speed and productiveness. All the latest improved attachments for cutting, folding and pasting are added; and under full speed it is capable of turning out the papers ready for the mail at the rate of 24,000 an hour. The company are at present engaged in filling a number of orders for these presses, two of which were lately shipped to Toronto, Canada.

Death of Dr. Augustus F. Giraud.

The inhabitants of Plainfield are again called upon to experience the sympathetic sadness of a loss by death. The taking away of all that composed the mortal life of Dr. A. F. Giraud, on Monday morning last, leaves vacant the place formerly occupied by the deceased in the hearts of the hosts that knew him but to love him and named him but in praise.

The father of the deceased was a Frenchman who came to this country with Gen. Lafayette and served as a surgeon in the Revolutionary war. The son Augustus was born in Baltimore in 1808, where in his early life he followed the profession of his ancestor and achieved an enviable reputation as a homœpathic physician. Removing to Plainfield in 1853 he has ever since resided in this city; drawing around him by his honesty of principles, uprightness of character and purity of morals, a large circle of admiring friends and companions. On a Christmas day some fourteen years ago, the wife of Dr. Giraud was taken from him, since which time he has lived a life of expectation, looking forward to their meeting on the other shore. The deceased has always been a strictly temperate man, abstaining entirely from the use of liquor or tobacco, and looked up to by all as a model of pure manhood.

Last Sunday morning, Dr. R. Titsworth who has been Dr. Giraud's physician during the past years, was called in to find his patient suffering great agony from what seemed to be a bad attack of indigestion. Fearing it might lead to a return of the patients' old trouble of gout in the stomach, the physician advised his going up stairs and laying down, and the necessary treatment for the case was commenced. Notwithstanding this, however, in little less than an hour Dr. Giraud was seized with a congestive chill, the blood left the surface of the body, which became covered with purple blotches, and the sufferer sank into an unconscious state from which he never fully rallied. The friends of the sick man were apprised of his probable death, the attending physician expressing his belief that it was the beginning of the end, and that his patient would not live twenty-four hours. The sad news was verified in less time—the sick man dying during the early part of Monday forenoon. The exciting cause was some ice cream that was eaten last Friday, and which created the indigestion that superinduced gout of the stomach and consequent congestion.

The deceased leaves no children to inherit his property; his nearest relative being his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. A. Harberger of this city. On Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, a High Mass for the repose of his soul was performed by Father Morris, of whose church (St. Mary's) the late Dr. Giraud was a member.

The First Excursion

Of the season, from Plainfield, it will be remembered, is that of "Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P." to Rockaway Beach on the 12th of July. This will undoubtedly prove a fine excursion. The "General Sedgwick," on which the excursionists will sail to their destination, has recently been thoroughly renovated and furnished with new steel boilers, calliope, and elegantly furnished throughout. For full particulars see advertisement in another column.

Census of North Plainfield.

Census Enumerator, Isaac Brokaw, has completed his duties in taking the census of North Plainfield. He finds the number of inhabitants to be 3,333. The census of 1875 showed the population to be at that time 1,142 white native males, 1,173 white native females, 29 colored males, 28 colored females, 215 foreign males, 291 foreign females. The oldest person found in the Township was Mrs. Badgley, (white) residing near Scotch Plains, aged 99.

Enterprising.

Mr. L. A. Dunn, of this city, in addition to his news business on the Central R. R., in which he employs upwards of 100 hands, has lately secured the entire privilege of the Mammoth Iron Pier at Long Branch, and is arranging a number of stands. He not alone controls the news business on the pier, but has two restaurants, ice cream parlors, and thus controls the entire news business of Long Branch and vicinity. His remarkable enterprise should meet with its due reward, and his friends at home and abroad will wish him good luck.—Eliz. Herald.

Plainfield's Population.

The work of the Census Enumerators appointed to take the Census of Plainfield are completed. In the 1st District, Mr. John F. Dunham, the enumerator reports 2,658 names. In the 2d District, Justice Louis F. Wadsworth found 3,405 persons. In the 3d Dist., enumerator P. I. TenBroeck announces 2,100 names. The total census therefore, of Plainfield, appears by the above to be 8,163. Including North Plainfield, the census of Plainfield proper is 11,496. In 1875 the census of Plainfield was 2,571 White males, 2,880 females, 155 colored males, 193 females, (natives) 647 white males, 770 females, (foreign) Total 7,216.

Trotting on the 5th.

Without the slightest doubt, there will be some of the best trials of speed between fast horses on the race track of the Fair Grounds, this city, ever before witnessed on these parts. The purses given by the "Union & Middlesex Counties' Mutual Agricultural Association" are generous ones, and have secured entries of horses of well-earned reputation for speed and quick time. A full list of the entries will be found in our advertising columns. A vast crowd is expected to be in attendance, and all arrangements have been made to make this trot (the first one under the auspices of the above association) a "square" one. The Grand Stand on the grounds will afford a fine view of the race to spectators.

Fourth of July.

THE COMING CELEBRATION AT WASHINGTON ROCK.

The arrangements for the interesting and patriotic ceremonies at the above place on Monday next, the 5th inst., are as we understand, fully completed according to the announcement made in advertisement to be found in another part of this paper. Our Mayor, Hon. Nathan Harper, will pronounce the Oration, and Prof. Jas. Lyon read the time-honored Declaration. Plainfield's Cornet Band, in their new uniform, will give a promenade concert in the large and beautiful grove attached to the Washington Rock House all the afternoon, while for those whose propensities for dancing seem to increase in proportion as the warm weather advances, the handsomely decorated ball-room of the hotel will be open with quadrille music. In the evening as the moon rises very late at that date, an abundance of Chinese lanterns and colored lights will illuminate the place, and give a bright picturesque beauty to the scene. We understand a cordial invitation has been extended to neighboring towns and villages to join in the exercises and festivities; and to those places where they do not provide a patriotic entertainment of their own, we certainly commend the Washington Rock celebration as eminently worthy the day and occasion.

At Last!

ORGANIZATION OF THE FIRE BOARD.

The members of the Fire Board met in Association Hall, Wednesday evening, June 30. All members present. Mr. Morris in the Chair and W. E. Jones acting as Secretary.

Twelve ballots were taken for President of the Board, the vote fluctuating between Messrs. Van Winkle, Depew, Steiner and Blank.

Mr. Steiner peremptorily declined the honor. On the 13th ballot Mr. Depew arose and said that he had made propositions before to his opponent, which were not accepted. Now, for the good of the city and its interests as a member of the Board, he should vote the next time for Mr. Van Winkle, as he thought the useless balloting had been prolonged enough.

The ballot announced stood—Van Winkle 5; Blank 1.

Upon the President elect assuming the chair, Mr. Depew moved that a Secretary be elected.

Messrs. Morris, Jones and Steiner were nominated and each declined the honor. Mr. Morris in a satirical tone remarked that all the "old members" should have office.

Mr. Mayer was finally nominated for the office, accepted it and was elected by acclamation.

On motion of Mr. Morris, Mr. Depew was elected Treasurer by acclamation.

Then occurred nearly an hour's delay in transaction of business by Mr. Morris insisting that the minutes of the past several meetings held by the Board in vain endeavors to select a President, were not correct, inasmuch as they did not record the proposition made by Mr. Depew to Messrs. Jones and Van Winkle to draw "cuts" or "lots" as to who should withdraw in favor of one another for the coveted Presidency. Mr. Morris said he desired to have the matter go on record (Note—It is on record—in newspaper files). Mr. Jones, who still acted as Secretary of the organization smilingly assented to the proposed changes—which were made So that now it is presumed everything is all right, the goose hangs high and the Board of Fire Commissioners of the city of Plainfield is at last organized.

The regular routine of business being again taken up, the spectators turned over the cushions of their seats and paid attention to business.

Assessor Hubbard presented his tax list for 1879. Which was accepted.

On motion of Mr. Morris the rules of the old Board are to govern the present one until otherwise ordered.

Mr. Depew offered a resolution that the President and Treasurer be authorized to borrow $500, in anticipation of taxes to meet coupons of bonds coming due July 1st. Adopted.

By Mr. Morris, That a Committee of two be appointed to audit accounts of Treasurer. Messrs. Mayer and Depew were appointed such Committee.

Mr. Morris presented annual report of Chief Doane, which, as he remarked, having already been published in the newspapers, the public were conversant with, and it was, therefore not necessary to read it. Correct.

Mr. John W. Murray, ex-member of the Board, a member of the Board of Underwriters of New York city, and largely interested in Insurance business, being present, arose and in a few brief and well-put remarks reminded the Board of the urgent necessity of taking extra precaution during the occasion of the celebration of the nation's birthday, July 5th, against fire, by providing teams for some of the fire apparatus and by placing watchmen in the alarm tower on that occasion.

His remarks were listened to attentively, at the close of which, on motion of Mr. Depew a vote of thanks was tendered him by the Board.

Mr. Depew offered a resolution that the Chief be instructed to cause an inspection of the various fire apparatuses by the Foremen of the companies of same, and that a report of condition of each be made by them to the Board the evening of July 2d. Carried.

By the same, that a watchman be stationed in the alarm bell tower the nights of July 3d and 4th and during night and day of July 5th, and that teams be procured to be in readiness to attach to apparatuses on day and night of July 5th, the cost in each case of team provided not to exceed $10.

The President announced standing Committees as follows: On Wells, Messrs. Jones and Depew. On Com. on Supplies and Repairs, Messrs. Morris, Steiner and Mayer.

On motion of Morris it was decided that all bills unpaid be passed over to the Treasurer's hands.

Mr. Morris moved that a Committee of two be appointed to compile the various laws relative to the Fire Department, and cause two hundred copies to be printed. Laid over to a future meeting.

Adjourned to Friday evening, July 2d, at 8 p. m.

Election of Officers.

N. G.—Isaac Brokaw.
V. G.—James Clarkson.
R. Sec.—James K. Arnold.
Treas.—Thomas J. Young.

The Glorious 4th.

There will be no celebration in Plainfield July 5th, in honor of the Nation's birthday, there being not enough enterprise among its inhabitants to get up a demonstration. The honors of the day will be divided between the celebration at "The Rock," under the auspices of the Washington Monument Association and the trot on the Fair Grounds.

4th of July.

Vanderbeek has not laid in an assortment of fire works this season, but has on hand Bogardus' celebrated cartridge sky rocket, to be fired from breech-loading guns, making as fine an illumination as any rocket, and much more safer. Also a fine line of breech-loading guns from $30 upwards—any make or style persons may desire—Greiner's new $85 "club gun" on hand. Orders received for any calibre or weight at his new store 33 Park avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Soldiers, Fall In!

The ex-soldiers and sailors of the late war, residing in and near our city, are forming a "Hancock Veteran Association," and all who are willing to join and follow the political leadership of that trusted and gallant soldier, Major Gen. W. S. Hancock, are referred to Alonzo C. Townley, E. C. Morse and Julian Scott, who will receive their names and place them on the roll. The Association will meet to organize next Wednesday evening, July 7th, at the rooms of the Democratic Association in Berry's building, Front street, opposite Post Office.

North Plainfield Public School Commencement.

The discomforts accompanying intense heat were forgotten by the large gathering assembled in the North Plainfield Mission Chapel, last Tuesday evening, upon the occasion of the Commencement of the Public School of that section. The entire programme was as follows:

Mementoes,	Florella Case.

AWARDING OF DIPLOMAS.

PERSEVERANCE—With Valedictory, Lizzie Wilcox.

CLASS SONG.

The evening's entertainment commenced with a piano performance by the Misses Tunison, to which music the graduates and their principal, Mr. E. W. Barick, marched up the aisle and occupied the front seats that had been reserved for them.

Miss Florella Case's essay on "Mementoes" was the first of the literary productions of the programme; the writer speaking feelingly of the fond emotions that cling around old letters, faded flowers and other tokens of days that are passed—which form cherished remembrances of friends that have departed.

Miss Annie Woodland's composition on "Home," which followed, was an admirably written article—appealing to the feelings of the audience by its true picture of the blessings that surround the family fireside, and the pleasant associations of home that can never be forgotten.

Miss Louise Trembly spoke strongly of the necessity of "Sincerity" in our lives and actions, and the temptations to be insincere that are continually arising. The essay was full of good advice put forward in a clever and pleasant way.

Miss Lizzie Smalley wrote amusingly of the "Blunders" that existence is full of. The blunders in school life, when the chances of obtaining knowledge by study are neglected. The blunders in matrimony, when whether single or married life is chosen it is afterwards regretted.

Miss Lizzie Keegan followed with an earnest effort in favor of "Work." She called attention to the fact that only by labor can we achieve what we desire; and advised the attainment of such knowledge as would teach us how to do our work in the best way.

Miss Isabelle Langer's composition on "Eyes" was an interesting treatise. The powers and capabilities of expression possessed by those useful organs of sight, were skillfully portrayed and poetically treated. Much instruction was contained in the essay combined with the interesting.

After a short intermission the Miss Tunisons again favored the audience with some commendable instrumental music. The performance was rendered on the organ and piano, and called forth an enthusiastic encore that was granted by the artists. A chorus by the class and a reading by Mr. Chas. Taynor were omitted, and the graduates under the leadership of Mr. Barick, followed with a remarkably finely sung theme from Von Weber—"The Shepherd's Pipe"—accompanied by the organ; while a bright strain of piano music in imitation of the "pipe" blended in pleasant harmony with the voices.

Mr. Daniel Nolan's exposition of the different forms of national "Government"—Democratic, Aristocratic, Monarchial and Republican—was praiseworthily given. The abiding places of the many kinds of rulings and their rulers were spoken of, as well as the advantages and disadvantages of their effect on those who lived under them.

Miss Sarah Randolph and Mr. Barick followed with a duett "The Pilot," at the finish of which they were re-called by sincere applause and kindly repeated a portion of the selection.

Miss Annie Nolen read a sketch of the life of Washington Irving, and one of that great author's bits of character writing entitled "The Dutch Governor."

Principal Barick then presented the diplomas to the graduates in the name of the Trustees. "We hope," he said, "that you will feel as much satisfaction in receiving them as we experience in presenting them." The fortunate recipients consisted of the Misses Lizzie Wilcox, Florella Case, Annie Woodland, Louise Trembly, Lizzie Smalley, Lizzie Keegan, Isabelle Langer, Annie Nolen and Messrs. Charles Taynor and Daniel Nolan.

Miss Lizzie Wilcox's essay on "Perseverance" with valedictory, was indisputably one of the most commendable productions of the kind, that an audience has ever listened to. The composition proper was replete with well chosen advice, while the words of farewell to the officers and teachers of the school and the classmates, were pathetically beautiful in their meaning, and woven into sentences expressive of sincere love and good feeling.

The singing of the "class song" was participated in by the graduates, who afterwards filed out, leaving their lately occupied seats for the class that next term will fill the places left vacant by those who had just covered themselves with so much glory.

Much of the praise that was bestowed upon the successful ones of the evening, belongs by right and justice to their Principal, Mr. E. W. Barick has been untiring in his labors to instill intellectual acquirements into the minds of those under his charge, and to lead their thoughts along paths of pure and healthy meditation. The wonderful attainments displayed by his pupils conclusively show the care he has taken in their education, and the obvious fitness of the gentleman for the place he occupies.

With the exception of Mr. James K. Arnold, who was unceasing in his efforts towards the favorable completion of the affair, none of the Trustees made themselves prominently visible upon the evening of the commencement; but it would be unfair to attribute such absence to any lack of interest in the school's success. The gentlemen who compose the board are all persons of recognized philanthropy, and the endeavors they are at present putting forth, with the hope that a larger school building will be granted, deserve the reward of attainment. Most assuredly the township of North Plainfield needs a much larger educational building, and the remarkably favorable show made by the graduates of the last term, proves that in the hands of those who at present control the intellect of the children of that district, a greater field for more extended tuition would not be misused.

AN accident, which fortunately was productive of no serious results, occurred near this office on Wednesday morning. The carriage of Mr. Charles McCutchen on its way to the depot, ran into a phaeton, smashing the latter a little and throwing its colored driver out into the street, where he landed on his head.

Our Candidate for President.

WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK, was born in Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, on February 14, 1824. He graduated at West Point in 1844, since which time he has rendered valuable and distinguished service to his country in the field. After his graduation he served on the frontier, and took in the war with Mexico, and was brevetted as first lieutenant for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battles of Contreras and Churubusco. From 1848, after the close of hostilities with Mexico, until 1859 he was again on frontier duty at various stations, and from 1859 to 1861 he was quartermaster of the Southern district of California.

At the breaking out of the war of the rebellion he was recalled to Washington and was made brigadier general September 23, 1861. During the Peninsula campaign he was especially conspicuous at the battle of Williamsburg and Frazer's Farm. He took an active part in the subsequent campaign in Maryland, at the battles of South Mountain and Antietam. Promoted to the rank of major-general, he commanded a division at Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville. On July 1, 1863, the first day of the battle of Gettysburg, he was sent by General Meade to decide whether a decisive battle should be given there or whether the army should fall back. He reported that Gettysburg was the place to fight, and took immediate command until the arrival of Gen. Meade. In the decisive action on July 3d, he commanded the left centre, which was the main point assaulted by the enemy. He held his position, but was severely wounded. For his conduct on this memorable field he received on May 30, 1866, the thanks of Congress.

The severity of the wound received at Gettysburg disabled him, and he was on sick leave until March, 1864, being meanwhile, however, engaged in recruiting the Second Army Corps, which was placed under his command. Of this corps, on the opening of the campaign in 1864, he took active command, and bore a prominent part in the battles of the Wilderness (May 5th and 6th), Spottsylvania Court House, (May 9-20), and North Anna (May 23-24); the second battle of Cold Harbor (June 3), and the operations around Petersburg until June 19th, when, his wound breaking out, he was for a short time on sick leave. As soon as he had sufficiently recovered he resumed command and took part in several actions until he was called to Washington to organize the First Corps of Veterans.

After the close of the war he was placed successive in command of the Middle Department, the Department of Missouri, of Louisiana, Texas and Dakota, and, on the death of General Meade, in 1872, of the Department of the East.

In his administration of the affairs of the Department of Texas and Louisiana, General Hancock proved that his gallantry as a soldier was fully equalled by his devotion to the principles of civil and constitutional liberty. When assigned to the command of that Department (the Fifth Military District) he became, under the reconstruction laws of Congress, the absolute ruler of two States—Louisiana and Texas. He had the power to suspend the civil laws, suppress civil tribunals and create military commissions. But he declared that the true office of the sword was to uphold and not to subvert the civil law, and his first act, on assuming command at New Orleans, was to issue an order which contained these noble and memorable words:

> The General commanding is gratified to learn that peace and quiet reign in this department. It will be his purpose to preserve this condition of things. As a means to this great end he regards the maintenance of the civil authorities in the faithful execution of the laws as the most efficient under existing circumstances.
>
> In war it is indispensable to repel force by force, and overthrow and destroy opposition to lawful authority. But when insurrectionary force has been overthrown and peace established, and the civil authorities are ready and willing to perform their duties, the military power should cease to lead, and the civil administration resume its natural and rightful dominion. Solemnly impressed with these views, the General announces that the great principles of American liberty are still the lawful inheritance of this people, and ever should be. The right of trial by jury, the habeas corpus, the liberty of the press, the freedom of speech, the natural rights of persons, and the rights of property must be preserved.
>
> Free institutions, while they are essential to the prosperity and happiness of the people, always furnish the strongest inducements to peace and good order. Crimes and offenses committed in this district must be referred to the consideration and judgment of the regular civil tribunals, and those tribunals will be supported in their lawful jurisdiction.
>
> Should there be violations of existing laws which are not inquired into by the civil magistrates, or should failures in the administration of justice by the courts be complained of, the cases will be reported to these headquarters, when such orders will be made as may be deemed necessary.
>
> While the General thus indicates his purpose to respect the liberties of the people, he wishes all to understand that armed insurrection or forcible resistance to the law will be instantly suppressed by arms.

Later in his administration the then acting Governor of Texas, Pease, applied to General Hancock to establish military commissions in that State. In a letter which no one can read without admiring the soundness of the writer's principles, his independence of character, and his patriotism, General Hancock refused the request. The application was made on the ground that, although the people were obedient to the laws, it was an "unwilling obedience," and that, therefore, peace did not exist. We make the following extracts from General Hancock's reply:

> And this is all you have to present for proof that war and not peace prevails in Texas; and hence it becomes my duty—so you suppose—to set aside the local civil tribunals, and enforce the penal code against citizens by means of military commissions.
>
> My dear sir, I am not a lawyer, nor has it been my business, as it may have been yours to study the philosophy of statecraft and politics. But I may lay claim, after an experience of more than half a lifetime, to some poor knowledge of men, and some appreciation of what is necessary to social order and happiness. And for the future of our common country, I could devoutly wish that no great number of our people have yet fallen in with the views you appear to entertain. Woe be to us whenever it shall come to pass that the power of the magistrate—civil or military—is permitted to deal with the mere opinions or feelings of the people.
>
> I will maintain that the entire freedom of thought and speech, however acrimoniously indulged, is consistent with the noblest aspirations of man, and the happiest condition of his race.
>
> It is rather more than hinted in your letter, that there is no local State government in Texas, and no local laws outside of the acts of Congress, which I ought to respect; and that I should undertake to protect the rights of persons and property in my own way and in an arbitrary manner. If such be your meaning, I am compelled to differ with you. After the abolition of slavery (an event which I hope no one now regrets), the laws of Louisiana and Texas existing prior to the rebellion, and not in conflict with the acts of Congress, comprised a vast system of jurisprudence, both civil and criminal. It required not volumes only, but libraries to contain them. They laid down principles and precedents for ascertaining the rights and adjusting the controversies of men, in every conceivable case. They were the creations of great and good and learned men, who had labored in their day for their kind, and gone down to the grave long before our recent troubles, leaving their works an inestimable legacy to the human race. These laws, as I am informed, connected the civilization of past and present ages, and testified of the justice, wisdom, humanity and patriotism of more than one nation, through whose records they descended to the present people of these States. I am satisfied, from representations of persons competent to judge, they are as perfect a system of laws as may be found elsewhere, and better suited than any other to the condition of this people, for by them they have long been governed. Why should it be supposed Congress has abolished these laws? Why should any one wish to abolish them? They have committed no treason, nor are hostile to the United States, nor countenance crime, nor favor injustice. On them, as on a foundation of rock, reposes almost the entire superstructure of social order in these two States. Annul this code of local laws, and there would be no longer any rights, either of person or property, here. Abolish the local civil tribunals made to execute them, and you would virtually annul the laws, except in reference to the very few cases cognizable in the federal courts. Let us for a moment suppose the whole local civil code annulled, and that I, am left, as commander of the Fifth Military District, the sole fountain of law and justice. This is the position in which you would place me.
>
> I am now to protect all rights and redress all wrongs. How is it possible for me to do it? Innumerable questions arise, of which I am not only ignorant, but to the solution of which a military court is entirely unfitted. One would establish a will, another a deed, or the question is one of succession, or partnership, or descent, or trust: a suit of ejectment or claim to chattels; or the application may relate to robbery, theft, arson, or murder. How am I to take the first step in any such matter? If I turn to the acts of Congress I find nothing on the subject. I dare not open the authors on the local code, for it has ceased to exist.
>
> Power may destroy the forms, but not the principles of justice; these will live in spite even of the sword. History tells us that the Roman pandects were lost for a long period among the rubbish that war and revolution had heaped upon them, but at length were dug out of the ruins—again to be regarded as a precious treasure.

An order had been issued by his predecessor interfering with the selection of jurors. This order was revoked by Gen. Hancock in an order, in which he said: "The Commanding General, in the discharge of the trust reposed in him, will maintain the just power of the judiciary."

A subordinate had ordered the seizure of property in dispute. Gen. Hancock revoked it, declaring that "the local tribunals possessed ample power for the protection of the parties concerned."

By special order No. 213 he forbid military interference in the elections; and in several succeeding orders, issued from time to time, the above principles were enforced.

Thus his record as the commander of two States illustrate his character as a citizen and his principles as a statesman, while his military record illustrates his bravery and patriotism as a soldier.

Our Candidate for the Vice Presidency.

In his youth he studied law, and at the age of 18 was admitted to practice. Five years later he was practicing before the Supreme Court of the United States. He was elected a delegate to the Democratic State Convention before he had attained his majority.

In 1843 he was chosen principal clerk of the House of Representatives. He labored hard during the Polk and Clay campaign of 1844, for which services he was tendered a position in the Treasury Department, which he accepted. In the National Convention of 1848 his father, Elisha G. English, and his uncle, Rev. W. English, were Vice Presidents, and two other uncles, delegates. It was at this convention that he first met Samuel J. Tilden, who was a delegate from the State of New York. Mr. English is a Democrat by birth, education and conviction, and fearlessly upholds the principles of Democracy.

His own idea of what those principles are can be best understood by the following forcible words uttered by him in a recent interview:

"I am for honesty in money as in politics and morals, and think the great material and business interests of this country should be placed upon the most solid basis, and as far as possible from the blighting influence of demagogues. At the same time I am opposed to class legislation and in favor of protecting and fostering the interests of the laboring and producing classes in every legitimate way possible. A pure, economical, constitutional Government that will protect the liberty of the people and the property of the people without destroying the rights of the States or aggrandizing its own powers beyond the limits of the Constitution, is the kind of government contemplated by the fathers, and by that I think the Democracy propose to stand."

He was Clerk of the Claims Committee in the United States Senate in 1850, and at the close of the session he resigned his position and retired into private life. In October of the same year, in response to the call of the people, he was elected Secretary of the Constitutional Convention, which assembled at Indianapolis. The adoption of the new Constitution necessitated the revision of the State laws, and 1851 Mr. English was elected to represent his county in the State Legislature. So popular was he at this time, that notwithstanding he was only 29 years of age, he was elected Speaker of the House, and during his three months in that capacity no appeal was taken from any of his decisions. In 1852 he was elected to Congress, at the age of 30, entering it at the beginning of Pierce's Administration. He served four terms, attracting public attention by the part he took in the Kansas-Nebraska discussion. He was opposed to the admission of Kansas into the Union under the Lecompton Constitution until that instrument had been ratified by the will of the people.

Under his bill, known as the "English bill," which finally became a law, the question of the admission of Kansas was referred back to the people of Kansas, and they voted against it. He was still a member of Congress when the vote was cast to admit Kansas as a State, and he voted for her admission.

He was a bitter opponent of Know-Nothingism and Search, Seizure and Confiscation. During the war he was a staunch advocate of the Union. At the close of the Thirty-sixth Congress he retired from politics, and in the spring of 1863, in company with J. F. D. Lanier and other prominent capitalists, he established the First National Bank of Indianapolis. In this position he was brought into prominence as a financier. In 1877 he retired from the Presidency of the bank, and has since lived in retirement.

In personal appearance Mr. English is above the average height, with an erect, well-made figure. His head is of good size with regular features, and the forehead is high and broad. He is dignified and urbane in his manners and is very pleasing in his address. In his political career he has never been defeated, which fact augurs well for his election to the Vice Presidency.

The Reformed Church in a Dilemma.

The organization of the Trinity Reform Church of this city, the causes which led to such organization and its subsequent progress, have from time to time been made public through these columns. The total membership at present is 22, while the Sunday School connected with the new church has already reached a scholarship of 92 and is growing larger each week. The Treasurers report a balance in their hands in favor of both the church and Sunday School, and everything, looking towards the established success of the organization, is in a prosperous condition. At the time of the formation of the church Messrs. Lindsay and VanEmburgh were installed as elders and Mr. Kilbourn as deacon—these gentlemen afterwards meeting and forming the Consistory. It was their belief, however—as they have stated since—that all matters relating to the future of the organization had been satisfactorily and finally arranged; and they had been led to understand, from what had been told them by prominent members of the church, that provision had been made for the purchase of the building they were occupying as a place of worship. After coming together, the Consistory discovered that although the Classis of Newark had received the petitions and propositions of the Trinity Reformed Church relating to the purchase of the building, they had not approved of such a course and consequently the building and grounds were to be sold by the Sheriff of the county on the foreclosure of a mortgage held by the Mutual Life Ins. Co. of N. Y. city, amounting to $10,000 and accrued interest. Had they known that such was the condition of affairs, Messrs Lindsay, Van Emburgh and Kilbourn would not have accepted their election as officers of the organization; but only learning of it after their installation, it became a matter of duty with them to use every endeavor and begrudge no effort that would result for the benefit of the church. Recognizing the fact that nothing towards the end in view could be obtained from Plainfield or the Church itself, they did what was in their judgment the next best thing—they applied to the Classis of Newark for advice in the matter, and asked it to assist them in buying the building. Mr. Van Emburgh represented the Trinity Reformed church of Plainfield at a meeting of the Classis, and laid the cause of his church before the gentlemen who composed the body. The proposition and request met with the most decided and intense opposition; and arguments most astonishing and surprising to those interested in the matter, were cited against the petition by the very ones who had already lent their assistance towards the formation of the church in Plainfield. Both Messrs VanEmburgh and Lindsay (the latter also being present unofficially at the meeting of the Classis) found that no assistance would be given by the body to which they had appealed. Untiring in their labors, these gentlemen took their cause before the Domestic Board of Missions, and by sheer perseverance, with unabated spirit, overcome all obstacles and achieved most gratifying success as far as it went. The Board paid $4,000 towards the purchase, and agreed to meet the interest for the next three years arising on a new mortgage of $8,000. In consequence, the building and grounds became the property of the Trinity Reformed church of Plainfield, and they occupy it for the coming three years without the expenditure of a cent of money. But although the organization now own a house of worship, they possess no furniture, nor such necessary appurtenances as carpets, lamps, pews, furnace, organ and chandeliers. Mr Wm B. Stewart holds a mortgage of $2,500 on such movable property as is contained in the building, as well as additional mortgages given to secure him from such a result as a depreciation of the real estate, and to cover such judgments and bills against the church as he has from time to time met out of his own pocket. This gentleman has already lost many thousands of dollars by his connection with the church under its different managements, and naturally feels that some consideration is due him from the new organization. By the late foreclosure of the first mortgage of $10,000 and interest, Mr. Stewart loses entirely a second mortgage of $10,000 held by him. He now proposes to cancel all claims he at present holds against the chattels of the church, for the sum of $5,000—$500 to be paid in cash, and the balance on easy terms that he is willing to arrange with the present organization.

The above facts were laid before the members of the church by the Consistory, at a meeting held last Wednesday evening. Much discussion as to the best course to pursue, arose, but no decision was arrived at. It was the almost universal opinion that so young a church could not assume with safety a debt of $5,000; and some advised the feasibility of allowing Mr. Stewart to take the property he held claim upon.

That gentleman said in his own behalf and explanation, that he did not desire to press the church in the matter. The property in question cost $10,000, and he thought at present it was worth at least 20 per cent of such cost. The $500 cash he asked was to pay some judgments against the church that he had met to prevent the property being sold out at a sacrifice, long ago. He knew that the church was in no condition to pay the balance, and he would, in consequence, make the terms so easy that no one need feel sore about it. He thought that as long as he felt no soreness over the matter, no one else had a right to; and expressed his intention to continue to help and give to the church as much as any one else.

The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the Consistory.

New Jersey Wine.

This wine for sickness has long been in popular favor, but by no means intoxicating in its nature. We refer to Speer's Port Grape Wine, which has been introduced into the hospitals and among the first families in New York, the principal drug stores in this city, by Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J., who has devoted himself for many years to the cultivation of the Oporto Grape, and the study of fermentations, and producing an article, the medical properties of which are said by gentlemen of reputation to be unsurpassed. Mr. Speer ferments his wine by a new process, peculiar to himself, without the addition of sugar or spirits. We doubt whether there is a vineyard in the old or new world that can yield a wine at all comparable to this in richness or delicacy of flavor. All first-class druggists keep it.

The above extract from the New York Herald shows the appreciation in which Speer's wine is held abroad. We have drank the wine and can truthfully endorse what the above extract says concerning its good qualities. [illegible] than any wine we ever drank.—Boston Traveler. For sale by all druggists. jy2w4

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The Essex Gun Club having been authorized by the President of the New Jersey State Sportsmen's Association, to take charge of the Tournament for the season of 1880, it is proposed to hold said Tournament at Newark, on June 29th and 30th, July 1st and 2d. Programmes will be issued as soon as possible and sent to all parts of the State.

The reason why women have little or no success at fishing is because but few of them possess nerve enough to hold the worm between their teeth so that they can use both hands in getting the hook out of their back hair.

That prince of birds, the woodcock, was never more plentiful in New Jersey than this season. The late drouth was favorable, as the young birds escaped the floods, but the usual sport after July 4 is denied the sportsman, for, under the new law, squirrel and woodcock are not to be shot until September 1. As the woodcock is a bird of passage, thousands will have flown beyond the reach of the hunter before the legal season commences. We understand that fifteen sportsmen of this section have formed themselves into a club to enforce the law and will post themselves on the most favorable woodcock grounds on the Fourth to detect and punish any infringement.—Morristown Banner.

Black bass fishing will not be lawful till July 1st.

Years ago, we quietly dropped bait fishing as a habit. We were led to do so from finding that our light fly rod and our book of flies, assorted in size and colors, brought to our creel larger sized and greater numbers of fish than the wriggling worm or dirty—nasty—sturgeon-roe of our angling companions. We could always find a shallow, a pool or a rapid over which to make our cast when on a fishing jaunt with our brother fisherman, who perhaps were wedged and cramped in anchored boat in said stream, patient but luckless, awaiting the bite that came not; while we were wading oft-times to the waist, with the cool water lapping our limbs with a pat-a-pat and a musical gurgle that tempered the blood into a healthy glow, and the brain into a healthy appreciation of the many good things that were lying around loose for us; with flies searching out the likely eddy or the promising pool, and with all the best muscles in our body brought into active play, as we made our casts and waded here and there, across the rapids and through the shallows and pools.

We do not mean that "we won't use bait." No! no! If we go a-fishing—we go to catch fish, if they are to be caught—and if they won't take our flies, and do take our friend's worms, why, then begging your honor's pardon—words we'll use.

But we do mean to say, that, for nearly all kinds of fish that lie in the streams of our State, the fly, when used with judgment and skill, is the most killing lure. Of course we exclude the catfish and the sucker, that are purely bottom feeders, but given a sharp rayed fish, be it a chub, a perch, a "sunny," a black bass or a striped one, and a relatively shallow pool or rapid, and we'll bet that our catch will be bigger than that of the luckiest and best worm or goggle goyle baiter that ever sat on a log or tossed his heavy lead into the deep waters.—Dr. Biles.

Undoubtedly there are parties; pot-hunters, who will violate the law regarding the shooting of woodcock before the first day of September, and undoubtedly there will be found persons who, having a toothsome relish for this game bird, will purchase them of said pot-hunters. We therefore desire to remind such violators of the law that the penalty for killing or having unlawfully in possession any woodcock between the 1st day of January and the 1st day of September of each year (the law having been changed last winter) is Ten Dollars for each bird. The various game societies throughout the State are offering rewards to any person giving information to them which shall lead to the arrest and conviction of said violators of the game laws. The members of The New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society are determined to rigidly enforce the law on the subject and prosecute to the fullest extent any and all persons caught killing or having unlawfully in possession woodcock. Any information that will lead to such a desired object by those wishing the law upheld, should be sent to the Secretary, at Plainfield.

The census enumerators in Elizabeth have completed their labors, and are now revising their work. The total population of the city exceeds 27,000, being an increase of 5,000 since the last census. The First, Second and Third wards show the greatest percentage of increase. The population of the Fourth ward has increased 250 in the past five years and 350 since the last census.

COMMENTS.

Garfield was once a Campbellite Baptist minister and Arthur is the son of a Baptist minister. Methodism in Republican politics has received a set back.

Will Garfield call Schuyler Colfax to his Cabinet if elected?

Who now is for Blaine first, last and all the time, excepting Gail Hamilton?

The dark horse has the salary-grab ringbone, the DeGolyer spavin, and the Credit Mobilier glanders.

Our Republican exchanges take pride in saying that Garfield is "a poor man." He is undoubtedly a poor man to be President.

Garfield's pedigree seems to be a trifle mixed. Already it is said that he came from Welsh, Irish and Dutch stock. And then there was his Credit Mobilier stock.

Garfield used to be a canaller—he can glide up Salt river next November in a canal boat. A cheap transportation.

The New York Herald says truly that the American people "have not closed the doors of the White House firmly against imperialism only to open them on oiled hinges to corruption."

All good Democrats are taking a deep interest in the Herald's editorials, which invite Mr. Garfield to explain his alleged connection with De Golyer, and the Credit Mobilier. Query—Will he explain?

A correspondent of the Evening Post of Monday evening said:

"There is only contempt for Kelly and his gang. The story is told authentically that yesterday Matthew Conahan, chairman of the Nevada delegation, was invited over by a messenger from Kelly with a request that a meeting might be arranged. After some respectful inquiry regarding Mr. Kelly's health, Mr. Conahan asked the messenger if he would take back a faithful report of the message which he (Conahan) was about to deliver to him. Being assured that he would do so, Mr. Conahan told the messenger to say to Mr. Kelly that in the opinion of the Nevada delegation he (Kelly) was 'a political scoundrel with whom no gentleman on the Nevada delegation desired to associate.'"

It is amusing to see how the Republican press are bringing forward most prominently Judge Black's letter exculpating James A. Garfield. The lamentable ignorance of facts is apparent when we consider that Garfield, in his testimony, claimed that he never touched the gun and in fact never saw it. Black, on the other hand (who, by the way, was paid to write as he did) shields his client on the plea that he (Garfield) handled the gun, but didn't know that it was loaded. And the Republicans consider that such trashy attestation clears their candidate.

Instead of shut doors in liquor saloons on Sundays the new Massachusetts law now orders open windows all day long. All curtains, wooden screens, stained glass, or ground glass doors and windows must come down or stand aside, so that everybody can see what is going on within. This is a novel method to bring about the restrictions of temperance, and judging from the complaints against it, is not without its effects in the three or four weeks that it has been in force.

Our words do follow us. "Oakes Ames is dead," sadly remarks the Buffalo Courier, "but his note-book yet speaketh."

Wm. S. Young, captain of the lost steamer Narragansett, attended the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church in Jersey City on Sunday evening. During the sermon, Rev. Dr. Harcourt, the minister, denounced all the Narragansett's officers as cowards. Captain Young, who sat in front of the pulpit, rose, and said "any one who made such a charge was a liar." He was conducted to the nearest station-house by one of the trustees, and locked up to answer the charge of disorderly conduct.

HOW A SITTER WAS FIXED.

A shoemaker in the First Ward had been troubled considerably by parties coming into his little shop and loafing around his three-legged bench, talking politics and painting the floor with tobacco juice. Now he had exhausted his patience and forbearance had ceased to be a virtue with him, so he made up his mind that he would fix them. On Monday last two young men came in, ostensibly to enquire about mending a pair of shoes, but in reality to chew tobacco and whittle sticks with his shoe-knives. But that shoemaker was ready for them, and he had everything in readiness before they came in. There were two dilapidated shoemaker's benches near the wall, on which the setters were went to lounge, and on each of the hollowed-out bottoms of these benches the brilliant brain of the shoemaker had suggested that he should deposit some wax. The day was warm and the wax seemed to sweat with delight as the shoemaker smeared it on. "Sit down, my friends," he said, as he bent over his work to hide the grin lurking in the corners of his mouth. "It's very warm!"

"Yes," chorused the two, as they settled themselves on the wax, "we only called for a few minutes, and don't mean to stay long."

The shoemaker thought that if that wax did its duty he did not doubt but that the young men would set there for some time. He smiled all to himself while he worked and while the wax was warming, and cast anxious glances now and then to see if his friends were getting along well as far as they had got. It was nearing the noon hour and it occurred to the sitters that they would depart for home. They attempted to leave, but that wax had been purchased direct from the makers, and it held on like a postage stamp to an envelope. No, they didn't leave; they stayed right there where the wax was, and the shoemaker went out for his dinner. They were there at one o'clock, and at five o'clock they were there still, and if that wax had not been cut with a hot knife those sitters would have been there yet. That shoemaker has ordered a supply of wax from the same manufactory, and is now prepared to receive callers who wish to discuss the political affairs of the day.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DOGS!

Proclamation by the Mayor.

By virtue of an ordinance of the city of Plainfield, it is unlawful for any Dog to run at large within the limits of said city, from now until the first day of October next; UNLESS SECURELY MUZZLED WITH A STRONG, SUBSTANTIAL AND SAFE IRON BASKET MUZZLE, enclosing the whole mouth, so as to effectually prevent the dog from biting or snapping.

Every dog found running at large without a muzzle as prescribed by law, WILL BE TAKEN UP AND KILLED, unless redeemed within twenty-four hours upon the payment of one dollar.

Owners of dogs are particularly requested to give the above a prompt and faithful observance.

NATHAN HARPER, Mayor.

Dated, Plainfield, June 15th, 1880.

A DENIAL!

SIMPSON & CO.,

(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE of SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is INCORRECT; or in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient to allow of any being cut, independent of filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from

Pure Spring Water.

They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defence.

SIMPSON & CO.

Pure Milk!

The subscriber having purchased the milk route of Mr. L. White, is now supplying the route with milk from the

Potter Dairy Milk Farm,

Six miles from Plainfield. He solicits patronage and invites the attention of the State Inspector and the citizens of Plainfield to his dairy arrangements, and the purity and quality of his milk.

A CARD.

Being compelled by the increase of business to have an assistant, I have taken in my employ Mr. A. J. Mills, a mechanical specialist, for five years previous with the celebrated Dr. Norman W. Kingsley, M. D., D. D. S., of New York city, and for six years with Dr. Kingsley of Elizabeth. I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent, mechanical specialist in every particular. I will therefore take this method of proving to those that wish to take advantage of the lowest cost price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, viz: for 3 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole sets of teeth on a celluloid for $16, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect. We would strive to do only first-class work, and hope by so doing at the end of 3 months to secure favor and patronage by perfection in operations, rather than by cheap competition.

CHAS. B. THEIRS,

Office No. 13 Park Ave.

SOMETHING NEW.

Having purchased the right to use Harris' Patent Apparatus for Removing Night Soil and Cleaning Cesspools in this city, I respectfully solicit a trial of the machine, guaranteeing entire satisfaction in all cases. POETRY.

GOD CARES FOR ME.

I stood in the door at eventide,
My heart was full of fears;
And I saw the landscape before me lie
Through mists of rushing tears—
I thought to myself, the world is dark,
No light nor joy I see;
Nothing but toil and want is mine,
And no one cares for me.

A sparrow was twittering at my feet,
With its beautiful auburn head,
And looked at me with dark mild eyes,
As it picked up crumbs of bread,
And said to me in words as plain
As the words of a bird could be:
"I'm only a sparrow, a worthless bird,
But the dear Lord cares for me."

A lily was growing beside the hedge,
Beautiful, tall and white,
And it shone through the glossy leaves of green
Like an angel clothed in light;
And it said to me, as it waved its head
On the breeze soft and free:
"I'm only a lily, a useless flower,
But the Master cares for me."

Then it seemed that the hand of the loving Lord
Over my head was laid,
And he said to me: "O faithless child,
Wherefore art thou dismayed?
I clothe the lilies, I feed the birds,
I see the sparrows fall;
Nothing escapes My watchful eye,
My kindness is over all."

LOG OF A PLAINFIELDER.

NEW YORK TO GLASGOW.

"Steamer "Devonia,"
SATURDAY, May 29th, 1880.

Cheered by the presence of several friends who came to see me off. We left the dock at [illegible]:25 a. m. and reached the ocean about noon. Had lunch at 1 p. m., dinner at 5 and tea at 8. The sea smooth, weather clear and calm. Notice given that a meeting would be held in the Saloon for the purpose of making arrangements to have evening entertainments during the voyage. A jolly party of passengers on board. Soon made acquaintances. Retired early, with a Reverend Doctor and Ex-Judge as room mates.

SUNDAY, 30th.

Distance from Sandy Hook 286 miles.

Got up early, morning bright. Breakfast at 8. Religious services at 10:30, sermon by Rev. Joseph Brand, of Oberlin, Ohio, who gave us a short excellent discourse from 6th Matthew, "God the Father—God the Ruler." Afternoon service by Rev. E. H. Ward, of San Francisco, California, whose remarks were clear and logical. The afternoon was quietly spent by all the passengers in lounging and talking matters generally easy. Evening Services were of a general character and very interesting, singing, and speaking by both the clergy and laymen. I took a part in the exercises by giving the history of how the poet Cowper wrote the hymn—"God moves in a mysterious way." All retired about 11 o'clock.

MONDAY, 31st.

Distance made last 24 hours, 290 miles. From Sandy Hook, 576 miles.

A stiff breeze all day. Passed several vessels. Great many passengers seasick, but few at the table. Little or nothing was done for pleasure. In the evening we had an entertainment of music and speeches from several gentlemen. Questions offered for debate on Tuesday evening was—"Resolved, That woman is superior in mind to man."

TUESDAY, June 1st.

Distance last 24 hours, 313 miles. From Sandy Hook, 889 miles.

The sad news spread through the steamer that a young woman in the steerage had died of consumption. Her name was Elizabeth Kelly and her destination Scotland. The burial services were at 2 p. m. The corpse was let down into the ocean and gradually sunk out of sight. All the passengers who were well enough attended the burial, and the solemnity of the occasion will never be forgotten. The birth of a spirit into another state of existence in the midst of the mighty ocean was impressively solemn. The officers of the ship gave the poor woman every attention and kindness within their power to bestow. Nearly one-half the passengers sick today. Debate did not come off this evening.

WEDNESDAY, 2d.

Distance last 24 hours, 308 miles. From Sandy Hook, 1,197 miles.

A magnificent bright sunny morning. Saw many icebergs, some of them very large, a great sight to behold. Passengers nearly all well again. Playing games on deck were the amusements of the day. I was requested to conduct the religious exercises, which I did to the best of my ability. Debate came off this evening and an interesting time we had of it. The entire day was enjoyable.

THURSDAY, 3rd.

Distance last 24 hours, 285 miles. From Sandy Hook, 1,482 miles.

A remarkably smooth sea. Weather warm. Saw one ship early in the morning. Passengers enjoying themselves much. The grandest entertainment of the voyage was given this evening in the Saloon; the music was first-class, all the passengers were present and had a splendid time. Our ladies and gentlemen begin to know each other well. We are one large family and deeply interested in each other.

FRIDAY, 4th.

Distance last 24 hours, 286 miles. From Sandy Hook, 1,768 miles.

Another charming day. The sea perfectly smooth. Not a vessel in sight. The grand ball came off this afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock. I took a lively part in it. The event of the evening was the spelling match; it was a laughable affair. Several fine speeches were given.

SATURDAY, 5th.

Distance last 24 hours, 297 miles. From Sandy Hook, 2,065 miles.

No white caps on the sea. Passengers busy all day playing a variety of games. The evening was taken up in conversation by little social groups throughout the Saloons, all played checkers all the evening.

SUNDAY, 6th.

Distance last 24 hours, 305 miles. From Sandy Hook, 2,370 miles.

A cloudy and misty day. In the afternoon the wind blew up from the West into a stiff breeze, causing the ship to roll considerably. There were two religious services. I read more to-day than on any other of the voyage. The vessel seems to make much progress in sailing. It was a quiet day with the passengers.

MONDAY, 7th.

Distance last 24 hours, 309 miles. From Sandy Hook, 2,679 miles.

This day has been magnificent. A fine breeze. Steamer running along nicely. The Engineer took me through the machinery and engine rooms, and the locality where the meat is kept, 700 tons of fresh meat, in value $55,000.

GLASGOW, SCOTLAND, June 8th.

12 m., Scotland time. 7 a. m., New York time.

We arrived in this fine city about 11 p. m. last night, safe and sound. We sailed along the North West coast of Ireland yesterday morning, a dreary shore. Our noble Captain ran the Devonia through a smooth sea, near to the Giant's Causeway. That was a grand sight. It and the ocean betoken the mightiness of God's power. Adieu!

HEARTY OLD AGE AND THE CAUSE.

There was a glimpse of gray darting up the steps, a quick, light latch rattling and a slam of the door, and the plain front of a small office on one of the chief thoroughfares in the city had resumed the quiet, modest air which day in and day out suggests nothing but repose and almost entire inactivity.

Yet through that door had just passed a splendid specimen of old age and a magnificent example of pluck and perseverance, while over the door was his name; a name known in every city, village and hamlet around the chain of great lakes; a name the owner of which has been a leader in the great business interests of the northwest, a person who less than five years ago was a millionaire and a worker.

Then his office was not one room plainly fitted, but a handsome suit of apartments elegantly finished and furnished; then he had stenographers accountants, telegraph operators, clerks, messengers and porters; now his books are kept, his errands are done and all details of his work are performed by himself.

Now he is upward of sixty years of age, a poor man in dollars and cents, but in good health, good spirits, energy and ambition he is a Crœsus. Five years ago scores of superintendents and managers reported almost hourly to him for instructions; then he insured his own property, risked thousands of dollars daily in business enterprises; paid out thousands daily for wages and made profits amounting to thousands. Then he was a genial, energetic millionaire; now he is a sociable, whole-souled, industrious and ambitious man. Then he was—but here he comes, let's follow him.

With his gray and well-shaped head leaning in advance of a slightly stooping but firmly knit frame, he walks quickly up the street and is just going to turn the corner when, "How are you? Anything new to-day?" and he has stopped to speak to a new acquaintance. The answer is given, the old gentleman smiles, turns lightly on his heel as he says, "Good day," and passes on, having made a firm and old friend of the new acquaintance. To gain a few seconds' time he loses his dignity and runs several steps to get ahead of a street car. Just then he espies a customer three or four rods away and actually shouts, "Hello." This from an old man and one who was once a millionaire results in a business transaction which brings in something like $1.50 to the one who shouted.

So he goes through rain, wind, and sunshine, always on the qui vive, always sociable, pleasant and with his eye on the main chance. His loss of wealth—honorably lost—does not seem to weigh on his mind an instant. He does not appear to realize that he is old; he is alike to all, young or old, rich or poor, and, in brief, his condition is pithily described by himself as follows:

"You see, my boy, I have a good stomach and take care of it. Never had the dyspepsia or any other ailment in my life."—Detroit Free Press.

A LADY ON GYMNASTICS.

"A Lady Physician" writes to a New York paper as follows:

For years past I have been convinced that the mania for gymnastic exercise, athletic development and muscular power has been productive of a vast deal of harm. Years ago a theory in vogue for gaining health was dieting and hundreds of people dieted themselves into insanity or the grave. Now the mania is for exercise, and hundreds of young men, and (although it may seem a rediculous statement) young women also, are killing themselves by "exercise." Nature rebels at "knotted" muscles, and requires the full payment of a serious penalty whenever the folly is perpetrated of developing muscle as a business, through the swinging of dum-bells and Indian clubs. The long walks which are taken too frequently and with quite too much vim, under the influence of a spirit of emulation to win a bet, are productive of far more injury than benefit. But most of all, I want to call atention to the idea of daily bathing. It is a simple form of suicide, lacking the element of crime, because done through the ignorance; lacking the horror, because it lacks the crimson stains and mangled form of the ordinary suicide.

Our young men are not content until they are scrubbed bald-headed by the willing barber, and look in their youth very "near of kin" indeed to their aged grandsires. Were rebellion raised when the whiskers are tampered with, and the fact that fashion benevolently and fortunately guards against them, no doubt they, too, would be shampooed out of existence so effectually as to leave the "coming man" without that becoming adornment.

The poor body is literally scrubbed out of existence. Nature guards her outposts very jealously, but she cannot do double duty in one direction without signal failure in some other. Consequently, when the surface of the body is daily denude of the cuticle under the vigorous application of the barbarous "coarse towel," she must repair damages at the expense of the digestion or the natural eliminations of morbid matter; some organ loses the harmony with its fellows which is necessary to a perfect whole. Cleanliness is not only "next to godliness," but a very large part of it, and it is highly important that bathing should be employed as a hygienic force; but not the shower-bath when an exhausted body is slowly waking from an unnatural sleep, nor a cold sponge when the day's duties have exhausted both mind and body. To change the clothing frequently and permit a thorough airing, to expose the entire surface of the body for a few moments to the air of the room on rising and retiring, a light brushing with a soft brush or fine towel, and a good bath once or twice a week are all that an American can do and retain health. Light exercise of those muscles not called into play in the daily routine is also desirable, but it should be calisthenic, not gymnastic, and should not include a vigorous pounding of the chest, than which nothing can be worse for the lungs.

"I'm a restin'," said a tramp, yesterday, to a person who interrogated him. "This is my vacation. The goods which I manufacture are now out of season." And he took off the rim of his hat from which his hair projected like a Prince-of-Wales plume. In the inside was pasted a piece of paper bearing the date "May, 8, 1900—1 P. M." "That," he said, cheerfully, "is the next eclipse of the sun. Shall sell the rest of my smoked glass then." And, with an enterprising air, he resumed his vacation.

A RUNAWAY HUSBAND.

One day last week a man residing in East Toledo, Ohio, skipped from his family and brought up in Detroit. His wife got a clew to his whereabouts and came on after him, and yesterday she had an interview with him at the Central Station, where he had been run in for the purpose. She had no tears to shed. On the contrary, her hair had a fighting hang, and as soon as she could get her breath, she began:

"So, you miserable little apology for a human being, you skipped out, did you?"

No reply.

"After I had washed and scrubbed and sewed for nearly twenty years to support you, you got tired of your family, did you? Our style of living wasn't tony enough to suit you, and you wanted a diamond pin and cane!"

"Say, Lucy, I'm sorry," he mumbled.

"Well, I ain't," she snapped. "No, sir! On the contrary, I'm glad of it! You've chewed tobacco and drank whisky and whittled shingles and loafed on the corners at my expense just as long as you ever will."

"What do you want of me then?"

"Want of you? Why, I want to clear my character! All our neighbors say that you run away from me, and some pity me and some laugh. You run away from me? Why, you low-down corner loafer, you couldn't run away from anything but a spade or an axe. I followed you to get this matter straight. I've got to live there, and I'm not going to be either pitied or laughed at!"

"What do you want?" he asked.

"Here's what I want!" she said, as she seized his collar and twisted him around. "Now you take that—and that—and that—and I'll have these officers sign a paper that I found you and kicked you out to take care of yourself! Now you git! Don't you ever write me, don't you ever dare to come back to me! Even if I hear that you ever tell anybody that you were married to me, I'll buy a shot-gun and hunt for you!"

The husband sneaked out doors and down the street, and the wife, having the "docks" in her pocket, walked the other way, muttering to herself:

"Skipped out! Run away from his family! Well, his old shirts will make a mop worth twice the value of his whole body! Now, I want to see some one grin in the face of this testimonial that I raised him right off his heels!"

HAD ENOUGH OF IT.

A western editor, whose style of writing was calculated to arouse people to deeds of gore, being himself not much on muscle, found it necessary to keep a fighting editor, and he had speaking tube connected with a fighter's room to call him when danger required. One day a gentleman whom the editor had referred to as a "cross-eyed dromedary," came in to request a correction, and as the fighting editor was out he did not respond to the signal of distress, and while the editor and his visitor were on the floor under the desk the farmer agreed to correct the mistake and the irate man left. Pretty soon a gentleman from the rural districts came in to give the editor a big squash and get a notice, and about that time the fighting editor returned, and a boy in his room told him that the boss wanted help. The man of war was quick to respond, and dashing into the chief's room and seeing the latter in a somewhat disordered condition—the result of his previous visit—he thought the countryman was the cause of it, and clinched him, and, after staving up some funiture ran the victim across the street to where an empty hearse was standing in front of an undertaker's shop, into the vehicle he jammed the farmer and shut the door. The commotion he had created scared the horses attached to the hearse, and they started off a dead run. People soon noticed the runaway and ran after it and were shocked at beholding the hearse collide with a post and become a complete wreck; and their horror at seeing a human body precipitate to the sidewalk was only equaled by their amazement at seeing it spring nimbly to its feet and take off across the country yelling murder. They thought it was an attempt to bury a man alive, and party went down to lynch the undertaker, while the rest pursued the farmer who was found hiding in a swamp. And after he was brought in it took over three hours to get matters explained, and then the farmer went befor a justice of the peace and made an affidavit that he hoped to be struck by lightning if he ever entered a newspaper office again.

SOME LEADING QUESTIONS.

A young man who looked as if he had a heap of things on his mind, but who struggled hard to appear outwardly calm, put a five-dollar bill on the desk of a Detroit lawyer, recently, and said:

"I want to ask you a few leading questions."

"Go ahead," was the reply, as the money was quickly thrust out of sight.

"If I am engaged to a girl and I go back on her, what can she do?"

"Sue you for breach of promise."

"But, if she goes back on me, what can I do?"

"Hunt up another."

"Um! Suppose I have presented her with a two-dollar fan, a pair of bracelets, a parasol and a ring."

"Then she's so much ahead."

"If I believe that her infatuation for another is but a passing whim, and I flourish a revolver and talk of suicide, what then?"

"Her father will probably pick you up and drop you into the first mud-puddle."

"Um! Suppose I had presented her mother with a twenty-shilling umbrella?"

"Then she'll keep dry."

"And her brother with an accordeon?"

"Then he'll worry the neighbors."

"Suppose, sir, I had, for the sake of making myself solid with the old man, presented him with sixteen dollars' worth of watch-dog?"

"He'll set him upon you if you have any trouble."

"Um! Have I no redress?"

"Yes, sir; go and lick the prairie ranger who has stolen away your girl's affections."

"I'll do it."

"Glad to hear it. I'll defend your case for twenty dollars."

"Um?"

"Come to think of it, he is a bigger man than I am."

"Then let him lick you, and I'll make it cost him $50."

"Um! I'll think of it."

"Um! Office hours from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m."

And the young man, troubled with inward agitation took himself out.—Detroit Free Press.

When the census-taker, wishing to compliment, said to a citizen: "Ah, sir, you've a wife of a hundred!" The lady grabbed a rolling-pin and sailed in on him, yelling: "You villain, I told you I was only 25. Don't you dare to put it down as 100!"

HANCOCK.

In presenting General Winfield Scott Hancock to the voters of the United States as a Presidential candidate, the Democrats in convention at Cincinnati, covered themselves with honor and nobly espoused the best interests of country. Not because the Democratic party was wanting in reliable and worthy nominating material, but because of all others there mentioned, General Hancock was the man most eminently qualified to advance the peoples' good at the present time.

His private character is above reproach and his public record throughout is loyalty itself.

As a soldier, he was in the thickest of the fight bravely defending the Union, but when hostilities terminated, as Military Governor of Louisiana and Texas, he sheathed the sword and upheld the Constitution by bowing to the majesty of civil right.

That is the kind of man for President.

No grabbing, scheming politician, but a patriot from instinct and uniform action.

With Hancock in the White House, and the superior class of statesmen he will call into the Cabinet, there will be an end to the bitterness of sectional hate, and a re-inauguration of national brotherhood, peace and prosperity. Then instead of miserable partisan spite, dignified government will prevail, and united efforts be put forth to develope resources and augment the wealth and happiness of a common country.

For that every sincere patriot ardently yearns.

A student of the Constitution from boyhood, as President he will make it the guiding star of official conduct. With such a hand at the helm the Ship of State cannot be wrecked, but sail on in glorious majesty.

Hancock is the man to serve and save the Republic in peace, as he did in war.

He is honest.
He is capable.
He is of good report.
For President,
WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

Under the above head the New York Herald of Tuesday contained a column editorial, reviewing the sections contained in the Democratic and Republican platforms. It leads off with Whatever may be said against the Democratic platform it cannot be denied that it is an honest and business-like document, and in this respect it is very unlike the bragging and blustering Republican platform. * * * * *

It proposes reforms to which those who have benefited by old abuses will of course object, but which will relieve and benefit the people; that it courageously strikes at monopolists, subsidy mongers and jobbers. Naturally monopolists, jobbers and subsidy mongers do not like it; but then it was scarcely to be expected that they would. These classes, who wish to live on the taxpayers as they have long done, prefer the Republican platform, and they are right. That platform has nothing in it distasteful to them. * * * * *

It is often said that platforms mean nothing; but, in the present instance, it happens that the national platforms represent pretty accurately the spirit of the two parties. The Republican platform looks backward, the Democratic platform looks ahead. The Republican platform deals in and appeals to old and mischievious sectional issues; the Democratic platform, though not perfect, is yet thoroughly national and not sectional in its spirit. The Republican platform favors or encourages monopolies; the Democratic platform favors the taxpayers—the people. * * * * * The Republicans talk vaguely of protecting the liberties of all; the Democrats boldly declare that "the right of a free ballot is the right preservative of all rights, and must and shall be maintained in every part of the United States." We have looked for some other points for comparison, but the Republican platform does not afford them. It is weak, shallow, wordy, purposely vague, and would make the fathers of the party blush with anger if they could read it in their graves; for those men—the Sumners, Andrews, Giddings, Lovejoys—were not accustomed to the mincing gait and cautious verbosity of their successors.

READ THE LOG.

We invite attention to the "Log of a Plainfielder" on the outside of our present issue. It is, as the initials denote, from the pen of our worthy fellow citizen ex-Judge Good, and furnishes an interesting review of passenger life on board a steamer European bound. We hope to receive further contributions from the same source. Our friend, the Judge, evidently had a pleasant time on the ocean, and we sincerely trust like good fortune will attend his land travels and bring him safely home.

General Grant's income is reported to be $0,000 a year.

The Republicans have elected Marshall Jewell chairman of their National Committee.

The Veterans are up and doing in Plainfield. Hancock and Victory is the watchword.

Chief Judge William Edmund Curtis, of the Superior Court, of New York, died on Tuesday last.

The Young Democracy of Rahway have organized a campaign club similar to the Silver's Legion of 1876.

The Republicans found that there was a lively Democratic corpse in Plainfield last Wednesday night.

A sudden kiss made a young lady in Indiana crazy.—[Exchange. Crazy for more, we presume.—[Norristown Herald.

A Boston artist painted an orange peel on the sidewalk so naturally that six fat men slipped down on it.—Boston Post.

The Democrats cannot find anything further against Garfield.—Times.

Is that so? We should judge they have found too much against him already.

General Alfred T. Pierson, one of Senator Cameron's leaders in Pennsylvania, has announced that he shall support Hancock & English. Still the converts come.

The New Jersey colored men, having been cheated at Chicago, have called a State Convention to take steps to find out what they may expect from Garfield in case of his election.

The Republicans were so anxious to learn who were the speakers so rapturously applauded at the Veteran's meeting last Wednesday evening, as to send messengers to the rooms to ascertain.

Col. John W. Forney is an outspoken Hancock man, so is Leonard W Jerome, a prominent banker of New York. Both were strong Republicans until now. These are but two notable instances.

The Republican papers are publishing Garfield's denial before the Poland Committee, without the report of the Committee. This is like publishing the evidence of a defendant without the verdict of the jury.

It is now alleged by the Republican press that Gen. Hancock introduced the Army worm. Well, what of it? The Army worm is harmless when compared to the Radical leech, which has devastated the Republic and sucked the National Treasury dry.

Senator elect, Mahone, of Virginia, who is the leader of the "Readjusters," and who was in favor of Grant had he been nominated at Chicago, has declared himself for Hancock and English. This does away with all doubt as to how Virginia will vote in November next.

The Republican State Central Committee have decided on Wednesday, Aug. 18, and Trenton the place, of holding the Republican Convention to nominate a candidate for Governor and Presidential electoral ticket. The Democrats will not hold their convention until September.

The first President of this country was named Hancock—for John Hancock was not only the first signer of the Declaration of Independence, but the President of the first Continental Congress, and its President, with certain necessary functions, when the articles of confederation were adopted.

William P. Tonry, the husband of Mrs. Surratt's daughter, denies that he abused General Hancock, as reported by the Baltimore American in an alleged interview. The American is a Republican paper and the manufactured talk with Tonry and Mrs. Tonry was telegraphed over the country. Tonry appeared in a card in the Baltimore Sun on Saturday, denying the whole story.

The Cincinnati Commercial (the Republican paper of that city), the day before Garfield's nomination said: "The most contemptible thing thus far at Chicago is the chatter about Garfield. He has not a record to run on for President, and it is extreme foolishness to be wasting time on him. The Garfield talk is merely to interfere with Sherman, and should be discountenanced as dishonest.

The Republican papers are drawing picturesque contrasts between Garfield as a canal-boy at the helm of a canal boat, and Garfield at the helm of the ship of State. This kind of nonsense will do to tell to the "land lubbers," but it sounds ridiculous to old "canalers" like ourselves. A canal-boy, instead of being at the helm of the boat, is usually placed at the helm of the mule on the towpath.

At last the Radicals have found something to say against Hancock. They charge him with being a handsome man, courteous, gallant and chivalric, the boast of the army and the idol of the ladies. These facts, they urge, ought to keep him out of the Presidential chair. They believe that no man who does not look like four elephants chained together ought to fill the chair once occupied by Abraham Lincoln.

Gen. James S. Brisbin, of Pennsylvania, a gallant soldier and heretofore an influential and active Republican worker, has announced his intention to support Gen. Hancock, and has written a glowing sketch of the life and services of the Democratic nominee. Col. John W. Forney also supports Gen. Hancock and predicts his triumphant election. He says a hundred thousand Republicans will vote for Hancock.

General James B. Weaver, of Iowa, Greenback candidate for President, says that he confidently expects to be the next President of the United States. He claims that the Greenbackers will carry Maine, Michigan, Wisconsin, Texas and probably two or three other States, and thus throw the election into the House, where it will be decided in his favor by Mr. De La Matyr, the Greenbacker from Indiana, alleged to hold the balance of power. Jess so.

HIT 'EM AGAIN.

The Republican press have been lying lately. They said that J. S. Black wrote Hancock's famous "No. 40" order. A despatch from Mr Black to the World, dated July 7, says:

To the Editor of the World, New York.
I am not the author of General Hancock's letters or orders concerning Louisiana. I know nothing of them until they were published.
London, July 7, 1880. J. S. BLACK.

Organization of the Hancock Veteran Association.

Republicans and Democratic Soldiers and Sailors Falling into Line, Together—A Large Enrollment of the Next President's Former Comrades—Superb Words for the Hero of Gettysburg.

The great enthusiasm felt by the old soldiers and sailors of the late war, for their former comrade and leader General Winfield Scott Hancock, was evidenced by the large number of veterans who gathered at the Democratic Headquarters on last Wednesday evening for the purpose of organizing themselves into an association, and during next Fall, to again follow their gallant leader on to victory.

Mr. E. C. Morse, on being appointed temporary chairman, stated in brief, the object that had called them together, and the meeting proceeded with the election of officers.

Col. Julian Scott followed with some good advice as to the kind of an organization that would be most satisfactory and effective. "We have among us," he continued, "a brave comrade whom I would like to see President of this association. He has served with honor in the Army of the West, and is a resident and property owner amongst us. I would therefore nominate for such position, Major Eugene A. Gross."

That gentleman's name was received with applause and he was elected by the united voice of those present. Col. B. F. Onderdonk, upon being nominated as first vice president, begged to decline. Col. Scott thereupon reminded the officer of his reputation in the army—"You always went where you were sent, and stayed where you were put." As the meeting would not accept a declination from Col. Onderdonk, that gentleman accepted the honor, and acknowledged his sentiments of appreciation in a neat speech full of anecdote, amusing and appropriate.

Further elections resulted in the choice of other efficient gentlemen to fill the necessary offices—the following is the complete list.

President; Major Eugene A. Gross,
1st Vice President Colonel B. F. Onderdonk.
2nd " " Edward C. Morse.
3rd " " Samuel F. Randolph.
Secretary; Colonel Julian Scott.
Treasurer; James S. Vosseller.

The Secretary, called the roll of membership, showing sixty veterans of every political party who had banded themselves together to fight again for one who had never lead his comrades to defeat. Letters were also read from prominent soldiers expressing sympathy with the cause of the Association and assurances of success. Gen'l McQuade wrote in reference to the badge of the 2nd Army Corps, which it was intended to adopt as the badge of the coming campaign. The letter closed with—"We have got them! It is a walk over! But at the same time, keep an eye on the guns." These words as well as the following, were received with continued cheers and unbounded enthusiasm.

New York, July 1st, 1880.

The Delegates went to Cincinnati to pick out the most available man, and their selection of the soldier Statesman showed that they felt the gravity of the situation and were determined to act with sound judgment. It means to this country peace, true liberty and economy. It means that designing men shall no longer for their own selfish purposes keep alive sectional bitterness and bad blood. The soldiers who have followed and confided in Hancock when their lives were at stake, will just as confidently assign to him the government of this great country, knowing that the loyalty displayed by him in the war is just as bright as ever in him, and that the skill shown by him on the battle field will find its counterpart in the administration of the laws. Hancock and Victory.

Yours ever,
WM. F. SMITH.

ORANGE, June 30, 1880.

I am very glad, but not at all surprised, to learn that so many of our old comrades are organizing to support Gen. Hancock. The General did so much to ensure the success of the war; knew so well what it was for and perceived so clearly when it was over that he deserves the hearty and enthusiastic assistance of all the old soldiers. That he will receive the support of the great majority of them, I do not doubt. I trust that the minority in this state will be too small to be counted, and that we shall all work with the utmost energy for the success of our gallant comrade.

With my cordial greeting to my old companions in arms and my best wishes for the complete success of the organization,

I am sincerely yours,
G. B. McCLELLAN.

GOVERNOR'S ISLAND, July 6th, 1880.

Please accept my thanks for your cordial congratulations of the 28th ultimo, and express the same also to those with you who are so earnestly working in my behalf.

Very truly yours,
W. S. HANCOCK.

Captain James Brady, a gentleman well known in the choicest circles of Plainfield society, and a prominent member of the Tammany organization of New York city, was enthusiastically called upon for a speech. We regret exceedingly that want of space prevents us from giving his words in full, and that the following extracts only can be recorded. "Gentlemen," he began, "there is nothing I can tell you different from that which you already know. We are now about entering upon a contest that is not exceeded in importance by any that have preceded it. The campaign that opened previous to the election of Abraham Lincoln, was undoubtedly productive of much enthusiasm that showed itself on the surface; but I for one, feel—in fact, know—that the interests that are at stake in the contest before us, are paramount to those which arose at the time to which I refer. The Republican party have, for the past years, been steadily undermining our institutions and ruining our country's government, in the face of the fact that as a party it should have died long ago. It was created for a purpose, and since the passage of the amendments to the Constitution, and the accomplishment of such purpose, it has no right to longer exist. Since then, however, it has been kept together by the cohesive power of party plunder. The Republicans have been endeavoring for years to centralize the power of government at one point, and thus lay the axe at the root of the true principal of liberty; while, on the other hand, the Democrats are upholding the rights of civil power and the true elements of state sovereignty, without which our form of government would soon be scattered in ruin over the face of our country. To use an expression of the Frenchmen, 'our friends, the enemy,' at Chicago—like a dog returning to its vomit—after thirty and more ballots, nominated a man thoroughly well fitted to carry out the principles they follow. And who is this man? He entered the war as a Colonel of a regiment of volunteers from Ohio. But he did not stay at the head of his men—instead, left the place shortly for a soft berth on the staff of General Rosecrans. Nor did he remain there either; but left that position to stump his native state to help elect himself to a seat in Congress. How this action suffers in comparison with that of Lieutenant-Colonel Hayes, who was nominated at the same time, in the same State, as a representative of one of its districts. He wrote a letter declining the offer and expressing this sentiment: 'The man who vacates the battle-field at such a time as this, ought to be scalped.' Let us try them by the evidence of their own witnesses, their own press and their own testimony in relation to their own transactions," continued the speaker; who then followed with a comprehensive and remarkably clear review of the Credit Mobilier bribery, the DeGolyer contract and other conclusively proven matters of fraud with which the Republican candidate is so completely identified. "Then there is General Chester Arthur, who was hunted out of the New York Custom House (by the very men who are now upholding the ticket as a fit one), on the charge of being venal, corrupt and incompetent. Why, his own State will give a majority of 50,000 against him. There is one thing I admire in the Republican party—it is its consistency. Its ticket matches its principles! The Democratic party has never changed its theories. The same elements that existed in the time of Jefferson, exist now. We succeeded in 1876, in the face of the base and unsubstantiated charges of calumny that the opposition strove to put upon us, and against the power that ability to reward with political office placed in their hands, in electing our candidate; but (again the consistency of the Republican party was shown) we were cheated out of the election. It is unnecessary for me to tell you, his comrades in arms, of General Hancock's war record. Great a hero as he was on the battle-field in the thickest of the fight, a still greater hero was he when sitting in his office at New Orleans, inditing 'Order No. 40.' General Baldy Smith—a letter from whom has been read to you to-night, and whose reputation as a soldier and a gentleman is known the world over—said, 'I would feel prouder to have been the author of Order No. 40, than any document since the Declaration of Independence.' Let us adopt as our war cry the motto 'Constitutional liberties and the preservation of our institutions;' and by the coming election place General Winfield Scott Hancock, the country's second Washington, in the presidential chair. I use the title 'second Washington' advisedly. Gettysburg proved him to be first in war; New Orleans proved him to be first in peace, and he looks to you, his former comrades, to place him next November, first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Wm. B. Maxson then followed with a few words. In conclusion he said: "I am not surprised that Veteran Associations like yours are forming all over the country. Old soldiers everywhere cannot forget the victories they took part in under General Winfield Scott Hancock. They will elect him to preside over the destinies of the nation his sword assisted in saving."

Captain John McCasey expressed regret that the best speakers had been brought forward first and exhausted the subject; but before the close of his speech proved by it that such charge was unfounded. "I have served under General Hancock, and know him as man and boy for 43 years. There is not a person living to-day who dare say there is a stain on his character."

Speeches were made by Messrs Winfield Chase, Lewis F. Wadsworth and James E. Martine, giving the state of affairs from a soldier's point of view, a lawyer's point of view, and a farmer's and laborer's point of view. The meeting then adjourned until Wednesday evening, July 14th.

FIRE MATTERS.

The Fire Board met again on the evening of Friday the 2nd inst., to decide upon some course to pursue in relation to the extra precautions against fire necessary to be made on the 4th and 5th of July. Chief Voorhees reported on the present condition of the apparatus in the service of the Department. He found by recent trials that the three engines were in good working order, that the Truck was liable at any time to break down, and that good hose was very scarce. Men to watch in the alarm tower had been engaged, but he would not advise the hiring of horses that were not as useful as men would be for the purpose intended. Matters connected with the extra arrangements, were left at the discretion of the Chief. It was decided, in case of a fire, that a general alarm should be sounded and the district afterwards struck. Permission was also given to ring the bell at day-break on the morning of July 5th in honor of the day. The Board then adjourned.

A trial of the fire hydrant erected at the depot by the railroad company, was made by Steamer No. 2 on last Friday afternoon. The trial was a success. Both engine and hydrant working most satisfactorily.

The Fire Board met in regular meeting on Wednesday evening of this week. New certificates of membership and exemption were ordered, and more or less routine business was transacted. No bills were ordered paid and the meeting adjourned.

At a fire in New Brunswick on Wednesday night of last week, three firemen, named Geo. Robotham, of Engine No. 1, Thomas Hemming, of the same company, and Patrick Brennan, of Hibernia Engine No. 6, mounted a long ladder placed against the side of an adjoining building, carrying up with them a line of hose for the purpose of directing a stream on the flames. Through, what we should claim, gross stupidity on the part of firemen, those below the ladder commenced pulling on the length of hose held by the three men on the ladder, to make a connection with the main line. As a consequence the ladder was pulled over and the men on it hurled to the ground below, a distance of some twenty-five feet. Brennan saved himself by jumping, but Robotham and Hemming received serious injuries, the former dying in a few hours and the latter yet lying dangerously injured. If he recovers he will be a cripple for life. Robotham's funeral on Sunday last was largely attended. He was universally esteemed by his comrades and the citizens of New Brunswick for his many good qualities and as a gallant fireman.

Watchmen were kept in the alarm tower day and night, from eight o'clock Saturday night, July 3d, to Tuesday morning, July 6th, to give an alarm in case of fire. They saw nothing to warrant them ringing the bell until about ten o'clock the night of July 5th. A bright light in the Third District (North Plainfield) convinced them that there was a fire. The bell was rung and the fire apparatuses turned out in an incredibly short space of time. The alarm eminated from either burning of tar barrels or illumination caused by fireworks.

Steamers No. 1 and 3 provided themselves with horses for July 5th. S. C. Ryder furnished those attached to No. 1, and Messrs. Cook & Nelson, the circus men, kindly furnished No. 3 with a rattling team.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Billy Much, a well-known old citizen of North Plainfield, died on Thursday last after an illness of some time. For many years Billy has resided in a small hut-like structure on the top of the mountain, earning a precarious living by picking and selling berries, pokes, etc., and doing odd chores. His funeral took place from the school-house in Washingtonville on Saturday, the township bearing the expenses.

We wondered what made Demler's Hotel bar-room look so bright the other day upon entering it. Finally, four new and brilliantly painted cuspadors met our view. George is getting proud in his later days.

It is a pretty sight at evening time to see the handsomely painted boats, freighted with ladies and children, gliding over the waters of Coddington's Lake, opposite Mr. Wm. Taylor's beautiful residence, "Edgewood." Mr. T. has placed two or three boats on the waters of the Lake.

Real estate is looking up over the mountain since the starting of the gold boom. An owner of a small place in Washington Valley, who offered to sell out a year ago for $5,000, now asks $20,000 for it.

We noticed two of our citizens celebrating the great and glorious Fourth (on the 5th) by laying new and substantial plank sidewalks. Mr. Daniel Pierson was up bright and early working at his on Park place, corner of Duer street. The other public-spirited citizen was Mr. Warren Stewart, the well-known Somerset street wheelwright, who put down a plank walk in front of his house on Emily street.

At the election on July 1st, of a school trustee to take the place of Mr. John H. Van Winkle whose term had expired and who refused a re-election, Mr. Wm. E. Jones was appointed to fill the vacancy. The Board organized on last Tuesday evening with Mr. James K. Arnold as District Clerk.

The School Trustees performed, last year, the unprecedented feat of saving $1000 out of the appropriation made for their use. The Town of North Plainfield is justly proud, in consequence; but should show its appreciation in some such substantial way as that of building the greatly needed school building.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Weak fish are biting finely at Amboy.

The new amendment to Hurlingham rules is as follows:

"After the 17th of June the game to be limited to 7 lbs. 8 oz., the charge of powder to be limited to 3¼ drachms, and only soft shot to be used. No chilled shot or concentrators to be used."

The true lovers of game protection and strict enforcement of laws are daily awakening to the necessity of punishing violators of game laws, especially in the prohibition of summer woodcock shooting. From an editorial in the New York Herald, of July 6th, commenting on the remarks of a correspondent who urged the enforcement of the new law prohibiting woodcock shooting in New Jersey until September, it says:

"Some men claiming to be sportsmen appear to have an idea that the firing of a gun at any sort of living target constitutes sport. These fellows may be found in the woods near New York any time during the shooting season banging away at robins, catbirds, sparrows and everything else that can fly; even a farmer's hens are not safe when such sportsmen are in the neighborhood. To-day the Herald publishes a complaint that shots of this class are exterminating the woodcock of New Jersey by shooting in July and August, when many of the birds are but half grown and sorry sport at best, while numerous full sized birds are caring for a second brood, which must die of neglect if the parents are killed. The ordinary sense of any man of sportsmanlike instinct should protest against shooting young birds and preventing the natural increase of the finest game bird of the Eastern States; but neither sense nor respect for the law, which in New Jersey forbids woodcock shooting in July and August, can prevent a mere stupid slaughterer from dragging his dog and his gun wherever anything to shoot can be found. There are two ways of discouraging the summer shooting of New Jersey's woodcock, most of which are taken by men from New York—one is for leading sportsmen here to make the practice unpopular by "cutting" those who indulge in it, and the other is for Jerseymen to turn informers and have the offenders arrested and punished under the law."

We are glad to see so influential a journal as the Herald, taking up the cudgel in the interest of the woodcock and strict game laws. Now let it inform its thousands of readers that according to a law on the statute books of New Jersey, no non-resident is allowed to shoot game or take game fish in New Jersey at any season of the year, unless he shall first have become a member of a Game Protective Society, for which privilege he pays only the sum of $[illegible] annually. Our New Jersey farmers and others interested too, in the protection of their land, fences and game, should at once join some one of these Societies, and arrest all non-residents coming under their notice thus violating the game laws of the State, as the law in question gives each member the power to arrest without warrant any such offender. Persons desiring to join such a Society should send at once their names to the Secretary of the New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society, address W. L. Force, Plainfield, N. J.

The Second Annual Tournament of the New Jersey State Sportsmen's Association came to a close on Friday, at Erb's Grounds, Newark, N. J. The tournament was a success throughout and reflected great credit upon all concerned in its management.

Captain Bogardus, the champion wing shot of the world, beat the English champion, Geo. Rimel, in his second match with the latter, at Brighton Beach, for $500 a side, 100 birds, on Friday, June 29. The captain made the greatest score on record. He killed 99 birds out of 100 at 30 yards rise. Rimel stood at 28 yards and killed 88 birds.

Impure Breath.

Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most mortifying and unpleasant to its possessor, and it is the most inexcusable and offensive in society; and yet the cause of it may easily be removed by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT. It purifies and sweetens the breath, cools and refreshes the mouth, and gives a pearl-like appearance to the teeth. Gentlemen who indulge in smoking should cleanse their teeth with SOZODONT, as it removes all unpleasant odors of the weed. Ask your druggist for it.

OUR thanks are tendered our old and esteemed friend, Justice L. F. Wadsworth, for figures relative to the recently taken census. Mr. W. has carefully performed the duty of enumerator, and his returns may be relied on.

THE Democrats of Alton, formerly known as "Dog Corner," will raise a hickory pole in honor of Hancock and English in a few days. A rousing time may be expected on the occasion. Alton is Hancock all over.

THE artificial stone work on the Park avenue Baptist church is greatly admired for its beauty of construction and design. Four winged dragons in cream-colored clay are especially noticeable, projecting from each corner of the steeple some distance above the main entrance.

WHILE riding to church on Sunday last, Mr. Jacob Kirkner lost his pocketbook out of his pocket containing $200 in money and valuable papers. The book was picked up by a young son of Mr. George Denman and returned to Mr. K., who rewarded the lad with a $10 bill.

THE excursion of the Crescent Avenue Sunday School to Ocean Grove will take place some day in the latter part of August. It is now rumored that the First Presbyterians are reconsidering their intention of having no excursion, and possibly may change their minds.

A YOUNG lad named George Mehl, aged about 14 years, undertook to shoot a ball cartridge out of a toy pistol on the 5th inst. The consequence was, the ball went through the upper part of the little finger of his left hand. Dr. Fritz dressed the wound. George has learned a lesson.

A VERY handsome silk guidon has been presented to the Hancock Veteran Association. It is the handiwork of a few ladies of our city and the veterans feel very proud of it. The ground is blue with gray fringe around the border—the gray clinging to the blue (a neat idea) and in the center is the well known Second Corps badge.

THE continued absence of rain and consequent dearth of pasturage, has impelled the milkmen of the surrounding country to raise the price of the lacteal fluid they deal in to eight cents. The plan cannot but be more satisfactory to their customers than the one followed in larger cities where the absence of milk is overcome by the furnishing powers of pumps and wells.

WHILE returning with a load of participants in the Netherwood festivities of Monday evening, the Park House stage was upset through the negligence of its driver. The bodies of none were bruised, nor the anatomy of any one disorganized, but there arose hard feelings physical and otherwise, intensely biased opinions were expressed, and the clever handiwork of dressmaker and tailor foully dealt with.

THE Board of Freeholders of Union County, at their last meeting, recommended that a committee be authorized to meet with a similar committee from the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, and put out for contract the erection of a new bridge, either wood or iron, over Green Brook, at Raymond avenue. This bridge is a much needed convenience to the public, and we are glad there is at last a chance of its being constructed.

THE Mount Olive Baptist church will give an Ice Cream and Fruit Festival in Laing's Hall on Tuesday and Friday evenings July the 15th and 16th. The proceeds are for the benefit of the pastor, and we are sure his congregation and friends will generously respond. The Plainfield Cornet Band will be in attendance whose music can be enjoyed for the price of a ticket (10 cents), while refreshing eatables will be furnished at reasonable prices.

THE mare Addie E. C. of Newark, which has been competing in the U. & M. C. M. A. A. race, finding the way out of her box stall unobstructed on Monday evening, took advantage of the opportunity offered for a stroll, and being attracted by the fireworks at Netherwood, strayed that way, where she was found the next morning by her driver. The animal fortunately was muzzled or the amount of grass she would have consumed would have totally unfitted her for the day's trotting.

THE Stars and Stripes were flung to the breeze from the handsome flag-staff over THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office, on July 5th, for the first time since we have occupied our new quarters. The staff was erected on the 3d instant by skilled workmen in the employ of Mr. John Chandler, and was presented to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office by the constructor of the building, Mr. Isaac Pangborn. On the occasion of all important events and holidays "our flag" will be found floating at at its mast head.

SOME parties from Plainfield are sinking a shaft on the property of John West and John Lewis, which they have leased, near Millington. They don't say what they are hunting for, whether gold, silver, copper or black lead. Some of the stone they are working through has the appearance of soap stone, other that of galena, but while the parties are very reticent they seem confident of striking something valuable, as they are spending a good deal of money in their work.—Morris Banner.

JUDGMENT has been given against the City for the sum of $400 and costs in the suit brought by David J. Boice against it for the cutting down of his trees in front of his house by the Street Commissioner in 1878. The Common Council were notified that the proceeding under which they acted was illegal and warned not to proceed. They disregarded the warning with the above result. The case was tried before the Hon. B. Vandyckle, Judge of the Supreme Court. J. H. Ackerman appeared for Mr. Boice, and Messrs. Suydam & Jackson for the City.

The Death of William E. Smalley.

News of the death of Mr. Wm. E. Smalley of this city, was received by his friends and relatives with great regret and sorrow last Wednesday morning. The deceased had been ill from consumption for many months, but the improvement in his condition that followed a European trip of some time ago, aroused hopes in the hearts of all that renewed health if not a complete cure might eventually result. A sad breaking down of the physical condition of Mr. Smalley during the early summer, was followed by a partial recovery, upon which the unfortunate gentleman himself thought that a change of air was all that was needed for his entire recuperation. The deceased left for the White Mountains on Tuesday of last week, at which place he died on Wednesday. Mr. Smalley was conscious up to the time of his death, about two o'clock in the morning, but did not realize that his life was ended. His wife, the daughter of George Headley, Esq., of this city, held him in her arms while he breathed his last. The body arrived in Plainfield Thursday morning. The funeral will take place on Saturday, July 10th, at Grace Church, at 12:30 p. m.

Grove Meeting.

The Temperance Gospel Meeting, in the grove on Green Brook, last Sunday afternoon, drew together a large audience. A very interesting and instructive discourse was delivered by Rev. Mr. Stockton of the Methodist church, the Rev. Mr. Fairfax of the colored Baptist church, offering prayer. Next Sunday, at the usual hour of 4:15 p.m., the presence of young Mr. Lowry, an attractive speaker, is expected. All citizens are cordially invited to attend.

A Pleasant Party.

About fifty young people assembled at the residence of Plainfield's veteran expressman, Augustus Frasee, on Tuesday night last, in honor of the 18th birthday anniversary of his daughter "Phenie," and the occasion was made one of real enjoyment. Refreshments and games constituted a portion of the evening's entertainment, while "Gus" was indefatigable in his efforts to make the elder portion of the guests happy in a peculiar way that he knows of. Miss Phenie received several handsome presents.

Death of an Old Resident.

William Vail, an old and highly respected resident of Plainfield, died on Friday morning last, after an illness of nearly two years. Mr. Vail was the son of Joseph Vail, and was born at Green Brook in the year 1816. The earlier part of his life was spent in the tailoring business, under the employ of George Thorn, whose place of business was on the corner of Front and Water streets. In after years Mr. Vail pursued farming, the removal of buildings, etc. About two years ago his eyesight began to fail him, and he gradually became blind. His ailment extended to the brain, causing his death. Mr. Vail, or as he was more familiarly known, "Uncle Billy," was one of nature's noblemen, an honest man, kind hearted, generous, and ever ready to lend a helping hand to his fellow man. His funeral, which took place from the Friends' Meeting House, on Peace street, on Tuesday last, was largely attended. Peace to his ashes.

The Rockaway Excursion.

We desire for the last time to call the attention of our readers to the excursion of the Knights of Pythias to Rockaway Beach. It is seldom that our citizens have an opportunity to visit this famous watering place, which has become more popular this season than ever, and the low price at which the tickets have been placed should secure a large company. The committee who have the matter in charge are exerting themselves to make it pleasant for all and special attention will be given to their patrons in order to make it a day of comfort as well as pleasure. Arrangements have been made whereby the excursionists will have complete and exclusive use of the dancing platform, which will be under the charge of competent managers, and tables, &c., provided for those who desire to carry luncheons. All this without extra cost to the excursionists. The tickets are limited, so there will be no crowding on the boat, and we would advise those who contemplate going not to wait until Monday morning to procure tickets, but get them at once.

Don't You Forget It!

Of the enjoyments of the summer season, that are dear to the hearts of all Plainfielders, there is one that is never neglected—a day at Ocean Grove. At least once a year the children are out of bed by daylight, breakfast is hurriedly swallowed, a capacious basket is filled with good things to eat and the whole family is off for the seashore. It was feared that on account of some of the Sunday schools deciding not to give an excursion, the usual chances would be lost; but on July 20th an opportunity will be given for all to visit Long Branch, Ocean Grove and Asbury Park, and spend a long day of uninterrupted and continuous pleasure. Under the generous management of Messrs. E. Nelson, J. Miller and J. Honeyman, the excursion is sure to be a success, and the well known ability and efficiency of those gentlemen justifies us in saying that everything possible will be done for the convenience and comfort of the public who patronize them. Tickets are for sale at $1 each for the entire trip, if purchased on or before July 18th—after which date the price will be $1.25. The train will leave Plainfield at 7:30 a. m. Returning, leave the Grove at 6:30 p. m.

The Fourth in Plainfield.

The celebration of the 104th anniversary of American Independence, July 5th, in this city, was a noisy one. From one o'clock in the morning to midnight of the 5th, the streets resounded with the explosion of small cannon, guns, pistols, fire crackers, and every explosive invention imaginable. There was not patriotism enough left in the breasts of the parties who so zealously guard the brass piece of ordinance used by the Republicans to inspire their followers in political campaigns, to fire a salute from it in honor of the day. The Fire Department, however, gave permission to ring the alarm bell at sunrise, which was done with a will, the "Warren" boys joining in the racket by ringing the bell on their engine house. There was a general suspension of business during the day, and a liberal display of flags and bunting from public places and private residences. A great many strangers visited the city during the day. The chief points of interest were the celebration at Washington Rock and the trotting on the Fair Grounds, full accounts of which will be found elsewhere in our paper. In the afternoon there was a drenching rain, which cooled the heated air, averted danger from fires, but somewhat interfered with the display of fireworks, which, nevertheless, was particularly fine, from the grounds of many private residences. There was no public display. There were no accidents to speak of and no fires. Once more quiet reigns supreme and young America sighs for the next anniversary in 1881.

The 5th of July at The Netherwood.

A copy of the programme that is given below, was laid at the place of each guest of the Hotel Netherwood at the breakfast tables last Monday Morning. The events it promised raised pleasant anticipations and hopes in their breasts, which are eventually realized. Under the management of gentlemen experienced in promoting the enjoyment of themselves and others, and with funds contributed by generous hearted and open handed guests, the affair could not but be successful. Kind Providence stopped the storm in time not to interfere with the flash and sparkle of the pyrotechnics, and the bounty of Messrs. Breslin & King insured satisfaction of all craving appetites. Lander with a complete orchestra was present at the Hotel during the day and night, discoursing sweet music for the gratification of all; especially those who as the morning of Tuesday approached, joined in the pleasures of waltz and quadrille. The speech of Judge Orlando L. Stewart was a fine specimen of oratory, most appropriate to the day we celebrat, and adding another leaf to the wreath already worn by that gentleman in reward of his talents as a fluent speaker and intellectual orator. The hours elapsing between dinner and dark, were taken advantage of by the embryo fair women and brave men of future society, who showed by their graceful dancing and cordial manners how careful had been their training and how well fitted they were to become ornaments to the life that was before them. As night spread a mantle of darkness over New Jersey's gold bearing and verdure clad hills one of the most grand and magnificent displays of fire-works ever seen in this vicinity, was carried out, lasting almost two hours; at the conclusion of which dancing was commenced and kept up until a new day dawned. Besides those of our city's residents who had received invitations to be present, there was gathered a large number of Plainfielders who thoroughly enjoyed the features of the evening, from the outside. A guest of one of Netherwood's citizens, contributed, by her admirable vocal powers as a singer, a valuable addition to the features below:

The Fourth at the Rock.

The recent anniversary of American Independence was appropriately celebrated on Monday, under the auspices of the Monument Association, at Washington Rock. Stephen O. Horton, Esq., of North Plainfield, presiding, Professor Lyon reading the Declaration, and Mayor Harper delivering the oration. The music was ably rendered by the Plainfield Band, and a large and appreciative company of ladies and gentlemen honored the patriotic occasion with their presence. The morning was fine and everything passed off delightfully. In the afternoon, however, clouds began to drop rain, which increased in steady volume, driving the immense throng of people from the grounds into the hotel, and packing it to overflowing. Of course much disappointment and discomfort resulted, but the crowd was the best humored one ever seen, because the blessing of a copious rainfall was unanimously decreed of more value just then than any other consideration. The Rock House met the extraordinary demands upon it in first rate style, and furnished a dinner that was pronounced superb. Had Monday remained as it opened the number of visitors at the Rock would have been unprecedented. As it was, a mighty host assembled, and, notwithstanding the weather, it was a glorious Fourth.

MAYOR HARPER'S ORATION.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The true purpose of a Fourth of July celebration is to appropriately honor the memory of those patriotic men whose fearless championship of liberty and justice made the day a national anniversary and bequeathed to posterity the privileges and blessings of free representative government. It is a day of precious import, of joyous and invigorating thought, not only throughout the vast peopled domain of the American Union, but far beyond, even to the uttermost bounds of civilization, wherever throbs a freeman's pulse and ascends a freeman's prayer. Within the cities and hamlets of Europe, over the pampas of Southern America, across the sands of the Orient, upon the heaving bosom of old ocean, and beneath the fruitful bowers of tropical lands, speech and sentiment, silent meditation and gushing melody, make hearts glad and lives hopeful because of the same glorious achievements we, on this historic ground, are thus met to commemorate. So should it be and so may it continue to be, with enlarging scope and fervor, to the end of time.

One hundred and four years ago thirteen colonies in name, but sovereign commonwealths in spirit, yearning to be delivered from the tyranny of kingly power, through delegates in Congress assembled, formally declared themselves free and independent. That was sublimity of action, and its recorded language, which we have just heard so admirably recited, comes down the century like the voice of inspiration. As years wing their flight that memorable event of 1776 brightens the page of history and cheers with increased hope the future of humanity.

To observe with thoughtful appreciation each recurring birthday of American independence is a duty incumbent upon every loyal hearted citizen of the United States, high or humble, rich or poor, native-born or allegiance sworn, and who is not ambitious to deservingly wear and valiantly defend that title of true nobility? A citizen of the United States! An American citizen! What a grand distinction! Greece and Rome in their proudest glory had no equal dignity to confer, and the most brilliant insignia of rank within the province of royalty to bestow fades into obscurity when compared with the prerogatives of a citizen of the Republic of Washington. The intent of this anniversary day is, my friends, that we learn from the past the cost and worth of present citizenship, and that we register anew at the shrine of country the pledge of fidelity to her lasting welfare, at the same time rendering unto our God and the God of our fathers grateful thanks for the munificent inheritance we, as a people, possess and enjoy. That is duty. Not to curtail festivity and patriotic exuberance, but to ennoble every observance with inward devotedness to the real character of the day.

I have termed the ground whereon we stand historic, and so it is in the fullest meaning of the word. This commanding eminence, looking out upon a landscape of varied beauty, has an eventful history to narrate. Where now dwells smiling peace on the plain below, during the dark and anxious contest for national existence, these hights witnessed there the dread frown of war. The associations of this place are vividly of the Revolution. This mountain range, stretching northward, sheltered and saved the almost exhausted soldiers of the Continental army, and on yonder jutting rock, worthily bearing his name, when discouragements hung like a gloomy pall over the land, stood, careburdened but faith-supported, the illustrious Washington, to watch and ward a mercenary foe; and here, we may reasonably surmise, amid the silence and solemnity of nature, he invoked merciful heaven to succor the bleeding cause of independence. My friends, the soil beneath our feet and all the surroundings of this locality are impressively historic. The memory of Washington hovers about us like a guardian angel. May its influence penetrate each breast and therein kindle the flame of his own pure patriotism. Let us pause a few moments in the presence of that august memory and ponder the uttered tribute of Revolutionary General Lee, of Virginia, who was selected by Congress to deliver the funeral oration of December 26th, 1779. He thus spoke:

"First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen, he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life, pious, just, humane, temperate and sincere, uniform, dignified and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting. To his equals he was condescending, to his inferiors kind, and to the dear object of his affections exemplarily tender. Correct throughout, vice shuddered in his presence and virtue always felt his fostering hand, the purity of his private character gave effulgence to his public virtues. His last scene comported with the whole tenor of his life; although in extreme pain, not a sigh, not a groan escaped him, and with undisturbed serenity he closed his well-spent life. Such was the man America has lost, such was the man for whom our nation mourns! Methinks I see his august image, and hear, falling from his venerable lips, these deep-sinking words: 'Sons of America, reverence religion; diffuse knowledge throughout your land; patronize the arts and sciences; let liberty and order be inseparable companions; control party spirit, the bane of free government; observe good faith to and cultivate peace with all nations; shut up every avenue to foreign influence; contract rather than extend national connection; rely on yourselves only; be American in thought and deed. Thus will you give immortality to that union which was the constant object of my terrestrial labors. Thus will you preserve undisturbed to the latest posterity the felicity of a people to me most dear; and thus will you supply the only vacancy in the round of pure bliss high Heaven bestows.'"

What a picture of moral grandeur do those quoted words unveil! What a model of excellence they mould for human imitation!

On this elevated plateau should be reared a monumental pillar, towering aloft to greet morn's salutation and to receive evening's benediction, and whilst denoting the especial homage of New Jersey, to stand a perpetual reminder to coming generations, not only of the virtues of Washington, but the obligations imposed by freedom to preserve untarnished and forever the priceless work of his wisdom and valor. I repeat, a monument should here be erected, and the beautiful lines addressed by a gifted poetess to the shaft that marks the spot where Warren fell might with propriety be thus transposed:

"Rise, lofty column, in thy simple grace,
And to the traveler that upon yon plain
Point where the great Washington once stood,
A sentinel on Freedom's watch.
Warn to thy base, when summer decks the grove,
Those groups who gratefully [illegible] from care,
In childhood's bliss. Perchance
They then may learn from thee
The holy zeal of men of other days,
And their heaven-girded might.
Be thou true,
Recording column, to thy sacred trust,
And the blest memory of that glorious race,
Who sought no guerdon save their country's weal,
Transmit to unborn ages."

The American people can not peruse history more interesting and instructive than that connected with the founding of their own republic. Well would it be did they oftener withdraw from the heated excitement of this fast-rushing age and calmly reflect upon the terrible ordeal through which constitutional government passed to the acquirement of sovereignty. It is a thrilling narrative, replete with heroic incident. The early colonial protests against the unjust exactions of the British crown; the stern defiance of the sons of liberty; the gallant resistance of the unaccoutered men of Concord and Lexington to the march of the invader; the flash and roar and battle-shout on Bunker Hill; the assuming of military command by the great general-in-chief; the immortal decree of the Congress; the ensuing drear and sanguinary conflict of the Revolution, with its triumphs and defeats, its promises and disappointments, its domestic foes and foreign friends, its cruel privations and trusting fortitude, until at Yorktown the beams of victory burst forth in cheering splendor; and then, the skilful statesmanship that brought order out of chaos, reconciled creeds and opinions, and finally constructed that matchless system of organic law under which the constellation of Union has trebled in stars and the people prospered as none ever did before, taken in detail and blended as a whole, forms a theme of living value to each individual citizen. That is history worth studying and remembering, and it ought to be introduced and made a prominent branch of learning in every American school. We want in this country a more intense Americanism, not intolerance of any shape or hue, not bigotry, not egotism, but universal and thorough knowledge of the origin, cost, inherent principles, practical operation, proper safeguards, and the true destiny of Republican government. We need to educate the youth of America to be in fact as well as in name Americans, and in every particular the enthusiastic admirers and defenders of free institutions. That is what we want, and I am sure you will concede its advocacy at this time to be loyalty to freedom. Teach the boys of America

"What constitutes a state?
Not high-raised battlement or labored mound,
Thick wall or moated gate;
Not cities proud with spires and turrets crowned;
Not bays and broad-armed ports,
Where, laughing at the storm, rich navies ride;
Not starred and spangled courts,
Where low-browed baseness wafts perfume to pride.
No: men, high-minded men,
With powers as far above dull brutes endued
In forest, brake, or den,
As beasts excel cold rocks and brambles rude—
Men who their duties know,
But know their rights, and knowing, dare maintain,
Prevent the long-aimed blow,
And crush the tyrant while they rend the chain—
These constitute a state."

What was the animating spirit of the American Revolution? What sustained that liberating effort when difficulties and disasters thickly veiled its future? It was patriotism, unsullied patriotism. The source of strength to persevere and ultimately to gain success in the struggle for nationality, was an abiding trust in Almighty God and unfaltering devotion to country and the rights of man. That revived fainting hope and nerved drooping hands, and that gained the victory. The annals of the Revolution, from its inception to its close, bear witness to the highest order of patriotism. It illuminates every part and honors alike civilian and soldier. Patriotism prompted the lion-hearted Patrick Henry to cry aloud from Virginian soil—"give me liberty or give me death," and patriotism drew from the Adamses, Hancocks and Reveres of Massachusetts the echoing response—"liberty or death." Patriotism coursed with Marion through Southern swamps and fired the ardor of Ethan Allen on the highlands of the North. Patriotism guided the pen of Jefferson to draft the Declaration of Independence, and the same noble impulse moved its signers to solemnly and publicly pledge their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor. Patriotism swayed camp, council hall and private abode, painted the trodden snow with blood from shoeless feet, alleviated the pangs of hunger and exposure, and enshrouded the lifeless forms of Warren and Mercer. Patriotism nourished the financial energy of Morris, brought La Fayette from the shores of France, and accompanied Franklin thither on a mission of diplomacy. Patriotism gilded with glory every act of Washington, and inspired his countrymen to patiently suffer and bravely contend. Patriotism was the animating spirit that upheld amid the direst vicissitudes the cause of Independence. What is patriotism? What does the term imply? It means "the passion which aims to serve one's country." That is its meaning. To serve country, not self, at all times and under all circumstances, in prosperity and in adversity, in peace as in war, is genuine patriotism, the choicest of jewels, the grandest of attainments, and I am bold to assert that its supremacy is more to be desired in our country at this time than any other public virtue.

It is an unfortunate fact, and one all candid observers must deploringly admit, that among political men of the present day, with honorable exceptions, I am happy to add, self aggrandizement has to a wide extent supplanted fidelity to the public weal. That pernicious and growing evil does not tarnish the reputation of any particular party, but of all parties, and its existence calls for the eradicating knife of reform. The vitality of free government requires that integrity, morality and capability shall control every department of the public service, legislative and administrative, national, state and local, and that the general welfare shall rigidly dominate individual gain. The present urgently demands a return to the wholesome practice of those earlier times, when official duty was conscientiously discharged for the benefit of country and personal interests were held to be of secondary account. When virtue was commended and corruption abhored. That was the patriotism of the fathers of the Republic, and with their noble example in mental view, it is fitting for us on an occasion like this to proffer wishes for its speedy and permanent re-establishment.

The next question pertinent to the day is this—What were the garnered results of the American Revolution? To properly answer that would consume much more time than can at present be afforded. I will therefore only venture a hasty and imperfect sketch. When the Declaration of Independence roused a slumbering world by denying the right of imperious Britain to rule provinces and people styled by her American Colonies, those thirteen incipient sovereignties, with a sparse population, merely fringed the Atlantic Ocean and banks of streams emptying into it, from Massachusetts to Georgia. Beyond lay a forest wilderness, little known to the white man, and virtually an unexplored continent. That was the infant Republic then. What is its robust manhood now? The reality almost baffles comprehension. To-day our wave washed frontier extends with unbroken line from the St. Croix of Maine to the Rio Grande of Texas, and along the broad Pacific from semi-tropical lower California to ice encased Alaska, while within that majestic territorial expanse, flanked on the North by a chain of mighty inland seas, and on the South by the warm currents of the Mexican Gulf, repose in peaceful security, guarded by a thirty-eight starred ensign of nationality, forty million of freemen, owning and occupying a realm of mountain, plain, valley, and grand river highways, an empire to freedom dedicated, rich in every production that ministers to the wants and luxuries of mankind, sublime in natural scenery, bountiful in diversity, productiveness and salubrity of climate, and altogether the fairest land that the sun enlivens on the revolving face of the globe.

Such a brief is the material result of the American Revolution, and magnificent as it certainly is, there remains another of even higher value, and that is free government, the principles of equity, justice and dignified manhood as embodied in the Federal Constitution. That is the peerless result of the Revolution, and without that our unsurpassed domain would be a barren heritage. Constitutional liberty is the guiding star of America greatness. That places all citizens on an equality before the law and guarantees to each inalienable rights, keeps in beautiful harmony the Union of States, practically upholds civil and religious freedom, raises man to the position of responsibility and dignity Heaven designed he should occupy, makes personal worth and industry the passports to distinction and wealth, renders character superior to birth and crowns intelligence with honor. These, my friends, are the garnered results of the American Revolution hastily expressed. Let us, on this our country's free-born day, estimate them aright and inwardly resolve to perpetuate their blessed dominion.

Nations differ in their estimate of national glory. England, haughty and opulent, claims it to be aristocratic blood and globe encircling authority. France with wild acclaim, links it to the martial prowess of her great Captain—

"Whose falchion waved along the Nile,
Whose hosts marched into Alpine snows,
And o'er Moscow's towers, that blazed like stars,
Whose eagle flag unrolled, and froze!"

And Russia, fur clad and grim, seated on a spear-propped throne, with iron hand inscribes despotism as fame. Fortunately such assumed glories are alien to America, and may they never find lodgment in the land of him whose spotless and steady renown eclipses the meteor glare of Kings and Emperors, Nobles and Conquerors. The mission of these United States is higher and holier. If the countrymen of Washington live devoted to his patriotic example, and faithfully maintain, in original purity, the governing principles of the Constitution he aided to establish, grand indeed will be the future growth and prosperity of our country. It is no idle dream, no utopian speculation, but within the range of probability to imagine on this Western Continent a Republic, embracing within its mighty area an indefinite number of State organizations, firmly banded together by the silken cords of fraternal Union, aggregating in population a hundred millions or more of liberty-loving, knowledge-enlightened and law-abiding people, possessing within themselves the controlling power of commercial, agricultural, manufacturing, mining and mechanical supremacy, and exerting a silent, yet irresistible influence for the downfall of Monarchy and the enfranchisement of Liberty the wide-world over. Such may be the future results of the Revolution of a hundred years ago, and such they will be, if, as Americans, we only remain steadfast to its teachings and design. Then will destiny be accomplished, and then will the events we to-day honor become the cynosure of all ages.

"Where Freedom, on her natal day,
Within the war-rocked cradle lay,
A valiant band around her stood,
And baptized her infant brow in blood.
Then, where now quiet words repose,
Battle's fear and martyr shrieks arose,
And people of a common tongue
To mortal combat fiercely sprung.
Our fathers to their graves have gone,
Their strife is past—their triumph won,
But sterner trials wait the race
Who occupy their honored place.
So let it be. In God's own might
We'll don the armor of ancestral right,
And, strong in Him whose cause is just,
Press onward with unshaken trust."

Trotting on the Fair Grounds.

The appreciation of the public for fine trotting on a good track, when under the management of efficient and competent judges, was evidenced by the large number of people from this and other cities and towns who gathered at the grounds of the U. & M. C. M. A. A. on last Monday afternoon. Two generous purses had been offered by the Association which influenced the entry of many choice trotters; and exciting contests in consequence were anticipated. The heavy rain storm which began to fall at the commencement of the heats, and continued during the entire afternoon, reduced the track to a state that was not conducive of fast records; but the wet failed to dampen the ardor of the contestants or detract from the excitement of the occasion. The grand stand and many carriages present sheltered the assembled crowd, who expressed a disappointment only, when the judges announced the postponement of one of the events. The latter gentlemen were Messrs. William L. Tompkins of Newark, Edward A. Sarjent of Newark, and Charles Campbell of Woodbridge, whose decisions were universally just and entirely satisfactory. The timers were Messrs. Ed. Dunham and Hoagland. Of course there were, as usual, many accusations made to the effect that more or less favoritism was shown this or that horse—statements that, it is needless to say, originated only in the minds of those who endeavored to win by their mouths instead of their horse's speed. The local patriotism of the Plainfielders present was quenched to some extent by the nonappearance of Mr. J. W. Johnson's Nellie in the 2:40 class, and the withdrawal of the same gentleman's bay mare Sciola after the second heat in the free for all. Much speed was expected from this new addition to Mr. Johnson's stable, which she will probably show at some future day when the condition of the track is not dangerous to the lives of the horses trotting over it.

The first start was a heat in the 2:40 class—the following horses getting off well together after a great deal of bad scoring: Addie E. C., entered by Allie Dunham of Newark; Lillie Mac, D. S. Quinton, Trenton; Hugh McLaughlin, Henry Corr, Long Island; Laura B., H. C. Eke, Newark; Maggie, Mount Morris, Plainfield. The latter, who had the pole, shot ahead most beautifully at the word go and retained the lead she obtained throughout the entire distance; making the quarter in 39, half in 1.19, three-quarters in 2 minutes and the mile in 2:40. Second place was awarded to Addie E. C., although Laura B., came under the wire in that position by means of much hard running.

The first heat of free for all called forth enthusiastic cheers from the stand at the praiseworthy performance of Mr. Wm. Moore's gelding Carbolic. The other entries were: Sciola, J. W. Johnson, Plainfield; Peralto, G. Smith, Elizabeth; Billy Barefoot, — Sharp, N. Y. Carbolic had the pole, but when the word was given Sciola showed her wonderful ability as a starter by taking the lead at once. This advantage she kept during first half mile without a skip, but being pressed closely near the last quarter by Peralto, the mare turned coward and quitting her pace in spite of the exertions of John Osborne her efficient driver, allowed both Peralto and Carbolic to pass her and finish in that order. Time, quarter 38, half 115½, three-quarters 1.54, mile 2.34½. When the crowd learned that Carbolic had thrown his off hind shoe—the gelding's performance in securing second place was again greeted with cheers.

By the time the second heat of the 2:40 race was started the rain was falling in torrents, and after scoring a few times the drivers were covered with enough extra weight in the way of mud and water to almost disqualify them. Laura B., took the lead; Maggie breaking so badly in the first quarter as to lose herself entirely out of the race as far as place was concerned. At the half the stallion tried to go to the front, but Laura B., breaking into another run retained the place and by her action also threw the other out of his gait. On the last turn, however, Hugh took the lead and won the heat; Laura B., second, with Lillie Mac—who seemed to be doing the trotting for the whole crowd—third. Time: quarter, 40, half 1:21, three-quarters 2:03, mile 2:42. Hiram How, the driver of Hugh McLoughlin, at the end of this heat accused the owner of Laura B., with entering the mare for the purpose of running her and breaking up his (How's) horse.

In the second heat, free for all, Sciola tried to take the lead at the start but Peralto shook her off and passed the half-mile ahead of her with Carbolic third. On the last half the strap over Peralto's shoulders broke letting both knee boots down on his feet; in spite of the misfortune, however, he finished second with Carbolic (who had nobly rushed past them all) first and Sciola third. Time: quarter 40, half 1:20, three-quarters 2, mile 2:42.

Much time was wasted before the start of the third heat in the 2:40 race by the jockeying of some of the drivers, who either were endeavoring to get ahead on the go, or to tire and worry more honest horses. Judge Tompkins, after a dozen scores, stopped the trickery by fining the drivers of Laura B., Addie E. C., and Maggie, $5 each for disobeying his instructions that they should not come up ahead of the pole horse. It is needless to say that the next was a go. Addie broke on the start and before the first quarter was covered, all joined in a run—which gait was indulged in at intervals during the entire race. Quinton's sulky wheel was thrown out of shape by an unforseen circumstance and he was compelled to finish at a slow pace. Laura was given first place and Hugh second. Time; quarter 44, half 1:28½, three-quarters 2:04, mile 2:3[illegible].

Sciola was withdrawn and the third heat of the free for all was started without her. Carbolic went to the front at the beginning and retained the lead during the entire race although making one or two bad breaks and losing some ground before getting down again. Peralto second. Time: quarter 44, half 1:20, three-quarters 2:08, mile 2:46.

Some of the contestants in the 2:40 class, objecting to risk the limbs of their animals any longer on the slippery clay, the judges postponed the race until the next fair day and fair track. "Uncle Billy," however, being determined to trot through mud or blood, and the others interested not objecting, the free for all was continued.

The fourth and last heat was won by Carbolic with ease. Securing a lead at the start he opened a wide gap between himself and followers, that was a full eighth of a mile at the three-quarter pole. Peralto's boots got down again almost throwing the horse, and Billy Barefoot for the first time was not last. Time quarter 41½, half 1:21, three-quarters 2:04, mile 2:47.

Fine weather on Tuesday having followed Monday's storm, and the track after judicious scraping being in good condition, the 2:40 race was completed in the afternoon. Instead of the fifteen hundred people who had been present the day before, about thirty lovers of trotting only were in attendance. In the absence of Messrs. Tompkins and Sarjent, the following acted: Judges Chas. Campbell of Woodbridge, Jas. Voorhees and J. W. King of Plainfield. Time keepers Messrs. Osborn and Dunham. Before the starting of the first heat a protest was made against Maggie claiming that she was trotting under a false name, having been entered in former races as Gypsie Queen. There was also a protest against Addie E. C. as not being the horse of that name.

After a dozen or more false starts the horses got away well together, all on a dead run excepting Lillie Mac. Hugh McLaughlin led most of the way and came in first with Lillie a good second. The heat was awarded the latter for the leading of the trotting—she only breaking into a slight skip on the home stretch. Hugh second, Laura third. Time, quarter 40, half 1:19, three-quarters 2, mile 2:39½.

When the word was given in the second heat of the day, and the fifth of the race, Hugh took the pole from Lillie at the start and trotting finely opened a space between himself and followers. On the three-quarter stretch Lillie graduly closed up on Laura, who was running for second place, and the three came under the wire in a bunch. Hugh first, Lillie second; Laura again being put back for running. Time: quarter 39, half 1:17½, three-quarters 1:58, mile 2:33½.

The final heat was won at a canter by the stallion. At the start Laura took the first position, but was passed at the quarter by Hugh; Lillie meanwhile trotting steadily without a skip. Harvey Eke tried by running his mare to throw the stallion off his feet, but without avail, and, in consequence, Laura was again put back to third place. Time: quarter 39, half 1:17, three-quarters 1:56, mile 2:39½. Before the trotting of the heat a protest was entered against Hugh McLaughlin, claiming that he was under a false name. The party making the charge believed the horse to be the well-known stallion Killarney, but being convinced otherwise the protest was afterwards withdrawn. Addie E. C. did not appear in this last heat, and the objection to her was also destroyed.

A Wonderful Achievement.

The wonderment existing in the minds of many of our citizens as to the meaning of that dilapidated flag hanging over the street from the post-office to French's building opposite, bearing on its tail end the names of Garfield and Arthur, is at last solved. The Times says that "Postmaster Vail has taken time by the forelock and pre-empted the space that the Democratic Club, whose rooms are nearly opposite the post-office, was doubtless intending to use in displaying the names of Hancock and English." This is news, because it was impossible to tell at the time when the half dozen "faithful" were in attendance at the "raising" who was the "boss" of the job, whether it was the postmaster, do-anything-for-the-party-and-get-nothing "Steve," "Abe," with his "baton," as director, the three small boys as spectators, or the skulking "whippers-in" on top of the roof, making fast the rope to a chimney. There were no cheers given, not even a sigh for the waste of material which the winds make sport of, nor encomiums for the miserable painting on the dirty muslin tacked to the bottom of the flag. But then it is a comfort to know who was the "boss," also that the space intended, etc., etc., is "pre-empted." Yes! Jose so! Wait with patience, neighbor, a few days. The democracy are not quite ready to swing out their banner. It takes time you know, to get such things ready. But when the time is up, you will gaze on one of the prettiest banners, with the names of the winning candidates inscribed thereon, flung to the breeze from the Democratic headquarters, that you ever saw in this city, and the space to swing it from will not be stolen either. We are very happy to know who "pre-empted" the space. It is very comforting.

Fortunate Plainfield Athletes.

The games of the Unknown but well-known Athletic Club of Westfield, which were held at that town last Monday morning, attracted a large crowd of spectators and quite a number of contestants, including the majority of Plainfield's athletes, both amateur and professional. The fine track was never in better condition—the sun during the last three weeks of uninterrupted shining, had laid the dust very thoroughly; and there were no drawbacks to interfere with the making of magnificent records. The scene was a most exciting one. Around the finish were the friends of the contestants, each valiantly upholding the individual merits of his particular friend with voice and money. Even the grand stand, filled as it was with ladies, resounded with cheers and applause, as some favored athlete of this city gallantly won race after race against enormous odds. The officers of the day were Messrs. Otis G. Webb, clerk of the course and Arthur C. Webb, assistant; Charles Webb, referee; J. W. Murray Jr., and Frank W. Runyon, Judges at the finish; and J. A. Demarest, starter.

The first event, a dash of 100 yards for amateurs, was won by E. F. Foster of Plainfield, in 11½ seconds. W. W. Davis, the second at the finish, made a fine run, but slipping badly on the first fifty yards was unable to overcome the lead his opponent gained.

A race of the same distance for professionals, followed, in which competition was entered by the well-known New Jersey sprinter, Warren Marsh of this city. Before the start was made, heavy bets were offered on the runner but found no takers. Being pressed by none of the competitors excepting M. De Courcy, Marsh finished easily on a trot in 11½ seconds, with De Courcy a close second.

In the 120 yard hurdle race, E. Foster again won, with Leland second. Time 24.

The same race for professionals was captured by Warren Marsh in the same time; M. De Courcy following closely on the leader, secured second money.

The quarter-mile run for amateurs resulted in a third victory for Foster; in which race, however, the winner had a hard struggle for first place with J. W. Davis. Time, 1.03½.

The 440 yard run for professionals brought together the two Marshs; but although a close and exciting contest took place, it was impossible for Everitt to pass his opponent once during the race —Warren taking the lead from the start and finishing in 1.09, amid cheers from his friends. At the close of this third victory, a magnificent boquet was presented to the winner by the admiring ladies present.

The half-mile for amateurs was the only run lost by Foster during the day. Arthur Varian of the Independent Athletic Club cut out a little more work for the favorite than he was able to accomplish after the many runs he had already participated in. The finish was a beautiful sight—as both men straining every nerve breasted the tape almost together, with Varian, however, a little in advance. This athlete, who has already achieved an enviable reputation as a remarkably fine walker, is showing lately extraordinary powers as a runner, and will no doubt eventually—if he follows up his victory of last Monday with others as creditable—gain a name in athletic circles to be proud of.

Kalmstock of Rahway and George Frazee of Plainfield, were the only contestants in the Professional half-mile run. The Rahway man won in 3.01, while Frazee secured second place easily.

Only one team had been entered in the tug-of-war that was to close the day's sport, and as it consisted of four big sturdy men from Westfield's laboring population it was impossible to get another to pull against it. However, for the interest of the spectators present, four young men of the Independent Athletic Club showed how it was impossible for them to be pulled over even by a team that had the advantage of them in weight and size. It was a remarkable fact that no one was able to get up another team from the large number of "smarties" who crowded around the pullers and told them all about what they had to do and how to do it.

The above record shows that Plainfield took all the amateur medals and all the professional prizes except one—of the latter, THE CONSTITUTIONALIST "attachays" secured five.

WESTFIELD WHIPS.

On Wednesday afternoon last, while several children were playing on the edge of a sand bank in a vacant lot belonging to Mr. E. B. Ripley, the edge gave way and buried one of their number, a five year old son of Benj. Parker (colored) beneath several tons of sand. His companions gave the alarm, and Messrs. James Sterling, Jonas Fowler, F. T. Baker and others, after 45 minutes hard labor came to the body of the unfortunate lad. Life had fled, however, long before the rescue of the body.

New Jersey Wine.

This wine for sickness has long been in popular favor, but by no means intoxicating in its nature. We refer to Speer's Port Grape Wine, which has been introduced into the hospitals and among the first families in New York, the principal drug stores in this city, by Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J., who has devoted himself for many years to the cultivation of the Oporto Grape, and the study of fermentations, and producing an article, the medical properties of which are said by gentlemen of reputation to be unsurpassed. Mr. Speer ferments his wine by a new process, peculiar to himself, without the addition of sugar or spirits. We doubt whether there is a vineyard in the old or new world that can yield a wine at all comparable to this in richness or delicacy of flavor. All first-class druggists keep it.

The above extract from the New York Herald shows the appreciation in which Speer's wine is held abroad. We have drank the wine and can truthfully endorse what the above extract says concerning its good qualities. The way in which it is endorsed by Mr. Speer gives it a finer flavor than any wine we ever drank.—Boston Traveler. For sale by all druggists.

COMMENTS.

How disappointed the Republicans are.

"Hancock was superb," so ran the dispatches in war time.

Won't somebody trot out Garfield's military record and give us a relief from that damaging civil record of his?

The American people must not forget, that Garfield was one of the infamous electoral commission, and without him there could not have been an 8 to 7.

Republican papers are now pleading that if GARFIELD did sell himself to OAKES AMES it was for a small amount. Yes, so small that it was mean. But does that make the case any better.

The Democratic party don't take to bar'ls. The millionaires stood the least show before the Convention. Brains, character, honesty and statesmanship count for more than dollars with Democrats.

Will Gen. Garfield accept that invitation to rise and explain his Credit Mobilier and De Golyer record? He dare not and his backers are too shrewd to permit him to undertake any such a thing.

The Republicans charge that Hancock hung Mrs. Surratt. This can be very easily disproved as the facts will show when they are produced. This attempt to alienate the Catholic vote will miserably fail.

The latest record of Mr. GARFIELD published by the Republican biographers jumps from his thirty-third to his forty-eighth year—clean over that most interesting period made memorable by the DE GOLYER pavement swindle and the Credit Mobilier corruption. That is a somewhat imperfect record prepared entirely for Republican journals.

HANCOCK AND THE REPUBLICANS.

The following letter has been handed to the N. Y. World by Mr. Jerome with a request for its publication:

"25 WEST TWENTY-SIXTH STREET, June 28, 1880.

"Major-General Hancock.

"MY DEAR GENERAL: I take the earliest opportunity to congratulate you upon your nomination and to assure you, life-long Whig and Republican that I am, of my most hearty support. I belong to a very numerous and very staunch old silver-gray Republican family. With one solitary exception, there never was one of them known to vote the Democratic ticket, but I venture to say they will to a man vote for you. They cannot consistently do otherwise. "You, sir, embody the views and sentiments in regard to the great questions of the day that we have entertained since the war closed. They are the same that actuated General Grant when he laid down those liberal terms of surrender to General Lee. They are the same that actuated my poor friend Raymond, when he battled so manfully in the committee of Congress against the savage policy of Thad. Stevens. I believe General Grant would support you to-day, did not the exigencies of his situation forbid it. And Henry J. Raymond, were he alive, would support you too, unless the exigencies of the New York Times restrained him. He was compelled at an early day to smother the sentiments he had expressed in the address of the Philadelphia Convention, to abandon his career in legislative halls and to change the tone of the Times or, as Mr. Jones, our business manager and partner, insisted, the paper would be ruined. (I believe I offered to pay the damages at the time, but that was considered impracticable.) It was a bitter pill, but it had to be swallowed. Thad. Stevens had succeeded through a Congress which misrepresented the country in engrafting his policy upon the Republican party. And though a majority of the party, as I firmly believe, were disgusted, it was fastened upon them and there was no way of getting rid of it. Thus for years a vast number of us, good Republicans, have been compelled to be helpless supporters of a policy we believe to be the very worst that could be devised. An opportunity is presented us now for the first time with any show of success to vote in accordance with our convictions, and I am sure we shall do it most joyfully. With great respect and esteem, believe me yours, faithfully,

LEONARD W. JEROME.

Col. John W. Forney: "I am of the opinion that General Hancock will be elected the next President of the United States. I think one hundred thousand Republicans will vote for him."

The German American Independent Association of New York have adopted resolutions hailing with delight the nominations of Hancock and English, and pledging them their support.

Republican papers insist, almost piteously, that—"it is the same old cause to be fought over." Before the end of the campaign they will honestly believe that Hancock is a "rebel brigadier."

Democrats are as happy as a baby with a new doll over their new ticket.—Republican paper.

Republicans are as happy as the trapper who set his trap for a beaver and caught a skunk.

Application was made to the Supreme court recently to have William Dalzell who is under indictment for manslaughter at Paterson, tried by a foreign jury, which the Supreme court granted.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, June 21, 1880.

In accordance with the subjoined written request to the Director, the Board met at the Court House on Monday, June 21, 1880, at two o'clock p. m.

To C. W. L. Martine, Director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

You are requested to call a special meeting of the Board, to be held on Monday, June 21, 1880, to authorize the County Collector and Director to make temporary loans in anticipation of taxes, to meet the wants of the county.

Respectfully,
THOS. FORSYTH,
JOHN BALL,
JOHN ISEMANN,
GEO. W. F. RANDOLPH.

June 7, 1880.

Present—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Ball, Crowell, Forsyth, Hubbard, Iseman, Jewell, Miller, Nolte, O'Sullivan, Smith, Thompson, Wilcox—15.

Absent—Freeholders Doty and Roll—2.

The Director made a statement to the Board of the amounts falling due and to be provided for.

The following resolution, offered by Freeholder Hubbard, was read, and on motion of Freeholder Randolph, was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Ball, Crowell, Forsyth, Hubbard, Iseman, Jewell, Miller, Nolte, O'Sullivan, Randolph, Smith, Thompson, Wilcox—15. Nays—None.

Resolved, That the Director and Collector in their official capacity be authorized to make temporary loans for county purposes to the amount of seventy-five thousand dollars in anticipation of taxes.

On motion of Freeholder Hubbard, the Board adjourned.

JOHN L. CROWELL, Clerk.

More fire apparatus are disabled in Trenton, in consequence of the wheels catching in the railroad track as the machines swing around corners, than in any other city of its size in the Union. That there are not more firemen seriously injured than there are by these mishaps is a wonder.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

If fish will bite half as savagely as the advanced host of flies, the present season will more than satisfy anglers.

It is quite probably that young lads who amuse themselves by shooting robins and other song birds, do not stop to think that at this season of the year when they kill the parent bird they leave a brood of young ones to starve in the nest. And it is probable also that the boys are not aware of the existing law of the state of New Jersey, which provides a penalty of not less than $10 nor more than $20 for every such insectivorous bird killed, or the taking of their eggs of young.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A DENIAL!
SIMPSON & CO.,

(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE off SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is INCORRECT; or in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient to allow of any being cut, independent of filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY; and made from

Pure Spring Water.

They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defence.

A CARD.

Being compelled by the increase of business to have an assistant, I have taken in my employ Mr. A. J. Mills, a mechanical specialist, his first practice for five years being the celebrated Norman W. Kingsly, M. D. S. D. D. S., of New York city, and for six years with Dr. Kingsly of Elizabeth. I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent mechanical operator in every particular. I will therefore take this method of proving to those that wish to take advantage of the lowest our price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, viz: for 3 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole sets of teeth on celluloid for $10, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect. We would strive to do only first-class work, and hope by so doing at the end of 3 months to secure favor and patronage by perfection in operations, rather than by cheap competition.

CHAS. R. THEBES,
Office No. 12 Park Ave.

SOMETHING NEW.

Having purchased the right to use Harris' Patent Apparatus for Removing Night Soil and Cleaning Cesspools in this city, I respectfully solicit a trial of the machine, guaranteeing entire satisfaction to all cases. POETRY.

THE OLD MAN'S DREAM.

BY OLIVER W. HOLMES.

O, for one hour of youthful joy,
Give back my twentieth spring,
I'd rather laugh a bright-haired boy,
Than reign a gray-haired king.

Off with the wrinkled spoils of age,
Away with learning's crown,
Tear out life's wisdom-written page,
And dash its trophies down.

One moment let my life blood stream
From boyhood's fount of flame,
Give me one giddy, reeling dream
Of life, all love and fame.

My listening angel heard the prayer,
And calmly smiling, said:
"If I but through thy silvered hair,
Thy hasty wish had sped,

But is there nothing in thy track
To bid thee fondly stay,
While the swift seasons hurry back
To find the wished-for day?"

Ah, truest, best of womankind,
Without thee what were life?
One bliss I cannot leave behind,
I'll take—my precious—wife.

The angel took a sapphire pen,
And wrote with morning's dew,
The man would be a boy again,
And be a husband, too.

"And is there nothing left unsaid,
Before the change appears?
Remember, all these gifts have fled
With the revolving years."

Yes, for memory would recall
My fond, paternal joys,
I could not bear to leave them all,
I'll take—my—girls—and boys.

The smiling angel dropped his pen—
Why, this will never do,
The man would be a boy again,
And be a father, too!"

And so I laughed. My laugh awoke
The household with its noise,
And wrote my dream when morning broke,
To please the gray-haired boys.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A BICYCLE TRAGEDY.

A bicycle is dangerous not when it is in motion, but when it is at rest. It is then that it throws its rider and tramples him with a viciousness that the depraved horse would be ashamed to exhibit. When the novice tries to get on his bicycle, he invariably falls over and under it two or three times. If he can once get it started at a fair pace, it will be docile until the fatal moment comes when he must try to dismount. As soon as the speed of the bicycle is checked it begins to wabble like a dying top, and if the experienced rider can manage to dismount without falling off he is exceptionally lucky. The only way to avoid this painful and humiliating method of dismounting is to hire a man to catch the bicycle and hold it. If no man is available, the unskillful bicyclist has to choose between riding on forever and stopping the machine and dismounting in that miscellaneous manner that is so fatal to limbs and clothing. Of course after long practice the bicyclist is able to mount without falling, and to dismount eight or nine times out of ten without an accident, but the certainty that an inexperienced rider must end his ride by lying on the ground with his legs almost inextricably tangled with the spokes of the driving-wheel deters timid souls from becoming bicyclists.

The sport is an innocent one is generally admitted, and the bicycle is rapidly growing in favor with young and athletic clergymen. Hitherto they have been compelled to content themselves with croquet, but that sport demands on the part of the player a degree of self-control which renders it difficult for a nervous or irritable man to play it with credit. The clergymen who can smile and keep their tempers when told by their leading parishioners that they have cheated by claiming "hoops" which they have never passed; and there are exceptional clergymen who can even be struck on the ankle with a mallet by an angry sister and meekly turn the other leg to the stroke. Such men are, however, confessedly rare, and it is no wonder that the average young clergymen hails the bicycle as a welcome and safe substitute for the croquet mallet. And yet in one conspicuous instance a worthy clergyman has been utterly ruined by a bicycle, and his case may be useful as a warning to other and as yet more fortunate men.

What has long been desired is a motive power, other than the human leg, which is capable of being applied to the bicycle. This great want has, it is claimed, been lately supplied by an ingenious Chicago inventor. He has constructed a bicycle driven by the expansive force of a strong steel spring. When the machine is to be used the spring is wound up. The rider then leaps into his place, and the moment his weight presses the saddle the spring is released and the bicycle starts off at full speed, thus obviating all danger of falling. The spring is warranted to keep the bicycle in motion for an hour, and by pressing a lever placed immediately in front of the saddle the machine can be instantly stopped. Rests for the feet, unconnected with the treadles of the driving-wheel, are provided, and the rider can thus journey without making the least exertion, until at the end of an hour he is obliged to dismount and wind up the spring.

The Rev. Mr. Macpherson had been for nearly a year the Rector of the church in Iahkalawbusky, Iowa, and together with his young and attractive wife had won the warm admiration of all but the unmarried ladies of his parish, when he became interested in bicycles. Being young and athletic, he soon became an excellent rider, and every afternoon after four o'clock he was accustomed to mount his bicycle in the back yard, to ride swiftly down the carriage path to the street, and thence through the village. As his house was an isolated one, and no curious neighbors were near, Mrs. Macpherson undertook to learn to ride, and in a short time was able to mount with ease and to ride the length of the yard, where her husband would meet her and hold the machine while she dismounted. She greatly enjoyed the sport, and it may possibly have been in order to remove from her the temptation to venture to ride outside of the yard that her husband avoided teaching her to dismount without his help. A fortnight ago Mr. Macpherson bought one of the new Chicago spring motor velocipedes, without informing his wife of the nature of his purchase. It was delivered at his house while he was absent at the Diocesan Convention, and his wife was filled with admiration of its beauty. She was entirely ignorant that it was in any respect different from other machines, and late in the afternoon she determined to try it. Her husband not being at hand to help her dismount, she called the cook, and gave her full instructions as to how to catch the machine and hold it. Then taking the new bicycle to the extreme rear of the yard, Mrs. Macpherson sprang into the saddle and was off at a speed of fifteen miles an hour.

It could hardly be said that she was terribly frightened. Scarcely less frightened was the cook as she saw her mistress sweeping down upon her at a terrific speed. Instead of trying to stop the machine, she screamed wildly and ran out of its path. The gate was open, and Mrs. Macpherson whirled into the street. She would have given worlds to stop the runaway bicycle, but she did not know the secret of the lever, and she did not dare to risk her life by jumping off. In a few minutes she found herself entering the long principal street of Iahkalawbusky, and saw that the inhabitants were flocking to the sidewalk to watch her. She was crimson with horror as she reflected that the machine was strictly designed for riders with trousers, and for a moment she almost made up her mind to throw herself to the ground regardless of consequences. Fortunately, she reflected that the results of a fall would be even more startling and extensive than those entailed by keeping her seat; and so, trying to comfort herself with the reflection that they were real Balbriggan, and unusually tasteful in color and pattern, she rode on. She would gladly have changed places with Mazeppa, who rode through a desert instead of a crowded street, and she envied Lady Godiva, who had induced the people of Coventry to close their window blinds. The sensation she made as she rushed through the village, and out again upon the prairie, cannot be described, but she knew perfectly well that no possible story that she could devise would be accepted in explanation of the frightful impropriety of which she had been guilty.

The runaway bicycle came to a stop ten miles out of Iahkalawbunky, and close to a railway station. Mrs. Macpherson promptly took the train to Milwaukee, where her parents resided, and then telegraphed to her husband. Of course, she never returned to Iahkalawbunky, and Mr. Macpherson was requested to resign his parish on the ground that the conduct of his wife was to the last degree scandalous. He has since given up bicycling, but he is under a cloud, and his hopes of usefulness in the church are ruined.—N. Y. Times.

VISITING THE PRINTING OFFICE.

She came into the printing office smiling and beautiful. George and she were engaged, and George had a case. He had a galley of solid nonpareil on his frame which he was about to lock up and prove. She eyed the galley, and smiled sweeter than before.

"Doddy, dear, are these the things you print with?"

"Yes, darling," said Doddy, feelingly. She swept her taper fingers over the matter, squabbling the entire galley.

"Bless you, my darling!" said George chokingly.

She looked up at him and said:

"Why Doddy, dear, it's all in little pieces, isn't it?"

"Yes, love," said George, gently taking her hand and leading her toward the door.

"Good by, darling," he said.

"Good bye, Doddy; be sure and come to-night."

"Dear me," she soliloquized, "how George loves me! He nearly sobbed when I touched those funny little bits of thingumnies."

George, moodily: "I wished all women were in—Heaven."

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 1st, 1880.

The Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union met at the Court House, Elizabeth, on Thursday, July 1st, 1880, at 2 o'clock p. m. Stated meeting.

All the members present.

The minutes of the last regular meeting, together with the minutes of the special meeting held June 21st, were read (with the exception of bills ordered paid), and on motion were approved.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following petition from citizens of Cranford township for an iron bridge over the Rahway river on South avenue, was, on motion of Freeholder Roll, received and ordered spread upon the minutes.

CRANFORD, June 28th, 1880.

To the Honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County, New Jersey:

We, the undersigned, citizens and tax-payers of Cranford, living in that portion of the township situated south of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, do humbly petition your honorable body that you will cause to be erected an iron bridge over the Rahway river on South avenue, in place of the wooden bridge now standing, for the reason that the present structure is badly decayed and in an unsafe condition. It is dangerous to cross during the freshets which frequently occur, because of the water reaching and washing the bridge.

That this petition may have your favorable consideration, we do ever pray.

A communication from the County Physician, relative to the finding of the body of an unknown man in the waters of Newark Bay, and the interment of the same by the County of Union, was read.

On motion received and placed on file.

The following from Frank Bergen, Esq., attorney in the county line matter, was read, and, on motion, received and ordered spread upon the minutes.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 29, 1880.

To the Director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

SIR: The commissioners appointed last March by the Supreme Court to ascertain and monument that part of the county line between this county and Essex, which separates Clinton township in Essex county, from Union township in this county, after several meetings, decided on Friday, the eleventh day of June, that the true line of division between the counties is the line defined by the charter of Queen Anne, granted to Newark in the year 1713, as surveyed by John Reid some time after.

By the decision of the commissioners, several hundred acres of land that have been considered to be in this county belongs to Essex.

The freeholders of Essex county applied to the Supreme Court for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain and monument that part of the county line which separates the said townships of Clinton and Union. By the decision of the Commissioners, the line as heretofore regarded is erroneous from a point near Waverly Fair Grounds to the Rahway river, a distance of about five miles. The jurisdiction of the present commissioners extends only about half the distance, hence they are not able to monument the entire line according to their decision without a new application to the Court, or by consent that the former application shall be amended. On the part of Union county, it was decided not to consent to such amendment.

Upon examination, it appeared that the line of division between the counties depended entirely on a question of law, that is the true meaning and construction of two charters and several acts of the Legislature.

My opinion is that the decision of the commissioners is erroneous, and may be reviewed and corrected on application to the Supreme Court by writ of certiorari.

Very respectfully, &c.,
FRANK BERGEN.

C. W. L. MARTINE, Esq.

A communication from Ellis A. Apgar, Esq., Secretary of State Board of Education, notifying the Board that Mr. N. W. Pease had been appointed County Superintendent of Schools for Union county, was read.

On motion of Freeholder Roll, the communication was received and placed on file.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

Report of committee on Maple avenue bridge, Elizabeth:

Your committee appointed to report their judgment as to the advisability of constructing a bridge on Maple avenue, near Summer street, Elizabeth, and the probable cost, beg leave to report that they have examined the location, and find that a bridge is a necessity; therefore, they would advise that it be made the width of the street, the walls to be six foot apart, and that the covering be of flagging laid on I beams taken from the Bridge street draw, and covered with earth, and that there be parapet walls of brick with proper coping. The cost of same will not exceed eight hundred dollars.

THOS. FORSYTH,
JOSEPH NOLTE,
WILLIAM I. THOMPSON,
WM. JEWELL,
JOHN K. ROLL,
Committee.

Elizabeth, N. J., July 1, 1880.

Freeholder Randolph moved the report be received and recommendation granted.

Which was carried by a unanimous vote.

The Committee on Raymond avenue bridge, Plainfield, reported as follows:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

Your committee, appointed to consider the necessity for, probable cost of and the liability of the county in the matter of Raymond avenue bridge in the city of Plainfield, would report that the committee met at the bridge on the 28th inst., and that upon investigation they find that a road leading from Somerset county over to the main road leading to and through Plainfield, crossed Green Brook, the county line, at or near the present location of the bridge in question, and has been in use, old residents say, over fifty years; the present bridge spanning the stream was erected by individual property owners at their own expense, at the time they laid out and dedicated Raymond avenue to the public use because of the location of said avenue, being equidistant between Scotch Plains and Plainfield, it became a popular thoroughfare, and public travel since has worn out the bridge, the street at this point is now fenced up, and travel suspended. The avenue, though dedicated to public use has not been formally accepted for reasons unknown to the committee, by the city authorities of Plainfield, and the question of the liability of the county under the circumstances should an accident occur, and the obligation of the county to rebuild and maintain the bridge in question, your committee submitted to the County Attorney, whose opinion is herewith appended. Your committee are unanimously of the opinion that public necessity requires the rebuilding of the bridge; that it is the duty of the joint counties of Union and Somerset to replace the worn out bridge with a new structure, and that the probable cost of the same will be, if the superstructure is built of wood, not over $600, and if of iron not over $700, the half of which amount to be borne by each county. Your committee would therefore recommend that they be authorized to call and meet with a similar committee from Somerset county, and to put under contract the erection of a new bridge, either of wood or iron, as shall be deemed will best subserve the interest of the economy.

Respectfully submitted,
GEO. W. F. RANDOLPH,
JOHN BALL,
SAMUEL C. SMITH,
Committee.

July 1st, 1880.

Accompanying the same was the opinion of the County Attorney relative to the matter.

IN A FIX.

Some Republican journals prate about Democratic "mud throwing." There are many funny things connected with politics, and that is the funniest one of the season. It is enough to make a solemn visaged deacon roar with laughter in meeting. Republican editors finding fault with mud throwing. Shades of Thad. Stevens and Zach. Chandler! Has the memory of only four years been forgotten, when more slanders were hurled against the Democratic candidate for President than half a century will atone for. Mud throwing charged by gentlemen who hold in loving partisan embrace Bob. Ingersoll and General Kilpatrick. What refreshing consistency? Mud throwing charged by political writers and speakers who have wantonly accused Democrats, individually and collectively, with all crimes known to ancient or modern times, and exhausted the vocabulary of Billingsgate to give them forcible expression. Well! Well! As the old colored minister exclaimed—"Dat saint who hollered loudest stop thief was de exact sinner what stole de watch."

The prattle about mud throwing is easily explained. Its object stands plainly in view. The anti-Grant Republicans at Chicago, in their mad haste, chose a nominee for President who is marked with several ugly Credit Mobilier and DeGolyer Pavement blotches, which wont rub off. Neither lime nor acid will cleanse him. The Democrats never threw any dirt at him. There was no necessity for them to do so. He got into the mire of his own accord, and nobody is to blame but himself.

That is what ails Mr. Garfield and his supporters.

He and they are in a bad fix.

For President,
WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.

PEACE.

George Ticknor Curtis, of New York, a profound constitutional lawyer, the student, friend and biographer of Daniel Webster, and since the dissolution of the Whig party an ardent supporter of the Democratic, this year pronounced the Fourth of July oration before the Society of Tammany. Mr. Curtis in the course of his thought-framed and interesting address uttered the following words: "First and foremost and beyond all things the country needs peace—the peace of fraternal love—the peace of fidelity to the Constitution and to every part of it."

Those were golden words of truth, and they clearly reflect the principles and purpose of the Democratic party.

The country wants peace.

Not peace forced into existence by the threatening power of swords and bayonets, but peace born of mutual confidence and good will.

The country wants peace.

Not the sullen and desolating quietude exacted by tyrannical surveillance, but the invigorating activity of co-equal and co-respected citizens ambitious to advance the wealth and welfare of a common country.

The country wants peace.

Not wrought by arbitrary infraction of law, but made lasting by rigid obedience to the expressed authority of the Constitution.

First and foremost that is what the country needs, and to secure that glorious boon the Democracy have named—

For President,
WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.
For Vice President,
WILLIAM H. ENGLISH.

THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE.

Like a prairie fire the nomination of General Hancock is sweeping over our broad land.

His name is greeted everywhere with enthusiastic favor.

No candidate for President since the days of Andrew Jackson pleased the honest masses like that of Hancock.

The soldiers are rallying with zealous pride around his standard.

The Democrats are solid for him.

Prominent Republicans by scores are coming out and publicly avowing their determination to vote for Hancock.

Pennsylvania is wild for Hancock.

He is her noble son.

He saved her at Gettysburg.

As President he will render Union impregnable and prosperity permanent and universal.

For President,
WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.

The Philadelphia Chronicle says:—"If General Garfield had been dipped in the Schuylkill after a freshet he couldn't be muddier. For this the Democracy is in no way responsible. A Republican committee put on the first coating, and it has stuck."

MR. GARFIELD'S ACCEPTANCE.

The Republican candidate for President has at last put forth his letter of acceptance. It is evidently a labored attempt to throw honey all around the circle after votes, and beneath a shower of words to make crooked things appear straight. However skillfully arranged for publication the language of Mr. Garfield may be, he has fallen into the grave error of circumlocution. The people want concise and practical expression, a direct coming to the points of issue. The Sewarditish style of writing much and meaning anything or nothing, as circumstances may demand, is out of present date.

The letter of Mr. Garfield is open to criticism from beginning to end. We cannot at this time go into detail, but only refer to two or three remarkable features.

He says—"While the Republicans fully recognize and will strenuously defend all the rights retained by the people and all the rights reserved to the States, they reject the pernicious doctrine of State supremacy."

And going on he ventures this remark.—"Next in importance to freedom and justice is popular education without which neither justice nor freedom can be permanently maintained. Its interests are intrusted to the States and to the voluntary action of the people."

There Mr. Garfield strikes a snag. The State supremacy he slurringly belittles becomes, by his own showing, supreme under the Constitution in regard to education, because the General Government, (or "nation," as Mr. Garfield and other centralizing gentlemen term it) possesses no kind of delegated power over that matter, it being one of the reservations of State supremacy.

The more the question is discussed clearer grows the Democratic truth, namely:

The General Government is supreme in the exercise of all authority specifically granted by the Constitution.

The States are supreme in the exercise of all rights and privileges reserved to them and their people.

The Union is indissoluble.

Furthermore Mr. Garfield remarks—"The separation of the church and the state in everything relating to taxation should be absolute."

The Democrats go beyond that limited line, and declare the separation between Church and State shall be absolute in every respect, and that all citizens shall be free to worship according to the dictates of individual conscience.

Mr. Garfield has of a sudden discovered the vital necessity of expending an immense sum of money toward improving the Mississippi River. The Hudson, Connecticut, Delaware and Potomac are not worthy of mention. All must be spent on the Mississippi.

That is amusing when we remember how propositions of the kind in Congress were denounced by the Republicans as extravagant schemes of the "Rebel Brigadiers," as Southern Congressmen were insultingly called by Mr. Garfield and his friends.

Mr. Garfield wont be President.

HANCOCK.

"General Sherman has my permission to publish anything I ever sent him over my signature in reference to the Electoral Commission and Mr. Tilden, or any other matter of interest to the people at the present day."—W. S. Hancock.

Could any man, a candidate for any office in the gift of the people, be more candid?

Can any voter, be he Democrat or Republican, ask more of a nominee who is before him for his suffrage?

Nothing to conceal, nothing to extenuate, nothing to amend, but willing to stand by his past record.

That is manly.

That is honest.

That proves him to be what has been asserted of him—that he always was true and faithful to the great principles of American liberty.

We like such candor.

We like such outspoken confession of a willingness to stand by his past record.

We like the man who has nothing in his past to conceal from the people.

It recommends him to the voter as no other expression can recommend any man.—Norristown Register.

GARFIELD.

A Republican contemporary observes that many things can be said of Garfield that cannot be said of Hancock.

That is, unfortunately for Garfield and his party, a solemn truth.

For example.—

It can be said of Garfield that he was condemned by a Republican committee of Congress of having taken bribes.

That can't be said of Hancock.

It can be said of Garfield that, as Chairman of the Appropriation Committee of Congress, he took $5,000 from a swindling concern in search of an appropriation, and called it a "counsel fee."

That can't be said of Hancock.

It can be said of Garfield that he deserted the army to electioneer and run for Congress.

That can't be said of Hancock.

—Trenton True American.

MUD THAT DIDN'T STICK.

It is unnecessary for the Democratic press to notice or reply to the unsubstantiated calumnies of the irresponsible off-shoots of the Republican party which lack sufficient experience or judgment to fit them for aught else than the performance of the party's dirty work, when such journals as the New York Evening Post not only utterly and completely bury a most ridiculous charge, but in so doing pay a generous tribute to the honesty of General Hancock.

The following is a portion of an interview between a representative of our evening contemporary and Colonel William C. Church of the Army and Navy Journal, in relation to the United Service Petroleum and Mining Company of which Major-General Hancock was never elected president:

"Instead of thinking that the trustees of the company were unbusiness like in their conduct, as is insinuated, I think that they showed great vigor in stopping a plausible swindle at the outset. Just as soon as the company actually organized and came together, suspicions were aroused, and at once a committee made an investigation of Mann's statements. The result was the arrest of Mann on a charge of fraud. The first prospectus of the company was published on the 15th of April, 1865, and on the 26th of June, 1865, Mann was brought before the Jefferson Market Police Court, and the company was immediately wound up. I think that this was pretty quick work."

The distinguished General Hancock who drove back the Confederate forces at Gettysburg is called by some Republican journals "a mere military puppet." The people will render a verdict on that kind of slander next November.

A COLLOQUY.

"Who flung dat mud at me, Sam Jones."

"Flung at who."

"Why at me, you stupid Hancock ape."

"Look heah, Jim Garfish, you'd better shut up about flunging mud. Ef you'd jist kept out of dat rotten wooden pavement hole, dar would have ben no casion to try and white-wash yourself now. Dat am a fixed fact, sah."

NOTIFYING THE NOMINEES.

General Hancock, Democratic candidate for President and Hon. Wm. H. English, candidate for Vice President were formally notified of their nomination by the Cincinnati Democratic Convention, on Tuesday last, by a Notification Committee appointed for that purpose. Hon. John P. Stockton, of New Jersey was the chairman of the Committee, and in a few brief words announced the object of the meeting. Secretary Nicholas M. Bell then read the official letter signed by John W. Stevenson, President of the Convention, and all the members of the Committee. General Hancock responded as follows:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN OF THE COMMITTEE: I appreciate the honor conferred upon me by the National Democratic Convention, lately assembled at Cincinnati, and thank your for your courtesy in making known that honor to me. As soon as time permits me to give the subject that grave attention belonging to it, I shall prepare and will send you a reply of a formal nature accepting the nomination of the Democratic party for the office of President of the United States." [Applause.]

Hon. Wm. H. English was then informed, in the same official manner, of his nomination for Vice President. He responded as follows:

"MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN OF THE COMMITTEE: As a practical business man, not much accustomed to indirection of action or circumlocution of speech I will say plainly and in a few words that I accept the high trust which you have tendered me with feelings of profound gratitude, and that I will, at an early day, formally and in writing, make the acceptance which I am informed is usual upon such occasions. In doing this I fully realize the great responsibility of the situation, the care, the turmoil, the anxiety, the misrepresentation, the abuse which are certain to follow, and I understand thoroughly that all resources and powers of our political foes from all parts of the land will be concentrated against us in Indianna, my native State, in the first great battle to be fought, probably the most important of all that are to be fought. But there are great occasions when the discharge of high patriotic duties is to be considered above all personal considerations. I shall not disregard the unanimous voice of the representative of the majority of the American people which you speak here to-day. [Applause.] I fully realize the importance of the situation. I am profoundly grateful for the high honor which has been conferred, and I have an abiding faith that with the favor of God and of the people we shall succeed in this contest." [Applause.]

Why don't Mr. Garfield resign as United States Senator elect? Echo answers—Presidential chances are growing small rapidly and beautifully less.

Mr. Mullett, the public building architect, is said to have joined the Hancock legion. Rally round the flag, boys! See the conquering hero comes!

Mrs. General Hancock plays the organ in the Episcopal chapel on Governor's Island. Cannot the Republican editors slur the next President of the United States because of that?

The Democratic nomination of General Hancock for President has torn the bloody shirt of sectionalism into shreds. With it oblivion hides the banner of Garfieldism.

"The cry is still they come!" Another prominent Republican leader in Philadelphia is reported to be outspoken in favor of the election of General Hancock. More are coming.

Some Republican zealots are calling upon General Hancock to resign his military commission. They could not see the propriety of like action when General Grant was first nominated.

A grandson of Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock, named after its illustrious grand-parent, died on Governor's Island Tuesday last. The child was a son of Russel Hancock, and was aged about five months.

The Democratic National Committee met in the Fifth Avenue Hotel on Tuesday, and organized for the Presidential campaign by selecting ex-Senator William A. Barnum, of Connecticut for Chairman and Frederick O. Prince, of Boston, for Secretary.

The advocacy of Hancock and English by Mr. Forney, the great Republican editor and leader in Pennsylvania, has sent a volley of red hot shot into the Garfield ranks. Forney predicts that Hancock will receive one hundred thousand Republican votes. We would not be surprised if the number trebled that.

That jolly old sea-dog from the Western bushes, Naval Secretary Thompson, made a Garfield speech the other night and promised, if necessary, the whole army and navy to protect the right of voting. What a good time the weather beaten sailor will have hauling his worthless gun boats up Green Brook!

Our Republican friends, in their frantic efforts to catch at straws, thought they had discovered a wonderful and fortunate co-incidence in the three first letters of their candidate's name reading thus—"Grand Army Republic-field." Vociferous was their joy, and, although reluctant to spoil such a small crumb of comfort, we concluded to send a messenger to examine the archives. He has returned and reports the proper interpretation to be GOLYER APPROPRIATION REPRESENTATIVE—field.

The German Veteran Association, of New York, have adopted pointed resolutions, of which the following are specimens:

Whereas, We find in the nomination of Gen. W. S. Hancock for President and William H. English for Vice President the true and only candidates who give us full guarantee for the welfare of the people, for the prosperity of the nation and for an honest government: therefore be it

Resolved, That we as a body will use all our influence to secure the election of the above candidates.

COL. FORNEY says some quite handsome things in his enthusiasm for Hancock. In a communication to his old paper, the Press, he says:

"You will not trust Hancock with the Presidency of the United States because he is a Democrat; and yet but for him and such as him the whole Nation would have perished. Besides, dear friends, we must be careful about this crusade on the Democrats. The true statesmen regard them as an important factor in our population, and when we attempt to make Democracy a sin we not only forget that Democrats fought in the war for the Union with signal courage, but that without the aid of the Democrats, the Republicans would to-day be shriveled into the dry dimensions of the skeleton of Know Nothingism.

The Republican press is so ready to accept Judge Black's opinion of Garfield that we publish the following extract from a private letter of the former editor of the Philadelphia Times, June 28, 1880—

"If he would carry the principles which regulate his private life into his public conduct he would make the best Chief Magistrate we have ever had. But he will act for the interests of his party, as he has acted all his lifetime. I do not know any really good man who has done and assisted in doing so many bad things in politics as General Garfield."

JUDGE TRUMBULL stated in a speech at Chicago the other evening that the books of the Treasury Department at Washington show discrepancies amounting to millions, and argued very pointedly and sensibly that one of the objects to be gained by a Democratic victory in November would be the correction of the abuses of which these discrepancies are the proof.

The Chicago Times advises Hancock to hold on to that commission as Major-General, and says Garfield knows enough to hold a Senatorship in the hand until he has captured the Presidency in the bush.

COMMENTS.

It will take a pretty heavy frost to kill this speech crop that is coming on now.

A Hancock and English club of colored men at Montgomery, Ala., numbers 200.

Seventeen Republicans of South Easton, Pennsylvania, have declared for Hancock.

When Grant got the news from Chicago
On his feelings he laid an embargo;
He sent no dispatch,
But look out a match
And lit it to make his cigar go.

HANCOCK—7
ENGLISH—7
GARFIELD—8
ARTHUR—6

Anybody knows that two 7s will beat an 8 and a 6.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Heavens, how they hate a "military candidate." In these days! To hear the organs howl one would think the devil had been dressed in a Major General's uniform and put on the Democratic ticket.

"The statement has been made ever since his nomination, and has not been contradicted," that Gen Hancock's public and private record is without a blemish. His name has now been before the public for two weeks, and the Republican mud-slingers are dumbfounded.

"Crow" is the staple dish of every six years old Republican editor in the country. Garfield's record is the toughest subject they ever handled, but they are all getting right down to it. Whether they can keep it down is a question they haven't come to yet.

The attempts of the Republican journals to show that Hancock wasn't much of a general after all, are extremely ridiculous. The pages of history have his deeds emblazoned upon them and his feats of valor in the Mexican war and the late civil conflict are known too well to be written down at this late day. Such things re-act.

The Republican papers amuse their readers by telling them regularly every morning that "the enthusiasm for Hancock is all over." After a while the readers will find the assurance a little monotonous, and will want to know when the enthusiasm for Garfield is going to begin.

The Long Branch News generously comes to the help of the Republican newspapers in their effort to find something in Hancock's record for their "mud slings." The News says:

"The charge will soon be made against Hancock that he is a thief, for it is a well-known fact that he stole marches on the enemy."

The Credit Mobilier.

Since it was clearly demonstrated a few years ago that Mr. Garfield, who a short time ago was nominated by the Republican Convention as the candidate of that party for the Presidency, was mixed up in the Credit Mobilier frauds, the whole matter now acquires a new interest, and the question is often asked: "What was the Credit Mobilier, and how were certain Congressmen involved in dishonorable practices in connection therewith?" The Journal of Commerce, in answer, says: "The original Credit Mobilier was a joint stock company founded in Paris on November 18, 1852, to do a banking business, to facilitate the construction of public works, and to develope national industry. It was called by M. Berryer 'the greatest gambling house the world has ever seen.' It dealt in everything, it 'promoted' everything, it divided as high as 41 per cent per annum to its stockholders, it made all its managers enormously rich, but it came to grief, and in 1867 went into liquidation. The Credit Mobilier of America was organized in 1863, with a capital of two and a half millions. In January, 1867, the charter was purchased by a company authorized to construct the Union Pacific Railroad, and the stock was increased to $3,750,000. This rose to great value (the profits being made chiefly out of the construction of that thoroughfare) and enormous dividends were declared. In 1872 in the course of some legal proceedings in Pennsylvania, it came out that certain members of Congress and the Vice President were either secretly or openly connected with it as stockholders. Congress investigated the scandal. The Senate committee made a report recommending the expulsion of an implicated Senator, and censuring others, but as his term expired in five days no action was taken on it. In the House resolutions censuring two members were passed. It would be unwise, and perhaps unjust, in a paragraph to mention any names of parties more or less implicated."

Personal Characteristics of Mrs. Hancock.

Mrs. Hancock, the wife of the General, is a few years his junior in age and as a woman is as imposing in appearance as he is as a man. Tall and well proportioned, with a most winsome smile, a manner that puts you at your ease at once and a pair of eyes that animate every line of a handsome face, she is still a beauty, although her hair is becoming streaked with gray. She was married when the General was but a young lieutenant doing duty in the far West. It was entirely a love match, and neither of them have since regretted it—in fact, their home is one of the happiest imaginable. Mrs. Hancock has always been opposed to her husband's becoming a candidate for the Presidency, and she is even above the weakness of wishing to be the mistress of the White House. She dreads the worry of the canvass, and if her husband is elected she thinks that the honor which the position brings will be dearly purchased by the renunciation of all domestic life for four years to come and of his position as senior major general and his chances of soon becoming chief of the army. While she prefers her own home existence, however, there is none better qualified to play the hostess on a grand scale than she. A society belle, even after her marriage, she has all the self-confidence and resources needed to entertain the most varied company. There is nothing in the range of conversation about which she does not know something. Her greatest charm, however, is—and it is the General's also—the art of making every individual alone feel as if we were the one sole object of her attentions.

Cable despatches foreshadow war between Turkey and Greece. Troops of both countries are said to be already gathering on their respective frontiers. It is probable that the great powers will step in before there is much bloodshed and settle the dispute, to suit—not the belligerents—but themselves.

The great Union mass meeting to be held under the auspices of all the Democratic organizations in New York city, to ratify the Cincinnati nominations, will probably be called for the 28th inst. It will be a great and memorable popular demonstration.

The Tay Bridge Commissioners of Scotland made their reports on the terrible accident by which, through the falling of the bridge some time since, while a passenger train was crossing, so many lives were lost. The majority report censures, more or less severely, the contractors, the engineer and the North British Railway Company. The design of the bridge is condemned, and the company charged with neglecting to keep it in proper repair. Although the construction of the bridge was faulty, the Commissioners believe it might have weathered the storm and lasted for years had it been kept in thorough repair. The minority report arrives at the same conclusion, but differs on matters of detail.

Lapsus Memoriæ.

The Central Times seems to be afflicted with a short memory. It says in its last issue:

They [Republican soldiers] did not form an association even to show their devotion to the greatest [sic] military chieftan of modern times, when he twice led the Republican phalanx [!] to victory at the polls.

If our contemporary refers to the Grant campaign, and our memory is not also failing, we would merely call attention to the organization of 1876 that was dubbed the "Boys in Blue" for the reason, probably, that an unsufficiency of men being forthcoming, boys in indigo suits were recruited to swell the ranks that marched "to victory at the polls."

What Plainfield May Expect.

The press of this State and New York city has, during the past week, very thoroughly ventilated the sanitary condition of our sister city Bound Brook and shown her to be in an alarmingly afflicted condition from miasmatic infection and malarial fever. On the former site of a fine meadow, a stagnant pond of about 60 acres now exists, formed by the building of a dam below, that by its height causes the flooding of the fields. The meadow is boggy, full of weeds and covered with a green scum, that as the sun shines uninterruptedly upon, emits a very perceptible and unpleasant smell that increases after daylight. The effect upon the best interests of the town may be understood from the following gleanings of a New York Times reporter:

The Rev. James D. Eaton, Pastor of one of the churches, said the malaria was playing sad havoc in his congregation and the community at large. "You will be surprised at the figures. I went over the roll of the sixty families in my church the other day, in order to see certainly how widespread the malaria was. I began checking off the families visited with the malady. In a few moments I had checked off fifty, and only ten remained. Then I reached five or six. The other five I was not certain about, but I really think not a family has escaped, at any rate not more than five." Dr. Chauncey Field, the leading physician of the town, said he did not know of a family in Bound Brook that did not have to take quinine. "Everybody has to take it. The mill-pond is not the only cause, I think, although it is probably the main cause. I have made a thorough investigation, and I believe the gravel-pits and several other nuisances help the fever along. Where garbage and filth have gathered and been covered for many years, there can be no street improvements without exposing to the air the seeds of disease and death." One of the residents said the prevalence of malaria for two years past had stopped the growth of the town almost entirely, and that the population, generally so much larger in Summer, had scarcely increased at all this season. Counting the families who had moved away, he did not know but what the population had decreased. Many of the old citizens think seriously of leaving until frost comes.

Is there not a warning to our Health Board in this experience? Are there no malaria producing and fever breeding spots in our vicinity? Are all the brooks and "lakes" that surround and run through our city, clear and pure? And if such conditions exist at present, will they remain so as matters are progressing?

Armed to the Teeth,

Is a very common expression, but we think that armed to embellish and preserve them to a ripe old age is decidedly more appropriate. This can be done by keeping yourself supplied with a bottle of that splendid dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT, which will beautify the teeth and preserve them from the ravages of decay. SOZODONT contains no acids or gritty substances which injure the enamel, but is composed of rare and antiseptic herbs, which have a beneficial effect on the whole economy of the mouth. Sold by druggists.

HIGGINS' GERMAN LAUNDRY SOAP

Is perfectly pure, being made of carefully selected stock, and is therefore the cheapest. Ask your grocer for it, and see that you get only the genuine article. A trial will convince you of its merits. ap2y1

JAS. E. MARTINE,
President.

THIS is the sort of weather that lowers your collars and raises the price of starch.

THE Hancock Veteran Association of Plainfield is rapidly increasing in numbers.

THE Blackberry crop is enormous, and many persons profit by picking and selling this delicious fruit.

THORN, the photographer, took a fine picture of Vanderbeek's Chatauqua building on Thursday.

REMEMBER not to forget that the P. A. C.'s annual games of this Fall will be on an unusually grand scale.

NO more do we see the welcome weather signals flying from the flag staff of the Mansion House. Why is this thus?

THE dry season has been followed by copious showers, which are a blessing alike to the farmer, mechanic and invalid.

THE Somerset Gazette has been materially improved in appearance, by substituting the eight-page style of make-up instead of sixteen.

FISHING trips to Princess Bay and catboat excursions from Amboy, are much indulged in during the present season by private parties from this city.

COUNTY Clerk Vosseller never takes pay from soldiers of the war, for making affidavits. He is a popular official.—Eliz. Monitor.

Quite correct, Mat.

THOSE who are afflicted with poor eyesight should purchase a pair of King's Patent Combination Spectacles, for sale by Clare, the Jeweller, on Park Avenue. Read his advertisement.

TWO Hundred Dollars have been appropriated for repairs on streets. For gracious sake, George, make it go as far as you can and relieve the thoroughfares of some of their mud covering.

AGAIN we say to "Loyal Citizen" that to secure publication of a communication in the columns of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, it is necessary for the author to forward his true name with communication.

COMPTON now freezes his delicious Ice Cream by steam, having secured one of the celebrated Baxter engines to furnish motive power. In 48 hours from the time of purchase the engine and boiler were in position in Compton's building and at work.

OUR merchants universally congratulate themselves on the fact that business during the present Summer has been unusually good. The city's streets are crowded every afternoon and evening with customers from not only Plainfield, but its surrounding towns.

MANY remarkably handsome and stylish turn-outs may be seen on our thoroughfares every day. The wealthy families of New York city and elsewhere, are realizing more fully, each year, the advantages possessed by this city as a place of Summer residence.

THE merchants and clerks of New Brunswick are agitating the question of "early closing," the clerks desiring the stores of their employers to be closed nights at 8 o'clock, and the merchants generally co-inciding with them. Why not the same movement in Plainfield?

THIS and to-morrow evenings will be spent by the members and friends of the Mount Olive Baptist Church in the enjoyment of an ice cream and fruit festival at Laing's Hall. Music will be furnished by the P. C. B., and a handsome quilt will be disposed of. Proceeds will go to the pastor's benefit.

EDWARD REINHARDT, the condemned wife murderer confined in the Richmond County Jail, on Friday, while in a desperate mood, seized the iron ball chained to his leg and smashed out two bars in the door of his cell. Reinhardt said that he merely did it to show what could be done with the ball.

"PLAINFIELD, it has been discovered, has 2,417 inhabitants, nearly as many as some of the wards in Elizabeth.—Monitor."

Another base slander from that mosquito infested, tax-ridden, bond-burdened hamlet of Elizabeth. Mat Drake, you hear us. Plainfield has a population of 11,449, and we are still growing.

EVERYBODY is looking forward with expectation to the pleasant time they will have upon the occasion of the Saengerbund's picnic, at Hyde's Grove, on the 29th inst. Societies from other parts of the State, that have been invited, will probably take part, and the festivities will be long remembered for their enjoyable features.

THE New Jersey State Teachers' Association, at their recent annual convention at Long Branch, elected the following officers: President, J. W. Green, Principal Long Branch High School; Vice Pres., Prof. W. Milligan, County Superintendent of Gloucester; Secretary, Prof. A. B. Guilford, of Union; Corresponding Secretary, Prof. B. Holmes, of Elizabeth; Treasurer, Prof. J. E. Haynes, of Newark.

THE steady improvement in the way of instrumental music that is being made by the Plainfield Cornet Band, is very noticeable. They are full of engagements, and most decidedly deserve the success they are attaining. Their playing on the occasion of the Knights of Pythias, excursion was much enjoyed, causing their lady friends to glow with sympathetic admiration, and the steam calliope to realize that its occupation was gone.

ST. MARY'S T. A. B. Society will enjoy itself on Tuesday, August 10th, by taking an excursion to Hudson Grove. This beautiful spot on the East River is situated about twenty miles above New York city, is easy of access, and unrivalled for its fine scenery, pleasant bathing and other attractive features. The committee who have the management of the affair, are already hard at work arranging matters that will add to the enjoyment of those who take the trip.

THE excursion from this city that is advertised to take place daily by the C. R. R. and steamer "Kill Von Kull" to Coney Island's great Iron Pier, is most conveniently arranged. Leaving Plainfield at 8:31 a. m., and making close connection with the steamer at the Jersey City depot, the Island can be reached early enough to pass an entire day of enjoyment. Returning the Kill Von Kull leaves the Pier at 5:35 and 9 p. m., enabling its passengers to take 7:10 and 10:25 trains for Plainfield. Tickets for the round trip, $1.50.

MR. MICHAEL SWEENY, Jr., of this city, was brought before Justice Nodyne on Tuesday morning last and held in bail to the amount of $200, to appear before the Grand Jury on a charge of assault and battery. The cause of the assault was the publication of an article reflecting on the character of the defendant and for which he claims the complainant was responsible. Sweeny, who insists that the statement was untrue, considered he had no other [illegible] than to knock the author down—which course he pursued, and for which he will suffer in consequence. After being released on bail in this case, he was arrested by Captain Dodd on another warrant sworn out against him for striking another boy. The accused gave additional bonds for $50.

MUZZLE your dog. "Donny" is after him.

ALL around us we hear of the formation of Hancock & English clubs.

SISTER churches congratulate the Crescent Avenue on its accession to the ranks of the unburdened by debt.

THE Town Clock struck 116 times last evening, and joined in the roll call that assembled together the Hancock Veterans.

THE scholars of the Warren Mission School are the next to seek a Summer-day's pleasure in the open air. They will resort to Boynton's Beach on the 3rd of August.

OFFICER Hapenny made an arrest last Tuesday evening. The prisoner was thrown out of a saloon for being disorderly, and falling into clutches of Richard was escorted to the "City Jail."

THE Central Times sluringly alludes to the Hancock Veteran Association of Plainfield, as the "veteran corpse." Well, Mr. Times, you and your party will find out this Fall that it is the liveliest "corpse" you ever saw.

THE spire of the new Baptist church, on Park avenue, is being raised and placed in position by the contractors. When finished the spire will add to the general attractiveness and architectural beauty of the building.

THE Congregationalists will visit Coney Island in the Steamer Kill Von Kull, on Thursday, August 5th. Tickets for the round trip, $1.00 each, landing at the Iron Pier. This will undoubtedly be the excursion of the season. Further particulars will be given during the coming week.

MR. E. C. MORSE of this city, was so unfortunate as to loose his valuable Spartan mare, "Mary" by colic, on Sunday morning last. The mare broke loose from her fastenings in the stable, ate a large quantity of oats and then drank a pailful of water, which caused her death.

THE frequent rain storms and showers we are having, promise well for the success of our county fair in the Fall. All farm and garden products have taken a new lease of life and are flourishing finely, while the pasturage is improving for the benefit of live stock throughout the vicinity.

ACTIVE operations will soon begin at the "Field Mine" on the back of the mountain near this city, by pumping the water from the deserted mine. The parties directly interested are confident that they will strike rich and paying gold and silver ore. Recent assays of ore from some of the mines leased by them, indicate that they have indeed struck a bonanza.

THE manly and satisfactory defence put forward by Mr. D. O. Wotherspoon of this city, in reply to the charges made against him by some members of the New York Open Board of Brokers of which he is Treasurer, is positive proof to all right-thinking and just-minded people that Mr. Wotherspoon was the victim of hasty and ill-judged action on the part of the Board.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST sanctum is daily visited by friends of Hancock & English, who come to offer their congratulations at the wise selection of candidates made by the Cincinnati Convention. Among our visitors we can count over a dozen former Republicans who aver that the nominations are not distasteful to them and that their votes will not be cast for Garfield. Keep the ball rolling.

AS no decision has yet been rendered by the Supreme Court, relative to the mandamus applied for by City Judge Runyon, to test the legality of issuing warrants for collection of taxes, the city's exchequer is low in consequence of non-collection of taxes, which renders it impossible for the city fathers to appropriate moneys necessary to repairs on streets and for other purposes. It is to be hoped the decision will soon be rendered so that those parties who refuse to pay their taxes will be compelled to do so.

INSTEAD of the universal excursion, the Methodist Sunday school enjoyed themselves last Tuesday evening in their lecture room in a way most original and pleasurable. Their pastor, Rev. Thos. H. Stockton, Superintendent J. W. Jackson and others, managed the festivities in a way that brought mental and physical satisfaction to all in attendance. The programme presented included singing by the choir, an address by the pastor, recitations by Mr. Homer D. Cope, instrumental music by a trio of pianist, violinist and cornetist, refreshments, &c.

THE Plainfield Caledonian and Benevolent Association have been requested by the public to repeat their interesting Scotch games that were last year given under their management. It is to be hoped that the desire will be acceded to; but the association having always been so unfortunate as to experience unfavorable weather on the days selected, they were subject to more or less financial loss, and feel that the help of a generous public should be forthcoming, to insure success, if it is decided to again afford the city an opportunity of witnessing the "brawny scots" at their national competitions.

Census of Plainfield's First District.

The completion of the 1st Dist. census by Mr. John F. Dunham shows the total number of inhabitants to be 2,662, divided as follows: White males 1,230, white females, 1,233, colored males 81 and colored females 118. The foreign born males number 254, and females 241.

The Correct Returns.

A few corrections have been made in the census returns of Plainfield and North Plainfield, since we published them in full two weeks since. The figures below are correct.

1st District,	2,662
2d "	3,420
3rd "	2,044

The World's Fair.

The act of Congress incorporating the United States International Commission for the purpose of holding a World's Fair in New York in 1883, "in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the treaty of peace and the recognition of American independence," provides for the appointment of two Commissioners from each State, with two alternates, and also names about one hundred gentlemen of the city of New York as incorporators. The Commissioners will probably meet about July 23d. Their first duty will be to form a temporary organization, and provide for opening books of subscription for the capital stock. They will then adjourn, and the subscription books will remain open sixty days, which will bring the time up to Sept. 23d, when a meeting of the Commissioners and stockholders will be called. It is eminently proper for every branch of industry and manufacture in the country to adopt some organized plan for securing representation at this exposition, and for contributing to make it a great national success. All classes of the community; the manufacturing, the agricultural, the industrial, the mining and the commercial are alike interested in its aim, and every class should have a special organization of its own to help the enterprise forward.

General William H. Sterling, of this city, has been appointed to act with Col. Edward H. Wright, of Newark, as Commissioners from this State. Under the efficient care of these gentlemen, New Jersey may feel assured that her interests will be thoroughly well looked after.

Y. M. C. A. Service.

On Sunday July 17th the Rev. A. H. Lewis will preach a sermon to young men in the Trinity Reformed church under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. All are invited to attend.

Grove Meeting.

In consequence of the rain last Sunday afternoon the Temperance Grove Meeting had to be postponed. Weather permitting, it will be held next Sunday at 4:15 p. m. and the public are respectfully invited to attend. Good speaking expected.

Attempted Suicide.

A man whose name we were unable to to learn, made a desperate attempt to commit suicide Monday on the Pennsylvania Railroad track between Linden and Rahway. The man appeared to be thoroughly saturated with intoxicants and stepped directly in front of the engine crying, "Garfield! Garfield! is my man!" Only for the common sense of the engineer in stopping the engine and actually throwing the man off the track into a place of greater safety, he must have been crushed.

Injunction Dissolved.

In the Court of Errors and Appeals Monday, July 12th, the injunction in the case of the National Dock's Railroad Company vs. the Central New Jersey Railroad Company, granted by Chancellor Runyon, restraining the crossing of the Central Railroad track by the National Dock's Railroad, running from the Pennsylvania Railroad track at Bergen cut to the National Dock's Storage Company, on Communipaw Bay, was unanimously dissolved. The opinion was given by Justice Dixon.

Ominous!

The gentle breeze that passed over Plainfield Saturday night last, tore from its fastenings to the glorious old flag suspended from the Post Office to stolen anchorage on the opposite side of the street, the names of Garfield & Arthur tacked on it as candidates for President and Vice President of these United States, and the remnants of muslin were gathered up and taken in-doors. When the great cyclone of November next strikes the ballot box, the names of Garfield and Arthur will be humiliated ten fold more than they were last Saturday night.

River and Harbor Improvements.

The river and harbor bill has been signed by the President. Gen. Wright, Chief of Engineers, has notified engineers in charge of river and harbor works to send in a statement of their various projects, showing how they propose to expend the various amounts appropriated in the bill. Colonel John Newton, headquarters at New York, submits, among others, the following for improvement: Cheesequakes Creek, Raritan River and South River; and Colonel Michler submits projects for the improvement of Shrewsbury River, Rahway River and Elizabeth River; also for improving Woodbridge Creek, and channel between Staten Island and Elizabeth.

A Straw.

We are under obligation to O. B. Leonard, Esq., for a copy of The New York Life Insurance Co's. Almanac for 1880. Not only is the book valuable as a specimen of fine printing and for the information it contains on many points, but having been issued before the late Conventions, it assumes a certain prophetical position. An article states that the editors, after soliciting and obtaining opinions from all parts of the country as to who is most likely to be the next President, present the pictures of twelve prominent Republican and Democratic politicians. The likenesses are undoubtedly the best that have been published during the year. General Hancock's, especially, is remarkably good, and Garfield's is—well after having "solicited and obtained opinions," Mr. Garfield's picture was omitted.

A Day at Rockaway Beach.

The first excursion of the season from this city, given by the Knights of Pythias on last Monday to Rockaway beach, was—as it deserved to be—a decided success. An enjoyable ride on the cars was experienced, with plenty of seats and room furnished. A pleasant sail in the "Gen. Sedgwick" from Elizabethport to the end of the journey and back, followed; during which the attractive scenery of Staten Island, the mammoth defences of our harbor and the improvements and buildings on Coney Island, were viewed with interest. At the beach a refreshing bath was obtainable and obtained by all who desired it, and the cravings of appetites sharpened by the fresh air of the ocean, were satisfied agreeably. Six car loads of human beings left Plainfield at 7:45 a. m. and reached home at about the same hour in the evening, tired, but clean and happy. Everything that could be done tending to add to the enjoyment of the occasion, was done, and too much credit cannot be given to the managers of the affair. An unpleasant occurrence that took place on the Rockaway pier just previous to the leaving of the boat, was most unfortunate but could not have been prevented. In fact the whole matter was occasioned by the endeavor of those in charge to clear the return trip of the rowdy element that had forced itself into the party. A quartette of Elizabethport roughs (including the not unknown worthies King and "Spooney") who had beaten their way down, announced their intention of going back the same way and on the same economical plan. While using every effort to prevent the getting on board of the objectionable parties, a disturbance arose in which, as was natural, every man sought the protection which the muscle grants. After punishing the roughs pretty severely, the remainder of the excursionists got aboard and the boat was started, not, however, before the rowdies had sprang on to the upper deck and settled themselves quietly down into a corner. Before the trip homeward was half completed, the help of the deck hands and a coil of rope was called into service, and the quarrelsome four were bound and consigned to the coal hold. Knowing what a gathering of the lower class of men is always to be found at the Elizabethport docks, and the entire absence there of any "guardian of the law" where they are so much needed, it was thought best that the prisoners should be kept out of sight until the company was at least on the cars, so that no opportunity would be given for the procuring of recruits from the ranks of loafers to join the roughs in their desired revenge. However, out of either pure obstinacy or a desire to direct the attention of the "gang" from himself, the Captain of the "General Sedgwick," against the advice of his Mate and the desires of those who were his employers for the time being, allowed the imprisoned four their liberty. Immediately there was a rush for the train by such as had delayed their departure until that time, and to those who were looking on, the scene presented every appearance of a riot. No trouble was occasioned, however, as the gang were prevented from entering the cars, and all returned to Plainfield in safety. The enjoyment of the day was too great to allow any remembrance of the episode to remain in any one's thoughts; and all who indulged in the excursion are loud in their praises of the great pleasure they experienced, and the laudable efforts of the committee in charge to contribute to their convenience and comfort.

Garfield wishes Oakes Ames had let him a loan.

Praise Well Deserved.

A correspondent of the Malone N. Y. Gazette thus writes of our fellow citizen Wm. McClure, Esq., and his admirable hotel at Tupper's Lake in the Adirondacks:

"In speaking of the sporting houses of the Adirondacks heretofore we have neglected somehow to mention the house on Tupper's Lake, formerly known, we believe, as the Haggerty Club House, but now as MCCLURE'S. This house, which is most delightfully located in the very heart of one of the best sporting sections of the Adirondacks, and to which the proprietor is just finishing an extensive addition, is a large and commodious one, nicely furnished, is lighted by gas, and last but not least, has an open fire-place in nearly every one of its rooms. In MCCLURE, the proprietor, visitors will meet a refined, educated gentleman, which, coupled with his earnest desire to make every one around him comfortable and happy, renders his house one of the most desirable in the woods. We advise all you Malone folks who never visited this portion of the wilderness and are sighing for new sporting fields to conquer to try MCCLURE'S; the trip is a delightful one either by the way of MARTIN'S or the Prospect."

Hancock Veteran's Association.

This organization held an adjourned meeting in the rooms of the Democratic Association, Wednesday evening last, at which there were present a large number of veterans of the late war. The President, Major Eugene A. Gross, presided, with Col. Julian Scott, as Secretary. The roll call showed a large increase of membership, and a very full attendance of members. Comrade Garrett P. Smith was made Chairman of a Committee of three to organize a drum corps and steps taken to procure blouses and caps for the members of the Association, and at a near day all will be uniformed. The beautiful silk guidon of the 2d corps, was presented and the sight of it excited prolonged applause. The guidon is the handiwork of a lady of our city who is of Republican proclivities, but who now declares herself for the Democratic nominees by lending her skill in its manufacture. The following letter received and read, explains itself:

10 GROVE ST. PLAINFIELD,
JULY 13TH, 1880.

JULIAN SCOTT, ESQ.,

DEAR SIR:—I am very glad but not surprised, that the Veterans of this place are aroused and have buckled on their armor again. We must stand as Washington stood, on the "Rock," with those in hand watching the enemy [illegible] the everlasting side will back the cry "on to victory." The truths of Democracy as enunciated by the immortal Jefferson are as imperishable as those old West Jersey highlands. "Truth crushed to earth shall rise again," and now with Hancock the "superb" as our leader we will win. Have your guns trained—but keep your powder dry and the victory is ours! I have the honor to ask that my name be enrolled as one of your number.

Very truly yours,
W. R. MATTISON,
Late Asst. Surg. 3d. N. J. Vol.

Speeches were made by Vice Presidents S. H. Randolph, E. C. Morse, Col. John McCassy and others, and the meeting closed with hearty enthusiasm for Hancock & English.

Athletics at Elizabeth.

The extremely hot weather of last Saturday reduced greatly the usual large attendance that the games of the Elizabeth Athletic Club are favored with. Mosquitoes were present in armies, but outside of a few lovers of manly exercise, who were ready to stand anything in consideration of the occasion, and a few friends of the competitors who desired to show a complimentary interest by their presence, the Grand Stand was comparatively deserted. The honor conferred on the track, however, by the remarkable performance of Mr. L. E. Myers, overbalanced the financial loss that may have arisen to the debit of the Club. This wonderful runner started in a race of 1,000 yards against Mr. E. A. Knight also of the Manhattan Club who was allowed a handicap of 75 yards. It was his intention to beat the best record in the world at the distance (2:19½), and as he rapidly closed up the gap between himself and Knight (who had run the distance with the handicap in 2:16) it was plain to see that he would do it easily. His time for the entire distance was 2:18¼. The half-mile was made in 1:59¼, beating the runner's own time at the championship games of 1879, which had previously been the best on record.

The other sports of the day were most attractive, as the "scratch men" made a better showing than is usual in handicap games and thereby added greatly to the interest of the competitions. The final heat of the 100 yard dash included W. J. Barrows (7 yds.) F. St. G. Bissel, (3 yds.) L. A. Stewart, (scratch) F. W. Janssen, (3 yds.) F. G. Moore (4 yds.) and F. E. Mettans (4 yds.) The latter was placed in the final through an error of the judges, who in deciding a dead heat awarded it to the first and last man in the trial heat instead of the two who came in together —thereby displacing C. E. Larom who was entitled to the position. The race was won by Stewart in 10¼ seconds, running 101 yards. Barrows of Elizabeth taking second medal.

The starters in the one mile walk (handicap) were John Shreeve (60 sec.) W. H. Somers (45 sec.) S. L. Davis (45 sec) H. W. Janssen (25 sec.) J. A. Hesse (10 sec.) and F. B. Holmes (scratch). The race was quite well contested throughout, and some plucky walking was to be observed. Janssen struggled gamely for the lead and succeeded in gaining second position on the third lap, but his heavy tread was too fair as well as too labored, to carry him to any greater victory than that of fourth place at the finish. Hesse passed all but the leader at the beginning of the last half-mile, and retained that place until the end. Shreeve (the limit man) by very questionable walking, won the race in 8.19½. Hesse's time (actual) 7:36. Holmes, third, 7:34½.

The half-mile run in which started W. F. Farlin (35 yds.) J. B. Anderson (20 yds) M. J. Dunn (10 yds) and E. P. Baird (scratch), was won by Farlin in 2:09¼. Dunn second, Anderson third and Baird fourth.

W. W. Woodside who had 10 seconds start of C. O. Morris Jr., in the two mile bicycle race, won the gold medal. There being only these two in the event, the last man captured the second prize with ease.

The quarter-mile was won by L. A. Stuart (scratch) in 54¾ sec. with G. R. Smith (12 yds) a close second. The race up the home-stretch was as exciting a contest as we have ever seen, and the running of the winners was most praiseworthy. F. W. Edelsten (25 yds) Frank Adams (18 yds) and H. G. Badgley (20 yds) were third, fourth and fifth respectively.

The success of the occasion was due largely to the efficient painstaking of Messrs. John C. Wetmore, Clerk of course; Otis G. Webb, Referee, and H. A. Kingsbury, Starter. While the cordial smile of Mr. M. Butler Hellinger as seen through the "box office" window, attracted to the grounds a large portion of the fair sex who were in attendance.

As will be seen by reference to the published proclamation of the Mayor, James B. Donohue again occupies the exalted position of Plainfield Dog-pounder. The safety of the public demanding that the many canine residents of the city should not be allowed to run at large uncontrolled, it is possibly necessary to appoint some one to see that the law in relation to the subject is carried out; but there is no reason why judgement and discretion should be entirely ignored by the appointee in the exercise of his duty, and we trust that there will be no occasion for our calling attention to such action in a future issue. Mayor Harper is but doing his duty, in accordance with law, by appointing such officer to take up unmuzzled dogs, although we believe if Council would repeal the law, there would be fewer mad(?) dogs and less ill-feeling than is now prevalent.

The army worm is an Ohio man.

Ho, For the Seashore!

The excursion that will leave here next Tuesday morning for Long Branch and Ocean Grove, promises to be the most enjoyable of the summer. Leaving Plainfield at 7:30 a. m. the train will stop at the Branch both going and returning for the convenience of those who wish to visit the beauties of that famous resort. At the grove every arrangement will be found tending towards the comfort of the excursionists, and ample accommodations for those who bring their own luncheon. The bathing hours for that day are from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., during which the surf will be unusually fine. The excursion is under the management of well-known gentlemen of this city, whose experience and efficiency assure satisfactory results; and all who patronize them may feel certain that every want will be supplied. Remember to secure your tickets before the 19th inst., at $1.00 each; after such date they will positively cost $1.25. Children between 5 and 12 years of age, 50 cents. Tickets may be obtained at the C. R. R. office, J. H. Honeyman & Co's, or R. J. Shaw's.

Washington Rock News.

Nearly every available room is now full at the Mountain House at this place. For some days a number of students from Princeton College have been camping in the grove connected with the hotel. In the evening they assemble in the ball-room and entertain the guests with selections of their College songs and glees. Professor Peabody, the celebrated elocutionist, accompanies them, and affords much genuine intellectual enjoyment by his readings and recitations. Though in the woods and on the mountain top and away from the hum and shock of the city, it is much livelier, and gayer there at the Washington Rock House at very frequent intervals, than in the midst of the excitement and noise of town life.

Through the extreme kindness of Lewis A. Dunn, Esq., the popular News Agent, who with his family are stopping at the Washington Rock House, there was a fine display of fireworks there on the evening of the 13th inst. The guests were highly entertained and unanimously gave him a vote of thanks for his liberality.

The "Kill Von Kull." The New Route.

Of all the boats that run to Coney Island, this season, undoubtedly the Kill Von Kull is the steamer par-excellence. She is fitted up in elegant style from bow to stern. Her upper deck or main saloon is long and wide and furnished in superb style with every imaginable article of furniture for the convenience and comfort of the most exacting passenger. There is a freshness and newness and such a bright glow about her that almost the only words that escape the lips of the excursionist to Coney Island and the Grand Pier after he ascends her broad stairs to the upper deck are "Oh, how beautiful, how elegant and what a treat it is to travel over the blue waters on so noble a craft!" Her Captain and Officers are all that is wanted. There is no accommodation that is too great at their hands to give the ladies and gentlemen on board. The Kill Von Kull in the roughest weather is as steady as a rock; there is no heaving or rolling at any time, and her machinery, though powerful, moves without the slightest noise. Albeit of very large dimensions she is very easily handled on her arrivals and departures, thus precluding the possibility of any delay, which is a matter of the utmost importance now-a-days. Of the two routes to Coney Island that leave the Plainfield depot this one is by far the shortest and quickest. See advertisement of time table in another column.

Personalia.

The many friends of Mr. Henry B. Scott, a former resident of North Plainfield, will learn with regret of his death, which occurred at Chittenden's, Santa Cruz Co., California, May 26, 1880. The San Francisco, and other State papers, speak in the highest terms of Mr. Scott. For several years past deceased has lived at Moss Landing. His age was 50 years. We remember "Harry" as a school mate and a warm friend.

Among the visitors to our sanctum on Monday last, was Mr. David Roach, a former resident of Plainfield, and who now has charge of the stables and stud of horses of Wm. H. Vanderbilt, of N. Y. We were glad to see "Dave's" genial countenance, and hope he will call again when in our city.

Mr. R. S. Little and family started on Tuesday for a few weeks' sojourn at Cape May, their stopping place being "Villa Belle Vue."

Mr. Edward Saltzman, one of the few remaining members of the family of that name, is visiting at the home of Mr. August Saltzman, this city.

Thanks to Amos Vail, Esq., for a basket of large and delicious blackberries, grown on his premises at Green Brook. "Friday" you know how to grow 'em.

The many friends of Mr. Howell Metzler, a former resident of this city, will learn with regret of his death, which event occurred July 8th, at his residence, Bloomsbury, N. J. The funeral services were held on Saturday, the 10th, at the latter place.

It is pleasant to again meet the smiling face and hear the pleasant voice of Uncle Billy Moore, and most satisfactory to know that his late illness has left no traces of impaired health.

William D. Murray has sailed for Europe and his brother John, Jr., is looking longingly towards Newport.

Mr. A. Saltzman celebrated his birthday anniversary on Saturday last by entertaining a choice selection of friends at his residence.

Ex-Councilman Walter E. Stewart was presented, last Wednesday evening, with an heir and heiress.

Ex-hackman Foster received quite an ovation from his friends as he passed through Plainfield on engine 167 last Wednesday.

Mr. Wm. L. Dean is spending a month or two among the Berkshire hills.

A brutal outrage perpetrated on Saturday night last in New Brunswick, N. J., has just been made public by the arrest of three young men charged with committing the offense. Jane Smith, a widow 45 years of age, was the victim. She is employed as a domestic by the family of W. H. Mailler, who lives at the landing, about two miles north of the city limits. She has a son living in the above city, and on Saturday she visited him, intending to remain until Monday. In the evening George Sehrim, her employer's coachman, to whom she is engaged to be married, called for her, and she concluded to return home with him.

It was almost midnight when the pair reached a strip of woods on Easton ave., about three quarters of a mile from Mr. Mailler's house. As they were walking rapidly along 4 young men sprang from behind trees, and while three attacked the woman the fourth presented a pistol at the head of Sehrim and ordered him to move on, which he did. The woman made a desperate resistance, but the scoundrels overpowered her. It was nearly two hours before she regained consciousness and tottered to her home.

Sehrim, on his way to the city, had stopped in a beer saloon on Easton ave., and had invited a party of young men in the place to drink with him. He mentioned the fact that he intended escorting Mrs. Smith home, and he swears that the assailants were four of those who drank with him. Sehrim made the first complaint, and Matthew Horan, James Daily and Charles Francis were arrested. Francis was released, by proving that he was at home at the time of the assault. The other two were committed, as the Recorder declined to accept bail. The police are now searching for William Dougherty and John O'Donnell, who, it is said have fled.

DUNELLEN ITEMS.

There are comparitively few items of interest to record at the present writing. Ours is an exceedingly quiet, order-loving, law-abiding community, pursuing the even tenor of its way without noteworthy incident, except as was the case recently—an overflow of roughs from some other locality renders the scene more lively for a brief period.

The new school board has organized, Mr. J. C. Pope having been appointed district clerk. They are now ready, I suppose, to consider the claims of various applicants for positions as teachers. It is said that no appointments for the coming year have yet been made.

On last Sabbath morning and evening, the pulpit of the Presbyterian church was occupied by Rev. Dr. Roberts of Westminster Presbyterian church of Elizabeth. He is a first-class pulpit orator, and the congregation of the little Dunellen church thus enjoyed a rich and rare treat and a high compliment from the Doctor. Mrs. Emily Bulman of New York sang in the choir in the morning.

On Sabbath next the Rev. C. P. Mallory of Wilmington, Delaware, will preach morning and evening. This clergyman comes highly recommended both as a preacher and pastor, and it is to be hoped a full congregation will be in attendance.

At the M. E. church the pastor, Rev. S. D. Jones, preached in the morning, and his old pastor, Rev. Mr. Rice, who is temporarily stopping in Plainfield, preached for him in the evening.

The ice cream sociable of this church, held in the basement on Tuesday evening was a success socially and financially. Compton's justly celebrated ice cream was served, while vocal music rendered by an extemporized choir led by the pastor, added its ever potent charms to enliven the occasion. This, as the writer was informed, was simply the regular monthly meeting of the church penny-a-day society, which is one of the efficient agencies of the church introduced by the present pastor, for promoting its temporal prosperity.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRACTHINGS.

Rev. L. N. Dunn, presiding elder of this district, will preach in the M. E. church, Scotch Plains next Sunday, 18th, at 10½ o'clock in the morning. He will also administer communion, to which all are cordially invited.

It is with pleasure we notice our old friend Bennet Brittin, once more about his place, after weeks of illness in consequence of injuries received by being thrown from his buggy. Although Mr. B. moves about not as spry as of yore, yet his familiar face is recognized by his many friends and customers about his establishment with pleasure.

WE are glad to know that the well known publishing house of Hubbard Bros., of Philadelphia, have in preparation and will soon issue the "Life of Gen. Hancock," written by his old-time friend, Hon. John W. Forney. The career of the brilliant soldier who is soon to be transferred to the White House, furnishes material for a volume which, in deep and thrilling interest, has rarely been equaled in the annals of American biography. It is fortunate that its preparation has been assigned to Col. Forney, who for twenty-five years has been known as one of the ablest editors and most brilliant writers in America. His known ability, and his personal intimacy with Gen. Hancock, are a sufficient guarantee that the book will be full, complete and authoritative—a volume of permanent value, and in this respect widely different from ordinary campaign literature. It will be sold only by subscription, and must meet with a very large sale.

ANOTHER LIE NAILED.

The Republican press, becoming hard up for mud to sling at the Democratic candidates for President and Vice President—HANCOCK and ENGLISH, have resorted to their old tricks of lies and subterfuge. We publish this week the admirable letter of Leonard W. Jerome to the New York World, in which that gentleman announced that, although a life-long Republican, he should vote for General Hancock. Mr. Jerome is one of the wealthiest Republicans in New York city, a founder of the Union League Club, a former large stockholder in the New York Times, and never a Democrat. A few days after, the New York Commercial Advertiser, Press and other Republican journals came out with a letter purporting to have been written by Mr. Jerome's brother Thomas, which was a denial that any such letter had been written by him and that Leonard Jerome was a Democrat. The latter, however, in a letter to the World of July 5th, pronounces the statement to be a base humbug if not an absolute forgery. He says his brother never wrote a line of it, and could not understand it if read to him. The truth is that a few years past his brother Thomas met with a misfortune, which deprived him partly of his reason. He says:

"I sincerely hope that my unfortunate brother (now past seventy-one years of age) has never, in a lucid interval, seen this letter, and never will. He is the most grateful, unselfish, warm-hearted man I ever knew, and such an infamous exhibition as this letter makes of him I fear, if he knew it, would grieve him to death. His children are pained and indignant that such a cruel piece of rascality could be perpetrated upon their father. They know, as does every one else acquainted with our relations during the past twenty years, that the letter is a wicked and indecent outrage upon the private and family life of my brother and of myself.

"One word more. As to my support of General Hancock, I see fresh evidence daily of the propriety of my course. I have no fears whatever of the preponderance of "Southern influence," so loudly bewailed by the Republican papers in case of his election. His Administration will open an era of concord and good feeling North and South. The ragged ends of the great civil war will be swept away and buried in oblivion. He will draw around him a class of statesmen freed from the sickening and tiresome cry of sectional warfare and all its bloody-shirt remembrances. We shall have an Administration like Washington's, intent solely upon the grandeur and glory of the great republic, knowing no North, no South, no East, no West. That, I think, is a thing to be desired by all good men, and I am very truly your obedient servant,"

LEONARD W. JEROME.

THE TUNNEL UNDER THE HUDSON.

At the foot of Fifteenth street, Jersey City, a low wooden building has been erected, which has the appearance of an overgrown shanty rather than the beginning of an important and difficult work. This building contains the office of the Hudson Tunnel Railroad Company, and also the engines, electric generator and air compressor. In the centre of the building a shaft thirty feet in diameter has been sunk to the depth of sixty feet. Its lower portion is used as a receiving tank for the mud removed from the tunnel. The exterior structure or shell of the tunnel consists of a cylinder of one-half inch boiler-plate iron, with a lining of brick two feet thick securely anchored to it. The river on the line of the tunnel is about 5,500 feet in width, and its bed is largely composed of blue clay, with a mixture of sand and other substances.

The excavation is begun at the top, and carried forward in sections. The plates of which the iron casing is composed are placed in position as fast as sufficient space is excavated. These plates are two and one-half feet in width by three and six feet in length. They are bolted together by means of angle-iron secured to their edges. The brick work is laid as rapidly as a circle of sections is completed.

The top of the tunnel will have an average distance of about twenty-five feet below the river-bed. This makes necessary a considerable grade, as the river at some points reaches the depth of sixty feet. By the agency of compressed air, at a pressure of seventeen to twenty pounds to the square inch, this mixture of water, clay and sand in the excavation is kept so firmly in position that it might be worked forward in terraces or benches, thus obviating all necessity for staving or braces while excavating the silt or placing in position the upper sections of the iron casing.

The entrance to the tunnel on the New Jersey side will be at a point about three-quarters of a mile from the river. The terminus in New York has not been settled, but the tunnel will enter the city at the foot of Leroy street. An underground depot will be used, and nowhere will the track be less than fifteen feet below the surface. The approaches on either side will be 26 feet in width and 24 feet in height, with a double track; but under the river there will be two tunnels, side by side, each 18 feet in height and 16 feet in width, and each containing a single track. Work is in progress and the excavation will proceed at about five feet per day.

A REPUBLICAN CONVERT.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 2, 1880.

General Alfred T. Pierson, chairman of the Republican City Committee of Pittsburg, a brigadier-general in the late war, and one of the most prominent Republicans in Western Pennsylvania, has come out for Hancock to the surprise of everybody. He is a powerful speaker, and has been District Attorney of this county, being elected by the Republicans. He was one of Cameron's leaders. To-night at a Democratic meeting at Greenburg, Westmoreland county, he said in a speech:

"I have been a life-long Republican since 1854, when the party was first organized. I have been one of its most ardent supporters, although not a voter at that period. I attended the recent Republican National Convention at Chicago as a delegate from Allegheny county. I left before the nominations were made, and when the telegraphic wire clicked the intelligence that General Garfield was nominated it filled me with internal disgust. I commenced to think. I stopped and thought. And I thought on till the Democratic National Convention met at Cincinnati. I was sitting in the United States Court House at Pittsburg watching every despatch that came. When the despatch came announcing that my old fellow-soldier, with whom I fought my hard battles, was nominated, I rose and said: "I am now prepared to say I am for General Winfield Scott Hancock for President." I remember very distinctly when the enemy was invading our State, when our people were erecting fortifications with the dirt thrown upon the wrong side, and it was thought they were approaching Petersburg, that the man you have nominated was riding in front of the Second Corps at Gettysburg, that the repelling of that mighty army depended upon him, for the enemy was overrunning Pennsylvania when the majestic hero General Hancock at the head of his corps repelled them. If he had not saved that day the Army of the Potomac we would have been lost. The clashing of musketry, the roaring of the artillery and the shrieks and groans of the dying upon that occasion are indescribable. But those three lines, 45,000 strong, were driven back by Gen. Hancock, and our people and property were saved."

GENERAL PEARSON SPEAKS OUT AGAIN.

Gen. Pearson's announcement of his intention to support General Hancock is creating much excitement in Republican circles in the State of Pennsylvania. The General has written the following letters which speak for themselves:

"PITTSBURG, Pa., July 3, 1880,

"To General U. S. Grant, Chairman Union Veterans' National Committee.

"GENERAL: After seven years' connection with the Union Veteran National Committee, over which you have the honor to preside, I am compelled to tender my resignation as the member from Pennsylvania. I have reluctantly come to the conclusion that the influence of the great historic party is ended and ought to end, that those who pretend to keep up its organization are doing so for office and gain, and that its encouragement of sectional hate is a constant menace to the Union. No permanent issues worthy of being called National issues divide the two parties. Free trade and protection are alike the accident of localities, and hence we find free-trade Republicans in the West and East with protective Democrats in the Middle States. The entire issue that divides the two parties is the issue of hate and usurpation on the side of the Republican party with military dictation at the polls. Against this dangerous policy the Democratic party has arrayed itself and chosen as its standard bearer the gallant General Winfield Scott Hancock, who has placed himself squarely on that issue by proclaiming that the right of trial by jury, the habeas corpus, the liberty of the press, the freedom of speech, the natural rights of persons and the rights of property must be preserved. In choosing between these two parties I cannot see how a patriot can blunder. Surely every soldier who has fought with Hancock to conquer peace will vote with him and for him to make that peace effectual and permanent. Entertaining the highest respect for my fellow committeemen and earnestly hoping that they will view this important matter in the light that I do and come to the same conclusion, viz., to vote for Gen. Hancock, I am respectfully, your obedient servant,

A. L. Pearson."

"PITTSBURG, July 3, 1880.

"W. M. Decamp, Esq., Secretary of City Republican Executive Committee of Pittsburg.

"DEAR SIR: Having concluded to support Gen. Hancock for President, I very respectfully tender my resignation as Chairman of the City Republican Executive Committee of Pittsburg. Entertaining the highest regard for every member of that committee, I yet conceive it my duty to sever my political connection with the committee.

Very truly yours, A. L. PEARSON.

OUR LATEST GIFT TO ENGLAND.

An absolute idler is an impossibility, and has been ever, since the day—we do not know if the fatal date is chronicled—when the American Boss 15 Puzzle was introduced to this great metropolis. Since the threatened visit of the potato bug, the States have never caused such a commotion in this country as is now being occasioned by what a contemporary feelingly calls this "Diabolical Puzzle." Spelling bees were bad enough, Heaven knows! but no one was bound to attend them; roller skates were sufficiently distressing, but no one was absolutely obliged to put them on; but from this terrible 15 puzzle there is absolutely no escape. It has with a sudden leap jumped right into our daily life, so to speak. It already permeates our existence, and the worst of it is, it is spreading into the Provinces with all the fatal fecundity of the Colorado beetle already named. We went to the West hoping to escape it, but alas! a lady in the train was "doing" it, or trying to, all the way to Somersetshire, on her lap; and the first thing we noticed at the hotel of our choice was the Boots trying to explain the dreaded mystery to the chamber-maid in the hall, a fiendish visitor having spitefully left one of the puzzles under his pillow the previous week. As to how ubiquitous it is in town we need not, unfortunately, trouble to state. Rival makers are pouring the puzzles, at a needlessly cheap rate, into the market; the comic papers are writing them up; Spurgeon has by this time probably worked in an apt religious allusion to them in one of his sermons; and the pantomime writers have en bloc commissioned the property masters at the various theatres for which they write to at once prepare Brobdingnagian sets of numbers, so that at Christmas we shall find the Boss Puzzle rampant on our stage. It is not true, however, that the Government has offered a prize of £500 for the discovery of a fair and square solution of the "13, 15, 14" position, though this may well be ere long. At present, however, Mr. Gladstone is busily engaged on a pamphlet showing that Homer must have known of the Boss Puzzle in his youth, and till this point is fairly before the public the other matter will have to wait.—London Figaro.

HOW HANCOCK FELT.

John W. Clampitt, counsel for Mrs. Surratt, at the time of her execution says that no one was present at the interview with Mrs. Surratt just prior to her execution save Fathers Walter and Wiget, and himself. Mr Clampitt, after leaving Mrs Surratt, went toward the east door of the arsenal and there met General Hancock, who had just arrived, and had the following conversation with him:

"General, did you come direct from the President?"

General Hancock replied that he "was not immediately."

Mr. Clampitt then asked him if there was any hope, to which the General replied in a very sorrowful manner, "I fear not," and then in an impressive tone he continued:

"I have fought all through this war and I have fought through it conscientiously. I have been in the very front of the battle and amid the fires of hell itself, and I say to you that I would rather stand to-day amid its consuming flames than to stand here to order the execution of this woman; but I am a soldier; I have been ordered as the chief in command of this department to see that these parties are executed, and as a soldier I must obey."

A woman in New York accidently went to church with two bonnets on her head—one stuck inside the other—and the other women in the congregation almost died of envy. They thought it was a new kind of bonnet, and too sweet for anything.

EXECUTOR'S SETTLEMENT.—Notice is hereby given that the accounts of the subscriber, Executor of Frances March, deceased, will be audited and stated by the Surrogate, and reported for settlement to the Orphans' Court of the County of Union on Wednesday the Fourteenth day of July next.

Frederick A. Kirch, Executor of Sylvester Whitlock, deceased.
On application of the above named Executor, it is ordered that said Executor give public notice to the Creditors of the estate of said decedent to bring in their debts, demands or claims against the same, under oath, within nine months from this date, by setting up a copy of this order within twenty days hereafter, in five of the most public places in the County of Union, for two months, and also within the said twenty days, by advertising the same in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST for the same space of time; and if any creditor shall neglect to exhibit his or her debt, demand or claim within the said period of nine months, public notice being given as aforesaid, such Creditor shall be forever barred of his or her action therefor against the said Executor.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A DENIAL!

SIMPSON & CO.,

(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE off SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is INCORRECT; or in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient to allow of any being cut, independent of the filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from

Pure Spring Water.

They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defence.
SIMPSON & CO.

Pure Milk!
The subscriber having purchased the milk route of Mr. L. White, is now supplying the route with milk from the Potter Dairy Milk Farm,
2½ miles from Plainfield. He solicits patronage and invites the attention of the State Inspector and the citizens of Plainfield to his dairy arrangements, and the purity and quality of his milk.

A CARD.
Being compelled by the increase of business to have an assistant, I have taken in my employ Mr. A. J. Mills, a mechanical specialist, his first preceptor for five years being the celebrated Norman W. Kingsly, M. D. S. D. D. S., of New York city, and for six years with Dr. Kingsly of Elizabeth. I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent, mechanical operator in every particular. I will therefore take this method of proving to those that wish to take advantage of the lowest cash price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, viz: for 3 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole sets of teeth on celluloid for $10, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced, satisfaction guaranteed in every respect. We would strive as the only Practicians work, and hope by so doing at the end of 3 months to receive favor and patronage by perfection in operations, rather than by cheap competition.
CHAS. E. THEIRS,
OFFICE No. 13 PARK AVE.

POETRY.

THAT DREAM OF OURS.

Oh, the young love was sweet, dear,
That dainty dream of ours,
When we could not keep our feet, dear,
From dancing through the flow'rs;
When hopes and gay romances
Were thick as leaves in spring,
And cares were old folks fancies,
And joy the solid thing.
Oh all youth's visions bright, dear,
Of all its golden dow'rs,
Oh, the young love was best, dear,
That dainty dream of ours!

Oh, the old love is sweet, dear,
These chill October days,
When we tread with faltering feet, dear,
The bare and silent ways.
When earth has lost its glory,
And heav'n has lost its blue,
And life's a sober story,
And care a comrade true,
Though hopes no longer cheat, dear,
And dreams have lost their sway,
Oh, the old love is sweet, dear,
That gilds the autumn day!

THE BOARD FENCE.

"Shoo, shoo, get home, you plaguy critters," cried Mr. Babcock, waving his arms as he chased the 'dozen sheep and lambs through a gap in the fence.

It was a wooden fence, and when he had driven the animals to the other side of it, he lifted it from its reclining position and propped it up.

This was an operation he had found himself obliged to repeat many times, not only for that reason, but of several previous seasons.

Yet Mr. Babcock was neither slack or thriftless; in fact he rather prided himself on the ordinary appearance of his farm, and not without reason. How then shall we account for his negligence in this particular instance?

The truth was that this fence formed the boundary line between his estate and that of Mr. Small; and three generations of men who owned these estates had been unable to decide to whom it belonged to rebuild and keep it in repair.

Again and again had they consulted their respective lawyers on the subject, but always with the same result.

"I say it belongs to you to keep it in repair; that's as plain as a pipe-staff," Mr. Babcock would say.

"And I say it belongs to you—any fool might see that," Mr. Small would reply; and then high words would follow, and they would part in anger, more determined and obstinate than ever.

Lawyer's fees and loss by damage from each other's cattle had already amounted to a sum sufficient to have built a fence around their entire estates, but what was that in comparison to the satisfaction of having their own way?

At last, one day Miss Letitia Gill, a woman much respected in the village, and of some weight as a land owner and taxpayer, sent for Mr. Babcock to come and see her on business; a summons which he made haste to obey.

Miss Letitia sat at her window sewing a seam, but she dropped her work and took off her spectacles when Mr. Babcock made his appearance.

"So you got my message; thank you for coming. Sit down. I suppose my man Isaac told you I wanted to consult you on business—a matter of equity, I may say. It can't be expected that us women should be the best judges about such things, you know; there's Isaac, but then he lives on the place; maybe he wouldn't be exactly impartial in his judgment."

"Just so," said Mr. Babcock.

"Well, the state of the case is this: When Isaac came up from the long meadow to dinner—they're mowing the meadow to-day, and when he came up to dinner he found that stray cows had broken into the vegetable garden."

"He did hey?"

"You can fancy the riot made. I declare Isaac was almost ready to use profane language. I am not sure that he didn't; and, after all, I couldn't feel to reproach him very severely, for the pains he has taken with that garden is amazing; working in it late and early, weeding and digging, and now to see it all torn and trampled, so that you would not know which was beets and which was cucumbers. It's enough to raise anybody's temper."

"It is so."

"And that isn't all, for by the looks of things they must have been rampaging the orchard and clover field before they got into the garden. Just please come out and see."

And putting on her bonnet, Miss Letitia showed Mr. Babcock over the damaged precincts.

"You don't happen to know whose animals did the mischief?" said Mr. Babcock.

"Well, I didn't observe them in particular myself, but Isaac said there was one with a peculiar white mark, something like a cross, on its haunch."

"Why, that's Small's brindle," cried Mr. Babcock. "I know the mark as well as I know the nose on my face. She had balls on her horns, didn't she?"

"Yes, so Isaac said."

"And a kind of hump on her back?"

"A perfect dromedary," she said; "I noticed that myself."

"They were Small's cows, no doubt of it," said Mr. Babcock, rubbing his hands. "No sheep with them."

"Well, now I think of it, there were some sheep—they ran away as soon as they saw Isaac. Yes, certainly there were sheep," she said.

"I knew it—they always go with the cows; and what of me?"

"It's to fix damages," said Miss Letitia. "As I said before, women are no judges about such matters."

Mr. Babcock meditated a moment, and then said:

"Well, I wouldn't take a cent less than seventy-five dollars, if I were you—not a cent less."

"Seventy-five dollars! Isn't that a good deal? You know I don't wish to be hard on a poor man; all I want is, a fair compensation."

"Seventy-five dollars is fair, ma'am—in fact, I might say it's low. I wouldn't have had a herd of cattle and sheep tramping through my premises in that way for a hundred."

"There's one thing I forgot to state, the orchard gate was open or they couldn't have got in; that may make a difference."

"Not a bit. You had a right to have your gate open, but Small's cows had no right to run loose. I hope Isaac drove them to the pound?"

"I heard him say he had shut them up somewhere, and didn't mean to let them out till the owner called for them. But Mr. Babcock, what if he should refuse to pay for the damages? I should have to go to law about it."

"He won't refuse; if he does, keep the critters till he will pay. As to law, he's had about enough of that."

"I'm sure I thank you for your advice," said Miss Letitia, "and I mean to act upon it to the very letter."

Scarcely had he got out of her sight, when Miss Letitia sent a summons for Mr. Small, which he obeyed as promptly as his neighbor did.

She made to him precisely the same statement she had made to Mr. Babcock, showed him the injured property, and asked him to fix the damage.

It was remarkable before he did this that he should ask the same question that Mr. Babcock had asked, namely, whether she had any suspicions as to whom the animals belonged.

"Well, one of them, I observed, had a terrible crooked horn."

"That's Babcock's heifer; I should know her among a thousand. She was white and black, wasn't she?"

"Well, now I think of it, she was; one seldom sees so clear a black and white on a cow."

"To be sure, they are really Babcock's animals fast enough. Well, let me think about it; what you want is just a fair estimate, I suppose?"

"Certainly."

"Well, I should say ninety dollars would be as low as he ought to be allowed to get off with."

"Oh, but I fear that will seem as if I meant to take advantage. Suppose we call it—say seventy-five."

"Just as you please, of course; but hanged if I'd let him off for a cent less than a hundred."

"And if he refuses to-day?"

"Why keep the animals until he comes around, that's all."

"But there's one thing I neglected to mention—our gate was standing open; that may alter the case."

"Not at all; there's no law against keeping your gate open; there is against stray animals."

"Very well; thank you for your advice," said Miss Letitia; and Mr. Small departed with as smiling a countenance as Mr. Babcock had worn.

But at milking time that night he made a strange discovery—his old brindle was missing!

At about the same hour Mr. Babcock made a similar discovery—the black and white heifer was nowhere to be found.

A terrible suspicion seized them both—a suspicion they would not have made known to each other for the world.

They waited till it was dark, and then Mr. Babcock stole round to Miss Letitia's, and meekly asked leave to look at the animals that had trespassed.

He would have done it without asking leave, only that thrifty Miss Letitia always shuts her barn doors at night.

While he stood looking over into the pens where the cows were confined, and trying to negotiate with Miss Letitia for the release of his brindle, up came Mr. Small in quest of his brindle.

The two men stared at each other in blank astonishment, then hung their heads in confusion.

It was useless to assert that the damages were too high, for had they not fixed them themselves?

It was useless to plead that Miss Letitia was in a manner responsible for what had happened, on account of the open gate, for had they not assured her that that circumstance did not alter the case?

It was useless to say she had no right to keep the cows in custody; for had they not counseled her to do so?

As to going to law about it, would they not be the target for ridicule of the whole neighborhood?

"He that diggeth a pit, he himself shall fall into it," said Miss Letitia, who read what was passing in their minds as well as if they had spoken, for the light of Isaac's lantern fell on their faces.

"However," she added, "on one condition I will free the cows."

"What is that?"

Both men thought the question, but did not ask it.

"The condition is that you promise to put a good new fence in place of the old one that separates your estates, dividing the cost between you, and that henceforth you will live together peacefully, so far as in you lies. Do you promise?"

"Yes," uttered both in a voice scarcely audible.

"Shake hands upon it then?" said Miss Letitia.

They did so.

"Now let the cows out, Isaac; it's time they were milked," she said.

And the two men went away, driving their cows before them, and with a shamefaced air, greatly in contrast to the look of triumph with which they had before quitted her presence.

The fence was built and the strife ceased when the cause was removed.

LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE.

On every steamer ploughing its way across the Atlantic there are always several passengers who never miss a single one of the five meals served each day. In the interim between breakfast, lunch, dinner, tea and supper, they smoke heavy black cigars—Cabanas, we think—on the upper deck. They throw seafaring glances aloft for these folks are nothing if not nautical; they indulge in bets on how many knots an hour; it is never 12 o'clock or 6 o'clock with them, but so many bells. They even know the binnacle at sight. At night in the grand saloon, they laugh and talk and play cards with a sort of unholy glee. If one of them chances to pass your open state-room door just before breakfast, you are immediately conscious of a penetrating aromatic odor in the air.

We did not make the personal acquaintance of any of these abnormal beings on board Her Majesty's Cunard steamship "Abyssinia," for, though we had been used to the sea all our lives—had, in fact, barely escaped being born on it—we lay deathly sick in the berth from the time we left Sandy Hook Light until we sighted the Irish coast. Let us hope that in the meanwhile the reader was happy on deck, and had suffered no sea change.

A conversation which we happened to overhear one night in the state-room adjoining ours is the only detail we can give of the voyage across the Atlantic; but it is a detail not without significance. Indeed it presents the whole situation in a nutshell.

For the first three days out the sea had been remarkably smooth, "as smooth as glass" Captain Haines observed. With the exception of an occasional impromptu plunge into a brother passenger, you could pace the deck quite comfortably, provided you could pace it at all. Out of politeness to the pleasant weather, the sky-light of the main saloon had not been closed. Taking advantage of this circumstance, a heavy sea broke over the storm-rail one midnight and deposited about fifty barrels of ocean wave in the cabin. The hurried shuffling of feet on deck, and shrieks from the inundated berths on the port side, awakened everybody. Presently I heard a feeble voice uplifted in the state-room next to mine—evidently the voice of a Briton:

"Fwedwick—aw—I say—what's up?"

"Nothing at all, my boy. We only shipped a sea."

"What a beastly idea!"

"Go to sleep."

"Aw—yes—but I can't you know."

Silence. The wind had freshened, and the ship began pitching in a most disagreeable fashion, now and then giving a roll to leeward to show what it could do in that line. In one of those careenings the ponderous screw, missing its grip on the water, quivered convulsively through all its length, and for an instant the great iron-plated hulk seemed to be seized with a death spasm. The sudden calm which followed, as the bronze fins were again submerged, was almost oppressive.

Once more the feeble voice lifted its head, so to speak:

"Fwedwick—aw—I say—are we sinking?"

"Sinking?" "No! What blasted rubbish!"

"Aw—I'm devilish sorry!"

BOSS FOR FIVE MINUTES.

The other day a mild looking tramp called at the door of a resident and remarked:

'Sir, I am a tramp.'

'Yes I see you are.'

'But I am not here to ask for either food, money or clothing. I have just had a bite, my clothes are good enough, and if I had money I should doubtless get inebriated and set up.'

'Well what do you want?'

'There are four tramps down the street and I know they'll call here. It is five years since I began traveling around. I suppose I've been called a loafer and a dead beat and a thief ten thousand times, and I've been shot at, clubbed, broomed and scalded times without record. Now I want a change.'

'How?'

'Well, all I ask is that you'll let me represent your house when those tramps come up.'

This was agreed to. He sat down on the steps, removed his hat, lighted the stub of a cigar and was reading a circular when the four chaps slouched up and entered the yard.

'What in Arkansas do you fellows want in my yard?' exclaimed the tramp as he rose up.

'Suthin' to eat,' was the meek and slowly reply.

'Something to eat! Why, you miserable thick-ribbed cadavers, go and earn it, then. Do you suppose I have nothing to do but keep a free hotel for loafers?'

'Can't git no work,' mumbled the biggest of the lot.

'Oh, you can't? Been lookin' all over the country, I s'pose. People got all the help they want, eh? Want to be cashiers and confidential advisers, don't you?'

'Nobody don't give us a show,' murmured the third man.

'That's it! That's your cure! No one will take you in with your old rags and dirt and sore heels, and weep over you, and ask you to please to be good, and put you in the parlor bed room and feed you on chicken broth! How awful it is that you can't be put on ice and laid away where you won't melt!'

'Will you give us suthin'?' impudently demanded the fourth.

'Will I? You're just right, I will. I'll give you five seconds to get outside of that gate, and I'll tell you in addition that if I ever see you in this neighborhood again I'll tie you into hard knots and hire a sore-eyed dog to bite you to death. Git up and git! Move on—hurry—out with you!'

They shuffled out as fast as they could, and when they had turned the corner the tramp put on his hat, put out his inch of cigar for another smoke, and said to the gentleman:

'You have done me a great favor, and I am grateful. I already feel better for the change, and solemnly believe if I could only have got an excuse to throw 'em over the fence I should have been almost ready to reform and start out as a lecturer. Good-by. I shall never forget your kindness.'

He had been boss for five minutes.

DIDN'T WORK.

The ticket seller at the Detroit Union depot recently noted a middle-aged husband and wife holding a close confab and pointing his way, and after a time the man lounged up and said:

"I want to go to Niles."

"I s'pose I'll have to pay full fare," continued the man, "but the old woman you see over there is a fool, and I'm taking her home to her friends. I s'pose fools travel half fare; don't they?"

"No! we charge just as much for a fool as anybody else. We have only one price."

"Well, that's kinder singular," mused the stranger. They always let fools into circuses and balls and other shows for half price, and sometimes for nothing. Seems as if you ought to have some pity on her."

"I have pity on her, of course, but we have only one rate."

"Besides being a fool she has crazy spells, too; couldn't she take advantage of the lunatic act and go for half fare?"

"She must pay full fare!" was the decided answer.

The woman had been skulking forward during the conversation; as her husband turned from the window she whisperingly inquired: "Kin I go as a fool?"

"Now!" growled the man as he turned upon her—"fools have to pay as much as anybody!"

"Well, I can't help it, can I?" she asked.

"I s'pose not, but we didn't work it right. I ought to have thrown snuff in your eyes, put your false teeth in my pocket, and tried to pass ye along as a poor blind woman going back to gaze on your husband's grave."

THE JINERS.

She was about 45 years old, well-dressed, had black hair, rather thin and tinged with gray, and eyes in which gleamed the fires of a determination not easily balked. She walked into Major Huse's office and requested a private interview, and, having obtained and satisfied herself that the law students were not listening at the key-hole, said, slowly, solemnly and impressively:

"I want a divorce."

"What for? I supposed you had one of the best of husbands," said the Major.

"I s'pose that's what everybody thinks; but if they knew what I've suffered in ten years they'd wonder I hadn't scalded him long ago. I ought to, but for the sake of the young ones I've borne it, and said nothing. I've told him, though, what he might depend on, and now the time's come. I won't stand it, young ones or no young ones; I'll have a divorce, and if the neighbors want to blab themselves hoarse about it they can, for I won't stand it another day."

"But what's the matter? Don't your husband provide for you? Don't he treat you kindly?" pursued the lawyer.

"We get vituals enough, and I don't know but he's as true and kind as men in general, and he's never knocked none of us down. I wish he had, then I'd get him into jail and know where he was nights," retorted the woman.

"Then what's your complaint against him?"

"Well, if you must know, he's one of them plaguey jiners."

"A what?"

"A jiner—one of them pesky fools that's always jining something. There can't nothing come along that's dark and sly and hidden, but he'll jine it. If anybody should get up a society to burn his house down, he'd jine it just as soon as he could get in; and if he had to pay for it, he'd go all the suddener. We hadn't been married morn'n two months before he jined the Know-Nothing's. We lived on a farm then, and every Saturday night he'd come tearing in before supper, grab a fistful of nut cakes, and go off gnawin' them, and that's the last I'll see of him till morning. And every other night he'd roll and tumble in his bed, and holler in his sleep: 'Put none but Americans on guard—George Washington;' and many days he would go out in the cornbarn and jab at a picture of the Pope with an old bagnet that was there. I ought to put my foot down then, but he fooled me so with his lies about the Pope's coming to make all the Yankee girls marry foremen, and to eat up all the babies that wasn't born with a cross on their foreheads, that I let him go on and encouraged him in it.

"Then he jined the Masons. P'raps you know what them be, but I don't 'espesially think they are the same kind of critters that built Solomon's Temple and took care of his concubines: and of all the darned nonsense and gab about worshipful masters and square and compasses and sich like that we had in the house for the next six months, you never see the beat. And he's never outgrowed it nuther. What do you think of a man, Squire, that'll dress hisself in a white apron, 'bout big enough for a monkey's bib, and go marching up and down, and and making motions, and talking the foolish lingo at picture of George Washington in a green jacket, and a trowel on his stomach? Ain't he a loonytick? Well, that's my Sam, and I've stood it as long as I'm agoin' to.

"The next lunge the old fool made was into the Odd Fellows. I made it warm for him when he come home and told me he'd jined them, but he kinder pacified me by telling me they had a sort of branch show that took in women and he'd get me in as soon as he found out how to do it. Well, one night he come home and said I'd been proposed, and somebody had blackballed me. Did it hisself, of course. Didn't want me around knowing to his goings on. Of course he didn't, and I told him so.

"Then he jined the Sons of Malta. Didn't say nothing to me about it, but sneaked off one night, pretendin' he'd got to set up with a sick Odd-fellow, and I'd never found it out, only he come home lookin' like a man that had been through a thrashing-machine, and wouldn't do a thing for him till he owned up. And so it's gone from bad to worse, and from wusser to wusser, jining this and that and t'other, till he's Worship Master of the Masons, and Goddess of Bliss of the Odd-fellows, and Sword-swallower of the Finnegans, and Virgin Cerus of the Grange, and Grand Mogul of the Sons of Indolence, and Two-edged Tomahawk of the United Order of Black Men, and Tale-bearer of the Merciful Manikins, and Skipper of the Guild Caratrine Columbus, and Big Wizard of the Arabian Knights, and Pledge-passer of the Reform Club, and Chief Bulger of the Irish Mechanics, and Purse-keeper of the Order of the Canadian Conscience, and Double Barreled Dictator of the Knights of the Brass Circles, and Standard-Bearer of the Royal Archangels, and Sublime Porte of the Union League, and Chambermaid of the Celestial Cherubs, and Puissant Potentate of the Petrified Pig-Stickers, and the Lord only knows what else. I've borne it and borne it, hopin' he'd get 'em all jined after a while, but 'tain't no use, and when he'd got into a new one, and been made Grand Guide of the Nights of Horror, I told him I'd quit, and I will."

Here the Major interrupted, saying:

"Well, your husband is pretty well initiated, that's a fact; but the Court will hardly call that a good cause for divorce. The most of the societies you mention are composed of honorable men, and have excellent reputations. Many of them though called lodges are relief associations and mutual insurance companies, which, if your husband should die, would take care of you and would not see you suffer if you were sick."

"See me suffer when I'm sick! Take care of me when he's dead! Well, I guess not; I can take care of myself when he's dead, and if I can't I can get another. There's plenty of 'em. And they needn't bother themselves when I'm sick either. If I want to be sick and suffer, it's none of their business! especially after all the sufferin' I've had when I ain't sick, because of their carryin's on. And you needn't try and make me believe it's all right, either. I know what it is to live with a man that jines so many lodges that he don't never lodge at home, and signs his name, "Yours truly, Sam Smith, M. M., I. O. O. F., K. O. B., K. of P., R. of H., R. A. B., I. I. P., K. of X. N. C., L. E. T., H. E. B. R. J. P., X. Y. Z., etc."

"Oh, that's harmless amusement," remarked Mr. Huse.

She looked him square in the eye and said:

"I believe you are a jiner yourself!"

He admitted that he was to a certain extent, and she arose and said: "I wouldn't have thought it. A man like you, chairman of a Sabbath-school and superintendent of the Republicans. It's enough to make a woman take pison. But I don't want anything of you. I want a lawyer that don't belong to nobody or nothin'." And she bolted out of the office and inquired where Captain Pattern kept.—Modern Argo.

WATCHWORDS OF THE CAMPAIGN.

"I will maintain that the entire freedom of thought and speech is consistent with the noblest aspirations of man and the happiest condition of his race."

"Power may destroy the forms but not the principles of justice; these will live in spite even of the sword."—Letter of General Hancock, March 9, 1868.

"Military interference with elections is prohibited by law, and no soldiers will be allowed to appear at any polling places unless, as citizens of the State, they are registered as voters, and then only for the purpose of voting."—Order of General Hancock, December 18, 1867.

"Nothing can intimidate me from doing what I believe to be honest and right."

"The great principles of American Liberty are still the lawful inheritance of this people, and ever should be."—General Order of General Hancock, November 29, 1867.

A BLACK MARK.

The connection of Congressman Garfield with that swindling wooden pavement job of the Washington Tweed (Shepherd) Ring is a very—very black mark against him as a Presidential candidate.

General Garfield admits the receipt of $5,000 from DeGolyer & McClelland, through Dick Parsons, but he indignantly denies that it was a bribe.

Why was he paid so much, for it was a large fee to the best of lawyers for the hardest of work?

Chittenden was interested with DeGolyer & McClelland in the paving contract obtained for them by Garfield, but was never able to make good that interest, because, while admitting his service, the firm formally pleaded that the contract having been obtained by a bribe it was contrary to public morals.

Chittenden avows that the amount was paid not for the services of Lawyer Garfield, neither for those of Congressman Garfield, except in so far as he was CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS.

Garfield says it was for downright hard work, he having examined some forty different kinds of pavement and made a written brief showing the value of the "ironizing" process above all others.

Where is the brief?

How long was it?

How lucid and convincing.

The document is not filed among the records of the District of Columbia.

It does not seem to be in existence.

Unless there was some labor upon this brief the fee was obviously for the purchase of the Congressman's influence, for a mere statement to Shepherd was not a professional service worth $5,000.

Garfield claimed that he wrote the brief.

But what became of it?

Was it written merely for the purpose of formal labor for a fee?

When before a committee General Garfield was asked:—"Did you file with the Board of Public Works of this District a brief or opinion, written, printed or other, upon the subject of the De Golyer pavement?"

To which he answered:—"I could not say I did?"

And further—

"Did you at any time appear before the Board and make any argument whatever?"

Mr. Garfield in reply said:—"I do not remember that I did, but I did speak to Governor Shepherd (Washington's Boss Tweed) on the subject giving my opinion in its favor."

That was all, and, as events proved, it was worth to Garfield's employers all they paid him.

A black—a very black mark.

Mr. Garfield is not the right kind of man to be President of the United States.

The Hancock Veteran Association in Plainfield worries the Republican leaders terribly. The soldiers go for Hancock and so do the civilians. He's the coming man.

WHAT WE ARE.

Mr. Garfield in his letter of acceptance pictures this country as a "nation" of absolute power.

That foreshadows the dangerous doctrine of centralization, against which the Democratic party wages unrelenting warfare.

Centralization is in direct antagonism to the Constitution and Union.

Make it sovereign, and the Constitution would become a blank piece of parchment and the Union a rope of sand.

The Constitution is supreme in every word of delegated authority it contains.

The States are supreme in their reserved rights.

We are not a nation of despot ridden provinces and hand-cuffed menials, like Russia and Austria, and as Mr. Garfield would seemingly have us be.

We are a Republic of free and independent States, peopled and controlled by dignified freemen.

That the fathers established.

That is what the Constitution means and what duty bids us preserve.

For President,
WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.

GARFIELD AGAIN.

Mr. Garfield presumed to say—"Our paper currency is now as national as the flag, and resumption has not only made it everywhere equal to coin, but has brought into use our store of gold and silver."

Which we respectfully dispute.

Gold coin is scarcely seen in circulation, and as for the peoples' silver dollars, Mr. Sherman and his financial ring keep them locked up and decry their utility.

And again, Mr. Garfield thus relieved himself—"The resumption of specie payments, which the Republican party so courageously and successfully accomplished, has removed from the field of controversy many questions that long and seriously disturbed the credit of the Government and business of the country."

What bosh!

Successive abundant crops, with a foreign demand and the consequent balance of trade in our favor, made specie resumption possible.

That did it.

Naught else under the sun.

Furthermore harken unto Mr. Garfield—"The Government can provide for all its ordinary expenditures, and discharge its sacred obligations to the soldiers of the Union and to the widows and orphans of those who fell in its defense."

Very pretty to read, but dissolved into cant by the following testimony of an ex-Member of Congress from Michigan, given through the columns of the Detroit Free Press:

"Garfield worked like a beaver against the bill to equalize soldiers' bounties, and asked me to vote against it in the House of Representatives. I refused and he voted "no." When he found the bill carried by an overwhelming majority he went to the Clerk's desk and in my hearing asked the Clerk to have his vote changed to yea."

Practice outweighs profession, Mr. Garfield.

In conclusion, we quote from his letter of acceptance as follows—"The doctrines announced by the Chicago Convention are not the temporary devices of a party to attract votes and carry an election."

Indeed!

Then the Chicago must have been different from any nominating body ever before held, and besides, has Mr. Garfield forgotten the honest words of the delegate who therein declared—"What are we here for, Mr. President, but to get the offices?"

WHO THREW "MUD" FIRST?

The Republican press—notably our New York contemporaries, the Times, the Tribune and the Nation—as early as 1873, set a woeful example by their designful mud throwing (as they now call it) at General Garfield. That was seven years ago, and according to the party such action does not count now, and the verdict then given is outlawed. But now we have the opinion of a Republican Judge of the United States Supreme Court, which opinion was given only nine months ago. We publish the following from a decision by Judge Swayne, a prominent Ohio Republican of the U. S. Supreme Court, in the case of Burke against Childs, which was considered to apply to and cover a subsequent case which was decided on appeal in October, 1879.

"The agreement with General Garfield, a member of Congress, to pay him $5,000 as a contingent fee for procuring a contract which was itself made to depend upon a future appropriation by Congress—which appropriation could only come from a committee of which he was Chairman—was a sale of official influence, which no veil can cover, against the plainest principles of public policy. No counsellor-at-law while holding high office has a right to put himself in a position of temptation, and under pretence of making a legal argument exert his official influence upon public officers dependent upon his future action. Certainly the courts of justice will never lend themselves to enforce contracts obtained by such influence."

The effect of this disclosure on those who for the sake of continued party patronage have endeavored to palliate the offenses of General Garfield, cannot be over-estimated. But Judge Swayne as well as the Times, the Tribune and the Nation, were little apprehensive that the target of their "mud" would ever become the candidate of the Republican party for the Presidency.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY.

Among the many blessings derived by the American people from the triumph of Independence, as declared in 1776, none have greater value than religious liberty. It is a priceless gem, and thus eloquently extolled by a Jewish Rabbi of San Francisco, Mr. Bettleheim. He said:

"For us Israelites this very declaration became of the highest importance. We found an asylum again where we can live undisturbed and worship the God of our fathers according to the dictates of our hearts. Religious liberty as its foundation and public instruction as its upper structure made America the land of the people. Israel found here a home, a free home, an America's hospitable shore. Now, my friends, if it was proper for our forefathers to celebrate and to register days of victories as of national importance in olden time, and to give these days a religious imprint, is it not far more our duty to rejoice in our modern time on a day when not only Israel but also a large nation, and with her our downtrodden people, have gained the fullest and most secure liberty we ever dreamed of? Open, therefore, the old scroll again, and record with golden letters the Fourth of July as an additional holyday."

To that we sincerely respond—amen!

Nothing can truthfully be said against General Hancock. His record is untarnished, and the torrent of mud which the Republican papers are manufacturing and hurling at him, will have the effect of increasing his majority by thousands.

UNASSAILABLE.

General Hancock, the Democratic candidate for President, stands before the people unassailable. Every poisoned arrow his political enemies shoot darts back and wounds the senders.

They charged him with cruelty toward Mrs. Surratt, who was condemned to be hung by orders from Washington, in the military district he then commanded.

That has been proved to be a base and malicious slander by the Catholic Priest who ministered to the spiritual wants of the unfortunate woman, and who publicly testifies to the great kindness of the General under imperative military duty.

Then they asserted that the grand tribute to civil law, contained in his orders as Military Commander over Louisiana and Texas, after the war closed, was not the product of his pen, but written for him by Judge Black, of Pennsylvania.

That the Judge telegraphs from England to be a wicked falsehood.

Next they declared that he had written a letter to General Sherman promising military support to Mr. Tilden, in 1877, as the President elect.

Which General Sherman pronounces to be totally devoid of truth.

We repeat that Winfield Scott Hancock stands unassailable, and all that partisan malevolence can invent and utter against him will recoil upon the heads of his unprincipled opponents.

Purity and patriotism are his characteristics, peace and prosperity his political aim.

VOTE FOR HANCOCK!

ANOTHER PROMINENT REPUBLICAN FOR HANCOCK.

Gen. Patrick H. Jones has received the following letter:

JACKSON, Mich., July 14, 1880.

MY DEAR GENERAL: The following appeared in the Chicago Times of yesterday:

Among the accessions to Hancock the Democrats count Gen. Patrick H. Jones, at one time Postmaster of New York.

[Signed] Yours truly, E. W. BARBER.

Gen. Barber succeeded Gen. W. H. Terrell as Third Assistant Postmaster-General under Gen. Grant. He was the staunch friend of Zach. Chandler. It was at Chandler's request that he was appointed to the Postal Department.

MR. ARTHUR ACCEPTS.

The letter of acceptance of Chester A. Arthur forms a contrast to that of James A. Garfield, that is really refreshing. Mr. Arthur has opinions, while Mr. Garfield straddles every question and is on all sides of every subject. Even if a man is wrong in his belief, he is more to be admired for standing by it than one who, for the sake of gain in the future and political effect, tries to form his faith to suit others. Mr. Arthur's views on the civil service reform may carry some weight (more than enough to sink him, probably), as no one in the country has a better right to an opinion on the subject than himself. But he would have been more candid had he explicitly emulated the frankness of the immortal "Flanagan, from Texas."

JOHN T. BIRD.

There is to be a Governor elected in New Jersey next November and it becomes the Democracy to think about selecting the right kind of candidate. We notice that Democratic papers in different parts of the State warmly endorse the proposed nomination of Hon. John T. Bird, of Hunterdon county. Where can a better man be found than Mr. Bird? He possesses every qualification for the office, public and private, and resides in a district justly entitled to receive the honor. We repeat—where can a better man be found for Governor than John T. Bird?

THE WAY OUT FOR GARFIELD.

A rural voter writes as follows to one of the leading journals. From the tenor of his letter, we fear that General Hancock cannot count on his assistance:

"Garfield is my candidate and he gets my vote. A man who drives a mule on the tow-path shows he's not stuck up, and that's the kind of man we want for President. When he is elected and draws his first month's salary he will pay the $329 for which he got credit in Mobile and about which the Democrats are making such a fuss."

"Every man has his price," said WALPOLE. GARFIELD'S was $5,000.

The Kuklux outrages have broken out again—in the New York Tribune office.

A man who sells his vote, influence, eloquence and soul for $329 cash, can never be President of the United States. J-AMES is the man who thus sold.

Our next President will be a heavy-weight. Garfield is six feet high and weighs 240 pounds. Hancock measures six feet two inches and tips the beam at 280.

It must amuse the Republican candidate to see his party organs wrestling with charges with which he made no attempt to wrestle in his letter of acceptance.

How happy some Republican politicians hereabouts would be could they only wave the bloody shirt. Poor fellows, their cardinal principle is gone and forever.

The Springfield Republican says: "As far as GARFIELD'S own statement of principles goes, the verdict must be: 'Thou art weighed in the balance and art found wanting.'"

General Hancock received a despatch Wednesday afternoon, from Middletown, Pa., which stated that Republicans in that town had formed a Hancock Veteran Association.

It is astonishing with what rapidity HANCOCK campaign clubs are springing up all over the country. Democrats are enthusiastic and Republicans correspondingly depressed.

Gov. McClellan called upon Gen. Hancock, at his quarters on Governor's Island one day last week. The meeting between these two veterans was most cordial and pleasant.

The latest attempt to stampede the independent voter is the suggestion that ENGLISH is a rebel sympathizer and intends to poison HANCOCK after the election and turn the government over to the "rebel brigadiers."

The colored voters in the Southern States are going strong for General Hancock. They know that he was a prominent Union General during the war and that their rights will be fully protected with him as President. All they know about Garfield is that he defeated Grant in the Chicago Convention.

The Democrats selected General Hancock as their candidate not only because he is a man of high character, who has eminently served his country, but because he is fitted in every particular to be President.

The National Organization of Hancock Veterans met at the Westminster Hotel N. Y. city last Wednesday evening, and unanimously elected Major-General George Brinton McClellan President of the association.

We respect and admire General Hancock for his brave and gallant bearing as a soldier during the war, and we honor him because when the war was over he was among the first to offer the right hand of friendship and reconciliation.

The Republican campaign document committee are said to be busy getting out documents. Suppose they circulate the Poland Committee's report on the Credit Mobilier briberies. It would be instructive as well as interesting reading for the Republican party.

Hon. George C. Ludlow is being favorably mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination for the Governorship. He is a gentleman of sterling worth, of undoubted strength, and would lend grace and dignity to the office. He would be a candidate above reproach.—Salem Sunbeam.

The World, reports that, on his way to his old homestead, Mr. JAY GOULD told a Kingston man that he thought HANCOCK was going to be elected, that Gen. ARTHUR loaded down the Republican ticket, and that the Republican machine operators had practically given up the fight, so far as the Presidency is concerned. "I have no hope of carrying New York," Mr. JAY GOULD is reported as saying to his Kingston friend, "and I believe that as goes New York so will also go New Jersey at least, and Connecticut probably."

NEW JERSEY.

Professor Cooke, in a recent paper read before the Middlesex County Farmers Club at New Brunswick, presented the following statistics regarding New Jersey:

Farmers 80,000.
Farms 30,652.
Horses 79,000.
Farm laborers 63,607.
Capital stock $264,000,000.
Annual produce $16,000,000.
Fertilizers used $500,000.
Hay crop 600,000 tons.
Cranberry crop 75,000 bushels.

A SHOCKING TRAGEDY.

Some three weeks ago an anonymous note reached the New York Sun saying that the Jersey City authorities ought to interfere to prevent the sacrifice of the lives of the workingmen in the Hudson River Tunnel; that a cave had occurred there on June 23, from which several men had narrowly escaped with their lives, and that for a distance of 40 feet in the brickwork of the tunnel there was a crack into which a carpenter's rule could be thrust.

This warning was substantiated, in a terrible manner by the caving in of a portion of the tunnel's roof on last Wednesday morning and the burial alive of twenty workmen. Who is to blame, if anyone, is as yet unknown. A coroner's jury will in a few days render one of their universally unsatisfactory verdicts.

"Republicanism" in Vermont.

A correspondent of the New York Sun, writing from Manchester, Vermont, gives the following illustrations of "republicanism" in that State:

"The State has been flooded with printed blanks which, when signed, become a bond. These blanks have been distributed among the faithful and presented to every man who is considered politically doubtful. Some one who has a twist upon him will go to him with one of these documents and use the necessary means to compel him to sign it. It virtually pledges the signer to vote for Garfield and Arthur at the coming election. Thousands to-day are already so pledged. I am speaking of what I know. A few sturdy, horny-handed Democrats here remember old Hickory. They raised a hickory pole and spread to the breeze a Hancock and English banner. This was more than the chivalry of Vermont could stand. Sharpshooters poured in from the surrounding towns, and before sunset of the same day that glorious flag was trailing in the dust. The halyards were shot away at the top."

General Hancock's Lineage.

John Hancock was born in 1670, died in 1750, aged eighty years. He was a minister at Lexington Mass.

John Hancock was born 1703, died 1744, age forty one years. He was a minister of Braintree, Mass., and a son of the preceding.

John Hancock, L. L. D., was born in 1737, died 1793, aged fifty six years. He was the first of the signers of the Declaration of American Independence, a son of John Hancock, of Braintree, and a grandson of John Hancock, of Lexington. He was a native of Quincy, Mass.; graduated at Harvard College in 1754; member of the House of Representatives from Boston in 1766; President of the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts in 1744; President of Continental Congress in 1775; Governor of Massachusetts from 1780 to 1784 and from 1787 to 1793.

Benjamin F. Hancock was a son of John Hancock, L. L. D., signer of the Declaration of American Independence; was a lawyer at Norristown, Montgomery county, Pa., in 1828; was a member of the Baptist church and superintendent of the Sunday school.

Winfield Scott and Hilary Hancock, twin brothers, sons of Benjamin F. Hancock, were born in Montgomery township, Montgomery county, Pa., in 1824.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

Armed to the Teeth.

Is a very common expression, but we think that armed to embellish and preserve them to a ripe old age is decidedly more appropriate. This can be done by keeping yourself supplied with a bottle of that splendid dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT, which will beautify the teeth and preserve them from the ravages of decay. SOZODONT contains no acids or gritty substances which injure the enamel, but is composed of rare and antiseptic herbs, which have a beneficial effect on the whole economy of the mouth. Sold by druggists.

JAS. E. MARTINE,
President.

MR. PERCY C. ONL lost a valuable ram from the excessive heat one day last week.

THE Festival of the Mount Olive Baptist church, last Thursday and Friday evenings, was an entire success.

THE voice of the "Katy-did" is again heard in the land. According to the old saying, we shall have frost in six weeks.

A VOTE of thanks would be tendered the Common Council by the people if that body would but repeal the dog ordinance.

UPON the request of Messrs. Breslin & King, the 5:30 p. m. train from New York stops at Netherwood by order of Supt. James G. Moore.

THE public will sympathize with Messrs. Simpson & Co., in their loss of a valuable horse by an attack of inflammation of the bowels, on last Monday night.

MRS. Jane Smith, who was one night last week outraged by four men near New Brunswick, says that she at one time, within the past twelve years, worked in Plainfield.

A SLIGHT diversion from the evening's services at the Reformed church, was caused last Sunday evening by the breaking of one of the arms of a glass chandelier.

UPON the publication of Arthur's letter of acceptance, on Monday morning, the "Republican's banner" turned itself over the wire and hung "union down" all the rest of the day.

IT is anything but a "healthy state of things," to judge by the dirty sewer water that is almost even with the iron covering at the corner of Park avenue and Front street.

THOSE who claim that this summer has not been a comparatively cool one on an average, are the very ones who will complain if the streets of Paradise are paved with 18 instead of 22 carat gold.

THE Secretary of the Independent Athletic Club, out of the kindness of his heart and the generosity of his spirit, forwarded a most acceptable present to Dr. Tanner last week, in the shape of a bunch of tooth-picks.

THE largest audience that has been gathered together in the late Congregational church for many months past, assembled on Sunday evening to hear the Rev. A. H. Lewis' remarkably able address to young men.

NOBODY seemes to know who were the two bicyclists that frightened Mr. F. M. Bacon's horse on Park avenue recently. Only the perfect command the driver had over the animal, prevented a distressing accident from resulting.

THE congregation of the Crescent Ave. church, members of its Sunday school, and friends, will go to Ocean Grove on Tuesday, August 31st. They always have had a good time, but this excursion is to eclipse all previous ones.

NEXT Monday the long expected picnic and out-door concert of the Saengerbund will take place at Hyde's Grove, near Mountain avenue. If you attend you'll have a grand time, and no mistake. Should the weather prove stormy, the next clear day will be the date.

MANY of our residents are favored with invitations to attend the unceremonial but pleasant hops that occur at the Hotel Netherwood on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. The dance music furnished is unequalled, and those who participate, reap thorough enjoyment.

THE old-reliable and long-established firm of Berry & Thorn lead the merchants of this city in their particular line of trade. Their stock of agricultural implements, house-furnishing goods and tinware is the largest in the county, and they allow no other establishment to undersell them.

THE always interesting out-door competitions of the P. A. C., will take place this year on Wednesday, Sept. 15th. As the championship games of the National Association occur soon after, the amateur athletes of America will be in fine condition and close contests on our home track may be expected.

CHRISTIAN Hanson Taft, the story of whose crime and subsequent arrest by Captain Dodd of this city, was published in our issue of June 25th, is again at large. The prisoner escaped from Somerville jail on Friday evening of last week, and left no trace of the direction he took; although a hole in the ceiling plainly showed his way of escape.

IT is to be hoped that the youth of our city, who possess and display such condemnible proclivities for "hooking rides" on moving coal trains, will not meet the same fate as did the lad at Elizabeth on Friday afternoon last. The latter was taught a lesson by having his leg cut off, which destroys any future ability on his part to follow the precarious amusement referred to.

THE servant of James Wadsworth, Esq., of this city, became a little more reckless in her handling of a carving knife than her employer approved of, and more careless regarding its proximity to his person than strict regard for his health deemed prudent. On Friday last our most efficient constable, Amos Moffett, arrested the aggressor and brought her before a lenient Justice who bound her over to keep the peace but to refrain from taking a piece of anybody's body.

JUST as the Long Branch fast newspaper train reached the draw of the Newark bridge last Sunday morning, the bridge-keeper had closed the draw but had no time to take out the long lever in the centre of the draw. This the train struck and the sides of eight cars were torn in splinters. The engine, too, was badly wrecked, but fortunately none of the cars left the track. The occupants of the train were badly shook up and Mr. Ryan, editor of the Long Branch Season, was thrown with such force as to break his collar-bone.

A PLEASANT trip to Boynton Beach and plenty of bathing, sailing and fishing upon arrival, may be enjoyed by those who participate in the excursion of Warren Mission school, on Tuesday, August 3rd. Tickets, if purchased at Parsons & Co's book store before that date, will cost but 50 cents. On the day of the excursion the price will be 65 cents. Train leaves at 7:30 a. m. A special car has been provided for baskets, and the Managing Committee have secured the exclusive use of the grounds and bathing houses for the day.

A MOST peculiar accident happened at the Potter Press works, one evening recently. A workman in the forging department was struck on the wrist by a small portion of steel that broke off the edge of a hammer he was using. The fine sharp piece of metal cut like a knife through the flesh and into an arterial vein, making an opening from out of which the blood spurted many feet. Had the unfortunate man been alone he would have bled to death, but his companions possessed sufficient presence of mind to apply tightened bandages around the arm and stop the flow to some extent. The victim was able to walk to the office of Dr. T. H. Tomlinson, whose surgical ability prevented any serious results.

THE annual Excursion of the Sabbath school of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church, with their friends, will take place Tuesday, Aug. 31, to Ocean Grove and Long Branch. Tickets, one dollar. This will be the best Excursion of the season.

THE amateur athletes of the counties of Union and Middlesex, will meet on Tuesday, September 28th, at the Fair Grounds and contest their abilities in a 100 yard dash, one mile run and one mile bicycle race. Handsome medals will be given to both the first and second in each event.

THERE dwells in this city a wicked man who, on last Saturday evening, interfered with an officer of the law while in the pursuance of his duty. The "officer" announced his intention of taking the man's dog, and the man announced his belief that he wouldn't do anything of the kind. The man was right.

FROM the returns of the census enumerators in New Jersey it appears that the population of the State has increased from 907,949 in 1870 to 1,100,000—nearly the population of New York city. These figures will entitle Essex and Hudson counties to ten Assemblymen, each, while Gloucester, Burlington and Salem will each probably lose an Assemblyman.

ONE of Plainfield's bakers, who has been missing and missed from our city after but a short business experience on our principal street, was among us again on Friday last. After a short interview with Constable Moffett, they parted on terms of friendship at the conclusion of certain arrangements that were demanded as necessary for the satisfaction of parties concerned and interested.

IT is most improbable to imagine that anyone will forget the excursion of St. Mary's T. A. B., Society to Hudson Grove on Tuesday, August 10th. The spot selected, on Long Island's beautiful Sound, cannot fail to attract all who possess a love for beautiful scenery and pleasurable bathing; while the generosity of those under whose auspices the affair will take place, assures comfort, enjoyment, and satisfaction.

THERE will be sold at auction to-day (Friday) at one o'clock p. m., by Mr. T. J. Gillies by order of Carman Parse, administrator, all the personal effects of Dr. A. T. Giraud, deceased, at his late residence on Front near Richmond street. The property offered includes a piano, jewelry, silver ware, horse and buggy and a complete assortment of household furniture. The terms will be strictly cash.

Messrs. Miller, Nelson & Honeyman were compelled by the rain of last Tuesday to postpone their excursion to Ocean Grove until to-day (Friday). The teachers of Grace Church Sunday School decided last Sunday to send their scholars free on the trip, and as we go to press (Thursday) there is every promise that an unusually large and select a crowd in addition will take advantage of the opportunity.

EVEN the "coming man" grows enthusiastic in the cause of "Hancock the superb." A club of young residents of this city may be seen frequently after sundown marching through the principal streets with an illuminated transparency bearing the name of our next President. They all carry brightly burning lanterns synonymous of the desire of the Democratic party that the past and present political and civil lives of their choice, should bear the strong light of examination and criticism.

THE population of the Second Census District of New Jersey is as follows, Hudson county not having been all heard from:

Hudson, (estimated)	186,000
Hunterdon,	38,397
Mercer,	58,005
Middlesex,	52,256
Somerset,	27,032
Union,	55,215
	414,905

The estimate of the Supervisor, Mr. A. E. Gordon, was 410,609.

ONE of the curb-stone flowers, that ornament the gutters of Front street after sun-down, was "moved along" last Saturday evening in a way more forcible than pleasant. The owner of a store between Park avenue and the post office, who naturally objected to having his sidewalk occupied by loafers to the detriment of his business and the annoyance of passers, lit on a colored brother's face with both fists. Lots of threatening talk, and the gathering of 107 curious spectators and 1 policeman, followed. That was all.

DURING the afternoon and evening of Thursday of last week, the spacious grounds attached to the residence of James Martine, Esq., were placed at the disposal of the Park avenue Baptist society, who gave thereon a lawn party to members, their families and friends. It is sufficient to say that the affair was as successful as everything under the same management universally is. Young and old passed minutes and hours of unalloyed pleasure, and it was long after the rising of the moon before tastes for social intercourse and other refreshments were satisfied.

THE construction and reconstruction of the necessary machinery for the commencement of mining operations on a large scale in the discovered regions of gold near this city, has about reached completion and work will probably be commenced during the early part of next week. Those who are interested express renewed and increased satisfaction in the enterprise as further developments are made, and undoubtedly have complete faith in the success of their intended operations. We, in common with the entire public, trust that the enviable era in Plainfield's history that is promised, will be realized in every particular.

THE census returns are coming in from the South. The city of Savannah, Ga., show a population of 30,747. In 1870 it was 28,235. The increase has been wholly in the colored population, which numbers 15,750 in 1880, against 13,068 in 1870; increase in ten years, 2,682. The white population in 1870 was 15,106, and is now 14,997; decrease in ten years, 109. Charleston, S. C., shows a similar increase in colored and decrease in white population. The population of Selma, Ala., 7,505—white, 2,425; colored, 4,080; excess of colored, 1,655. The population in 1870 was 6,484—white, 2,825; colored, 3,660; excess, 835. Increase in white population in ten years, 601; increase in colored population, 420; net increase, 1,021. Census returns from one-third of the State of Louisiana showed an average increase of 14 per cent. in population.

THERE is mischief to the country in the designs and purposes of the leaders of the republican party. They thirst for the oportunity to inaugurate strife anew between the sections and use the military to reinstate themselves in power. Given the chance, they will find pretexts for garrisoning States, overturning their governments, restoring carpet-bag thieves to the places where they plundered and shared the fruits with the republican party, and putting the country back where it was ten or fifteen years ago. These republicans hate a Union of States whose people enjoy the rights of self government within the Constitution. They will destroy such a Union at any cost to give themselves political power. If the country ever puts them in power again, it may expect to see the administration conducted on a policy that will make the government once more the mere tool of the republican party, and that will entail, among other consequences, increased expenditure and increased debt. The continued and future peace, unity and prosperity of the Republic can only be secured by the complete and final defeat of the republican party.

A NIGHT-Blooming Cereus is no longer a curiosity.

BOTH in our city and over-the-brook, new houses are in course of erection.

UNFORTUNATE is he who has not been a fishing during this remarkably prolific season for ichthyophagists.

The town clock has again stopped. The salary of the person hired to keep it in motion, goes on all the same.

SPITZ dogs are not allowed at Ocean Grove this summer. Policemen have orders to shoot them on sight.

YOU can now write to your friends in Asbury Park and direct the letter to the lately established post-office at that place.

A RUMOR of the the death of Aleck Benedict is unfounded. Mr. Benedict is lying dangerously ill at a Newark hospital.

Do the hackmen live up to the letter of the law (?) under which they are licensed? Do they ever "violate the peace of the city"?

ONE of the largest and finest dancing platforms possible has been constructed for use at the Saengerbund's picnic on next Monday.

TROW'S Directory of New York city, just issued for the coming year, may be found at R. Steele's pharmacy, by any who desire to consult it.

THE Rev. Mr. Sprague of Salem, N. Y., not unknown to our church-goers as an eloquent preacher, will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church on Sunday morning.

MR. J. M. Mather, well-known in insurance circles, has opened an office at the depot, where he solicits a call from those in want of insurance in good, reliable companies.

THE rate of city taxes this year is 75 cents on the $100, as follows: city tax proper, 24 cents, school tax 42 cents, poor tax, 9 cents. Additional to this is the fire tax of 26 cents on the $100.

THE Rev. C. B. Durand, of the Reformed church of Hackensack, N. J., will occupy the pulpit of the Trinity Reformed church next Sabbath morning and evening. All are cordially invited.

THE brick work and masonry of the Central avenue Baptist church, has been completed in a most satisfactory manner by the contractor, Mr. Isaac Melbourn. The final finish of the edifice is rapidly approaching.

EVERYBODY having found out what a fraud Vennor is, were congratulating themselves on the absence of his name from the papers, when along comes Tanner who occupies more space than his predecessor.

BECAUSE a man is the vice-president of the Garfield and Arthur Club and a "power" in Republican politics, should he be allowed to set his shanty down wherever he likes, uncontrolled and unobjected to by a Republican council.

MEMBERS of the press and others were in receipt of verbal invitations, on Monday last, to be present at a wake to be held over the body of a prominent Park avenue barber. Other duties prevented our attendance, and we were fortunately absent when the deceased waked.

DOES the following strike anyone as remarkable? A man who objects to having his property taking away by the dog-pounder and shot, is put under bail to the amount of $100; while a man who knocks another's jaw out of shape, is allowed to go on his own recognizance.

IN another month the new and much larger store that has been leased by Messrs Edsall & Price, next to Green & Co's, will enable them to spread before their customers and the entire public the most extended, various and finest stock of dry-goods and ladies-wear in the State.

MR. Wm. B. Stewart, with a continuance of his generosity, has made matters in relation to his financial claim against the Reform church so easy, that the members of that society may look forward to many years of prosperous growth uninterrupted by annoying judgments and claims.

THE Bound Brook Chronicle denies the reports to the effect that the town is fever stricken and malaria infected, and requests all contemporaries who have published such statements to retract them. We unhesitatingly do so, and congratulate Bound Brook on her healthful condition—but that does not help Plainfield any.

THE convenience of the C. R. R. and Kill Von Kull route to the Coney Island Pier is experienced by many who are so wise as to adopt it. The 8:31 a. m. train from this city daily (excepting Sundays) lands its passengers at the Jersey City ferry from whence the Steamer can be taken. Returning passengers can connect at the same landing with the 7:10 and 10:25 p. m. trains for Plainfield and Somerville.

A PAINFUL and serious accident happened recently to Mr. Evan Jones, a gentleman for many years prominently identified with the business, social and religious interests of the city. While trimming some shade trees near one of his many handsome houses, he fell to the ground from the elevation on which he was standing and besides breaking his collar bone, bruised severely his head and face.

THE case of the City against Frank Hand, came up yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock, in the court room before Judge Runyon and a jury. Sickness in the family of the Corporation Counsel impelled the substitution of Mr. Walter Hetfield for the complainant; and Mr. Craig A. Marsh conducted the defense. As we go to press (Thursday afternoon) the case is still on, and we must in consequence defer a more extended report of the matter until next week.

THE Trenton Business College has just closed one of the most successful years. The catalogue just at hand shows 220 students enrolled in the different departments, and contains engraved specimens of students' work done at different intervals, showing most surprising results. It seems hardly possible that such changes can be made in so short a space of time. They speak volumes for this already popular institution, and show that its corps of teachers are masters in their profession.

THE attractions of the hatless young sisters of our city, seem to be breeding a monster jealousy among their admirers. We might not, possibly—and would not, probably—refer to the matter except from fear that vacancies may occur in the ranks of printerdom if the charms of the ladies spoken of continue to bewitch and madden. Rivals in the affection of the two, met on Park avenue recently and a pistol was drawn with base intent, but the unarmed lover was too "hot with his fists" and the drawer of concealed weapons went down in a heap. It is to be hoped that for the sake of the family of one of the aggressors the matter will be kept out of the court room more effectually than it was kept out of the church.

THE official returns of Supervisor Gordon of the recently taken Census for the Second District, comprising Union, Middlesex, Somerset and Mercer Counties, has not yet been published, although an incorrect statement, headed as such, is going the rounds of the press. When exact and complete returns are reported, we shall publish them. We have already published the correct census of Plainfield and North Plainfield, which is 8,126. North Plainfield included, makes it 11,359.

MR. James K. Arnold, District Clerk of the North Plainfield school district, No. 38, finds that the number of children therein between the ages of 5 and 18, is 908, of these 752 have been vaccinated, and 151 have not.

THE town clock strikes once more.

AN "absent-minded woman" walked out of a grocery store on Front street one day recently with a package of goods that did not belong to her. A suspicious clerk followed and brought the property back with the remark "almost fifty-six cents in the hole."

During the heavy showers of Saturday night lightning struck the stone quarry on top of Morris Mountain, Paterson, and more stone was got out than would have been moved by a ton of giant powder. Heavy boulders rolled down the mountain side, making a terrific noise, and frightening the watchmen in the neighborhood.

What's the Good?

The success of Dr. Tanner as a starvationist is fully proven to the minds of many, and the latter will in a few weeks be pouring their dollars into the pockets of imitators who will show themselves in public at so much a head (children, half price). Even at the risk of being called sceptical we must decline to believe in the accomplishment of the feat; and anyway fail to see what is gained of benefit to science even should an honest attempt be made and a successful termination result. Who wants to fast even if it is proved that the thing can be done?

Excellent Crop Reports.

The crop report about to be made public by the Agricultural Department, will show an excellent condition of things for the farmers. The corn crop is larger by far than that of any previous year. The cotton crop is equal to the best which former reports have shown, while the wheat yield is up to the average, with a slight increase in acreage. The reports from Texas are remarkable. The corn yield is rated at 1.16 and that of cotton at 1.14, 100 being the standard of excellence when crops are uninjured by any cause. Alabama rates next on cotton, being 1.04, while South Carolina is the lowest, being only .92, or a little under the average.

A New Banner.

A number of German ladies of this city, New Brunswick, some time ago determined to present to the German Singing Society "Aurora", a handsome banner, and with this object in view have been for some months past engaged in soliciting contributions from their friends for that purpose. We were told on Friday that about $200 had been pledged, and a committee has been appointed in reference to ascertaining its probable cost, which will be about $250. The banner will be of fine silk, on one side of which will be a harp surrounded by scroll or vine, and surmounted by a sun-burst. On the opposite side will be a German eagle, with the name of the society and date of organization. There may be some slight alterations made in the above design. The presentation will take place in this city in September next, and the occasion will be one of great enjoyment. Visiting singing societies will be present from Newark, Elizabeth, Rahway, Plainfield and Trenton. A parade will be made through our principal streets, after which a grand picnic will be held in some grove hereafter to be selected. A special meeting has already been called for the purpose of appointing committees to make the preliminary arrangements.—New Brunswick Times.

Which was the Madder?

One of the valuable hunting dogs of our sportsman-friend Young, of Westfield, became affected by the heat on last Saturday morning and leaving his owner's place started for Scotch Plains. The fact of his seeking such a beautiful spot was proof sufficient to Mr. Young the elder that the animal was laboring under a fit of temporary insanity, and the dog was followed to prevent his doing any damage to such rival dogs and stone-throwing boys as were met in the course of his travels. Upon arriving at the Plains and being informed by Mr. Stansbury's dog that Donohue was looking for him, the visitor got extremely reckless in his attentions and chawed severely and impartially such canines as came in his way. Stating to the dogs of Scotch Plains his intention of "cleaning their clock" the Westfield pup commenced a wholesale massacre of the innocents, and about a dozen died victims of his jaws. Mr. Jacob Coles, however, objected to allowing that sort of thing to be continued, and with his little gun perforated the animal in such a manner that "subsequent proceedings interested him no more." The question at present before the house is; which was the madder, the dog from Westfield or the owners of his victims?

Just in Time.

Last Saturday morning, about 2 o'clock, Mrs Isaac Connett, residing on the corner of Peace and Second streets who had occasion to get up, when passing her bed-room window heard the sounds of footsteps on the tin-roof of the portico outside. Turning, a sight met her eyes that, considering the time of night, was calculated to frighten anyone. On the roof of the piazza that was on a level with the window, stood a man in his shirt sleeves endeavoring to open the blinds. Seizing the curtain the lady pulled it suddenly down, upon which the man climbed down the trellis work by means of which he had reached the roof, and fled up the street towards the railroad bridge. Mrs. Connett immediately awakened her husband, but it was then too late to follow the intruder; had she done so when the man was first seen, he would have had some difficulty in escaping from the hands of "Ike." It was supposed the attempt to enter the room was made by some one acquainted with the fact that Mr. Connett had had a large sum of money paid him the day before; which belief is strong, for the reason, that on a chair by the window that was being opened, were the clothes worn by Mr. C. However but little would have been gained by the thief, as a large portion of the money and its owner's watch were safely concealed under the pillow on which lay Mr. Connett's head.

Hancock Veteran Association.

The Democratic headquarters were packed last Wednesday evening with members of the Hancock Veteran Association, the occasion being the regular weekly meeting. President Gross occupied the chair, and after hearing reports of Committees and transacting business coming before the meeting, the Association adjourned to meet again next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Business of importance will then occupy the attention of the members.

The World's Fair of 1883.

The Committee of Arrangements appointed by the resident Commissioners for holding an international exhibition in New York City in 1883, held a meeting at the Astor House on Tuesday of last week. A Finance Committee and a Committee on Reception and Order of Business were appointed, who will at once proceed to make all the necessary arrangements for the meeting of the Commission. Gen. Wm. H. Sterling is in receipt of a letter from Secretary of State, Wm. M. Evarts, stating that a meeting will be held in the city of New York on Tuesday, August 10th, for the organization of the permanent Commission and the transaction of such other business as may be brought to its attention.

3. The regular Newark Conference Camp Meeting, of which the appointed managers this year are the Revs. J. N. Fitzgerald, and A. L. Brice. Time, August 5th to 15th.

To be Regretted.

Many citizens of Dunellen will regret to learn of Mr. Wm. D. Casterline's decision not to apply for re-appointment as principal of the Dunellen public school for the approaching term. For reasons best known to himself, and no doubt satisfactory in view of the present construction of the Board of Trustees, the gentleman who has but recently closed a most successful school year, will accept a position elsewhere. It is to be hoped, in consequence, that the change of head that becomes necessary, will not detract from the high standard the school has attained during the past; and that the choice of the Board in selecting a new principal will fall upon one as capable of giving satisfaction and achieving desired results, as he who has lately occupied such position.

A New Cattle Disease.

A new disease has appeared among the cows in Burlington county, many cases resulting fatally. The animal is first attacked with a swelling of the glands of the throat, followed by a discharge of white, viscid looking matter from the nostrils. A farmer living in the vicinity of Unionville recently lost three cows from the disease. Among horses the disease has also appeared accompanied by slight cough, but among the latter no fatal results have been reported, except in cases where the animal has been allowed to take cold while suffering from the disease, in which case it is difficult to control. In the vicinity of Moorestown a great many cases are reported, although none of them have as yet exhibited alarming symptoms.

"Best of the Season."

The excursion that will undoubtedly be the greatest source of enjoyment to young and old, of any given during the season, is that of the Congregationalists to the Iron Pier on Thursday, August 5th. Special arrangements have been made so that the transfer from cars to boat will be at the Jersey City terminus, thereby doing away with the unpleasant features that have always attended a change made at Elizabethport. The train will leave Plainfield at 8.05 a. m., arriving at Coney Island at 10:20. Returning, leave the Pier at 5:40 p. m., reaching this city again at 8 o'clock. Tickets $1.00 each; children under twelve years old, 75cts; children under six years of age, free; for sale at the drug stores and by the officers of the Sunday School. If the day designated should prove stormy, due notice of postponement will be given.

Personalia.

Mr. Charles Hyde and family are summering at the Profile House, White Mountains.

Messrs. P. B. Matthews and F. W. Runyon, are naturally jubilant over the victory of Cornell's crew at the late regatta.

Mr. H. W. Abbott, former proprietor of the Spring Lake House, is running a hotel for parties near Toms River, for the season.

We sincerely sympathize with the family of Mr. Horace F. J. Drake, one of the editors and proprietors of the Elizabeth Herald, in an affliction which befell their eldest son, Horace, on Friday last. The lad, who is aged about twelve years, was riding on a train of cars on the Pennsylvania road near the North Elizabeth depot, and fell from the train in some unaccountable manner, the wheels passing over and mashing one of his feet. The injured member was amputated above the ankle next day, and the young lad is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

We are sorry to learn of the illness of friend Alex. Dunham. May the sickness prove to be neither serious nor long continued.

The Webb Bros., so prominently identified with many of our city's clubs and associations, and so strongly united by bonds of friendship with the "boys," have been enjoying themselves at Greenwood Lake for the past few days. They report lots of pure air, plenty of amusement and thousands of fish.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Sherwin sincerely sympathize with them in their affliction. The loss of their little one is another illustration of the Almighty's power—that giveth and taketh away.

Mr. Charles Mathews of North Plainfield was elected, about two weeks ago, as President of the "Atlantic Coast Mining Company," a corporation whose object is the mining of metal ore in Union and surrounding counties.

Our friend Charley Schermerhorn has never been well since the monotonous job he undertook in reporting the 36 rounds of the cat fight at Chicago. His physician recommending sea air, he has been "disporting" himself at Manhattan Beach, lately.

A copy of the London Standard received in our mail of Wednesday, is sufficient proof that ex-Judge Good has not yet forgotten his friends, among the attractive scenes of the old world.

Messrs. Erwin Young and J. Harvey Doane, leave for Wilmington and a short trip through the "solid south," in a few weeks.

Mr. P. Knowland and family are enjoying themselves at Grand Rapids, Michigan. Fred intends to catch a "very large" fish before he returns home. So he says.

We are glad to see Plainfield's popular baker, Alex. Warnock, once more about, after an illness of some days from erysipelas.

Cleopatra's Needle Arrives.

The long-expected obelisk arrived in New York bay on Tuesday morning, and the World is proud of the successful termination of the undertaking it had done so much to further. America, also, feels justly elated that our British cousins should have been mistaken in their belief that the "Yankee officer would never get the stone to its destination." Mr. John Dixon of London, who transported to the Thames Embankment of that city the mate of the obelisk just arrived, was impelled by fear of the same risks as were experienced in the first case, to decline the superintendence of the late transportation, and Lieut. Commander H. H. Gorringe U. S. N., accomplished the feat and overcame all difficulties of stowage in a manner original, simple and effective. At the regular meeting of the Department of Parks on May 5, a communication was presented, asking that a site for the erection of the obelisk be set apart on the natural knoll which lies in front of and to the southwest of the present building of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, on the West side of the main carriage-way and a little to the north of the Greywacke arch. The Board unanimously approved the site so selected and the desired permission was duly recorded.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Attention is directed to the advertisement of Sawyer & Tappen, proprietors of the Woodbridge Beach Hotel, which is to be found in another column. Those who love the rare sport of catching weak fish, should visit this place. The Hotel is situated on the bluff overhanging the river, and for a small sum a boat, bait and lines may be secured, while a row of less than five minutes brings you on the fishing grounds. The catch has been remarkably large there this season, and is likely to continue for some time. Those who love crabbing can have their fill of it within a hundred yards of the house. The bathing is excellent, the beach being a white sandy bottom. Commodious bathing houses, provided with good suits, are situated on the grounds. In short this fast becoming popular resort is one of the finest places for fishing, crabbing and bathing to be found in New Jersey.

Woodcock are numerous. It is believed that the new law prohibiting the shooting of these birds to Sept. 1st, is being generally observed in this section.

Black Bass fishing is very good in the Raritan this season. Some fine catches have been made.

The large "snapper" caught and bridled by "Al" in a pond near this city the other day, and which afterward released himself from his bonds and hied away to his native element again, is still at large, despite the efforts made to recapture him by the two "Al's."

FIRE MATTERS.

The Morristown Common Council have suspended from duty, Theo. Mulford, Foreman, and Henry Wulfers, Assistant Foreman of Washington Engine Co., for turning back their Company and apparatus from a fire which was out of the city limits. The rain pouring down in torrents and the roads very heavy, making it impossible to drag the machine, was the excuse rendered. Similar action is to be taken in the case of Niagara steamer. The Banner says, "the trouble seems to be that the steamers returned to their houses without authority. Had they waited in the pelting storm for orders to return or go to the fire, none of this row would have been raised."

"Warren's" engine started out on Monday evening to try the hydrant at the depot, but the man in charge stated he couldn't spare the water and the Company were compelled to wash in the brook at Grove street. Everything worked satisfactorily, as it always does when their engine is started.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRACTHINGS.

Mr. T. G. Talmage, son of Col. D. M. Talmage, and a practicing physician and experienced pharmacist, will open a first-class drug store in this place about August 1st. The benefit to Scotch Plains and its vicinity, that this will be, cannot be overestimated; as, in consequence, the journeys to Plainfield that are now necessary, will be needless.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The breaking of a pole strap and the consequent running of the wagon on to the heels of the horses, caused the team driven by Mr. Otis G. Webb to run away, last Sunday. The occupants of the vehicle, consisting of the gentleman driving, his brother Arthur and a friend, sprang out and escaped serious damage; Arthur Webb being the only sufferer, and that merely to the extent of torn clothing which resulted from his courageous attempt to hold the frightened team. The wagon was totally wrecked.

A party of sixteen who will get out of bed to go a crabbing at four o'clock in the morning, deserve better luck than was secured by the "boys" whom Mr. Chas. Lyons and his truck took to Boynton Beach last Tuesday. On the way over a stop was made at Rahway for a "Keg of bait," and the party arrived in due season at the Beach for breakfast. Not having much faith in the honesty of the inhabitants of Woodbridge, Captain Joe and his first mate, Johnny, staid ashore to watch the little brown jug and other property, while the rest crabbed around in the rain. The luck being poor, fishing was tried; at which all took a turn with but poor success, although Gray caught a four pound kitten-fish and Captain Joe gracefully captured a Staten Island Salmon. It was then decided to take a trip to Tottenville; and the gallant Captain piped all hands on deck, and started. Whether the rain had soaked through or not is unknown, but the officer was so wet inside that he saw double and instead of steering for his destination over the bay, he endeavored to take a short cut across a corn-field. Not being a mud-scow the yacht came to an anchor between the hills, and rather than stay there until it was too late to vote for Hancock, ex-Sheriff B. jumped overboard with a rope around his neck and started to tow the boat and its load, and the crew and their loads, to Staten Island. About this time it was remembered that no one was watching the little brown jug, and the entire passenger list went ashore with fear in their hearts that it was stolen. However it was found where it had been left; but, sad to relate the Captain and his mate had watched it so closely, and it had become so light, that it was thought necessary to place a stone on it to hold it down. Having sufficient experience in yacht sailing by this time, the return to Rahway followed, where "Bert" filled the hearts of all with thanks and their stomachs with refreshments. After more sailing, (but in the big schooner) Charley's fast trotters brought the party back to Jack's, wet and happy.

Various Causes—Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous. For sale by all dealers.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 28th, 1879.

For over 20 years I have been severely afflicted with Hay Fever, and have tried many remedies without relief. One week after the first attack this year, while suffering intensely, I was induced, through Mr. Thompson's testimonial, to try, as a last resort, Ely's Cream Balm. The immediate effect was marvelous. I have been enabled to perform my pastoral duties without the slightest inconvenience. During that time I have been exposed to heat, dust and [illegible], and have escaped a return attack. I believe had I discontinued a few weeks earlier, I would not have been troubled at all. I pronounce Ely's Cream Balm an honest remedy, a cure for Hay Fever and recommend it to all who suffer from this distressing complaint.

HOW IT STRIKES 'EM.

If you want to know a man for what he is take him in a hot day. Most everybody has a way of standing cold weather, but when the sun jumps the mercury above eighty-five degrees human nature becomes reckless. A citizen who waited in the shade of the Post Office for a quarter of an hour yesterday had plenty of proofs of this. The first who approached was a solid business man, his hat on one side and his coat half off. The other day he was crazy on the subject of politics, but yesterday when asked how he liked the nominations, he belched out:

"What in Texas have I got to do with politics? There's too much politics in this country—too blasted much! I wonder what in blazes such weather as this was sent to us for!"

The next man is generally looked upon as a meek and humble-minded citizen. He has been known to buy a dog rather than see it killed, and he refuses to fish because he believes the hook hurts 'em. He came along mopping his brow and trying to get away from a sticky undershirt, and was pleasantly asked if the weather suited him.

"See here, sir!" he began, as he bristled up like a fighting dog, "I mind my own business and desire other people to mind theirs! I never did strike a man yet, but I want no impudence from you or any one else!"

The next man was a lawyer. He was asked if he could manage to keep cool, and he turned into the shade, pulled out his handkerchief, and replied:

"Attorney Black insulted me in open court about a month ago, and though I did think I wouldn't pay any attention to it, yet this hot wave has convinced me that it is my duty to slap his mouth on sight! Have you seen him pass here?"

The next man has a local reputation as a jolly, good-hearted fellow, and men have known him for years without hearing him speak a cross word. He toiled along in the hot sun with the perspiration running down his cheeks, and as he reached the shade he was accosted by a bootblack. He took off his hat, wiped his face and then said:

"I believe you are the boy who cut my horse's tail off, one night last week, and if you don't go away from me I'll do you a mortal injury!"

There were several other instances going to show that while cold brings out the cheery in man's nature, heat parboils his sentiment and hardens his better feelings. In cold weather men will hunt for a friend to drink with them. In Summer they will sneak off alone and go into a saloon by the alley door. Not one man in a hundred will refuse to sign a petition in the winter, but when approached in the red-hot season they won't even listen to two of the twenty-four reasons why they should sign. This mysterious change must have been forcibly felt by a leading citizen, who the other day wrote a postal card saying:

"In May I subscribed $25 to help build a new church. If you come now I will pay it. If you wait till after the hot weather sets in I'll repudiate the subscription and give you a chance to lick the subscriber."

ADVICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Never write with pen or ink. It is altogether too plain, and doesn't hold the mind of the editor and printers closely enough to their work.

If you are compelled to use ink, never use that vulgarity known as the blotting pad. If you drop a blot of ink on the paper, lick it off. The intelligent compositor loves nothing so dearly as to read through the smear this will make across twenty or thirty words. We have seen him hang over such a piece of copy half an hour, all the time swearing like a pirate, he felt that good.

Don't punctuate. We prefer to punctuate all manuscript sent to us. And don't use capitals. Then we can punctuate and capitalize to suit ourself, and your article, when you see it in print, will astonish, even if it does not please, you.

Don't try too write too plainly. It is a sign of plebian origin and public school breeding. Poor writing is an indication of genius. It's about the only indication of genius that a great many men possess. Scrawl your article with your eyes shut and make every word as illegible as you can. We get the same price for it from the rag man as though it were covered with copper-plate sentences.

Avoid all painstaking with proper names. We know the full name of every man woman and child in the United States, and the merest hint at the name is sufficient. For instance, if you write a character something like a drunken figure "8," and then draw a wavy line, and the letter M and another waving line, we will know at once that you mean Samuel Morrison, even though you may think you mean "Lemuel Messenger." It is a great mistake that proper names should be written plainly.

Always write on both sides of the paper, and when you have filled both sides of every page, trail a line up and down every margin, and back to the top of the first page, closing your article by writing your signature just above the date. And how we would like to get hold of the man who sends them. Just for ten minutes. Alone, in the woods, with a cannon in our hip pocket. Revenge is sweet; yum, yum; yum.

Lay your paper on the ground when you write; the rougher the ground the better.

Coarse brown wrapping-paper is the best for writing your articles on. If you can tear down an old circus poster and write on the pasty side of it with a pen stick, it will do still better.

When your article is completed, crumple your paper in your pocket, and carry it two or three days before sending in. This rubs off the superfluous pencil marks, and makes it lighter to handle.

If you can think of it lose one page out of the middle of your article. We can easily supply what is missing, and we love to do it. We have nothing else to do!—Burlington Hawkeye.

PEARLS.

Men say they can leave off this habit or that any time they bring to bear the pressure of their will against it; but would it not be better to apply that force against the formation of bad habits.

The happiness of your life depends upon the quality of your thoughts; therefore guard accordingly, and take care that you entertain no notions unsuitable to virtue and unreasonable to culture.

The volumes of antiquity, like medals, may very well serve to amuse the curious; but the works of moderns, like the current coin of a kingdom are much better for immediate use.

The Enormous Pension Claims.

July first was the last day on which claims for arrears of pensions could be filed, and the Pension Office was kept open until midnight to receive late applicants. There have been filed since the passage of the act, June 25, 1879, more than 180,000 original invalid and widows' claims. Of these 49,311 were filed last month. The number of unsettled claims now pending in the Pension Office is upward of 300,000, representing claims aggregating not less than $300,000,000 for the first payment. The average amount of arrears paid to each claimant is $1,000. The number of claims which the office is enabled to dispose of with its present force and under the present system is about 2,500, of which about 1,800 are passed upon favorably; the remaining 700 being rejected, and in most cases presented again, and have to be re-examined in many instances several times over. These are often allowed after being thus rejected. It is estimated that if no more claims, of any kind were to be received, it would require from twelve to fifteen years to dispose of the work now in hand, under the present system of operations, and without a vast increase of force.

It will be remembered that Secretary Sherman stated, immediately after the passage of the arrears act, that the measure would cost the Government at least $150,000,000. The amount actually paid out for arrears up to this time is $32,000,000 involved in pending cases, and making a liberal allowance for rejections, will, it is estimated, make the aggregate amount of arrears when all shall have been cleared up more than $100,000,000 in excess of Secretary Sherman's estimate.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A DENIAL!
SIMPSON & CO.,

(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE off SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is UNTRUE; or is slander further, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient to allow of any being cut, independent of filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from

Pure Spring Water.

They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defense.

SIMPSON & CO.

The subscriber having purchased the milk route of Mr. L. White, is now supplying the route with milk from the

A CARD.

Being compelled by the increase of business to have an assistant, I have taken in my employ Mr. A. J. Mills, a mechanical specialist, his first operator for five years being the celebrated Norman W. Kingsly, M. D. S. D. D. S. of New York city, and for six years with Dr. Kingsly of Elizabeth, I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent mechanical operator in every particular. I will therefore take this method of proving to those that wish to take advantage of the lowest cost price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, viz: for 3 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole sets of teeth on celluloid for $10, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect. We would strive to do only first-class work, and hope by so doing at the end of 3 months to secure favor and patronage by perfection in operations, rather than by cheap competition.

WORKING FOR A HOME.

BY JESSAMINE.

It was the evening after Richard Herman's funeral, and his four children sat alone in the little house among the Pennsylvania hills. It was yet in the early Spring, and a bright fire glowed and crackled upon the hearth, and cast a fitful light over the four sorrowful faces gathered around.

A year before the mother, always frail and delicate, had been carried to her last resting place, and since then misfortune seemed to have followed the family; the crops failed—the little rocky farm yielded but sparsely at best—then Mr. Herman had been taken down with a lingering fever, from which he never recovered, and to-day they had laid him away in the churchyard by the side of the wife of his youth, and the four children were alone in the world. During the long illness of the father sums of money had been borrowed from time to time, to meet the necessities of the family, until quite a large sum had been accumulated, and at last Mr. Herman was forced to give a mortgage on the little home. When he knew he had but a few hours to live he called his oldest son, Robert—a boy of eighteen—to his bedside and informed him of the condition of their affairs, and told him that he had better let 'Squire Thorn, the man who owned the mortgage, take the place, and take his sisters and younger brother to some relatives of his mother in the East, and committing the younger children to his care and all the guidance of their Heavenly Father, Mr. Herman breathed his last. As we have said, Robert, the eldest, was a fine, manly boy of eighteen. Margie was two years younger, and both were strong and robust. The two youngest were Kate and Fred, aged nine and six. The lonely children sat in silence around the fire, each busy with thoughts of the past and misgivings of the future. It was Margie who broke the silence at last.

"Well, Rob," she said, "what are we going to do?"

"I suppose we had better do as father told us," her brother answered after a moment's thought. "I can take you and the children to mother's friend's in the East. As for me," he added proudly, "I can take care of myself."

"But I don't wan't to go there, Rob," said Margie quickly. "They never seemed to care much for mother, and I don't believe they would make us welcome; besides," she added with a quiver in her voice, "we should all be separated, and I can't bear the thought of it."

The boy arose hastily and walked to the window to conceal the hot tears that filled his eyes, for great, strong boy that he was, his heart was tender and gentle; he loved his sisters dearly, and the thought of being separated from them was very bitter to him.

"If we only had the farm clear," he said when he came back to his seat by the fire, "we might manage to live and keep together, but that dreadful mortgage!"

"I have been thinking of that too," said Margie, "and I thought perhaps we might pay that off and keep the place, if 'Squire Thorn will give us time enough."

"It is a large sum for us," said her brother, "and the 'Squire is a hard man."

"I know it," said Margie, "but we can ask him any way, and how we would work to keep the home for Kate and Fred!"

Rob thought a few moments and then sprang to his feet in boyish enthusiasm.

"We'll do it Margie!" he cried, "If the 'Squire will give us five years we'll pay off the mortgage and keep the place. We'll work it off, Margie, you and I!"

"Me to," cried six-year old Freddie, who always wanted to be included in every plan.

"Yes, you too, dear," said Margie, catching him in her arms. "You could pick berries to sell, couldn't you?" And so it was settled that night that the old home was to be kept.

The next day 'Squire Thorn, a portly bachelor of forty, climbed the hill and was received by Rob and Margie, who waited in silence while he told them in pompus tones the state of their affairs. Mr. Thorn meant to be very generous to the orphan children; he would take the place and pay them one thousand dollars besides, which was really more than the place was worth, he added, and advised the three younger children to go to their mother's friends. As for Rob, he would give him a place in his office.

"But we don't want to give up the place," said Rob. "We want to pay off the mortgage."

The 'Squire looked at the boy as if he had doubts of his sanity. "And how do you expect to do this?" he asked.

"By working for it," was Rob's answer. "If you will give us five years to do it in I think we can manage it."

"Do you approve of this wild scheme of your brother's?" said the 'Squire, turning suddenly to Margie.

"It is as much mine as his," she answered simply. "We do not want to be separated, and we shall have to be if we give up the place." The 'Squire sat a few moments in silence.

"I will give you the time you ask," he said at length, "but you would have done much better to have taken my offer."

They did not think so, however, and after a little more conversation the arrangements were completed and the 'Squire bade the young people good morning, mentally admiring the plucky, resolute boy, and resolving to see more of bright-eyed gentle Margie.

With the opening of Spring, Rob and Margie began the campaign in earnest. Rob plowed and planted the rocky fields, and watched the young grain with eager eyes. Margie helped him when he needed her assistance; at other times she found work in the village. Kate minded the house when her sister was away, and when berries were ripe, found time to gather many a basketful for the ladies in the village, always begging that her earnings might be laid away with the common fund. Fred was voted good for nothing but to go to school. The first two years everything prospered for the resolute young people. The little rocky fields yielded as they never did before, and Rob found time to earn many a dollar among the neighboring farmers. There were happy hearts in the little cottage when at the close of the second year quite a large sum had been laid up toward paying off the mortgage. But with the third year came misfortune. The season was very dry and the crops were light. To add to their troubles, Rob slipped from a load of hay and sprained his ankle severely. He thought he would be well in a few weeks, and Margie and the children finished the Fall work as best they could. But the Winter dragged slowly by and Rob did not get well. The Spring came and the fields were ready for the plow but Rob could only hobble to the window, where he sat many an hour groaning over his own helplessness. Resolute Margie harnessed the staid old horses and went into the fields herself. The neighbors came now and then and plowed and planted the little place, but it was almost mid-Summer before Rob was quite well again. In the meantime 'Squire Thorn had called several times at the little house among the hills; sometimes came up of an evening and sat an hour or two chatting with Rob, turning now and then to address a remark to Margie. It was near the end of the third year that he rapped at the door one pleasant afternoon. Margie was alone and received him with her usual pleasant smile.

"I will call my brother," she said, when the 'Squire was comfortably seated.

"Sit down, Miss Margie," said he blandly, "I did not come to see Robert, to-day, but yourself."

Wonderingly Margie sat down, but she was still more astonished when he made her a proposal of marriage.

"You are wearing yourself out here," he added. "If you accept my offer you will have a good home. I shall give your brother a good start, and Fred and Kate shall be well provided for."

"I did not expect this," said Margie in confusion. "I cannot answer you now. You must give me time to think."

"Certainly my dear young lady, all the time you wish; but if you are a sensible girl, as I believe you are, you cannot help seeing the advantage in the position I have offered you."

He went away soon after, and Margie went about the house all that afternoon in a preoccupied manner. 'Squire Thorn was old enough to be her father, but he was an honorable man, and could give her a comfortable home and Rob's and the children's future would be provided for. Her brother noticed that something had happened, when he came in at night, but he said nothing, knowing that whatever it was she would confide it to him. When the work was done for the night and the younger children asleep, Maggie came and sat by her brother.

"Well, Margie what is it?" he said, looking inquiringly.

"Squire Thorn was here to-day," she said, quietly.

"Did he want to see me? What did he come for?" asked Rob.

"He did not ask for you," said his sister, smiling. "He came to ask me to marry him."

Rob gave vent to his surprise in a prolonged whistle and then sat a few moments in silence.

"Well," he said at last, "I never thought of that. Do you want to marry him, Maggie? Do you love him?"

"He is a good man," said Margie, turning away her head, "and it would be so much better for you and the children."

"Margie, little sister," said Rob earnestly, "you have always been frank with me before. Turn your face this way and tell me whether you really love this man?" The honest eyes dropped before his earnest gaze.

"No," she said faintly, "I do not love him, but—" "That is enough," said her brother, quickly. "You shall never sell yourself for the rest of us, Margie. Tell 'Squire Thorn he has no mortgage on you if he has on the farm; we can work on together, and we will be true to ourselves and each other, Margie." So when 'Squire Thorn came a week later he had the answer—a gentle but firm refusal. His brow darkened as he listened.

"You cannot mean it," he exclaimed. "Listen to me, Margie Herman. The day you promise to be my wife the mortgage shall be placed in your hands to do as you like with. I will provide for you all."

"I have thought of it all," she answered gently, "but although I respect and like you as a friend, I do not love you, and I can not give my hand when my heart can not follow it."

"Nonsense!" he exclaimed. "Do you know that you, a poor country girl, are refusing an offer that many a woman would be glad to accept, and all because of a foolish sentiment?"

But all he said only made Margie more decided. And at last, angry and disappointed, the 'Squire arose to go.

"You will repeat this," he said bitterly. "Unless the mortgage is paid off on the very day it falls due, you need look for no mercy from me!"

Only too well Margie knew the result of what she had done, and many bitter tears were shed when left alone in the cottage. After this the days went on as usual, only the 'Squire came no more to the little house among the hills, and Margie grew thin and nervous over the fast approaching day when the mortgage would be due.

Time passed on until only six months remained before the dreaded day would be upon them, and still quite a sum remained unprovided for. The little place was poor enough, but it was their home. Here their father and mother had died, and besides, they knew that giving up the place meant separation for them. Even hopeful Rob had given up now that it must go, and there were sad hearts in the cottage in those days when even merry little Fred forgot to laugh as usual.

One day in the early Spring some strangers came to the sleepy little town, and from there went wandering off among the hills, asking many questions but saying nothing of their own affairs. They went across the Herman place, looking carelessly about them, talking a while with Rob, asked a few questions and learned that he expected to give up the place soon. They went away but came back next day, and to Rob's astonishment offered to buy the place, and named a price so far beyond Rob's expectations, that he began to open his eyes. He took a day to think and talk it over with Margie. He looked around a little and thought he began to see why the men wanted the place. So when they came again he was ready for them. They advanced on their former offer, but Rob was wary, and was in no hurry to sell, and added that the place might be more valuable than it was supposed to be. At last the truth came out. The strangers confessed that they had discovered indications of oil on the place, and subsequent developments revealed the fact that a part of the farm was rich in that fluid. A part was sold and Rob and Margie found themselves quite well off. The mortgage was paid, a new house took the place of the little brown cottage and prosperity reigned in the home of our friends. 'Squire Thorn received his money in silent disappointment for he had never given up the idea that Margie would yet become his wife. But now with this wider field before her, he knew that she never would.

A few years pass by and we shall take a parting look at our old friends. Margie is standing at the gate that opens into the beautiful grounds that surround the pretty house. The last beam of the setting sun-glimmer on her dark hair, and her face is full of happiness and peace. She is waiting for Rob, and presently he comes up the lane whistling as of old, a tall bearded man now, and looking a little like the boy we first knew. They are no less dear to each other in their prosperous days than in the days of their adversity, and his face lights up as he sees her standing there. She places her hand on his shoulder, and looking into his eyes as she did once before, she tells him of one who has that day called and asked her the same question that Rob once before helped her to decide. No need to ask her this time if she loves the man who has asked for her hand. Her face tells him that she does, and all he has to say is to wish her ever happiness.

"But you will be lonely when I'm gone," she says. And Rob blushes and says, "of course he shall miss her very much," but adds that the house will not be long without a mistress, as golden-haired Lucy, the minister's daughter, has promised to take him for better or worse. The sun is low down in the West now, and here we will leave them to enjoy the fruits of industry and perseverance.—Practical Farmer.

A MEAN JOKE.

Probably the meanest trick that was ever played on a white man was played last week in this city, and the fact that there is no Vigilance Committee here is the only reason the perpetrators of the trick are alive.

A business man had purchased a new stiff hat and he went into a saloon with half a dozen friends to fit the hat on his head. They all took beer, and passed the hat around so all could see it. One of the meanest men that ever held a county office went to the bartender and had a thin slice of limburger cheese cut off, and when the party were looking at the frescoed ceiling through beer glasses, this wicked person slipped the cheese under the sweat leather of the hat, and the man put it on and walked out.

The man who owned the hat is one of your nervous people, who is always complaining of being sick, and who feels as though some dreadful disease was going to take possession of him and carry him off. He went back to his place of business, took off his hat and laid it on the table, and proceeded to answer some letters. He though he detected a small, and when his partner asked him if he didn't feel sick he said he believed he did. A clerk said it was evident that somebody's feet needed washing. The man turned pale, and said he guessed he would go home.

He met a man on the sidewalk who said the air was full of miasma, and in the street car a man who sat next to him moved away to the end of the car, and asked him if he had just came from Chicago. The man with the hat said he was not, when the stranger said they were having a great deal of small pox there, and he guessed he would get out and walk, and he pulled the bell, and jumped off.

The cold perspiration broke out on the forehead of the man with the new hat, and he took it off to wipe his forehead, when the whole piece of cheese seemed to roll over and breathe, and the man got the whole benefit of it, and he came near fainting away. He got home, and his wife met him and asked him what was the matter. He said he believed mortification had set in, and she took one whiff as he took off his hat, and she said she should think it had.

"Where did you get into it?" said she.

"Get into it?" said the man; "I have not got into anything, but some deadly disease has got hold of me, and I shall not live."

She told him if any disease that smelled like that had got hold of him, and was to be chronic, she felt as though he would be a burden to himself if he lived very long. She got his clothes off, soaked his feet in mustard water, and he slept. The hat was lying on the centre table, and the children would come in and get a smell of it and look at each other with reproachful glances, and go out and play.

The man slept and dreamed that the small pox flag was hung in front of his house, and that he was riding in a butcher wagon to the pest house. The woman sent for a doctor, and when the man of pills arrived she told him all about the case. The doctor picked up the patient's new hat, tried it on, and got a snuff. He said the hat was picked before it was ripe. The doctor and his wife had a post-mortem examination of the hat and found the slice of limburger. "Few and short were the prayers they said." They woke the patient, and to prepare his mind for the revelation that was about to be made, the doctor asked him if his worldly affairs were in a satisfactory condition. He gasped and said they were. The doctor asked him if he had made his will. He said that he had not, but that he wanted a lawyer sent for at once. The doctor asked him if he felt as though he was prepared to shuffle off.

The man said he had always tried to lead a different life, and had tried to be done by the same as he would do it himself, but that he might have made a mistake some way, and that he would like to have a minister sent for to take an account of stock.

Then the doctor brought to the bedside the hat, opened up the sweat leather and showed the dying man what it was that smelled so, and told him he was as well as any man in the city. The patient punched himself to see if he was alive, and then jumped out of bed and called for his revolver, and the doctor couldn't keep up with him on the way down town. The last we saw of the odorous citizen he was trying to bribe the bartender to tell him which one of those pelicans it was that put that slice of cheese in his hat-lining.—Little Rock Gazette.

A JEWEL OF A WIFE.

A lady writer contributes this wise article to a Western paper:

Make a home at home, and make it one in every sense of the word. My husband is a great smoker; he loves to play cards, dominoes and chess; he is at perfect liberty to smoke in any room in the house, and I am always ready and willing to join him in all his games.

I endeavor in every way not only to be a helpmate but a companion to him, and the result has been that I have and enjoy his society; he enjoys spending his evenings at home with me rather than seek other society.

I cannot understand why women will run the risk of loosing their husband's company and love merely for an over-fastidious taste. If they do not like tobacco did they object to his using it in the days of courtship? And if they did object then and failed, why did they marry? If men will not give up such habits at the solicitation of their sweethearts, it is not likely they will be persuaded out of them by their wives.

Therefore I think it unwise for a woman to risk her happiness by quarreling with her husband over a pardonable fault, the existence and extent of which she knew and perfectly understood before she took upon herself the duties and importance of a wife.

Jennie's mother attempted to dissuade her from marrying a soldier of the line with whom she was desperately in love. "A war may come and a cannon-ball may take off his head," she tells her. "Ah, well! a widow at sixteen!" exclaimed the daughter. "What is more poetic?"

LITTLE BY LITTLE.

If you are gaining little by little every day, be contented. Are your expenses less than your income, so that, though it be a little, you are yet constantly accumulating and growing richer every day? Be content; so far as concerns money, you are doing well.

Are you gaining knowledge every day? Though it be little, the aggregate accumulation, where no day is permitted to pass without adding something to the stock, will be surprising to yourself.

Solomon did not become the wisest man in the world in a minute. Little by little—never omitting to learn something even for a single day—always studying a little between the time of rising in the morning and lying down at night; this is the way to accumulate a full store-house of knowledge. Finally, you are daily improving in character. Be not discouraged because it is little by little. The best men fall short of what they themselves would wish to be. It is something, it is much, if you keep good resolutions better to-day than you did yesterday, better this year than you did last year. Strive to be perfect, but do not become discouraged so long as you are approaching nearer and nearer to the high standard at which you aim.

THE POWER OF SILENCE.

There is a mighty power of silence, and silence is frequently an evidence of great power.

There are many men so weak that they cannot hold their tongues, or keep their mouths shut. The man who offends not in words is a perfect man, able to bridle the whole body.

He who can control his tongue can control his whole nature. Hence, silence is a token of power, of reserved force. He who knows how to keep silence knows how to speak, and often his silence is yet more impressive than his speech. "Brilliant flashes of silence" is by no means a senseless expression.

How often have we seen the babble of the foolish hushed by the glance of an earnest soul; how often the ribald jest or the scurrilous word died upon the lips when an indignant silence was the only reply it could invoke. That man or that woman who can stand silent amid reproaches and accusations, and sneers and scoffs, shows a degree of strength and power that falls not to the lot of every one.

We have the highest examples for our imitation in this respect. There was One who was set forth as a pattern for humanity, "who was led as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb so he opened not His mouth."

Amid the babble and scoffing, the perjury of lying witnesses and the jeers of the mocking soldiers, the silent sufferer wore his crown of thorns and bore his bitter cross, and triumphed over all the malice of his foes.

WHY ARE THERE ANY UNMARRIED WOMEN?

One of the gratest social problems of the day is to explain why there are so many marriageable women who never get married. Some say that is owing to an excess in numbers of women over men in consequence of which there are not husbands enough to round. This, however is disproved by statistics. Take the world through, and the figures show that there are as many men as there are women. Others attribute it to the expensiveness of modern life. Men do not marry because it is said they cannot afford to. But the fact is, that no man who truly loved a woman ever hesitated to become engaged to her and eventually marry her because of poverty. There are cold blooded men, with no idea of any feeling of women stronger than languid admiration, who may be deterred from assuming what they regard as a burden in the shape of a wife, unless assured of a liberal income, but most are not so calculating. Others, again attribute the evil to women's fastidiousness. They expect too much in a husband, and, while waiting for an impossible substance slip through their fingers. This is a libel on the sex. As a rule they are more fastidious than men are, and are just as susceptible as men to that enchantment of love which invests its object with every perfection and covers up every fault. So far as men and women are concerned, they are as prone to marriage now as in any period of the world's history. Nevertheless, there are the women waiting for husbands and not getting them. They are pretty, they are accomplished, they are sensible, and under proper training, they would make excellent wives and mothers, but they never get a chance. What seems to be needed is a more thorough method of bringing men and women into social contact with each other.

HANCOCK.

The ground work of General Hancock's great popularity with the American people of all classes, clearly portrays their soundness of judgment.

They honor him as a military chieftain who valiantly and successfully defended the Union in battle, and they repose unlimited confidence in his ability and patriotism to faithfully discharge the peace duties of Chief Magistrate.

They find his life long record, public and private, untarnished, and entirely free from the practices of corrupt politicians and wily demagogues, and, therefore, they have just reason to believe that his future will be for the glory of country and welfare of all the people.

They remember with commendable pride the fact, that when the war was over and the old flag triumphant, he at once bowed to the supremacy of civil law, and they have, furthermore, approvingly perused the statesman-like documents which at that time emanated from his pen.

They applaud him as a soldier.

They esteem him as a citizen.

They trust him as a statesman.

For President,
WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.

ALL FOR HANCOCK.

The reasons why every patriotic citizen should vote for General Hancock are forcibly and truthfully stated by the three prominent Republicans hereinafter named. Nothing can be added to such positive testimony.

Hear what Leonard W. Jerome, a life-long Republican of the city of New York, and heretofore a heavy contributor to the finances of that party, has to say?:

"As to my support of General Hancock, I see fresh evidence daily of the propriety of my course. I have no fears whatever of the preponderance of "Southern influence," so loudly bewailed by the Republican papers in case of his election. His Administration will open an era of concord and good feeling North and South. The ragged ends of the great civil war will be swept away and buried in oblivion. He will draw around him a class of statesmen freed from the sickening and tiresome cry of sectional warfare and all its bloody-shirt remembrances. We shall have an Administration like Washington's, intent solely upon the grandeur and glory of the great republic, knowing no North, no South, no East, no West. That, I think, is a thing to be desired by all good men."

An Administration intent solely upon the grandeur and glory of the Republic will follow the election of Hancock and English.

Then again, Colonel Forney, long the big gun of Republicanism in Philadelphia, addressing some of his co-partisans, spoke thus:—

"You will not trust Hancock with the Presidency of the United States because he is a Democrat; and yet but for him and such as him the whole Nation would have perished. Besides, dear friends, we must be careful about this crusade on the Democrats. The true statesmen regard them as an important factor in our population, and when we attempt to make Democracy a sin we not only forget that Democrats fought in the war for the Union with signal courage, but that without the aid of the Democrats, the Republicans would to-day be shriveled into the dry dimensions of the skeleton of Know Nothingism."

"Shriveled into the skeleton of Know Nothingism" is a well painted word picture.

Next comes General Pearson, a leader of political Republicanism in Western Pennsylvania, who openly declares:—

"I have reluctantly come to the conclusion that the influence of the great historic party is ended and ought to end, that those who pretend to keep up its organization are doing so for office and gain, and that its encouragement of sectional hate is a constant menace to the Union. No permanent issues worthy of being called National issues divide the two parties. Free trade and protection are alike the accident of localities, and hence we find free-trade Republicans in the West and East with protective Democrats in the Middle States. The entire issue that divides the two parties is the issue of hate and usurpation on the side of the Republican party with military dictation at the polls. Against this dangerous policy the Democratic party has arrayed itself and chosen as its standard bearer the gallant General Winfield Scott Hancock, who has placed himself squarely on that issue by proclaiming that the right of trial by jury, the habeas corpus, the liberty of the press, the freedom of speech, the natural rights of persons and the rights of property must be preserved. In choosing between these two parties I cannot see how a patriot can blunder. Surely every soldier who has fought with Hancock to conquer peace will vote with him and for him to make that peace effectual and permanent."

Evidence of a similar character is spontaneously arising over the whole country, and it proves how eminently proper was the nomination of

WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK,
The Peoples' Choice.

A QUESTION.

Mr. Arthur, in his letter of acceptance, made use of this language—"Surely no man should be the incumbent of an office the duties of which he is for any cause unfit to perform, who is lacking in the ability, fidelity or integrity which a proper administration of such office demands."

Mr. Hayes removed the Republican candidate for Vice President from the Collectorship of the Port of New York for reasons above stated.

If then unfit to manage a Custom House, is Mr. Arthur now worthy to preside over the Senate of the United States?

A very large number of Republicans in the city of New York, and who are qualified to judge, think not

DE GOLYER.

General Garfield's connection with Credit Mobilier, an affair that killed Schuyler Colfax politically, was muddy enough, but that five thousand dollar De Golyer wooden pavement fee covers him with an indelible stain.

It won't rub off.

Partisan white-wash cannot hide it.

It is a proven fact.

As chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the United States House of Congress, he sold his official influence and pocketed the corrupt consideration.

A more heinous offense could not be committed by a trusted representative of the people.

And honest citizens are now asked to vote for that identical man as the Republican candidate for President.

A large majority of them say No!

VOTE AS YOU PLEASE.

The following circular has been distributed among the employees along the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad by the company: "The special attention of the officers and employees is called to the following preamble and resolution adopted by the Board of Directors:

"Whereas, It has been the avowed policy of this company since its organization to keep aloof from all political contests, and to discountenance any active participation of its officers and employees therein;

"Resolved, That, while disclaiming any desire to interfere with the individual rights of our officers, agents, or employees in the exercise of the right of suffrage, we will regard any attempt on their part to control the votes of those in the service of this company, or to pervert their influence to the support of any political party, as a direct violation of the standing rules and regulations, and inconsistent with the interests of the company.

"G. B. ROBERTS, President."

UNITED.

The Tammany Hall Democracy have thus declared—"The wise and patriotic action of the Democratic National Convention, recently assembled at Cincinnati, in placing before the people of the Union as candidates for President and Vice President of the United States General Winfield Scott Hancock and William H. English, has settled all differences which have divided the Democratic party upon national issues in the State of New York."

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

An Analysis of the principal of the public debt of the United States from July 1, 1856, to July 1, 1880, with the amount and interest per capita, shows some remarkable fluctuations. In 1858, for instance, our total debt, less cash in the Treasury, with a population of 29,750,000, was $87,900,191, which represents per capita 28 cents debt and 7 cents interest. Soon afterwards the Republican party came into power, and their reckless extravagances, added to the cost of the war, brought the debt in 1865 up to the enormous total of $2,756,431,571, which, with a population of 35,228,000, represents for every soul a debt of $78.25, and an interest charge of $4.29. Levying on the country oppressive taxation, they were able to gradually reduce the debt after 1865, but it was not until 1876, after the political tidal wave restored the legislative branch of the Government to Democratic hands, that the economies were forced upon the public service which reduced the principal and per capita proportion of the debt by rapid strides. The per capita indebtedness in 1878 was $47.43, and the interest $2.19. In 1880 the per capita indebtedness of the country is $37.74, and the interest $1.56. This makes a fine showing for the Democratic House and Senate, and gives ample assurance that with a Democratic Executive, secured by the election of Hancock and English, to carry out the economical measures of a Democratic legislature, the lightening of the debt-burden on the people's shoulders will progress still more rapidly.

A distinguished leader of the Garfield and Arthur party in Plainfield, the New York Tribune published his name, visited the Head Quarters in that city the other day and perspiringly announced the prospect of a Republican majority hereabouts next November to be refreshing. The intelligence raised the drooping spirits of the poor fellows to 99 deg. in the shade, and one excited De Golyerite whirled his hat across the street and offered to bet a whole dime on the Ohio dark horse. The idea of a Republican majority in such a Democratic place as Plainfield made the glasses shake and the waiters grin.

Some Republicans slur General Hancock because he is a soldier. Oh!

The Miles Ross Legion of Railway have reorganized for the campaign.

If Garfield was the Democratic candidate for President how Nast would go for him!

And another thing, General Hancock always puts out a kerosene lamp by blowing down the chimney.

Quartermaster General Lewis Perrine, who has been ill for several weeks past, is convalescing and able to be about again.

If the Republicans at Chicago knew as much as they do now, Mr. Garfield would never have been a Presidential candidate.

The way to succeed is to get out the Democratic vote. The way to get out the Democratic vote is to organize for the campaign early.

Why not withdraw Garfield and substitute Colfax. The latter only partook of Credit Mobilier, whereas the former swallowed both it and De Golyer.

That worthless wooden pavement Garfield passed through Congress for De Golyer cost the tax-payers of the United States $1,241,000! What a costly President he would make?

The colored men of Flushing have organized a Hancock club. J. W. A. Shaw, editor of the Suffragist, is President. They have hired rooms, raised a banner and will soon hold a ratification meeting.

The Boston Journal says "the Republicans are determined this shall be a clean campaign"—but for all that they are still anxiously making a still hunt for mud. If they could only find a mud bank they'd go wild with delight.

A despatch from Boston announces that Gen. U. S. Grant has been elected President of the San Pedro and Canon De Lagua Company. The company was recently organized under the laws of Connecticut by New York and Boston capitalists.

Over a large woolen factory in the vicinity of Philadelphia, owned and operated by a gentleman who has always been an active Republican, now floats a flag bearing the popular motto HANCOCK AND ENGLISH! That's the signal of victory and prosperity.

The impression gains ground among Republicans that Garfield is not to be "the coming man." Every day bears witness that desertions are taking place from the ranks, and that Hancock is gaining. The Republicans have apparently little heart in the canvass.

The regular and readjuster Democrats will unite on an electoral ticket in Virginia. This, with a settlement of local differences in New York and Philadelphia, leaves the party thoroughly united from one end of the country to the other for the first time in many years.

Gen. Garfield is in one respect the most unfortunate of candidates. Of all the serious charges brought against him in relation to his public life, not one originated with the Democrats. They were preferred by his own Congressional associates, his own constituents, and his own party friends.—Boston Post.

The Hancock National Veteran Association has appointed as an organizing committee for New Jersey, Gen. Gershom Mott, Trenton; Col. E. H. Wright, Newark; Major James E. Fleming, Newark; Gen. Wm. H. Sterling, Julian Scott and Col. B. F. Onderdonk, Plainfield; Gen. A. N. Dougherty, Newark.

Doctor Magoon, a prominent Baptist clergyman, Mr. Bennet, the great clothing merchant of Tower Hall, and Mr. Peterson, the eminent publisher, all of Philadelphia and all recently of the Republican party, are reported to be outspoken advocates of Hancock and English. That's the way the tide is swelling.

State elections preceding the general election in November will occur this year as follows:

Arkansas, first Monday of September.

Vermont, first Tuesday of September.

Maine, second Monday of September.

Colorado, first Tuesday of October.

Indiana, Ohio, and West Virginia, second Tuesday of October.

ANOTHER LEADING CONVERT.

ST. LOUIS, July 27.—John T. Long, the most intimate friend of Grant in the West, and a leading Republican, in an interview with a correspondent said yesterday: "I shall vote for General Hancock, and believe he will be elected. I think he has the qualifications to make a good President. He will have the good sense to surround himself with the right kind of advisers. One principal reason why I am against Garfield is that he has already shown his intention to be associated with at least two men for whom the Republican party has the least possible use—Schurz and Sherman. Almost the first thing Garfield did after his nomination was to take a long carriage-ride with Schurz, a man devoid of all political principle. The real cause of Schurz's hostility to Grant is this: When Schurz was Senator he asked Grant for 105 appointments in twelve months, from foreign missions down. He got eighty-three, but made himself the enemy of Grant because he didn't get everything he asked for. I have never heard Grant discuss Hancock save as a General, and in that respect he always spoke well of him. I am a Republican still. I have been in correspondence with many political and personal friends respecting the political situation, and I shall vote for Hancock."

A letter has recently been delivered in France after being detained in the Post Office for half a century. A singular discovery was made three weeks ago in the course of the operations now going on in the General Post Office at Paris. In a panel near one of the boxes was found a letter, which had been posted exactly fifty years ago, and which by some mischance had got stuck in the panel instead of finding its way into the box. The letter was duly forwarded to the person to whom it was addressed, who, still more strangely, was alive and received it safely. The writer, however, had been dead many years.

THERE is no more danger of hydrophobia among dogs at one season of the year than another. But when overheated and exhausted the animal must pant, and the surest way to drive them mad is to keep their mouths grasped and closed with a cruel muzzle.

AN UNPRECEDENTED GATHERING.

The enormous Democratic mass meeting or ratification that was held in New York city on last Wednesday evening, was the largest and most enthusiastic gathering ever assembled in the world. Streets were blocked and three enormous halls were filled to overflowing. It is estimated that fully 20,000 supporters of Hancock and English were present. At the Academy of Music President Tilden presided, whose eloquent speech upon opening the meeting was followed by others delivered by the Hon. Samuel J. Randall, General Thomas Ewing, Congressman J. Randolph Tucker and Senator Chas. W. Jones. The audience at Irving Hall was addressed by Alderman Charles H. Marshall, who presided, Senator B. F. Jones, and other prominent politicians. At Nilsson Hall the Germans were favored with speeches in their native tongue, from Commissioner Ferdinand Traud, Stephen S. Remak, Coroner Moritz Ellinger and Justice Marcus Otterburg. Fire works and balloons continually lit up the sky out of doors, and transparent mottoes decorated the streets.

The Names they Wanted.

The Republican press have called upon the Democratic press to "show up" the names of prominent Republicans who have deserted the Garfield banner and come out for Hancock & English. Here are a few of them; Besides Leonard Jerome and other prominent Republicans of New York, General Pearson, of Pittsburg, John W. Forney, Dr. Dougherty, of Newark.

The Pittsburg Volksblatt, heretofore strongly Republican, has deserted Garfield and run up the Hancock flag.

Peter Wilson, a prominent Republican lawyer, heads the call for a Hancock club at Streator, Ill.

Horatio King, ex-Postmaster General, supported Hayes in 1876 and will take the stump for Hancock in 1880.

George R. Wendling, of St. Louis, once a leading Republican Congressman, has declared against Garfield and will take the stump for Hancock and English. He will be remembered as the gentleman who replied to Bob Ingersoll's lecture.

S. W. Moulton, a former Republican member of Congress from Illinois, and Judge Moeser, Republican County Judge, astonished the Republicans of Shelbyville, Ill., last week, by openly declaring for Hancock and English.

Lewis Loveless, a prominent Republican of Pike county, Indiana, and formerly a candidate of his party for Congress, has renounced his connection with the Republican organization, and is out for Hancock and English.

Edward Butler, ex-stalwart editor of the New Haven (Conn.) Palladium, has declared for Hancock.

Colonel John A. Wimpy, heretofore a prominent Republican in Georgia, has announced his intention to vote for Hancock.

Mr. Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger, is another Grant man who has all the symptoms of being for Hancock.

Hinton Rowan Helper, author of the "Impending Crisis," has written a letter in which he announces himself in favor of Hancock and English.

General Patrick H. Jones, a prominent and representative Irish-American, has announced for Hancock and English.

And Zach Chandler's particular friend, Mr. E. W. Barber, Third Assistant Postmaster-General under Grant, is the latest prominent Republican convert to Hancock Democracy.

The most influential German paper in Northern Ohio, the Cleveland Wächter am Erie, has abandoned the Republican party and came out for Hancock and English.

The latest distinguished Republican who has fallen into column to swell the Hancock boom, is Hon. E. Joy Morris, of Philadelphia.

The prominent Republicans in Philadelphia that are coming out, like Col. Forney, in favor of Gen. Hancock, is an indication of public sentiment among the people. We find named amongst the recent Republicans that have declared for the General: John J. Smith, the historian; General Hoffman of the Loyal Legion; Stephen D. Winslow, editor of the Commercial List; William Stewart, a prominent merchant; Charles J. Peterson, the well-known author; Dr. Magoon, a prominent Baptist clergyman; Mr. Bennett of the famous Tower Hall clothing house, and Charles Wister, of Germantown.

Now let us see the Republican press trot out a single prominent Democrat who announces himself for De Golyer Garfield.

Washington Rock News.

The annual hop of a social party from Bound Brook and vicinity was held at the Washington Rock Mountain House last Friday evening, the 23d inst. The hotel was brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns, while Prof. Frazee of Plainfield furnished the music. A beautiful supper was served at the house, after which dancing was kept up until a late hour, when the party dispersed. Such social gatherings now are of frequent occurrence at this popular place.

A Daily Excursion.

The fare from Plainfield to Coney Island's Iron Pier has been reduced to $1.40, by way of the steamer "Kill Von Kull" from the Jersey City terminus of the C. R. R. New and special attractions have been also added in the way of interesting and amusing entertainments on the Pier, during the coming week, without extra charge. Walking like a fly on the ceiling, eating, drinking and smoking under water and perilous acrobatic ascensions, are but a few of the wonderful feats performed for the enjoyment of the excursionists. For time table see adv.

Wonderful Specimens of Vegetation.

The wealth of exotic display in the grounds of Mr. Alexander Titsworth on Second street, is daily appreciated and flatteringly spoken of by the many who visit it out of curiosity, or gaze upon its beauty as they pass. Among the many rare and lovely plants, two may be spoken as attracting special and admiring attention. One, a magnificent banana-palm of about three years growth, spreads its bright green folds in graceful ease to the warm sunshine and refreshing dew. These leaves are massive in their size—some of them measuring nearly 18 inches in breadth, by about 4 feet in length—and of an oval form. Another plant, also a native of Florida, is called the St. John Lily, which bears flowers remarkable for their rare beauty and fragrance. The buds make their appearance in bunches of about twenty and all open at once, forming a cluster of white lilies from whose centres spring bright purple stamins. This wonderful plant is almost ready to bloom again, thus giving an opportunity for such as may desire to inspect it in all its loveliness.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Mr. Geo. Gray's horse became frightened while standing hitched to a buggy in front of his owner's residence on Tuesday and ran away, damaging the buggy considerably. The animal was caught after he had broken loose from the buggy and was not injured.

The Town Committee have issued a proclamation, authorizing the killing on sight of all dogs found running at large in the village, and in consequence numerous "pot hunters" are out "hunting" and all old grudges against certain canines by vengeful citizens are expected to be settled at once. Some one will get their fingers burned though, before they get through. Who will bury the slaughtered dogs has as yet not entered the astute minds of the Town Committee.

THE mother of the family became disorderly last week, and was locked up by Captain Dodd.

AN umbrella was lost two weeks ago. Finder will receive thanks of owner if it is left at this office.

A GANG of workmen were set to work by contractor Isaac Pangborn, on Monday last to excavate on the site of the proposed Muhlenberg Hospital. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy by September.

THE dogs of the city can now go in peace, unmuzzled and unmolested. Jas. R. Donohue has resigned his soft position as City Dog Pounder, and the Mayor will not, probably, nominate another to fill the vacancy.

Personalia.

The card of Attorney Craig A. Marsh, which appears on the inside of our issue of this week calls attention to the location of his business offices where he may be consulted at all times on matters pertaining to his profession.

It is expected that the Rev. Dr. Ketcham will arrive from Europe in time to occupy the pulpit of his own church next Sunday.

It will strike terror to the hearts of coming thieves, when it is known that there is a little Charley Dodd. He will be old enough to vote for a Democratic President in 1901.

Mr. Geo. L. Van Emburgh and family are spending the present season at Greenwood Lake.

Dr. Vincent, his son and Mr. Ernest Ackerman, arrived from Europe on Friday last. The first named and family, left the same day for New York State.

Dr. Gustavus L. Frederick of this city has just received an appointment as a Notary Public, from the hands of Gov. McClellan. The power to act in such capacity is not limited to any town or county, but covers the entire State, and honors the gentleman by the appointment and does the Governor credit by the selection.

Our respected fellow citizen, Ex-Judge Good, now on a European tour, recently delivered a speech in England on behalf of the Gladstone Liberals. Good for Plainfield!

The Rev. John C. Bliss has left for his summer's recreation. During his absence a number of eloquent preachers will occupy the vacant pulpit, among which will be the Rev. Dr. Willits of Philadelphia and the blind preacher of Elizabeth.

Mr. A. Curtiss, our city's successful hardware merchant, is absent on a visit to his parents.

Gov. McClellan and family are stopping for a few days at Spring Lake, N. J.

Alexander Benedict, a well-known personage of Plainfield, died in a Newark hospital on Saturday last, whither he had gone for treatment, his disease being termed consumption. Mr. B. at one time was in affluent circumstances and resided on Long Island. His home there was always open to friends and acquaintances. He was one of seven sons of the famous Broadway jeweller, Benedict. The Benedicts, corner of Broadway and Courtlandt street are brothers of his. The funeral services were conducted from the residence of his son-in-law, Henry A. Crawford, at Keyport, N. J., on Monday, July 26th inst.

Mr. Jacob Kirkner of this city met with an accident at Lake George one day recently that necessitates his using crutches at present. While running for a stage, on his way to New York, Mr. K's ankle turned under him and the result was a severe sprain.

Mr. B. F. Webster, whose death we refer to in another column, has long been engaged in the Insurance business which his father built up. We understand it was his last desire that it should be kept in the family, and continued by his brother-in-law, Daniel D. Vermeule, who we hope may be as successful as his predecessors.

Mr. Mulford Estil is home again, looking remarkably well after his visit to Wilmington.

Mr. Wm. Humbert and M. M. Thorn, Esq., with family, together with Mr. Walter Scott of N. Y. City, are hunting convivial deer and festive trout among the Adirondacks.

Out-Door Festivities.

The second annual out-door concert and picnic of the Plainfield Saengerbund, which took place during the afternoon and evening of last Monday, was enjoyed by many hundreds of young and old people from this city and other towns adjacent. No time, labor or expense was spared by the Society in their generous endeavour to afford all the pleasure possible both material and otherwise; and in consequence nothing was left to be desired by those who attended. Unfortunately the Teutonia of Elizabeth had chosen the same day for their own recreation, and the arrangements of both had been so far completed as to prevent a postponement, before they each learned of the other's intention. In consequence, full delegations from the singing clubs of other places were unable to be present, as each concert was favored with a part. Voss' Newark Band was also divided, but not to the detriment of the portion that visited Plainfield. On its arrival here, with members from Rahway, Elizabeth and other societies, a procession was formed on Front street including our own Club, and their subsequent march through the principal thoroughfares was viewed by the public with flattering appreciation. The grounds selected were most convenient of access, comfortable for the purpose and beautiful in all their surroundings. Besides welcome seats and refreshment booths, a magnificent dancing platform was erected with a raised stand for the musicians. On this platform was commenced, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the concert; at which time about five hundred people were in attendance. The programme was started by the Plainfield Saengerbund with one of their remarkably well rendered songs. This was followed by other fine singing of the Plainfielder's, as well as selections given by the New Brunswick Aurora, Orange Manner Chor and Trenton Lieder Tafel. The audience gathered was loud in its applause at the unusually perfect manner in which all the songs were given. Dancing to the strains of delightful music, interspersed through the concert, gave an opportunity for the vocalists to rest; and at the conclusion of the concert the platform was almost continually occupied by waltzers and quadrillers. As the sun went down, light was shed on the animated gathering of happy ones, by many lanterns and reflecting lights. Crowds of young people began to arrive and everybody was looking towards a long evening of uninterrupted pleasure, when the rain clouds gathered, thunder rolled and an unappropriate storm descended. Many left at once and stage loads arrived to merely turn back again. It is reasonably calculated that two or three hundred, who intended to be present, did not leave the city, and by nine o'clock the grounds were almost deserted. In the parlors of both Bliss's and Hughes's Hotels, a number of the young folks found shelter and dancing continued during the evening. In spite of the unfortunate interruption, it is believed that the society will meet with no financial loss; and should they carry out their intention of repeating the affair before the end of the season, they may be assured that their generous efforts will be greatly rewarded.

Armed to the Teeth,

Is a very common expression, but we think that armed to embellish and preserve them to a ripe old age is decidedly more appropriate. This can be done by keeping yourself supplied with a bottle of that splendid dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT, which will beautify the teeth and preserve them from the ravages of decay. SOZODONT contains no acids or gritty substances which injure the enamel, but is composed of rare and antiseptic herbs, which have a beneficial effect on the whole economy of the mouth. Sold by druggists.

The rain storm of last Tuesday that came up (and came down) so suddenly, was during its continuance the most severe that has visited this city in some years. The fall of water was so abundant and rapid that the sewers could not carry it off fast enough; and in some buildings the pipes overflowed and filled the cellars.

The grandest rail-and-water excursion of the season is promised on August 10th, upon which date the T. A. B. Society of St. Mary's Church, this city, go to Hudson Grove. This beautiful spot is well adapted to satisfy the desires of those who enjoy delightful bathing, pleasant scenery and attractive surroundings; while the trip up the East River is unexcelled in the advantages it possesses for an inspection of the city of New York and its suburbs.

On Thursday last Willow Lake, on the premises of Percy C. Ohl, this city, bursted its banks, carrying into Cedar Brook and Brooklyn pond numerous Black Bass with which the Lake was stocked. Mr. Ohl by strenuous efforts succeeded in recapturing about 15 of these beauties. These fish were placed in Willow Lake one year ago and were then but fingerlings, while none of the fifteen captured fall much short of a pound in weight.

The Central Railroad Company have just issued a little book which, as a work of reference regarding the towns and cities through which it passes, and of information in relation to the summer resorts and places of residence on its main line and branches, is invaluable. People who have subscribed for a newspaper will do well to bear in mind that the only way to discontinue their subscription is to pay up all arrears and order the paper stopped. An editor recently sued a man for $43 due for the papers furnished. The defendant set up a plea that he had ordered the paper stopped several times, but the court held that, under the laws of the state and the United States, a publisher may continue to send his paper until all the delinquencies are settled up, and that the parties to whom the papers are sent are liable for all copies so sent, and judgment was accordingly rendered for the full amount with costs.

In spite of the example set by fellow bicyclists, who are unselfish enough to think of the comfort of others and abstain from riding through our principal streets, there are a few votaries of the big wheel who, either to show themselves off or because they are too lazy to walk, will persist in rushing at a terrible rate of speed through Front street and Park avenue at the time those thoroughfares are most crowded and when there is the least natural light. On last Saturday evening one of them ran over two children at the corner of Park and North avenues, and more from good luck than good management no lives were lost. A slightly cut head—not (we are sorry to say, for the sake of a lesson) belonging to the rider—was the only damage.

The Central Times suggests that the Republican wigwam of this city "ought to be modelled after a canal boat." Is our E. C. not afraid that such a vessel might stick, as Garfield has, in the mud that the Tribune, Times and other party organs flung in 1873?

Although our own pastors are taking, or will soon start on, a vacation, there is no lack of brother ministers to fill the vacant pulpits. Our city has been favored with the preaching of some very talented men, during the past few weeks, and will continue to be.

The store lately occupied by John H. French, on Park avenue, adjoining the City Hotel, is being refurnished and repainted prior to its occupancy by Mr. Al. Foote. That popular merchant will open business there on Saturday, with a large and attractive stock of confectionery of all varities.

We are glad to agree with a prominent Republican, in anything. Said a speaker at a Garfield & Arthur organization meeting of last Wednesday evening —"the Republican party will all hang together." May we suggest that DeGolyer be awarded the contract for furnishing the rope?

The children of the Hotel Netherwood held a fair in the parlors of that house on the evening of last Wednesday. The articles on sale were the products of their own industrious fingers and met with the ready purchase their exertions deserved. An auction, remarkable for great competitive bidding and high prices, closed out the entire stock.

What might have been a serious or fatal accident, occurred on Park avenue about six o'clock, last Wednesday afternoon. A young son of Mr. Theodore Kurtzhals, who was playing in the street, was thrown down by a horse and wagon which passed completely over him. Beyond a severe bruising and a terrible frightening, the lad was unhurt.

Saturday night seems to be "row night" on Front street. Last week a pair went from a mouth-quarrel into a fist-fight, and upon the entrance of officer Conway into the saloon where the trouble was, the lights were turned out and the gallant policeman got a blow on the side of his head. As far as could be ascertained, no one else was damaged.

While crossing a small bridge on the way home from the Saengerbund picnic of last Monday night, a stage dumped its load in the ditch. "Py gracious" said one occupant as he crawled out of the mud, more asleep than awake, "has dat Blainfield station go py already." The driver explained that the destination had not yet been reached, and the journey was continued.

With the exception of the Crescent avenue Sunday School's excursion on the 31st of August, there will probably be no other to Ocean Grove from this city during the season. The C. R. R. Co. announces that its rolling stock is so completely and entirely in use, that it is impossible to furnish cars for excursions that necessarily, on account of distance, retain them for the whole day.

At last the Republican party of the United States can boast of a convert. A speaker at a meeting held last Wednesday evening of one of those influential and powerful young men's Garfield & Arthur Clubs of this city, remarked—amid unbounded applause—that "a friend of his" who was a Democrat intended to vote for Garfield. Hancock's resignation, in consequence, is expected by the "young men."

A party of three, with heads still full of the enjoyments of the previous day's picnic, essayed to try a race with Mr. James Farley's trotter on Somerset street, last Tuesday morning. They had succeeded in passing the latter, when their driver, overjoyed at the victory, stood up, turned around, waved his hat, shouted "Hooray!" went head first over the dash-board and landed in the gutter with his companions on top of him. The vehicle had struck a post and stopped—which they should have done also.

Jury and Court Disagree.

The case of the Treasurer of the city against Francis Hand, which was tried in the Council Chamber on Thursday of last week, was conductive of much interest and some excitement over its cause, progress and result. The court room was filled with the backers of both parties, friends of the opposing counsels, a number of those citizens who exist in every place and are only happy when the municipality is defeated at some point, do-nothings who wanted to earn a juror's fee but did not get the opportunity, the usual court lounger, and the entire legal profession of the city. The latter, although including many lawyers and justices of age and experience, is gradually becoming aware of the fact that there is some ability among the young limbs of their fraternity, and, in consequence, are not averse to catch an idea or gain a point from the briefs or arguments of those who, though lacking experience, may be more thoroughly posted in law. On account of the absence of Corporation Counsel Suydam from the city, he was not aware of the existence of the suit and had no opportunity to prepare himself. Only arriving in Plainfield the evening before, and his attention being naturally confined to sickness in his family, he was compelled to place the case in the hands of Mr. Walter L. Hetfield. Mr. Suydam, however, took the prosecution in hand after the opening of the case, and Mr. Craig A. Marsh, who enjoys flattering notoriety for never losing a jury trial, appeared for the defendant.

The complaint, on which the warrant was issued, was sworn out by dog-pounder James R. Donohue, who therein stated that on the 17th of July he attempted to seize the dog of Francis Hand which was running at large and unmuzzled in the public streets, whereupon said Hand did obstruct and molest deponent by striking or pushing him. It was claimed that the allowing of the dog to go unmuzzled was in violation of a city ordinance, and that the resisting of Donohue's attempt to take the animal was an interference with a duly appointed officer while in pursuance of his duty.

Before the opening of the case for the city, the defendant's counsel requested the privilege of taking the testimony of His Honor the Mayor, with the understanding that it was not in evidence until after the defense was opened. No objection being made by opposing counsel or court, the Mayor testified that the appointment of Donohue as dog-pounder had never been referred to the Common Council for confirmation, and he had never administered to such person the oath of office.

The only witness for the prosecution was the molested officer himself, who testified to the same effect as was embodied in the complaint. He did not seem to know whether the defendant struck him or pushed him; and upon cross-examination stated an entirely differently constructed sentence as the epithet of adjectives used against him. The greatest desire possessed by the counsel for the city seemed to be to impress on the jury's minds by the answers of the witness, that at some time during the day, although previous to the occurrence, the animal was running through the streets, uncontrolled. Although aware that such fact had no bearing on the case, the prosecution seemed also aware that it might have considerable bearing on the verdict. Perhaps the most remarkable feature of this point was, the refusal of the Court to rule such testimony out.

Upon opening the case for the defendant, counsel Marsh addressed the Court at some length upon the meaning of the term "at large." He contended that it meant without restraint, and brought forward many illustrations appropriate and to the point. The dog in question, he held, was controlled by its master and being near enough for the defendant to touch was not running at large. As to its being unmuzzled and consequently violating the ordinance, the Counsel's arguments were particularly strong. The section of the charter giving the Council power to pass the ordinance, states it is to prevent and regulate "the running at large of horses, cattle, goats, geese, dogs and swine." If horses and cattle are not running at large when accompanied by their owner or drover, the counsel held that dogs were not, when in charge of their master. The phrase used by the charter could not have one meaning for cattle and another for dogs, according to whatever interpretation the Common Council chose to put upon it. If the animal was under any restraint, it was not at large. The counsel also justly claimed that as the ordinance was penal, its meaning could not be extended by construction; and any doubt upon the point should be resolved in favor of the accused. In view of these propositions, it was moved that the Court should instruct the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty. The presiding Judge in reply stated, that it was not within his jurisdiction to pass upon the points. Higher courts were open in which the matter could be settled, and refused to instruct the jury as was demanded.

The counsel then moved that the Court declare the ordinance unconstitutional, inasmuch as it involved a forfeiture of property and the power to pass such an ordinance must be conferred by specific enactment of the legislature. The section of the charter which is the source of the Common Council's power gives merely the power to pass ordinances for preventing and regulating the running of animals at large, but no right to involve the forfeiture of property. If they might pass an ordinance that allows of the seizing and killing of a man's dog, they might do the same with his horse or other property. This motion being also denied, on the ground that the Court considered it had no right to pass upon the constitutionality of the actions of the Common Council, the witnesses for the defense were examined.

The defendant testified that he was walking down Front street towards Somerset with his dog so close by his side as to rub against his leg, when Donohue came across the street and attempted to seize the animal. The dog eluded the capture by running behind him, upon which he (Hand) caught the animal by a strap around its neck and thus led it away. The dog was under his control all the time; and the charge that he struck or pushed the complainant, was strenuously denied. Adam Beake, assistant dog-pounder, corroborated the statement that the dog was at Hand's side at the time of the occurrence and not in the middle of the street as stated by the complainant.

Before summing up for the defense, the counsel moved that the Court instruct the jury to render a verdict of not guilty, on the ground that the complainant was not a legally appointed officer. The charter expressly states that "the Mayor shall nominate and by and with the advice and consent of the Common Council, shall appoint all officers of the city not required to be elected, except the City Clerk and Janitor"; also, "all officers of the city must take and subscribe before the Mayor an oath or affirmation." On these points it was held that Donohue was not an officer; but the Court, however, consistently denied the motion.

In summing up the defense was remarkably cogent, showing a thorough knowledge of the law, a careful research into the many questions arising, and a remarkable possession of tact and judgment as to the most effective manner of putting the case before the jury. "Even though we concede," said the counsel, "that the dog was at large, that the ordinance is constitutional, that Donohue is a legally appointed officer, that he was performing his duty, and that he was molested and obstructed by the defendant, still how was the latter to know that Donohue was an officer? He (Donohue) showed no badge, nor did he declare that he was an officer; he merely stepped up and said, 'I want that dog' and attempted to seize it. The defendant most undeniably had a right to prevent the confiscation of his property if he could do so without violence. The moment he seized his dog, the defendant brought it within the excepting clause of the ordinance, it was no longer at large even according to the most adverse interpretation; and the officer had no power to take the animal which was then in the hands of its master, in consideration of any circumstances that might have existed a few moments before."

At the conclusion of the Corporation Counsel's address to the jury, which followed, Judge Runyon charged these twelve gentlemen in a way that was remarkable for its strict impartiality—to the defendant. He held strongly that if the dog was unmuzzled it was at large, and that a verdict of guilty must consequently be rendered. During the two latter discourses the legal profession present amused themselves in constructing poetical couplets, they considered appropriate. The following extracts will suffice to give an idea of the entire effusions:

If they'd muzzle the lawyers instead of the dog,
It would clear the whole case of much of the fog.

The reporters sat by with their pencils afire,
Each determined to be the confoundedest liar.

The Judge on the bench, with a very wise look,
Gives the law from his head, but none from the book.

The jury, after an absence of but a short time, returned with a verdict of not guilty and received the approval of the public accordingly.

Large Mineral Lease.

About 10,000 acres of mineral property, recently leased by Wm. A. Sisco, of Charlotteburg, lying near the Green Pond and Copperas mines, in the vicinity of the Midland R. R., has been purchased and the property transferred to Mr. Abram S. Hewitt, of the firm of Cooper & Hewitt. This deposit of iron ore in prospect, when fully developed may rival in quality and quantity the celebrated Copperas mines in the immediate vicinity. —Iron Era.

The Executive Committee of the Plainfield Athletic Club met on Monday evening and arranged for their annual games, which are to be held on the 15th day of September. The programme consists of twelve events, including the most spirited and interesting contests known to athletes, in which bicycling is well represented. The club track has recently been put in prime order and is now in better condition than ever since laid down. These games open the Athletic season in Plainfield.

Death of Daniel Gion.

Daniel Gion, well known for his eccentricities, died on Sunday in Rahway of hemorrhage of the lungs. His lifeless remains were found in a barn Sunday evening and removed to Ryno's morgue, where they were on Monday viewed by County Physician Terrill and permit for burial given. Dan was very respectably connected, but his intemperate habits had impaired his mind and made him a wanderer. Excessive indulgence in drink was probably his greatest vice. He was never quarrelsome but always the opposite, and though his existence was of no benefit to his fellows, those who knew him speak kindly in remembrance of him.

B. F. Webster—Deceased.

In the death of Mr. B. F. Webster, on Tuesday afternoon at his residence, No. 57 East Front street, Plainfield loses one of its best known and most respected citizens. The deceased was born in this place on the 2d day of February, 1823, and has occupied a position among its business men ever since, with the exception of some years experience in St Louis and Chicago. For a long time past he had been a terrible sufferer from malignant cancer in the throat, and had undergone many painful operations by skillful surgeons without avail; in consequence of which, life had become a burden and death was looked forward to as a desired release. Mr. Webster was one of the few noblemen of nature, whom acquaintance with, inspired love and esteem. His funeral will take place from his late residence, on Friday afternoon, at half-past two o'clock.

A Depressing Loss.

From the residence of the deceased's mother, No. 33 Monroe place, Brooklyn, was buried last Tuesday afternoon Juliet Ann Schetter, daughter of the late Whitehead J. Cornell. The large circle of friends which the estimable lady had, during her life in this city, drawn around her, will unite in sincere sympathy with the husband and children she has left behind her in deep affliction. As a fond mother she was deeply loved by the daughter and sons whose lives she watched and guarded; as a worker in the Lord's vineyard she was untiring; as a friend in social and religious circles, she was admired and esteemed; and as an adviser and help-mate of him who was nearer and dearer than all others, she was intensely valued and appreciated. The enterprise, industry and taste displayed by Mr. Florence Schetter in the conception of our beautiful suburb of Netherwood, and its successful completion, owe their cause and effect largely to the judgment of the deceased, "Amiable, she won all; intelligent, she charmed all; fervent, she loved all; and dead, she saddened all."

Union County Property.

Below is given a table of great importance, it being the Assessor's valuation of the lands and real estate, the personal property, the liabilities, etc., of the whole taxable property of Union County, together with the county tax, the State school tax, the ratios and percentages. Also the Census of Union County as published in the New Brunswick Times, edited by Supervisor Gordon. We do not guarantee the correctness of figures, as it will be seen that there is an error in the returns from Plainfield, which foot up according to the enumerator's returns as 8,126.

Valuable Paintings.

Being informed of the sale of two pictures by Joseph Claude Vernet, the celebrated French Marine Painter) at the auction of the late Dr. Augustus Giraud —a representative of this paper was dispatched to get the particulars. From an interview with the happy possessor, Mrs. Percy C. Ohl of this city, the following facts were obtained: It appears these two paintings were given to the lady and her husband, but the sudden death of the Doctor without leaving a will or any memorandum in writing to that effect, caused the paintings, like other heir looms, relics, &c, to be disposed of to the highest bidder. Mrs. Ohl's determination to obtain the same, met with little opposition and they became her property for the small sum of $92.00. As these pictures have quite a little history attached to them, we mention a paragraph from the introductory pages of Spooner's Dictionary of painters, engravers, sculptors, &c., page 8, which reads—"The author knows a gentleman in this country, who has in his possession two paintings esteemed genuine, by Jos. Vernet; and what is extraordinary, these pictures bear the numbers of the two paintings supposed to have been lost, as published in the catalouge of his pictures in the Louvre." The Doctor subsequently made further inquiries, which removed any possibility of a doubt as to the originality of the works of art. Dr. Giraud came in possession of these from his father, who was a physician in Baltimore; and as the late Doctor relates; years ago, during a revolution in France, there put into Baltimore a vessel, whose Captain's wife was very ill. The elder Dr. Giraud being called upon obeyed the summons promptly, although at night and a fearful storm was raging at the time. The patient remained very ill for several weeks and on her recovery the Captain made the Doctor a present of the pictures spoken of.

Dr. Giraud came over from France with Gen. Lafayette as his medical attendant.

Jos. C. Vernet, in 1816, was commissioned to execute pictures of some of the principal sea ports in France for the Louvre. He painted fifteen, which occupied him twelve years, for which he got 7,500 Francs each and his expenses paid. Vernet doubtless surpassed all competitors in his style. A noticeable event in his life is while en route from Leghorn to Paris by invitation of Louis XV, a violent storm happened which greatly terrified most of the passengers, but Vernet, struck with the grandeur of the scene, requested the sailors to bind him to the mast head and there he remained absorbed in admiration, endeavoring to transfer the scene to his sketch book. His grandson, Horace, made a painting from this sketch, which was exhibited in the Louvre. The paintings spoken of are Marine sketches, 38x52 inches, and we will not here undertake a description of them, but as Mrs. Ohl intends having them renovated and cleaned we will wait until the paintings are unveiled—for at present, the dust and wear of 70 years has considerably injured them. Connoisseurs of art will have an opportunity for several weeks of seeing them in their present condition at the home of Mrs. Ohl, on Central avenue. Also the original painting by Albert Van Outwater, of "David returning in triumph with the head of Goliah," painted in 1511 and consequently one of the first paintings in oil. This painting is in an extraordinary state of preservation, and well worth a visit of lovers of art.

Mayhew vs Fritz.

A hearing in the case of Mayhew (colored) vs Fritz was had before Judge Runyon on Thursday evening of last week; Corporation Counsel George P. Suydam being present for the complainant, and William B. Maxson Esq., appearing for the defendant. In consideration of Mr. Fritz's standing as a merchant of this city and his position as a freeholder, the Court made a most thorough examination of the case and testimony of some length was taken. Witnesses who were present at the occurrence, and whose names were brought forward by both sides, were examined closely, and the evidence of the complainant and defendant was intently listened to. The assault charge was fully established; Mr. Fritz admitting that he knocked Mr. Mayhew down at least three times; but it was evident that any such action was not contemplated by either. The defendant was standing in front of his store on the evening of July 17th talking to another party, when the complainant approached and without cause or provocation told him (Fritz) to go to the place where they don't shovel snow. The defendant thereupon replied, "I am in the habit of knocking people down who talk so to me." The remark being repeated the assault was committed.

Judge Runyon gave his decision on Saturday morning to the effect that his duty required him to hold Mr. Fritz in the sum of $100 to answer any charge that might be brought against him by the Grand Jury.

The Ocean Grove Washing Expedition.

The postponed excursion of last week to Ocean Grove came off as advertised on Friday, and is now a thing of the past, remembered only by those who went and enjoyed it and those who intended to go but were left behind. Even the morning of the day, (which turned out to be so perfect a one for the purpose) was not calculated to inspire confidence in the minds of those who feared fresh water, and although at least five hundred brave ones left the city, at least five hundred remained behind in doubt. Although probably one car less would have been sufficient, the generosity of the managers impelled them to satiate with room even the chronic grumblers who want a whole seat; and, in addition, a large baggage car was furnished with camp stools for the comfort of smokers and the convenience of the conductor and such members of the press as were too bashful to sit with the other sex.

The start was made promptly on time; and judging by the appearance of many at the last moment, they were yet undecided about going. One couple in particular presented the demeanor of having come to such resolution during the past fifteen minutes. The bandoline on the lady's "cat-steps" had been hurriedly laid in patches few and far between, with the seeming belief that it would spread and average itself over the scallops impartially; while her young man had blackened only one of his boots and, by his general air, impressed us with the fact that he had forgotten his pocketbook. The gentleman who had in charge the tickets for the young Episcopalians, failed to reach the depot in time, but the courtesy of the managers prevented any unpleasantness arising on account of such omission. Whatever in the way of eatables could be kept without spoiling, was saved by those who had made preparations for the day first selected; while the additions made caused the baskets to creak with over-fullness and struck the gum-drop-boy on the train with a fatal attack of ungratified desire.

The trip as far as Elizabeth was uneventful, but after leaving that city, active preparations of some sort, for some reason, were to be observed as being made in some of the cars. Gentlemen who had occupied the window seat, all of a sudden seemed desirous of changing places with others not similarly situated. Two or three were noticed standing in the aisles, some got their heads under the seats and appeared to have great trouble with their shoe buttons, and the occupants of the baggage car closed and barricaded the doors. The reason of such mysterious acts it was impossible to find out; and as they arose without seeming cause, so they fell again after Elizabethport had been passed. The participants in this strange behavior drew a deep sigh of relief as the port faded from sight through the door of the last car.

The first stop was made at South Amboy, at which place many of the male sex left the train for an examination (we were told) of one of L. L. Compton's traveling confectionery wagons that stood in the rear of the depot. Finding nothing strange about its presence in such a benighted town, the curious ones returned, wiped their mouths on their coat sleeves and the train proceeded. About this time little Petey New,— who must needs ride on the platform where the salt air would strike him and prevent his spoiling—lost his hat. Somebody always loses their hat on such occasions, and the ill wind that blows it off serves a good purpose by warning others.

At Morgan (so dear to the hearts of the I. A. C.) another stop was made to allow a train that was on the same track to pass. From thence to Long Branch nothing eventful happened—beyond the burning of a young tenor's neck by a hot coal—and the ultimate destination was reached in safety. To unload passengers and other delicacies of the season, baby carriages and other modern improvements, lunch baskets, escorts and such necessaries—was a work of some care and time; but within thirty minutes after arrival the Plainfielders honored the beach with their presence. Of course the principal object the excursionists had in view (it is natural to suppose) was an ocean wash, but the majority had more or less plausible excuses for not making shows and guys of themselves. The surf was to high, said some careful ones; while others announced an intention of going in later, and neglected it altogether. In consequence the gentler sex kept their crimps in shape, and their brothers and dearer ones had plenty of time to devote to that gratest of the Grove & Park's attractions—flirtation.

About noon the fancy of all lightly turned to thoughts of grub. Basket covers were removed, corks were taken from divers bottles (of milk) and the wants of inner man and inner woman were appeased. Of course the act of eating does not "give away" a person's weight and shape as bathing does—on the contrary adds to it—but nothing detracts so much from beauty as a chicken bone in one hand and a sardine sandwich in the other. Girlish lips surrounding the neck of a coffee bottle lose, much of their loveliness of contour, and a silky moustache frescoed with pieces of hard-boiled egg, is not attractive. At the Coleman House a bountiful dinner was given to the press and Conductor Green by the generous managers of the affair. It is needless to say that such of the "press" as attended, and Mr. Green, did justice to the repast. Other hotels and restaurants did a thriving business with those who had consigned no basket to the care of that experienced overseer-of-lunch, Charles Rowsea. The pumps were also extensively patronized, for the visitors are admonished to "be temperate in all things, whether physical, mental, moral, affectionate or religious."

After an afternoon spent in complete satisfaction in the way of promenading, enjoyment of the pavillion's music, visiting points of interest, pouring sand down each other's necks and drinking Tanner lemonade (all water and no fruit), the return home was made with "safety and despatch." It is a pleasant feature of this season that the railroad company is running excursion trains over its road much faster than during previous years, which is a marked improvement in the right direction. A broken coupling caused a few moment's delay, and one or two necessary switches occupied part of the time; but by nine o'clock all were at home again, living over in thought and conversation the day's pleasure, and sincerely thanking Messrs. Joseph Miller, Edward Nelson and John Honeyman for their successful exertions in the excursionists' behalf.

It seems, according to statisticians of water fall, that we have been having too much rain.

The effect of the stocking of the waters of this section with black bass is beginning now to be seen. At Rockaway they are catching a great many in the canal below the plane, ranging from two to two and a half pounds in weight, and similar specimens are also being taken from the Rockaway river near that point. These fish have doubtless come from the lakes through the feeders of the canal. At Splitrock also the black bass are found to be very numerous this season, and of still greater size.—Iron Era.

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 26th, 1879.

For over 25 years I have been severely afflicted with Hay Fever, and have tried many remedies without relief. One week after the first attack this year, while suffering intensely, I was induced, through Mr. [illegible] testimonial, to try, as a last resort, Ely's Cream Balm. The immediate effect was marvelous. I have been enabled to perform my pastoral duties without the slightest inconvenience. During that time I have been exposed to heat, drafts and dust, and have escaped a return attack. I believe had I commenced a few weeks earlier, I would not have been troubled at all. I pronounce Ely's Cream Balm an honest remedy, a cure for Hay Fever and recommend it to all who suffer from this distressing complaint.

A Republican Letter.

AIR—"Wearing of the Green."

Oh, Jimmy dear, and did you hear
The news that's going round?
They say—and truthfully, I fear—
Your record is not sound.
They state and prove you took a bribe—
Oh! 'tis most sad to see;
And what is more, they charge you, too,
With wilful perjury.

CHORUS:
Oh! Jimmy, Jimmy Garfield,
How could you do the deed?
Unto the Scriptures you once taught
You should have given heed;
But it's too late for worldly good
If you should now repent,
And through your sins that Hancock man
Will be the President.

Oh! Jimmy dear, it seems so queer
You couldn't do what's right;
You ought to know a President
Is not made in a night,
And when a man's a candidate
His record must be clean,
Not for a week or month or two,
But nearly every year.

CHORUS:
Oh! Jimmy, Jimmy Garfield,
You took that salary, too,
You've done those things the church book says
That you ought not to do;
And though the tears roll down my cheeks
In sorrow for my sin,
I'll have to vote for Hancock, too,
For he is sure to win.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR AUGUST.

A pleasant feature of this vacation number of the boys' and girls' magazine is the profusely illustrated article, "A Happy Thought for Street Children." This details the working of the Evening Post "Fresh Air Excursions" under Mr. Willard Parsons, through whose efforts, seconded by willing farmer-families, thousands of city-worn little ones taste every year the delights of a summer fortnight in the country.

Besides the installments of the two serials, by Louisa M. Alcott and Noah Brooks,—one dealing with sprightly home-life, the other with boys who form a militia company and have a muster and a sham fight,—there are several complete short stories. Of these, the most notable are; "Marjorie's Peril," illustrated by McCutcheon, a true story of a small Scottish lassie lost among lions in the bush of Zululand; "The Fox and the Stork," illustrated by Sheppard, a tale of boy-life, by Susan Coolidge; "Why the Black Cat Winked," illustrated by Brennan, a bright Pennsylvania-Irish story of a stirring incident in the great petroleum district; and the "Coral Castle," a funny narrative, with six comic pictures by Hopkins, of how the fishes failed in an attack upon the work of coral-polyps. There is, also, an illustrated installment of "The Major's Big-Talk Stories," relating anecdotes concerning two curious animals,—the Bye-Bye and the Howis Datforbl.

"Placer and Gulch Mining for Gold" are graphically described by Ernest Ingersoll and illustrated by J. Harrison Mills, and a bright account is given of the "Darning-Needle," or dragon-fly.

The pages of large-type reading-matter set apart for very little folk, and the departments of "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "Letter-Box" and "Riddle-Box," are made attractive with stories, anecdotes, items, pictures, letters from the boys and girls, and puzzles; and scattered here and there are many poems, single pictures, and jingles, which fill up eighty pages in a way to make even the rainiest holiday delightful to the youngster who gets this number of the magazine.

BABY IS DEAD.

"Baby is dead!" Three little words passing along the line; copied somewhere, and soon forgotten.

But after all was quiet again I leaned my head upon my hand, fell into a sad reverie of all that these words might mean.

Somewhere—a dainty form, still and cold, unclasped by mother's arms tonight. Eyes that yesterday were bright and blue as skies of June, drooped to-night beneath white lids that no voice can ever raise again.

Two soft hands whose rose-leaf fingers were want to wander lovingly over mother's neck and face, loosely holding white buds, quietly folded in coffined rest.

Soft lips, yesterday rippling with laughter, sweet as woodland brook falls, gay as trill of forest bird, to-night unresponsive to kiss or call.

A silent home—the patter of baby feet forever hushed—a cradle bed unpressed. Little shoes half worn—dainty garments—shoulder-knots of blue, to match those eyes of yesterday, folded away with an aching heart.

A tiny mound, snow-covered in some quiet grave-yard.

A mother's groping touch, in uneasy slumber, for the fair head that shall never again nestle in her bosom. The low sob, the bitter tear, as broken dreams awoke to sad reality. The hopes of future years wrecked, like fair ships that suddenly go down in sight of land.

The watching of other babies laughing, dimpled, strong, and this one gone! The present agony of grief, the future emptiness of heart, all held in those three little words, "Baby is dead."

Indeed, it is well that we can carelessly copy and soon forget the many words so freighted with woe to those who receive and send them. And yet it cannot harm us now and then to give a tender thought to those for whom our careless pen-stroke is preparing such a weight of grief.—Exchange.

Some of the hard-headed and horny-handed Democracy may be disquieted by the rumor that the Superb Soldier wears corsets to improve his magnificent figure. But we hasten to reassure them. Great Cæsar wore a wig of laurel leaves to conceal the ravages of time on his brow; his nephew Augustus wore shoes with soles an inch thick to give him an imperial height; Louis le Grand, did both and awed France with a toupee a foot high and shoes with heels of six inches. History is full of incidents where great men have used the aid of art to enhance their personal dignity, and why should not Gen. Hancock, whose chest, like that of Mr. Snevellicci in "Nicholas Nickleby," is so important a part of his qualities as a statesman. We must confess that we are not able to establish quite so satisfactory precedents for the dyed beard of Mr. English. The only prominent warrior or statesman whom we now recall as having ornamented himself in this manner, is that individual whose exploits are somewhat dubious in morality and uncertain in history, and who is known to the world as Bluebeard. But it does not follow that a man cannot be a shrewd financier because he dyes his whiskers, and that is Mr. English's chief title to his present exaltation.—Exchange.

At a Hancock ratification meeting at Du Quoin last Saturday, the Republicans stole the cannon, cut the guys to the flag pole and cut the flag rope the night before, and still the Democrats had the largest and most enthusiastic meeting for years.

The latest distinguished Republican, who has fallen into column to swell the Hancock boom, is Hon. E. Joy Morris, of Philadelphia.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH N. J., July 15, 1880.

Pursuant to adjournment the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union met at the court-house, in the city of Elizabeth, on Thursday, July 15th, 1880, at two o'clock p. m.

Present—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Ball, Crowell, Doty, Forsyth, Hubbard, Isenmann, Jewell, Nolte, O'Sullivan, Randolph, Roll, Smith, Thompson and Wilcox—16.

Absent—Freeholder Miller.

The minutes of the last meeting were read (reading of bills on motion omitted) and approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A petition from Dr. H. H. James and other citizens of Rahway, asking for relief from a nuisance caused by an open water course in said city, was read.

On motion of Freeholder Roll the petition was received.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The Committee of the Whole, on bridge at South avenue, Cranford, reported as follows:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Your committee of the whole, appointed to ascertain the necessity for and the probable cost of repairing or rebuilding the bridge over Rahway River on South avenue, Cranford, N. J., beg leave to report that the committee met on Thursday, July 8th, at 4 p. m., and carefully examined the present structure. We find it is a flat deck bridge built of white pine, and was erected eleven years ago; it is 51 feet 6 inches span, and is supported in the middle with four frame bents resting on mud sills having entire rotted away were replaced a year ago. The bridge is at least two feet too low, being in time of freshets, entirely submerged. The framework of the bridge, and the floor beams in places are very much decayed. After examining the bridge as thoroughly as the high water under the bridge would admit of, the committee organized by electing Geo. W. Doty chairman, and Geo. W. F. Randolph secretary. After a free discussion of the subject matter before the committee, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the committee report to the Board the necessity for a new structure, and recommend that a committee of five be appointed with instructions to replace the present structure with an iron one, at a cost not exceeding, for superstructure and masonry complete, of three thousand dollars.

A committee last year examined the bridge in question, and decided, not without some misgiving, that it would last until the following season, and your present committee were anxious to again tide over the rebuilding of the bridge to still another year, but remembering that the North avenue bridge, apparently a sounder one at the time of the disaster, went down with a loaded team upon it, and the county was mulcted for the damages, your committee felt they would not be using that discretion that the traveling public had a right to expect by further chancing the possibility of a similar casualty.

Respectfully submitted,
GEO. W. DOTY, Chairman.
GEO. W. F. RANDOLPH, Secretary.
July 12th, 1880.

Freeholder Roll moved that the report be received and spread upon the minutes, and the recommendation of the committee adopted.

Which was carried by the following vote:

Ayes—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Ball, Crowell, Doty, Forsyth, Hubbard, Isenmann, Jewell, Nolte, O'Sullivan, Randolph, Roll, Smith, Thompson, Wilcox—16.

Nays—None.

Absent—Freeholder Miller.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Freeholder Crowell:

Whereas, A petition has been presented to this Board from citizens of Rahway, asking for relief from a nuisance, caused by an open water course in said city.

Resolved, That a Committee of Three be appointed to examine into the matter, and confer with the County Attorney as to the jurisdiction of the county in the premises; and that the committee be comprised of members not residents of said city.

On motion of Freeholder Randolph, the resolution was adopted, and the following committee appointed: Freeholders Forsyth, Smith and Briant.

By Freeholder Isenmann:

Whereas, The appropriation required to maintain the indigent persons of this county at Morris Plains is very large and constantly increasing, and as it is a matter over which neither this Board or the people of the county have a voice or control, except on the part of this Board to tax the people and pay the bills as presented; and

Whereas, The last Legislature passed an act reducing the amount to be paid for maintaining indigent persons in the Lunatic Asylum from $3.50 to $3 per week; and

Whereas, The managers of the Morris Plains establishment contend that the said act does not apply to their asylum; therefore, they still charge the eight counties sending patients to that institution $3.50 per week, although the act governing them gives them the power to reduce the maintenance to $3 per week; and

Whereas, Several counties of the State, by keeping their insane in asylums of their own, effect a very large saving; therefore, be it

Resolved, That a Committee of Five be appointed to report at an early day as to propriety and probable cost of procuring proper accommodations within the county for our insane; also as to the cost of maintenance and the saving that could probably be effected, if any.

On motion of Freeholder Randolph, adopted, and the present Committee on Lunacy was increased by the addition of Freeholders Miller and Roll, for the purpose indicated.

By Freeholder Crowell:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to examine as to the necessity for and probable expense of repairing or rebuilding a bridge over a branch of Rahway River on Grand Street, Rahway.

On motion of Freeholder Roll, adopted, and the following committee appointed: Freeholders Crowell, Jewell, Randolph, Wilcox, Doty.

The Director announced as the committee on South avenue bridge, Cranford: Freeholders Isenmann, Randolph, Roll, Briant, Wilcox.

PAYMENT OF BILLS.

The following bills were read and ordered paid by resolution and vote of the Board:

Bernard Scott, $48.50; D. Mulford, 84.54; T. F. Roll, 17.50; J. Brucklacher, 3.78; A. M. Clayton, 2.40; Patrick Murphy, 5.00; Wright & Menkel, 40.54; S. R. Mullen, 46.62; James H. Kelley, 63.87; Robert McCloud, 4.60; H. F. Frazer, 5.54; Samuel Osborn, 12.62; John Shay, 4.00; J. R. Hargis, 9.13; J. Brucklacher, 50; George F. Brophy, 1.35; David Mulford, 3.60; J. W. Dunn, 81.30; E. L. Meyer, 32.24; N. W. Pease, 103.07; bill of D. W. Day & Son, 814.68, and J. M. Hickley, 12, ordered paid when properly authenticated.

Freeholder Randolph moved that the bill of State Asylum for Insane of $4,463.50, be paid under protest.

Which was carried by a unanimous vote.

Freeholder Hubbard moved to adjourn. Which was carried.

The Director declared the Board adjourned to meet Thursday, August 5th, 1880, at 2 p. m.

JOHN L. CROWELL,
Clerk.

Neptune is a recently patented colorless substance held in solution, the application of which to silk, woolen, linen and cotton fabrics, paper, feathers and other materials, renders them water repellent and proof against rain, dampness, mildew and moths.

The Long Branch Commissioners prohibit the use of bicycles within the corporate limits.

Notwithstanding Mr. GARFIELD had been urged by some of his best friends, to take the opportunity offered by his letter of acceptance to say something in explanation of the corrupt practices of which he has been condemned, he is silent. Not a syllable is uttered denying guilt of having received bribes in the Credit Mobilier and De Golyer pavement swindles. He does not ask his party even to believe in his innocence. This must be a sore disappointment to them. They have been looking forward to a denial as something upon which they could stand. But Mr. GARFIELD evidently knows and feels that it would be useless to again attempt to meet and overthrow the evidence upon which the Poland Committee condemned him in the Credit Mobilier bribery.

General Garfield says he wrote a De Golyer wooden pavement brief for $5,000. It must have been very brief, as no trace of it can be found. Possibly the Tribune can invent one for the emergency and palm it off upon greenhorns as a genuine document. That organ of perfection understands such business.

New Jersey's Industries.

Prof. Cook, in a recent paper read before the Middlesex County Farmers' Club at New Brunswick, says there are 30,000 farmers in New Jersey, 30,659 farms, 79,000 horses, 62,607 farm laborers, and $285,000,000 capital stock, which produces annually $16,000,000. There are 6,636 manufactories, with 68,000 horse powers and 75,000 operatives, with 280,000,000 capital, which produces $162,000,000, which shows that the products of agriculture are only about twenty per cent. of the capital and labor, while the products of the manufactories amount to about 200 per cent. more than that produced by agriculture. While the number of employees is nearly the same in both, the profits of the farmers are divided among more than 30,000 persons, while the manufacturers profits are divided among 6,600; that is, among about one-fifth the number of persons which gives twenty times as much for the manufacturer as for the farmer. For the improvement of farms and the increase of crops more than $200,000 worth of purchased fertilizers are used in New Jersey every year. The hay crop amounts to more than 500,000 tons a year, of which, perhaps, one-quarter is clover. This is worth for feed more than $1,000,000; but its value as a fertilizer and renovator of the soil is still greater, and is indispensable to every farmer. New Jersey is the largest cranberry-growing State in the Union. The crop last year was 75,000 bushels, and would be still larger were it not for diseases and insects that are at present unmanageable. With properly devised experiments it is thought these enemies might be overcome, and a crop that can be grown on 5,000 acres worth $2,000,000 is certainly worth the effort, if there is a reasonable prospect of doubling it, as there is in this case.

Married Her Own Brother.

A well dressed and handsome lady recently called upon Chief Judge Neilson, of the Brooklyn City Court, and informed him that she had something of a strange and important character to communicate. "I was born of respectable but not wealthy parents in Sweden," the lady said, "and came to this country with an aunt when but a child. In my youth I had a little companion, a boy, about two years my senior, whom I was taught to regard as an orphan adopted by my parents. His name was different from ours. My father died after I left home, and my mother married again. Then the companion of my youth came to America. The meeting between us was most happy, and all the love and affection of our childish days were renewed. Some time after he secured a good position and we were married without the knowledge of our friends. Our married life was a most happy one and in due time a beautiful babe was born to us. My mother came to America rather unexpectedly and called at the house. Upon being informed of my marriage and the name of my husband she expressed the utmost grief, and made the startling announcement that I had married my own brother." Judge Neilson's visitor was so overcome in relating the story that she sank back in her chair and sobbed for several minutes. She was informed by His Honor that in the sight of neither God nor man had she committed any crime. It was evidently the wish of both, he said, that they should cease living as man and wife, and he would take the proper steps to have the marriage declared null and void. The lady left after thanking him in an earnest manner. The case was referred to counsel for settlement. The names of the parties are strenuously withheld.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A DENIAL!
SIMPSON & CO.,
(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE of SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is INCORRECT; or in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient to allow of any being cut, independent of filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the Ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from
Pure Spring Water.
They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self defence.
SIMPSON & CO.

Pure Milk!
The subscriber having purchased the milk route of Mr. L. Waite, is now supplying the route with milk from the

A CARD.
Being compelled by the increase of business to have an assistant, I have taken in my employ Mr. A. J. Mills, a mechanical specialist, his successor for two years being the celebrated Norman W. Kingsley, M. D. & D. D. S. of New York city, and for six years with Dr. Kingsly of Elizabeth, I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent, mechanical operator in every particular. I will therefore take this method of proving to those that wish to take advantage of the lowest and price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, viz: for 3 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole sets of teeth on celluloid for $15, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect. We would strive to do only first-class work, and hope by so doing at the end of 3 months to secure favor and patronage by perfection in operations, rather than by cheap competition.

POETRY.

For "The Constitutionalist."

LINES ON THE DEATH OF ERNEST VICTOR WEBB.

BY MRS. R. A. BRITTEN.

The little lips that gave the good-night kiss,
The little tongue that said good-night, mamma,
The little hand whose every touch was bliss,
The feet that hastened forth to meet papa,

Are still in death; the bruised and broken heart
Shudders that now the household light is gone,
And grief asks why it was that death should part
Fond parents from their darling, precious one.

Grieve not; its pilgrimage has been forgiven;
It was the soul that sparkled in those eyes;
The clay is cold, and from the spirit riven,
Yours still lives happy in paradise.

And you shall meet it sooner than you think;
Time soon wears on and day by day we stand,
Close by and soon to pass the tremendous brink
That guards the way to the eternal land.

ARE ALL THE CHILDREN IN?

The darkness falls, the wind is high,
Dense black clouds fill the western sky;
The storm will soon begin;
The thunders roar, the lightnings flash,
I hear the great round rain-drops dash—
Are all the children in?

They're coming softly to my side;
Their forms within my arms I hide—
No other arms are sure;
The storm may rage with fury wild,
With trusting faith each little child
With mother feels secure.

But future days are drawing near—
They'll go from this warm shelter here
Out in the world's wild din;
The rain will fall, the cold winds blow,
I'll sit alone and long to know
Are all the children in?

Will they have shelter then secure,
Where hearts are waiting strong and sure,
And love is true when tried?
Or, will they find a broken reed,
When strength of heart they so much need,
To help them brave the tide?

God knows it all; his will is best,
I'll shield them now and yield the rest
In his most righteous hand;
Sometimes souls he loves are riven
By tempests wild, and thus are driven
Nearer the better land.

If he should call us home before
The children go, on that blessed shore,
Afar from care and sin,
I know that I shall watch and wait
Till he, the keeper of the gate,
Lets all the children in.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

IN MEMORY OF CASH DOWN.

He is at rest. Cash down is dead and buried, and the mourners are home from the funeral. He was a well-known man, but of late years he was not half appreciated. There was a time when he stood head and shoulders above Trust and Dead, but times somehow have changed. Cash down left quite a large family, who will take warning by his sad fate. He cut his life short by many years in his efforts to keep his word and meet his pecuniary obligations, and they will not follow in his footsteps.

There was a time when Cash Down was met with a smile and a hearty shake of the hand. If he wanted his buggy repaired the blacksmith would figure fine and depend upon his pay the hour the work was finished. He could then take the money and become Cash Down himself, making a difference of ten per cent. in his favor. If Cash Down wanted a new suit of clothes the tailor made a difference of $5 between him and Slow Pay, and the money could be sent East to pay for his cloth. The last time Cash Down was out on the street he saw Slow Pay, Bad Debt and Dead Beat walking arm in arm, and the blacksmith, the taylor, the grocer and merchant shook hands with each of them and replied:

"Certainly—certainly. You can have what you want on time, and I'll sell you just as cheaply, and wait upon you as promptly, as I will upon Cash Down."

One of them might be forced to pay in six months; the second might be forced to pay in a year or two, the third didn't intend to pay at any time. They get the same treatment as Cash Down, and a great rush was made to send home their goods.

The old man entered a grocery store where he had paid out hundreds of dollars in ready money and asked the price of sugar. Slow Pay sauntered in after him and asked him the same question and both were given one figure. Yet at that time Cash Down had paid over the counter more than a thousand dollars in ready cash; and Slow Pay was in debt fifty dollars and adding on the figure.

Cash Down went to a dry goods store to purchase a dress for his wife. Bad Debt was ahead of him. Cash down pulled out a $20 bill and paid for his goods on the spot. Bad Debt picked up his bundle and told them to charge it. In the one case the merchant had his money in the cash-box to help pay for a new stock. In the other his collector would be months, if not years, getting it, or in the end would be charged to profit and loss. Yet Cash Down had to pay the same price that Bad Debt did.

Cash down wanted a new pair of boots. He went to his old shoemaker and was suprised to hear that he would be charged fifty cents more than for the last pair.

"Has there been a great advance in the price of leather?" he asked:

"Oh, no."

Do you pay your workmen more?"

"Not a cent. You see, Slow Pay, Bad Debt and Dead Beat are into me pretty heavily, and I must make it up by charging cash customers a little more! That's a way we all have of doing."

Cash Down must then pay the same prices as Dead Beat, and help make a good Dead Beat's indebtedness in addition. He went home, sick in mind and body. The doctor attending him was bound by solemn agreement to charge as much as if called to see Dead Beat, and his perscriptions cost more, because he had to help to pay Dead Beat's old bill at the drug store. When he died the undertaker made no reduction in his casket, and the tomb-stone cutters put an extra five dollars on the price of the shaft to pay the balance due from Bad Debt for the one furnished for his child's grave!

Mrs. Cash Down, widow of the late deceased, went down after her mourning yesterday. She bought a bonnet at one place and said she'd pay some time this summer. She got dress goods at another, and simply told them to put it down on the books. She needed shoes, and she'd hand it in some day. She had a hundred dollars in her pocket, but she did'nt pay out a cent. She had learned something.—Detroit Free Press.

BROUGHT TO TIME.

There is no foolishness about some of the fathers of Dubuque county, Iowa, who have marriageable daughters, and they know how to precipitate business when the fruit is right for plucking and hangs, wasting its sweetness, when it should be plucked. Matters were brought to a climax with a rush at a certain farmer's residence in Vernon township recently. A young tiller of the soil had for months been paying most assiduous attentions to one of his daughters but he was such a bashful, modest chap, never having been much in the company of girls, except this one, that he had never been able to raise his courage sufficiently high to pop the question.

He had gone to the house in which the lady lived at least on twenty different occasions, resolved to know his fate, but when ushered into the presence of the fair one, in whose keeping he had placed his heart, his courage would invariably go back on him, and he would invariably return to his lonely room in greater suspense than before. Upon the evening in question he had determined, come what would, he would once for all decide the matter, but, as upon each former occasion he could not get the proposal further than his throat. There it stuck, and he determined to gulp it down and give up the siege, when the door opened and in walked the girl's father, who advanced to where they were sitting and thus addressed them:

"I came out to put a stop to this foolishness. It ain't countin' expenses I'm lookin' at, for coal is cheap and wood can be had for the haulin', but I'm sick and tired of this billin', and cooin' like a pair of sick doves, keepin' me awake of nights, and it's got to be stopped right here. Do you love John Henry well enough to marry him?"

"Why, father, I—I—you must——"

"Stop that foolishin'," yelled the old man. "Answer yes or no, and quick too. It's got to be settled now or never."

"Well—but father, don't you know—if you'll only wait, and—"

"Dry up; answer yes or no. Speak!" roared the old gent.

"Well, then, yes! There now," and Mary again hid her face.

"That's business; that's the way to talk. Now, John, look here—look up here, or I'll shake you all to pieces. Do you want the gal o' mine for a wife? Speak out like a man now."

"Why Mr.——ain't this rather——I mean can't you—"

"Speak it out, or out of this house you'll go head foremost. I won't wait a minute longer. There's the gal, and there ain't a likelier gal in the States, and you just heard her say that she wanted you. Now, John, I won't stand a bit of foolin'. Once for all, yes or no?"

"Well, yes, sir. I have been presumptuous enough to hope that I—"

"Oh, stop your soft talk; the thing is settled now. You two fools would have been six months more at the job that I have done in five minutes. I never saw such foolin' as there is among young people nowadays. Ain't like when I was young—an' now, good-night. You can talk the thing over, an' you an' me, John'll go up town an' get the license tomorrow. Soon be time to get to plowin'; no time for love making then. Good-night, good-night; I hope I wasn't too rough, but I was determined to fix the thing one way or t'other," and the old man went back to bed.

Now that the ice was broken, the young couple laid all their plans for the future, and John felt just a little bad at the comfort he had lost when Mary looked up at him shyly, and said:

"This would have been all right months ago, John, if you h3dn't been so skeery. I knowed all the time that you wanted to ask me, but it wasn't my place to say anything, you know."

A BRIGAND'S GRATITUDE.

Statesmen have not a high opinion of the gratitude of their followers. Many of them have learned, with Sir Robert Walpole, to define it as "a lively sense of future favors." Even those who take men as they are, and do not expect all the virtues of the Decalogue in a place-expectant, have often had cause to say with Wadsworth:

> I've heard of hearts unkind, kind deeds
> With coldness still returning;
> Alas! the gratitude of men
> Hath oftener left me mourning.

And yet, "the still, small voice of gratitude," as Gray calls it, has frequently influenced the most obdurate of men. An English official once had an experience which taught him that even an outlaw may be gratitude.

He was traveling in a Greek province of Turkey, notorious for the number and fierceness of its brigands. One of the bands was commanded by a "Captain," on whose head a high price had been set, and for whom a Turkish force was then seeking.

He was honored by the peasants as a regular leromenos. The name, which means soiled, is, among the Greeks, the title of honor for a brigand, whose filthy garments indicate that he has been long "on the road," and so fully employed as not to have had time to wash them.

With a strong escort, the Englishman was journeying at night. An adventurous spirit led him to stray away from his companions. He was following, by the light of noon a forest path, when suddenly his bridle was seized by several stout fellows.

Grasping his revolver, the Englishman essayed to use it, but was prevented by the "Captain" laying hold of it. A struggle ensued, in which the pistol was broken.

At this moment, when self-defence was out of the question, the Englishman thought of another means of protection. Removing the white cover of his official cap, he pointed out the crown on it, and announced himself as an officer of the English Government.

Instantly the "Captain" ordered his bridle to be released, and with his companions retired a short distance to consult. In a few minutes he returned to inquire if the gentleman was a son of the Consul of the neighboring town.

"I am," was the answer.

"You are free to go where you please," replied the "Captain," with much feeling. "Your father has saved the lives and property of many Greeks. Besides, we all love the English.

"A few miles hence," he continued, "you will fall in with the camp of the Pasha, who, with 800 troops, intends to surround yonder mountain, where he expects to intrap us. Give me your word of honor not to reveal until to-morrow the fact of meeting me; then you and your escort will be allowed to pass unmolested."

The Englishman gave the promise, and in a couple of hours entered the camp of the Pasha. There he was entertained with an excellent supper, and also with the plan of capturing the brigands on the next day.

Bound as he was by his word, the Englishman silently listened. But when, on the morrow, the Pasha found his game flown, and learned that his guests had encountered the brigand, he was much annoyed. But he knew too well the English character, which regards a pledged word as an oath, to find fault with the official's reticence.

HOUSEKEEPING.

Let us take time for reading. It will never come if we wait to have every speck of dirt removed from each article we use. We can always find something else to do, and conscientious housekeepers with little taste for mental pursuits, are apt to make blunders. "The life is more than meat, and body than raiment," which means—if I may be allowed to preach a wee bit of a sermon—that you yourself with all your immortal faculties are of more, vastly more, importance than your house and furniture, and clothing and cookery, and these are utterly worthless if they serve as hindrances, instead of helps, to your individual culture. No kind of labor is degrading if done from a worthy motive, and no motive can be nobler than the womanly desire to make a pleasant home. With the end in view—with love as prompter—washing and darning, and scrubbing, are all elevated from drudgery to a noble place. But our home cannot be properly attractive and profitable to our families, if we ourselves are dull and harrassed. Our brothers, and fathers, and husbands and sons need cheerful and intelligent companions at home far more than they need nice dinners and spotless linen. It is necessary that good housekeepers should also read, and reflect, and listen and converse.—Selected.

AIMLESS PEOPLE.

A man who should start off on a journey without any idea where he was going, or when he would return, would be regarded as very foolish.

Yet in the journey of human life many persons seem to have no definite purpose to accomplish. They have nothing in particular that they seek to accomplish. They do not even know what they would like to do. Their lives are aimless; is it any wonder that they are unsuccessful?

People of this description miss a great deal of zest and enjoyment of which human life is capable. Action to which their is no mainspring is not only languid and insipid, but it affords little pleasure or satisfaction.

Every young man should lay out some plan to the execution of which he should diligently devote himself. It is pleasant to succeed; but he who attempts something and fails is more respected than he who has not blood enough in his veins to even try to do anything.

Girls are keen in their perception and penetration of character, and they soon set down as inconsiderable nobodies the young men of their acquaintance who are destitute of ambition.

An aimless young man never develops his own strength. Through continual inaction his faculties become listless and benumbed. The tendency with him is always to become a dwarf instead of a giant.

Of course in selecting an object of ambition discretion is to be used. It must be something in keeping with the natural taste of the individual, or it will rarely if ever be achieved. Being in harmony with his tastes, the loftier the object the greater will be the gratification which its accomplishment will afford.

When Andrew Johnson was President of the United States he was twitted with once having been a tailor; but he pointed to the sign on which his name had been painted in his humble youth, and triumphantly replied: "Well, didn't I make good clothes?"

He who makes the highest excellence in his calling the first object of his ambition, whether his occupation be that of a tailor or a President, gets a thousand times more enjoyment out of life than he who is content to aimless drift along with with the tide of mediocrity.—Ledger.

THAT AWFUL COW.

There probably isn't a woman in North America who isn't afraid of cows, and there is not a cow in North America which would harm one hair of any woman's head if it had the best chance in the world and no other job on hand. Wednesday forenoon a stray cow, perhaps from the country for a taste of baled hay, found a gate open and entered a yard on Second street. The woman came to the front door dressed to go out, but seeing the cow she uttered a scream and hurried back. There wasn't a thing in the yard for the cow to damage or to eat, and being tired—she raised her cud, lay down and began to chew away as if she had got home from a long visit to Europe. The woman next appeared at a side window, and called upon the cow to "get out." A dog might have "got," but the cow didn't. Then the woman threw a rag at the cow, and called for the dog. The dog didn't come and the rag didn't scare. Then the woman shook a pillow at the cow, and peremptorily ordered her off the premises, but the bovine half closed her eyes and let her thoughts run ahead to fly time. As the cow wouldn't go, and as the woman couldn't go till the cow did, sterner measures were resorted to. A tin pan was held out of the window and beaten with a spoon, but that cow couldn't be fooled into believing that Fourth of July had come. Then the woman went into the back yard to throw clubs over the fence and knock a couple of horns off. The first one hit the blinds on the next house, and the cow's horns stuck tighter than ever. Cries of "git out!" were again resorted to without effect, and then the woman watched at the front door till she saw a boy come along, and she opened it and cried out, "Oh! boy! there's a horrible cow in our yard! Prop the gate open and get all the boys and police you can and drive her out, and I'll give you a whole quarter of a dollar! Hurry up, for she looks as if she was getting ready to come right in here!" The boy "humped" the dangerous animal out in thirty seconds, received his pay, and the woman gave up going down town for fear she would have a "nervous spell."—Free Press.

ADVENTURES IN THE DARK.

Last night, just after Blinkus and his wife were snugly stowed away in bed, Mrs. B. thought she heard the front door slam.

"Hubbie, dear, do you here that front door slammin'?"

"No, dearie, I locked it just before I wound up the clock."

"I didn't see you go in the hall."

"But I did, love."

"I think you must be mistaken."

"Well, I know when I lock the door, dum it!"

"Now, you shan't swear at me. That door is open and you know it. S'posin the burglars get in and carry off the silver. We'd be in a nice fix."

"They'd be worse off with the old plated stuff. Besides, who ever heard of a burglar above Ferry street?"

"If you don't get up and lock that door I'll rush out and scream for the police. I'll rouse the neighborhood if it's the last act of my life."

Blinkus somewhat alarmed at the threat rose up and began to fumble around for a match.

"The matches are at the end of the wash stand, love."

Blinkus paused at the place designated, and broke a soap dish.

"I never saw such an awkward man since I was born," quoth Mrs. B. from the bed, just as he stumbled back over the spittoon and sat in it so forcibly that it was smashed into forty pieces.

"O, Lord!" ejaculated Mrs. B.

Blinkus next struck his toe against a towel rack, and an oath dissolved itself in the darkness. Then he stepped on baby's rattle and ran one of the pints into his foot half an inch. Jumping aside he upset the centre table and began to flounder out toward the hall. His young hopeful's carriage was there and he fell over it six different ways before he succeeded in reaching the door.

"Was it open?" queried a voice from the bed.

"No."

"Oh, it must have been something else I heard."

WHERE DOES THE DAY BEGIN?

As a matter of fact, the day begins all round the world—not at the same instant, but just as the sun visits successive portions of the earth in its journey from East to West. But the traveler, who crosses the Pacific ocean can give another answer to the above question; that on the one hundred and eightieth degree of longitude—one-half the circumference of the globe, starting from Greenwich east or west—there is an arbitrary change or dropping of a day, and that at this point, if anywhere, the day may be said to begin. It was with strange feelings that the writer, crossing the Pacific having gone to bed on Saturday night, leaving everything pertaining to the almanac in a satisfactory condition, awoke on Monday morning! Sunday had completely dropped from our calendar for that week at least. Every one knows that in traveling round the world from East to West a day is lost, and in order to adjust his reckoning to that of the place he has left, one must drop a day as if he had not lived it, when in reality the time has passed by lengthening every day during the journey. For a long time it was the custom for sailors to effect this change pretty much where they pleased; but now it has become a settled rule among American and English navigators that at the one hundred and eightieth degree a day must be passed over if going West, and one added if going East, in which latter case the traveler enjoys two Sundays or two Thursdays, as the case may be. It is most likely that this particular degree was decided on from the fact that, except a few scattered islands of Polynesia, there are no large communities, with their vast commercial and social transactions, to be effected by the change.

HE LAUGHED, TOO.

The Chief of Police yesterday had a visit from an old farmer living out on the Centre Line road, who had a story to tell. After two or three efforts, he began:

"I vas goin' home last night ven I afordakes two men on der roadt. Dose fellers dey laft, und saidt vould I gif em a ride. I laft, too, und say shump in."

"Yes, I understand."

"Pooty queek one feller laft und saidt he likes Dutchmens, 'cause his uncle vas a Dutchmans. Dot vas all right, und so I laft, too. I vas realy tickled, und I shakes all ufer."

"Yes."

"In a leetle vhile one feller vants me to schange a seven-tollar bill, so he could gif some money to der orphan asylum, und he lafts ha! ha! Dot tickled me some more, und I lafts, too. Den der odder feller he grabs me py ter coller, und pulls me down pehind und says dey looks in my pockets for a steampoat dot vas stolen from Detroit. Dot makes us all laff like some goot shoke."

"It must have been funny."

"It vas. Dose fellers took out my wallet and counted up der monish. I had shust ten dollar, und dey left und saidt dot dey must go on some trips to the seashore mit dot. Dot tickles me some more, und I laft, too."

"Well, what then?"

"Vell, den dey chumped oud und put deir fingers on deir noses und says 'Good-py, old Dutchmans,' und avay dey goes like some hore-races."

"And you didn't laugh at that?"

"Vell, not pooty much. I vas already to, but I stoppdt. If dem fellers vas up to shokes, it vas all right, but if dey vas robbers I vants you to catch 'em und gif 'em some peeces of my mind like dunder! I don'd like somepody to laff at me vhen dey don'd feel tickled all over."

TOO MUCH FOR AN ECHO.

Some years ago, a remarkably fine echo was discovered on a gentleman's estate. He was proud of it, of course, and excited considerable envy by exhibition.

A retired tradesman, who owned an adjoining estate, felt especially chagrined, but was greatly encouraged by an Irishman, who went over the land with the hope of discovering one somewhere.

He declared himself successful in discovering the most wonderful echo ever heard, and stood ready to unfold his secret for a consideration.

The owner listened to the echo, and thought there was something peculiar about it, he paid the money. An afternoon was appointed for his friends to come and listen to the marvelous discovery.

"Hello!" cried, in stentorian tones, the Hibernian who had promised to find an echo.

"Hello!" came back from the hillside.

"How are you?" yelled one of the company.

And echo answered, in a suspiciously different key:

"How are you?"

All went well until, just before retiring, one of the company, putting his hand to his mouth, cried out:

"Will you have some whisky?"

Such a question would disclose the character of any reasonable echo. It was certainly too much for the one that had been discovered on that estate.

Judge to the surprise of the party when the answer came back, in clear, affirmative tones:

"Thank you, sor; I will, if ye please."

It was too bad to put such a temptation before poor Echo.

PEARLS.

One has only to die to be praised.

There is no good in preaching to the hungry.

Educate the whole man—the head, the heart, the body, the head to think, the heart to feel, the body to act.

Love never reasons, but profusely gives; gives like a thoughtless prodigal, its all, and trembles then, lest it has done too little.

The covetous man lives as if the world were made altogether for him and not he for the world; to take in everything and part with nothing.

The innocence of childhood consists not in rectitude of inclination, but in incapacity for the commission of evil. The vivacity of children is always charming, because it is always sincere. A grave child is a rose without fragrance.

Have not the cloak to make when it begins to rain.

WATCHWORDS OF THE CAMPAIGN.

"The right of trial by Jury, the Habeas Corpus, the Liberty of the Press, the Freedom of Speech, the Natural Rights of Persons, and the Rights of Property must be preserved."—Order of General Hancock, November 29, 1867.

"I will maintain that the entire freedom of thought and speech is consistent with the noblest aspirations of man and the happiest condition of his race.

"Power may destroy the forms but not the principles of justice; these will live in spite even of the sword."—Letter of General Hancock, March 9, 1869.

"Military interference with elections is prohibited by law, and no soldiers will be allowed to appear at any polling places unless, as citizens of the State, they are registered as voters, and then only for the purpose of voting."—Order of General Hancock, December 18, 1867.

"Nothing can intimidate me from doing what I believe to be honest and right.

"The great principles of American Liberty are still the lawful inheritance of this people, and ever should be."—General Order of General Hancock, November 29, 1867.

GARFIELD—DE GOLYER.

The advocates of Mr. Garfield squirm terribly over the damaging revelations concerning that $5,000 sale of Congressional influence to the De Golyer wooden pavement contractors.

They talk about Democratic lies.

That is silly invective—no argument.

The Democrats base their antagonism solely upon the record, which, fortunately for truth and justice, has neither been burned at Washington, nor pocketed by Davenport.

It is proof positive against Garfield.

Chittenden, a party to the infamous contract, but who was afterwards cheated out of his full share of the plunder, in a letter to De Golyer and Company said:—

"The influence of General Garfield has been secured."

"He carries the purse of the United States—the Chairman of the Committee of Appropriations."

"Everything is in the best shape, the connections complete."

"I can hardly realize that we have General Garfield with us."

"All the appropriations of the District come from him."

On such evidence of a mover in the fraud, on Judicial decision, on his own admissions, and the records of Congress, Garfield stands convicted at the bar of public opinion.

A thousand partisan falsehood grinding machines cannot budge the verdict.

It is there, a glaring protest against his Presidential aspirations.

Any man that would deliberately sell out the public interest as a Representative in Congress is not fit to be entrusted with Executive patronage.

We judge and condemn Mr. Garfield entirely upon recorded facts.

Nothing more—nothing less.

Out West they have named a town "Garfield," and it is to be paved by the De Golyer contractors.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH.

The election of the Democratic candidates for President and Vice President, Hancock and English, will not only justly reward patriotic services, integrity and ability, but prove the triumph of principles and measures indispensable to the security of personal freedom and the permanent prosperity of country.

The election of Hancock and English and a Democratic Congress means:—

Fraternal feelings and mutual co-operation for the public good throughout the entire land, North, South, East and West, and among all classes of citizens, white and colored, rich and poor.

An end to malignant sectional animosity, and in lieu thereof the raising into glorious supremacy conciliation and confidence.

Economy in public expenditures, reformation of long existing abuses in the administration of government, exposure and punishment of frauds.

Equity of law, through which the small capitalist and dealer can receive and enjoy the same rights and privileges now accorded to the large.

Financial independence, and free circulation of gold and silver, the legal tender of the Constitution.

Revival of foreign commerce under the American flag, and enlargement of markets for our varied produces of the soil, loom and forge.

The total annihilation of official bribery and corruption.

Personal liberty at home and abroad, in the work shop and at the polls.

Equal protection to every species of industry, enterprise and labor.

The throttling of heartless monopolies.

The abolishment of swindling subsidies.

For President,
WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.
For Vice President,
WILLIAM H. ENGLISH.

STILL COMING OVER.

Among the latest republicans to join the HANCOCK ranks is GEORGE WILKES, of the Spirit of the Times. He gives his reasons in a letter to a friend in Connecticut, in which he says:

MY DEAR HALL: I have been away for a week, and your last letter has lain unanswered so long that I must jump its current topics to express my great gratification at the nomination of Gen. Hancock.

Garfield pleased me, because his name rose upon the collapse of a horrid spectre which had frightened the country to its very marrow; but Hancock fills the bill—an honest soldier who knows nothing but his duty, and will be sure to leave the people, unhampered by "politics," to their own free will. That is the true theory of the Presidential institution.

I know Hancock, and I like him. He is a man of sound ability, and will wear well.

I do not predict anything, but I believe Gen. Hancock will be invited to the White House, in large part by the very same patriotic men who sent honest Abraham Lincoln there for two terms. I shall take great pleasure in casting my vote for him as a man without stain and equal to the Presidential station. For that purpose I will be found at the polls in New York at the election in next November.

GEO. WILKES.

READ THE LETTERS.

We invite attentive perusal of the letters accepting the Democratic nominations for President and Vice-President, published in our present issue. They are both admirable documents, dignified, explicit and patriotic, loyal to the Constitution, meaning exactly what they say, and backed by the determination to discharge duty for the honor of country and benefit of all the people. That is what is needed and that can alone be realized through the election of Hancock and English.

Is a change desirable? ask the Radical organs. Oh, no! not at all—to the Republicans. So many would have to skip, you know.

The Greenbackers ought to be well supplied with political lies out of the whole cloth. For what other use have they a Weaver?

A postmaster in Campbell county, Va., sent a twenty-dollar Confederate bill to the Republican committee at Washington in answer to an assessment.

"I fights mit HANCOCK in the army, and I fights mit HANCOCK now," was the prompt reply of a German Republican ex-soldier, when asked how he stood.

Some of the Western papers have found out that Garfield also once had an oil company, but that he didn't loose anything by it, although a good many others did.

The only charge against Hancock that the Chicago Times finds will stick is the story that he was wounded at Gettysburg. That seems to be sustained by facts.

The True American says: "It begins to look very much as if the Republican press will soon deny that there was ever such a thing as a Credit Mobilier investigation."

Our Republican contemporaries are now wielding the whitewash brush with rather an unsteady hand. Daub after daub fails to cover up those dirty spots on the character of Garfield.

WILMINGTON, Del., August 2.—John H. Harris, a colored Democratic speaker from Virginia, attempted to make a speech at Newcastle on Saturday night and was stoned by other negroes and forced to seek the protection of the sheriff.

Republican organs and stump speakers are ardent advocates of "economy." Their strongest point is that our annual expenditures now are less than during the war. Of course they make no allusion to the fact that appropriations were wildly extravagant until the Democrats secured a majority in the House of Representatives.

The Hancock Campaign Banner, published at Carlisle, Pa., warns the Democrats that the apparent apathy of the Republicans in regard to the Presidential contest may mean a more desperate concentration of their strength upon the securing of a majority in the next Congress. Of the two prizes they reckon this as the greater.

Puck, the great caricaturist of this country, now declares his independence thus: "We are neither Republican nor Democratic. We have only one platform, and that is the right. Accusations of being sold won't frighten us into saying that Gen. Hancock is a nincompoop, or that he jumped on the corpse of Mrs. Surratt. The man has a clean record, and there is no use in lying about it. Nor are we going to state that Gen. Garfield's record is as spotless as the pin feathers of an angel; for it is not so."

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY FOR HANCOCK.

From the flowery groves of the Southland
 And the fields of cotton and cane,
To the windswept lakes of the Northland
 And the pine-clad hills of Maine,

Brave men are dwelling by thousands,
 Who [illegible] were so lost to stay,
When some wore the blue of the Union,
 And others Confederate gray.

The passions of war have subsided,
 Its hatreds have gone with the past,
And now, like an army of brothers,
 They all come together at last.

They follow a man who in battle
 Was bravest among the brave,
And who, when the fighting was ended,
 Was first to console and save.

With him are his war-worn soldiers,
 And those that he faced in the fray;
The men who wore blue are for Hancock,
 With those who have worn the gray.

For peace and a perfect union,
 For brotherhood over the land,
They are forming shoulder to shoulder,
 And are marching hand in hand.

Now, "Down with all thoughts of dissension!"
 Say those who have worn the gray,
"Away with all sectional feeling!"
 The blue-coated veterans say.

They rally for peace and for union,
 And who shall dare say them nay?
They rally in blue for Hancock,
 For Hancock they rally in gray.

THE WRONG PASSENGER.

CAPTAIN CADWALLADER, an employee in the Recorder's office of Bucks county, Pa., wrote to Major James B. Roberts of Newtown, hitherto a strong Republican, and only a few years ago their candidate for County Treasurer, a letter asking his opinion in regard to the formation of a permanent veterans' club. That Cadwallader woke up the wrong passenger, may be seen from the correspondence, as follows:

RECORDER'S OFFICE, BUCKS CO.,
DOYLESTOWN, Pa., July 15th, 1880.

Major J. B. Roberts—Newtown, Pa.:—What do you think in regard to organizing in the lower end of the county a permanent veterans' club of the soldiers of the war—(who saved the Union of the States?) that the principles of the Republican party may be sustained, that those who saved the Union by their acts and deeds, may still control the destinies of our government? The Republican party were our friends during the war, have since maintained their loyalty to us, and so long as they continue to reward us, I trust we shall ever be found acting in concert with them. Should the Democratic party be successful with a Union soldier at the head of their ticket, I fear it will be placing in power and rewarding the boys in gray vice the boys in blue; therefore, I think it behooves us to organize in the protection of our gallant volunteers and the supremacy of the loyal hearts of our nation. Let me hear from you at an early day in regard to the movement. I am truly,

T. CADWALLADER.

To the above, Major Roberts replies as follows:

NEWTOWN, Pa., July 22, 1880.

Captain T. Cadwallader, Doylestown, Pa. My Dear Sir:—Yours of the 15th inst., asking my opinion about forming a veteran club in the lower end of Bucks county, "that the principles of the Republican party may be sustained," is at hand. Captain, my opinion is, that you have left this matter too late. You will find, I think, this fall, thousands of old veterans in the Republican party giving their hurrahs and votes to General Hancock. You say, should the Democratic party be successful with their candidate, a Union soldier, you fear it will be placing the boys in gray, instead of the boys in blue, in power. Captain, were you ever in the army of the Potomac? Who was the most dreaded Confederate officer, noted for lying in ambush and shooting down in cold blood the boys in blue? Was it not Colonel Mosby? Yes; and to-day he is being rewarded by the Republican Chief Magistrate as American Consul at Hong Kong, in China. Gen. Longstreet, another rebel officer, is filling the mission of Minister to Turkey, and hosts of others I could mention. But the war is over, and has been for fifteen long years, and I propose to drop the matter and fall in with enough more of the boys in blue to place at the head of our government that superb and fearless Union soldier, General Winfield Scott Hancock, born a Pennsylvanian and the pride of the State. And Captain, in so doing, I sincerely believe we will bring about a permanent and good feeling among all, which never can be so long as sectional strife continues. Truly yours.

J. B. ROBERTS, late Major, &c.

The development of material resources and the prosperity of country can never be promoted by sectional strife.

The National Democratic Executive Committee has established its headquarters for the campaign at No. 135 Fifth avenue, New York City.

General Hancock's renowned deeds in peace and in war, and the scrupulous honesty and justice with which he has discharged every trust confided to him, are the rich heritage of our country's history.

The National Democratic Committee have appointed Hon. Orestes Cleveland, Hon. H. C. Kelsey and Hon. Ashbel Green to represent this State in the National Democratic Finance Committee.

The welfare of the whole country demands that sectionalism shall be abolished and the "bloody shirt" eliminated from politics. The election of General Hancock will secure that most desirable result.

A Democratic Congress during the past five years saved the people of the United States a hundred and fifty million dollars. With a Democratic Administration in authority the saving would be doubled.

After slurring the Democrats for nominating a soldier for President, the Garfielders are vainly endeavoring to show that their candidate is the greatest warrior that ever drew sword since the days of Napoleon.

No veil can hide the iniquity of a Congressman who sells his official influence. There stands Mr. Garfield, and all the partisan ingenuity in the world cannot weave a web thick enough to cover his proven guilt.

Garfield ran away from the army to run for Congress. Hancock stood bravely by his guns until triumph was secured and the Union saved. No wonder the Union soldiers are so enthusiastic for Winfield Scott Hancock.

A British barkentine has arrived at St. Johns from Plymouth, England, bringing with her a large, white, painted figurehead, which the captain affirms to be unmistakably the head of the ill-starred training ship Atalanta.

In their desperation, the Republicans are now trying to make out that General Garfield was the real hero of Chickamaugua. General Rosecrans, who commanded Garfield and won the victory, supports Hancock for President.

At the Democratic National Headquarters in New York the most encouraging news has been received from all parts of the country. The skies are bright with the promise of an overwhelming victory for the people in November.

The expenses of the General Government, exclusive of pensions and interest on the public debt, are now $20,000,000 in excess of like expenses, in proportion to population, in 1859. That shows why a change of administration is needed for the public good.

General HANCOCK left the field on a stretcher and returned before his wounds healed. General GARFIELD left the field before powder commenced to burn to take a seat in Congress and never returned. This is the military record of the two candidates in a nutshell.

THE GREAT FAIR.

A communication was received from the Mayor of New York on Tuesday, notifying the Board of Aldermen that the Commission on the World's Fair in 1883 was about to sit in that city, and recommending that they be allowed the use of the Governor's Room. President Morris moved that the privilege be granted, which motion was unanimously adopted.

THE COMMISSION ON GENERAL LAWS.

The Commission composed of Senators Deacon (Chairman,) Lawrence and Gardner, Assemblyman Van Duyne, Martin, Hunt, Miller and Herring, appointed by the last Legislature to examine into the proposed general taxation laws, and to report the same to the next Legislature for its action, met on Thursday at the Ocean Hotel, at Long Branch. Senator Deacon was elected Chairman and Assemblyman Van Duyne Secretary. After general consultation it was resolved that each member ascertain what changes are necessary in his own immediate locality and report at another meeting to be called by the Chairman.

The Letters of Acceptance of Hancock and English.

"GOVERNOR'S ISLAND,
NEW YORK CITY, July 29, 1880.

"GENTLEMEN: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of July 13, 1880, apprising me formally of my nomination to the office of President of the United States by the National Democratic Convention lately assembled in Cincinnati. I accept the nomination with grateful appreciation of the confidence reposed in me. The principles enunciated by the convention are those I have cherished in the past and shall endeavor to maintain in the future.

"The thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution of the United States, embodying the results of the war for the Union, are inviolable. If called to the Presidency I should deem it my duty to resist with all of my power any attempt to impair or evade the full force and effect of the Constitution, which in every article, section and amendment is the supreme law of the land. The Constitution forms the basis of the Government of the United States. The powers granted by it to the legislative, executive and judicial departments define and limit the authority of the General Government; powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, belong to the States respectively or to the people. The General and State governments, each acting in its own sphere without trenching upon the lawful jurisdiction of the other, constitute the Union. This Union, comprising a General Government with general powers and State governments with State powers for purposes local to the States, is a polity the foundations of which were laid in the profoundest wisdom.

"This is the Union our fathers made, and which has been so respected abroad and so beneficent at home. Tried by blood and fire, it stands to-day a model form of free popular government, a political system which, rightly administered, has been and will continue to be the admiration of the world. May we not say nearly in the words of Washington: The unity of government which constitutes us one people is justly dear to us; it is the main pillar in the edifice of our real independence, the support of our peace, safety and prosperity and of that liberty we so highly prize and intend at every hazard to preserve?

"But no form of government however carefully devised, no principles however sound, will protect the rights of the people unless administration is faithful and efficient. It is a vital principle in our system that neither fraud nor force must be allowed to subvert the rights of the people. When fraud, violence or incompetence controls, the noblest constitutions and wisest laws are useless. The bayonet is not a fit instrument for collecting the votes of freemen. It is only by a full vote, free ballot and fair count that the people can rule in fact as required by the theory of our Government. Take this foundation away and the whole structure falls. Public office is a trust, not a bounty bestowed upon the holder; no incompetent or dishonest person should ever be intrusted with it, or if appointed they should be promptly ejected. The basis of a substantial, practical civil-service reform must first be established by the people in filling the elective offices; if they fix a high standard of qualifications for office and sternly reject the corrupt and incompetent, the result will be decisive in governing the action of the servants whom they intrust with appointing power.

"The war for the Union was successfully closed more than fifteen years ago. All classes of our people must share alike in the blessings of the Union, and are equally concerned in its perpetuity and in the proper administration of public affairs. We are in a state of profound peace. Henceforth let it be our purpose to cultivate sentiments of friendship and not of animosity among our fellow-citizens. Our material interests, varied and progressive, demand our constant and united efforts. A sedulous and scrupulous care of the public credit, together with a wise and economical management of our governmental expenditures, should be maintained in order that labor may be lightly burdened and that all persons may be protected in their rights to the fruits of their own industry. The time has come to enjoy the substantial benefits of reconciliation. As one people we have common interests. Let us encourage the harmony and generous rivalry among our own industries which will revive our languishing merchant marine, extend our commerce with foreign nations, assist our merchants, manufacturers and producers to develop our vast natural resources and increase the prosperity and happiness of our people.

"If elected I shall, with the divine favor, labor with what ability I possess to discharge my duties with fidelity according to my convictions, and shall take care to protect and defend the Union and to see that the laws be faithfully and equally executed in all parts of the country alike. I will assume the responsibility, fully sensible of the fact that to administer rightly the functions of government is to discharge the most sacred duty that can devolve upon an American citizen.

"I am, very respectfully yours,
"WINFIELD S. HANCOCK.

"To the Honorable John W. Stevenson, President of the Convention, the Honorable John P. Stockton, Chairman, and others of the Committee of the National Democratic Convention."

MR. ENGLISH'S ACCEPTANCE.

"INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 30, 1880.

"GENTLEMEN: I have now the honor to reply to your letter of the 13th inst., informing me that I was unanimously nominated for the office of Vice-President of the United States by the late Democratic National Convention which assembled at Cincinnati. As foreshadowed in the verbal remarks made by me at the time of the delivery of your letter, I have now to say that I accept the high trust with a realizing sense of its responsibility, and am profoundly grateful for the honor conferred. I accept the nomination upon the platform of principles adopted by the convention, which I cordially approve, and I accept it as much because of my faith in the wisdom and patriotism of the great statesman and soldier nominated on the same ticket for President of the United States. His eminent services to his country; his fidelity to the Constitution, the Union and the laws; his clear perception of the correct principles of government as taught by Jefferson; his scrupulous care to keep the military in strict subordination to the civil authorities; his high regard for civil liberty, personal rights and rights of property; his acknowledged ability in civil as well as military affairs, and his pure and blameless life—all point to him as a man worthy of the confidence of the people. Not only a brave soldier, a great commander, a wise statesman and a pure patriot, but a prudent, painstaking, practical man of unquestioned honesty; trusted often with important public duties faithful to every trust and in the full meridian of ripe and vigorous manhood, he is, in my judgment, eminently fitted for the highest office on earth—the Presidency of the United States. Not only is he the right man for the place, but the time has come when the best interests of the country require that the party which has monopolized the Executive Department of the General Government for the last twenty years should be retired. The continuance of that party in power four years longer would not be beneficial to the public or in accordance with the spirit of our republican institutions. Laws of entail have not been favored in our system of government. The perpetuation of property or place in one family or set of men has never been encouraged in this country, and the great and good men who formed our republican government and its traditions wisely limited the tenure of office and in many ways showed their disapproval of long leases of power.

Twenty years of continuous power is long enough and has already led to irregularities and corruptions which are not likely to be properly exposed under the same party that perpetuated them; besides, it should not be forgotten that the four last years of power held by that party were procured by discreditable means and held in defiance of the wishes of a majority of the people. It was a grievous wrong to every voter and to our system of self-government which should never be forgotten or forgiven. Many of the men now in office were put there because of corrupt partisan services in thus defeating the fairly and legally expressed will of the majority, and the hypocrisy of the professions of that party in favor of civil service reform was shown by placing such men in office and turning the whole brood of Federal office-holders loose to influence the elections. The money of the people, taken out of the public treasury by these men for services often poorly performed or not performed at all, is being used in vast sums, with the knowledge and presumed sanction of the Administration, to control the elections, and even the members of the Cabinet are strolling about the country making partisan speeches, instead of being in their departments at Washington discharging the public duties for which they are paid by the people. But with all their cleverness and ability a discriminating public will no doubt read between the lines of their speeches that their paramount hope and aim is to keep themselves or their satellites four years longer in office. Perpetuating the power of chronic Federal office-holders four years longer will not benefit the millions of men and women who hold no office but earn their daily bread by honest industry is what the same discerning public will no doubt fully understand, as they will also that it is because of their own industry and economy and God's bountiful harvests that the country is comparatively prosperous, and not because of anything done by these Federal office-holders. The country is comparatively prosperous, not because of them but in spite of them. This contest is in fact between the people endeavoring to regain the political power which rightfully belongs to them, and to restore the pure, simple, economical, constitutional government of our fathers, on the one side, and a hundred thousand Federal office-holders and their backers, pampered with place and power, and determined to retain them at all hazards, on the other. Hence the constant assumption of new and dangerous powers by the General Government under the rule of the Republican party, the effort to build up what they call a strong government, the interference with home rule and with the administration of justice in the courts of the several States, the interference with the elections through the medium of paid partisan Federal office-holders interested in keeping their party in power, and caring more for that than fairness in the elections. In fact, the constant encroachments which have been made by that party upon the clearly reserved rights of the people and the States will, if not checked, subvert the liberties of the people and the Government of limited powers created by the fathers, and end in a great consolidated central government—strong, indeed for evil—and the overthrow of republican institutions. The wise men who formed our Constitution knew the evils of a strong government and the long continuance of political power in the same hands. They knew there was a tendency in this direction in all governments and consequent danger to republican institutions from that cause, and took pains to guard against it. The machinery for a strong centralized general government can be used to perpetuate the same set of men in power from term to term until it ceases to be a republic, or is such only in name, and the tendency of the party now in power in that direction, as shown in various ways, besides the willingness recently manifested by a large number of that party to elect a President an unlimited number of terms, is quite apparent, and must satisfy thinking people that the time has come when it will be safest and best for that party to be retired. But in resisting the encroachments of the General Government upon the reserved rights of the people and the States, I wish to be distinctly understood as favoring the proper exercise by the General Government of the powers rightfully belonging to it under the Constitution. Encroachments upon the Constitutional rights of the General Government or interference with the proper exercise of its powers must be carefully avoided. The Union of the States under the Constitution must be maintained, and it is well known that this has always been the position of both the candidates on the Democratic Presidential ticket. It is acquiesced in everywhere now, and finally and forever settled as one of the results of the war. It is certain beyond all question that the legitimate results of the war for the Union will not be overthrown or impaired should the Democratic ticket be elected. In that event proper protection will be given in every legitimate way to every citizen, native or adopted, in every section of the republic, in the enjoyment of all the rights guaranteed by the Constitution and its amendments; a sound currency of honest money, of a value and purchasing power corresponding substantially with the standard recognized by the commercial world and consisting of gold and silver and paper convertible into coin, will be maintained; the labor and manufacturing, commercial and business interests of the country will be favored and encouraged in every legitimate way.

"The toiling millions of our own people will be protected from the destructive competition of the Chinese, and to that end their immigration to our shores will be properly restricted. The public credit will be scrupulously maintained and strengthened by rigid economy in public expenditure, and the liberties of the people and the property of the people will be protected by a government of law and order, administered strictly in the interest of all the people, and not of corporations and privileged classes. I do not doubt the discriminating justice of the people and their capacity for intelligent self-government, and therefore do not doubt the success of the Democratic ticket. Its success would bury beyond resurrection the sectional jealousies and hatreds which have so long been the chief stock in trade of pestiferous demagogues, and in no other way can this be so effectually accomplished. It would restore harmony and good feeling between all the sections, and make us in fact, as well as in name, one people. The only rivalry then would be in the race for the development of material prosperity, the elevation of labor, the enlargement of human rights, the promotion of education, morality, religion, liberty, order, and all that would tend to make us the foremost nation of the earth in the grand march of human progress.

"I am, with great respect, very truly yours,
"WILLIAM H. ENGLISH.

"To the Honorable John W. Stevenson, President of the Convention, the Honorable John P. Stockton, Chairman, and other members of the Committee of Notification."

The State election of Alabama on Monday last, went Democratic by large increased majority. Republicans, Greenbackers and Independents united on a ticket and supported it, yet the Democratic majority was over 60,000.

The Democratic State Convention, to nominate a successor to Gov. McClellan, will be held on Wednesday, September 1. The Central Committee met last week, and received cheering news from every section of the State. The next Governor of New Jersey will be a Democrat.

Carl Schurz has been speaking for Garfield in Indiana. Schurz when Senator demanded of President Grant 105 appointments in one year, and because he got only 88 turned against Grant and abused him bitterly. How many has Garfield promised him in advance, besides $200 a speech?

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

A six and one-half pound black bass was caught at the water Gap last week.

The parties arrested and convicted at the April term of the Middlesex County Courts, through the efforts of "The New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society," for violation of the fishing laws, by hauling seines in the Raritan River, were last week sentenced by the Court, before Judge Coggeswell, to pay a fine of $4 each and costs, the whole amounting to $82, which was paid and the parties discharged.

That the efforts of the members of "The New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society," to protect the fish on their spawning beds in the Raritan River, by stopping the hauling of nets in certain parts of its waters, is productive of good, we mention that young shad fry have been seen within a few days in the waters below the dam at Bound Brook, which is a natural spawning bed. The story advocated by netters that fish would not spawn there is therefore exploded.

Mr. George Giles, of Dunellen, recently ploughed up a "snake's nest," containing thirty-seven eggs, while at work on the farm of Mr. Plant.

The above ridiculous item, started by some would-be itemizer, is going the rounds of the State press, and is all bosh. Snakes do not lay eggs. Probably Mr. G. turned up some turtle eggs.

The Iron Era, of Dover, Morris Co., says some of the farmers of that section do not express themselves as highly pleased with the laws respecting game, particularly with the recent decision that the farmer cannot kill game on his own property in the close season. They are afraid the rabbits will destroy their young fruit trees. The next thing we expect to hear is that the festive woodcock ought to be killed out of season, because he bores holes in the grounds of the farmer, or that the quail eats up all his grain.

A Fragrant Breath and Pearly Teeth

Are easily obtained by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, SOZODONT. Composed of rare antiseptic herbs, it imparts whiteness to the teeth, a delicious aroma to the breath, and preserves intact, from youth to old age, the teeth. Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth unless its effects are counteracted with SOZODONT, and this pure tooth-wash protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them. Ask your druggist for SOZODONT.

HIGGINS' GERMAN LAUNDRY SOAP

Is perfectly pure, being made of carefully selected stock, and is therefore the cheapest. Ask your grocer for it, and see that you get only the genuine article. A trial will convince you of its merits. ap2y1.

Attention—Young Men!

The young voters of this city, without regard to party or color, who are desirous of the election of honest men to govern the country, are earnestly invited to meet at the Democratic Headquarters on Monday evening next (August 9th) for the purpose of organizing a young men's Hancock and English Campaign Club.

THE police exported a tramp from this city, last week, via C. R. R. for Newark Bay. Do so some more!

ANOTHER Hancock Club, composed of young men, is talked of in Plainfield. Go ahead gentlemen and organize. The more the merrier.

REV. George M. S. Blauvelt, of Tappentown, N. Y., will occupy the pulpit of the Trinity Reform church next Sunday morning and evening.

ROBERTS & Cadmus, the Livery merchants of Park avenue, have elegant turnouts, and are constantly adding to their already large stock.

DURING the next four Sundays of Dr. Bliss' absence, his pulpit will be occupied by the Revs. Knox, Parker, Willetts and Honeyman in the order named.

THE engine house of Gazelle Co. No. 1, is handsomely and tastefully draped in mourning out of respect to the memory of its deceased member, Mr. Samuel D. Johnson.

ICE took a tumble last Monday morning, or at least a wagon load of it did, as the same was being driven into the lane leading to the rear of TenEyck's meat market. Cause—a broken axle.

ICE has gone up in price. One dollar and twenty-five cents per 100 lbs. to hotels and $1.50 to private dwellings. Many citizens are economizing in using less or none at all of this expensive luxury.

THE C. R. R., daily excursions to Coney Island, by way of Jersey City and the Kill Von Kull, and Elizabethport and the Chancellor, are quite extensively patronized by our citizens.

A LADY called at our office on Monday and desired us to state for the benefit of womankind, that dry salt sprinkled over carpets and other goods infested with moths, was a sure death to the pests.

A PEACH and Ice Cream Festival will be held in the Lecture Room of the Trinity Reformed Church, Thursday and Friday evenings, Aug. 5th and 6th, for the benefit of the Sunday School. Tickets 10 cents.

THERE is every prospect of large classes assembling upon the re-opening of the P. A. C. Gymnasium. The same efficient instructor has been engaged, and many new conveniences will be added for the comfort of members.

A CURIOSITY may be seen at the residence of Mr. Robert Simpson, of this city, in the shape of a litter of kittens of the Isle of Man, or Manx species. All the kittens but one were born with short tails. That is the peculiarity of the breed.

THE approaching Fair of Union & Middlesex Counties' Mutual Agricultural Association, Sept. 27, 28, 29 and 30th, promises to be on a scale of great magnitude. Farmers and others who contemplate making exhibits should send in their names early.

REPORTS from Chautauqua mention the return of Dr. Vincent from the Raikes Centennial Celebration in Europe, and state that the gentleman is actively engaged in managing affairs at the former place. The attendance already there and to come, indicates by far the largest gathering ever held at Chautauqua.

IN watching the progress of Dr. Tanner's fast and the ease with which he accomplishes the feat, the minds of many cannot help but realize that an "awful lot" of money was wasted by being sent to the famishers in Ireland. They could have got along just as well on water if they only had the "indomitable will."

ON the 31st of this month will be given possibly the last, and probably the only, chance for an excursion during the season to Long Branch, Ocean Grove and Asbury Park. The Sunday School of the Crescent avenue church will go in a body on that day, and a few tickets may be obtained by such of its friends as apply in time.

THE Stars and Stripes flung across the street from the Post Office front, and which for several days hung twisted about its cable, representing a "bloody shirt" in appearance, evidently became ashamed of itself on Monday and so once more assumed natural shape, although the breezes have left it in a tattered and torn condition.

WITHIN the past week we have received visits from no less than five heretofore staunch Republicans, who called to offer their congratulations on the excellent Presidential tickets made by the Democrats, and averring that they should cast their vote for Hancock & English next November. Will some one trot out a Democrat who says he will vote for Garfield & Arthur?

THERE is nothing small or unreasonable about Dick Wagner. In a letter to a Bostonian he offers to come to America and personally manage the production of his compositions, if the sum of one million dollars is made over to him in the shape of cash and good securities. If Plainfield only had a respectably sized opera house, some of our citizens might accept the proposition.

THE N. Y. Evening Post editorially remarks: "One of the pleasant summer resorts near this city is Netherwood Heights, one mile this side of Plainfield N. J. The hotel, standing on an eminence a quarter of a mile from the station, accommodates two hundred guests. The neighborhood affords many pleasant drives and walks, and a band plays on three evenings of every week."

OFFICER Hapenny, on Monday morning last arrested the negro, who for the past year has been complained of by citizens of Netherwood and other parts of our city, of indecently exposing his person near private dwellings during day time, and in the absence of the male members of the family. He was taken before Judge Runyon, who gave him 20 days in jail at Elizabeth. It should have been six months or a year.

AN item is being published in some of the State papers to the effect that the year 1880 is the time for the appearance of the seventeen-year locusts. This is not so. That pest visited us 1877, and will therefore not be due again until 17 years from that date. There will be, however, a large exodus of lo-cusses next November in the direction of Salt River. You will know them by the letters "C.M." on their backs, which being interpreted means Credit Mobilier.

THE Greenbackers have heard from Alabama.

GEN. Hancock's letter to Gen. Sherman will appear in our next issue.

A MAY'S Landing curiosity is a rooster who swims. It was probably hatched by a duck.

THANKS to Mrs. T. Walters for a beautiful boquet of hydrangeas, which grace our office desk.

A NEW switch is being built from the railroad to Mr. David Boice's coal yard, by that gentleman.

YOUNG men will take notice of an invitation to meet and organize a Hancock and English Club, published in another column.

CURTISS & Griffen's horse broke out in a new spot Wednesday morning, and ran across the street. No damage was done, the animal being used to hardware.

THE druggists for some reason or another, have raised the price of soda water to 10 cents a glass. The weather in retaliation gives them a cold shoulder.

MUCH excitement was created at Lambertville on Saturday by the discovery of gold ore upon the farm of Horatio Ege, on the bank of the Delaware, near that place.

THE stables of Messrs. Mulford Cole and B. M. Leland of East Front street, were entered on Thursday night of last week and a quantity of valuable harness stolen.

THE vacancy in the list of teachers in the grammar school, caused by the promotion of Miss Shreve, will be filled during the next term by Miss Cornelia Anderson.

NEW Jersey is a strong Presbyterian State. It contains a synod of eight presbyteries, 361 ministers 267 churches, 46,207 church members and 50,000 Sunday scholars in Presbyterian schools.

THE Democrats of Plainfield will swing to the breeze a handsome Hancock & English banner, across Front street from their headquarters, on Wednesday evening next at half-past 7 o'clock.

THOSE parties in the habit of drawing nets in the stream above New Market had better desist from the practice, if they do not want a taste of the law. Their names are known and the Fish Warden only awaits an opportunity to catch them in the act.

IT intended to rain all day on Thursday, but when it became known that the Congregationalist's excursion had been postponed, the clouds cleared away beautifully and the sun shone as bright as could be desired. The excursion will take place next Thursday, Aug. 12th.

THE thorough workmanship displayed in the repair department of Collier's jewelery establishment, No 3 Park ave., is the secret of that merchant's success. Many years experience as a practical watch and clock maker, enables him to guarantee satisfaction to all who intrust their repairs to his care.

WHEN a tramp comes fooling round your back door with tears in his eyes, a chew of tobacco in his mouth and a bottle of whisky in his pocket, complaining that he has not eaten a square meal for a week, just tell him that Dr. Tanner has fasted thirty days and is constantly improving." Tanner has settled the tramp question.

THE Allentown Democrat contains the following item: Several days since a "lady" canvassed South Easton for the sale of corsets. Wherever orders were taken the ladies were measured after removing their outer dresses. The canvasser now turns out to have been a man. He was arrested, we are told, at Belvidere, N. J.

A PIECE of land, owned by Mr. H. C. Randolph of about 2¼ acres, having yielded 110 bushels of wheat and last year 505 bushels of potatoes, the gentleman was naturally astonished and called in the services of Messrs J. R. & T. A. Dunham to make sure that the ground was not larger. A careful survey showed an area of 2 567-1000 acres.

SINCE the Common Council refuses to confirm the nomination sent to them by Mayor Harper, as a proper person for policeman, presumably because he is a Democrat, His Honor will do well to send no other name to that body for the position. The colored policeman now doing duty as special, makes a good officer. Let him continue in the position.

A TRAIN crossing the Park avenue bridge on Wednesday morning, frightened a horse attached to a buggy that was approaching beneath. The animal turning quickly upset the vehicle, and dashing up the avenue soon wrecked things generally. The occupants of the buggy, Mrs. Thomie and child, were thrown out but uninjured, and were driven to their home by Mrs. J. W. Rushmore.

FOOTE'S "Diamond" Confectionery store, on Park avenue, next to City Hotel, was crowded on the opening night (last Saturday) by lovers of pure and fresh candies. Many a curious remark was made by passers-by at the old shoes placed on top of piles of candy in a show window. Being made of pasteboard, they were not detrimental to the taste of the candy.

COMMUTERS and passengers on the 8:01 train from this city, Tuesday morning, were treated to a suicide from the ferry boat Plainfield while on its way to New York. A destitute man, of about 37 years of age, named Richard O'Neil, jumped into the water from the forward part of the boat and escaping the paddle wheel was picked up by the deck hands of a tug that fortunately happened to be near. He was subsequently taken to the Chambers street Hospital.

A SPARK from a passing locomotive, falling on the roof of Dr. Duncan Vail's barn at New Market, last Monday at about 2 p. m., started a conflagration that despite the assistance of neighbors totally consumed the building and a part of its contents. Carriages and a few other movable articles were saved, but a large quantity of grain and feed was lost. The insurance of $600 on the building and $1200 on its contents, will partially cover the loss.

LAST summer THE CONSTITUTIONALIST published an account of how a strange Italian persisted in visiting "Willow Lake Farm," the residence of Mr. Percy C. Ohl, and insisting that there was a domestic engaged there whom he desired to "keep company" with. Neither inducements, threats and blows would keep the fellow away. At last the female members of the family became afraid to stay on the premises in the absence of Mr. O. as the Italian was always then sure to visit the place and insist on entering the house. Capt. Dodd finally placed him under arrest, and he was accorded a hearing before City Judge Good, who finally let him off with the promise that if he was ever seen in Plainfield again he would be sent up for 6 months. Last Monday the fellow again made his appearance at the farm in the absence of the family, and insisted upon entering the house. He was prevented by a younger brother of Mr. O. and the hired help. Young Ohl then informed Capt. Dodd of the circumstances, who again took the fellow in charge. City Judge Runyon decided that nothing could be done with the prisoner, as he had committed no violent act. Mr. Ohl then went before Suydam & Jackson, and made a complaint that he was in fear of his life from the prisoner, as that person had threatened him. He was then put under bonds to keep the peace. No bail being procured, the Italian was committed to the County Jail for three months. He is a dangerous person to be at large. About $80 in money was found on his person. There is no domestic about Mr. Ohl's premises who ever knew the fellow.

Plainfield's Democracy.

The regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Democratic Association, held at headquarters last Tuesday evening, was largely attended by the friends and supporters of Hancock and English. Stirring speeches were made by Louis F. Wadsworth, Esq., His Honor, Mayor Harper, Hon. Joseph W. Yates, President James E. Martine and others, and the utmost enthusiasm existed. New names are continually being added to the roll, the various committees are actively engaged in perfecting all necessary arrangements for the campaign, and when election day arrives, Hancock & English will receive a flattering vote in Plainfield.

P. A. C.

The out-door entertainment which will be given on their grounds by the Plainfield Athletic Club on the 15th of next month, will undoubtedly surpass in its interesting features any like occasion of the past. Long distance competitions, calculated to tire the average spectator, have been avoided in selecting the contests, and the time filled up with short races calculated to necessitate close finishes and awaken the consequent interest of excitement in the feelings of beholders.

The following is a complete list of the games; to the first and second in each of which will be given a handsome gold and silver medal respectively.

100-yards run, handicap;

The Health Board Awake.

Our issue of last week having called the attention of residents in the vicinity of Mr. John Taylor Johnston's place to the work being done on his property, an inspection was made. It was thereupon found that, under orders from Mr. Johnston, workmen were engaged in digging out the ponds and lakes on the premises; and, in consequence, many acres of black mud, full of decomposed vegetable matter, was being exposed to the heated air of the day and the decaying dampness of the night. The appeals of influential men living in the neighborhood could not be ignored by the Health Board, and for once it exerted itself to do its duty. His Honor, Mayor Harper, sent to headquarters a document courteous but forcible, ordering the cessation of the work during the present time, and suggesting, if the intention was to be carried out, that the months of October and November would be a more fitting season. This action having gained for the Health Board the expressed thanks of those personally interested, the gentlemen who compose the body should not slumber again on their fresh laurels, but feel encouraged to take some course that would benefit the more thickly populated districts that are in danger from similar circumstances existing in other parts of the city.

A Damp Peculiar Excursion.

At six o'clock a. m., on Tuesday, it was raining as though the country was in need of it, and many a scholar of the Warren Mission School forgot the sentiments of their library books and were prolific in adjectives qualifying their disgust. Some were up at daylight, some did not retire at all, while everyone came down to breakfast with the original remark that "it always storms when I want to go anywhere." An hour later, however, the clouds began to break away, the wind sought a favorable quarter, and eight car loads of eaters and one car load of eatables started for Boynton Beach. If there had been no excursion on that day the weather would have been perfect, but as five hundred big and little folk wanted to enjoy themselves, Old Probabilities gave orders for it to clear up cloudy and take a fresh start. The trip to Woodbridge was made in remarkably fast time, and at that station a number of the piscatorial persuasion left the train for Sawyer and Tappen's "Sewaren Pavilion," where "Sam's" boats and bait were to be found; while at the nearest point possible to the Beach, the train was switched on to a siding and its contents unloaded. The fishermen had just gotten their anchors well settled and their hooks overboard, bathers had begun to enjoy the warm, pleasant water, wandering couples were yet searching out shady places in the grove, the children had reached a depth of about two feet in the sand with their shovels, and old folks were rocking their youngest on their laps and comparing recipts for raised biscuits with each other, when the clouds gathered together in a mass meeting, moistened their hands and poured buckets of water out of pure contrariness and malice aforethought. Those who were in the vicinity of the Pavillion were well cared for on its pleasant piazzas and in its parlors and dining-rooms, but almost the entire party were compelled to seek refuge under a shed at Boynton Beach, that was only intended to cover half the number and was built, seemingly, to keep the sun out and let the rain in. Sensible ones, who were able to, hired bathing suits and stood in the bay, others hoisted umbrellas and parasols and sat out doors, while about two hundred hunted spots between the cracks of the roof and dodged cold water, like a temperance lecturer, for a half-a-dozen hours. About four o'clock in the afternoon it was discovered that by means of leaky stages the cars could be reached, and an exodus for their sheltering precincts was made. Through the kindness of Conductor Jack Smith, the train was kept moving up and down between the station and the beach for the next hour, collecting the excursionists; and the good sense of the managers impelled the starting for home much earlier than was intended. At a little after six all were at home again just as they started, excepting that the car load of eatables was averaged through the passengers individually, and all were dry inside and wet out. Lunch-overseer Remson's occupation was not an arduous one on the return trip, and he would have fallen asleep while watching the empty baskets had it not been found necessary to call upon him to arrest a decidedly wet excursionist who became troublesome. Charlie locked him up in a private state-room and stood guard over the door like Napoleon at the battle of Seven Oaks.

In Memoriam.

SAMUEL D. JOHNSON.

At half-past two o'clock on the afternoon of last Tuesday, the remains of the late Samuel D. Johnson were taken from his former residence on Duer street and buried with appropriate ceremonies in Evergreen Cemetery. The deceased was born in this place in 1844, where he has ever since resided and drawn into pleasant companionship with him hosts of admiring friends. For many years a fireman, his name stood before his demise at the head of the active list of Gazelle Engine Co. No. 1, its most esteemed member. A harness maker by trade, he had been engaged in that business on Park avenue until a short time ago, when the fatal disease, consumption, made such inroads into his constitution as to compel the giving up of all active participation in mercantile pursuits. For some time since he has been entirely confined to the house, cared for by kind hearts and willing hands, but the skill of able physicians and the love of sincere friends were of no avail. About midnight of Saturday he became delirious, and at five a. m. on Sunday, unconscious—dying, surrounded by his immediate family, three hours later. Before the fatal day, the deceased expressed himself to a friend as experiencing a change of christian sentiment, and desired that all might be told of it.

At the funeral large delegations from all the fire companies gathered to show their respect and esteem; while members of the departed one's own organization, Ex-chief T. O. Doane, Ex-foreman A. H. Martin, J. D. Hedden, Daniel Webster, N. C. Dunn and A. L. Force, acted as pall-bearers and other assisted in the arrangements. The Rev. Dr. Yerkes spoke long and earnestly; referring to the past life of him who was gone, and dwelling upon the satisfactory evidence that was shown before death, of the high hopes of a happy and eternal future that the deceased looked forward to and would attain.

WALTER HERRING.

Well known to many of our citizens as a former resident of Plainfield, died at his home in Trenton on Sunday last. For several weeks Mr. Herring has been a great sufferer from Kidney disease, and has patiently borne his illness. He was a kind and loving husband, indulgent father, true friend and Christian man. He leaves a wife and five grown up children behind him. His remains were brought to this city for interment on Wednesday last, and deposited in the Presbyterian Cemetery, North Plainfield. Four of his old friends of Plainfield acted as pall bearers, Alfred Berry, Voorhees Van Fleet, Jacob Laing and S. O. Horton.

Grove Meeting.

The Temperance meeting in the grove last Sunday afternoon was largely attended and ably addressed by Rev. Mr. Manchee of the Congregational church. Next Sunday the speaker will be Aaron M. Powell, Esq., now a resident of Plainfield, and connected with the editorial profession in the City of New York. Hour of meeting 4:15. The public generally are invited to attend.

A Want Supplied.

Messrs Scribner & Co's new book of Spiritual Songs for the Sunday School, by Rev. Chas. S. Robinson D. D. (author of Songs for the Sanctuary &c.) will fully satisfy the want that has long been felt for a book that would not only interest the young, but, at the same time, cultivate their taste in the direction of that which is higher and purer in poetry and music. We would cordially recommend every pastor, superintendent or chorister to send to the publishers for a specimen copy.

Nursing the Nose.

The next annual meeting of the United States Hay-Fever Association will be held at Bethlehem N. H. on Tuesday Aug. 31st. Mr. C. Tyler of this city is one of the Vice-Presidents of the organization, the object of whose members is to meet and compare their personal experience of different preventatives, reliefs, cures and localities of residence. Any desiring to join may do so at the next meeting, or by addressing the Treasurer, Edmund S. Hoyt, Portland, Maine.

A Good Time Coming.

Tuesday, August 10th, is looked forward to by the lovers of recreation as the next and best opportunity the season will afford for a day of enjoyment. For one dollar may be procured a ticket allowing the holder to take part in the excursion of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society, and to experience a delightful sail up the East River to Hudson Grove where fine bathing and other attractions may be found. The Plainfield Cornet Band and Prof. Frazee will furnish quantities of music, and a good time may be assured.

Next Wednesday evening the campaign in Plainfield for Hancock & English will be fairly opened. On that occasion the Democratic Association will fling to the breeze a handsome banner, bearing thereon the names and portraits of Hancock & English, from in front of their headquarters on Front street. The same evening there will be a mass meeting held in Vandeventer's Hall, at which will be present prominent speakers, including Hon. John T. Bird of Hunterdon County, Gen. Martin T. McMahon and Captain James M. Brady of New York city, who will address those present on the vital political issues of the day. A Brass Band will discourse music at the banner raising and at the Hall. All friends of Hancock & English are invited to be present.

Washington Rock News.

A very large gathering of the "young men and maidens" of Basking Ridge and vicinity assembled at Washington Rock on Thursday of last week, 29th ult., and held their annual picnic at that place. They commenced to arrive about noon, and the afternoon was spent in dancing and other social amusements, Prof. Frazee furnishing the music. In the evening the guests of the hotel improvised a Hop with the same music, which was enjoyed by the boarders of the Washington Rock Mountain House and a number of friends from Plainfield who happened to drive up at that time. The evenings at this place are generally spent in this social manner, and as it is always cool enough for dancing at the Rock the opportunity is taken advantage of nearly every night. The prettily dressed misses and masters generally monopolize the parlors and ball-room from 8 to 9 o'clock, when the ladies and gentlemen occupy the floor during the rest of the evening.

The following are the names of some of the guests recently arrived at this House: Mr. and Mrs. Dawson and family of Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. Gannor and family from New York, Miss Jennie Vaughan of Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. Rahn and Miss Linda Rahn of New York, Mr. Geo. To John Taylor Johnston, Esq., or the person or persons in charge of his Plainfield property:

"It having been reported to this Board that you intend, during the present warm weather, to cleanse out or cause to be cleansed out, the pond or ponds located upon your said premises, thereby exposing to the action of sun and air a large amount of offensive matter, and, consequently, endangering the public health, you are hereby notified and required, pursuant to the authority of law, to desist from any such contemplated work until frost shall render it safe and unobjectionable."

The Board would further report that the owners of property interested have been notified and required to cause existing nuisances known as the "gravel pits" to be abated, pursuant to the provisions of ordinance.

In the event of non-compliance on the part of said owners, the Board will expend the sum of money placed at its disposal by a resolution of Council, and hold the property liable for refundment to the City Treasury.

On motion, a ballot was had, with the following result: 3 for and 5 against. No confirmation.

Mr. Rushmore moved that the chairman of the Com. on Lamps, be instructed to give notice to the Gas Co's to shut off the gas at the expiration of 30 days, if found necessary. Carried.

Mr. Whiton presented the following:

Resolved, That the Committee on Streets and Public Health be and they hereby are directed to inquire into the condition of the places known as the "Gravel Pits," the "Mill Pond" and "Green Brook," and other nuisances, and ascertain whether the same are detrimental to the prosperity of the city of Plainfield or injurious to the health of its inhabitants, and if so, what is the proper remedy therefor, and the probable cost of effecting the same, and report to the Council in writing at the first meeting in October, 1880.

Adopted.

Council then adjourned.

The Gold Mines.

The parties interested in the development of the recently discovered gold and silver mines in this section continue to be sanguine that they are the lessees of property on which is gold and silver ore of untold value. The most valuable of these tracts is situated near Hopewell. On Tuesday last, State Geologist Prof. Cook, in company with other scientific men visited the locality on a tour of inspection, and it said that the Prof. expressed himself as pleased and astonished at the richness of the ore. It is also said that he will make an official statement in a few days regarding his opinion of the worth and value of the ore obtained from these mines.

Hancock Veteran Association.

The Democratic Headquarters were crowded on last Wednesday evening by comrades of the Hancock Veteran Association, it being the regular night of meeting. In the absence of Major Gross, Colonel Onderdonk occupied the chair. The Finance Committee reported encouraging progress, and the Executive Committee stated that favorable expedition was being made in the matter of uniforms, badges, drummers, fifers, &c. Speeches were made by Colonels Scott and Onderdonk, and Messrs. C. S. A. Davis, and James Martine. A stirring campaign song was given by Winfield Scott Chase, in the chorus of which all joined and made the walls ring with melody. A number of new members were added to the roll, swelling the list of Democratic and Republican soldiers who have joined together for Hancock, to eighty-four.

We are glad to record the fact that Mr. B. Brittin, proprietor of the well-known Fanwood House, is once more able to be about and attend to business, after several week's confinement to his bed from injuries received by being thrown from a buggy. Its good for sore eyes to see "Brit" about again.

Our village now boasts of a handsomely fitted up drug store, Mr. F. A. Miller proprietor. The stock of goods are fresh and pure, and prices low. Mr. Miller has had several years' experience in the drug business in large cities, and it is expected that the support will be given him in the enterprise by liberally patronizing his establishment, which is situated on the main street, north of Paff's Hotel.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 29th, 1879.
For over 25 years I have been severely afflicted with Hay Fever, and have tried many remedies without relief. One week after the first attack this year, while suffering intensely, I was induced, through Mr. Tichenor's testimonial, to try, as a last resort, Ely's Cream Balm. The immediate effect was marvelous. I have been enabled to perform my pastoral duties without the slightest inconvenience. During that time I have been exposed to heat, drafts and dust, and have escaped a return attack. I believe had I commenced a few weeks earlier, I would not have been troubled at all. I pronounce Ely's Cream Balm an honest remedy, a cure for Hay Fever, and recommend it to all who suffer from this distressing complaint.

A PENDULUM EXPERIMENT.

The large old-fashioned clock of the last century, that used to stand in the corner of the "sitting room," and was large enough to contain an entire small boy when an impending parent with a switch suggested the propriety of flight and concealment, has become nearly extinct. A few of these clocks still tick in secluded country places, and occasionally a collector of bric-a-brac boasts the possession of one of them, but they have been almost entirely superseded by the small and portable clock which is one of the staple productions of Connecticut.

Mr. McIlvaine, of North-by-West Hampton—a small village situated in the neighborhood of the four cardinal point Hamptons, Long Island—is sufficiently fortunate to be the owner of an old-fashioned clock of great miscellaneous merits. In addition to telling the hour of the day, it tells the day of the week, the time of the rising of the sun and moon, the state of the tide, the text of last Sunday's sermon, the age and sex of the children, and other facts too numerous to mention. In fact, it is an encyclopedic clock, and to sit in front of it and watch it six hours a day would be an excellent method of obtaining a liberal education.

Mr. McIlvaine's family consists of himself, his daughter, and his son, the latter being aged a little over 12 years, and being a boy with a painful fondness for scientific experiments. While Mr. McIlvaine is a most estimable man, it must be confessed that he is somewhat arbitrary in his ways, and it may be cited in proof thereof that he has made a domestic law that all persons who come to visit his daughter shall go home at or before half-past ten o'clock. This is rather trying to Miss McIlvaine, since, as all rural young ladies know, the rural lover is shy during the day time and the early evening, and rarely bites freely, to use an angling metaphor, until after eleven o'clock. Of course, the chances of catching an eligible husband are greatly lessened when a domestic game law forbids the prosecution of the sport after half-past ten. Nevertheless, as Miss McIlvaine was an obedient daughter, she obeyed the parental command, and warned all young men off the premises when the fatal hour arrived. If a wicked and deceitful generation asks why she did not turn back the hands of the clock when she had a desirable young man in the parlor, it may be answered that she scorned deception, and that her father kept the glass which covered the face of the clock carefully locked.

Master McIlvaine attended school, and, as a painful consequence, acquired a good deal of scientific information. Although this was, of course, deplorable, it would have been much less injurious to the peace of the community had Master McIlvaine been less ingenious than he was. It was the way in which he applied his scientific information that made him a terror to all respectable people. For example, having learned that eggs sufficiently matured to fit them for political purposes contain sulphureted hydrogen gas, he conceived the plan of supplying the town with illuminating gas, and began a system of operations with the aid of six dozen of the local grocer's last year's eggs, which threatened to temporarily render the East End of Long Island uninhabitable, except by persons fortified with hay-fever. This dangerous boy was one day taught by a depraved scientific book that the speed of a clock varies at the length of the pendulum. That very evening, before going to bed, he lengthened the pendulum of his father's clock nearly two feet, not with any deliberate malice, but merely in order to try a scientific experiment.

At eight o'clock that evening young Mr. Slocum called on Miss McIlvaine, much to her pleasure, since she was confident that his capture was a mere question of time. A little later old Mr. McIlvaine looked into the room, and, glancing at the clock, remarked that he was going to bed. Absorbed in their conversation, the young people, when they were left to themselves, took little note of time, until it suddenly occurred to Miss McIlvaine that it must be nearly half-past ten. Hurriedly releasing herself, she turned up the lamp, and to her astonishment found that it was only nine. Mr. Slocum admitted that he, too, was surprised to find that it was no later, but expressed much delight at the prospect of further conversation.

After a prolonged period of conversational bliss the young lady again turned up the light, and found that it was only half-past nine. Mr. Slocum said that he would undergo repairs with a large needle and a skein of worsted if he didn't think that they had "sot and sot for mor'n six hours." At this implication that he found the evening a tedious one, Miss McIlvaine became indignant, and a quarrel ensued, which consumed a good deal of time before peace was restored. Conversation was resumed, but after a time both Mr. Slocum and Miss McIlvaine became decidedly sleepy. In fact, each charged the other with having actually fallen asleep, and a new quarrel seemed at one time imminent. Mr. Slocum felt that it was a point of honor not to take his leave before half-past ten, but he began to wish that the evening would come to an end. When for the third time the lamp was turned up, and the clock said that it was only ten, he insisted that it was wrong. Miss McIlvaine thereupon said that he was a brute, and that a man who could not sit two hours with a young lady did not deserve to be treated with civility. For the rest of the evening the lovers occupied seats several feet removed from one another, and the light was no longer turned down. From time to time they glanced at the clock, which ticked with awful solemnity, though its hands crept with exasperating slowness. At intervals they slept in their chairs, and when Mr. Slocum, waking from his last brief nap, said that at last half-past ten had arrived, he felt profoundly grateful, and, arousing Miss McIlvaine with a gentle shake, informed her that he didn't know but what he might as well be going.

As he approached the front door, accompanied by his fair though but partially awakened friend, the dread sound of parental boots smote his ear. He saw, to his horror, old Mr. McIlvaine, fully dressed, descending the stairs, and the next moment he was requested to explain what he was doing in that house at such an early hour. Mr. Slocum tried to explain that it was not so very early, and that, in fact, it was just half-past ten, but he was requested with much plainness of speech to abstain from impudence. Opening the front door and letting in the daylight, Mr. McIlvaine produced his watch, and having convinced the bewildered Mr. Slocum that it was five o'clock in the morning, he proceeded to drive the young man from the premises at the toe of the boot, and then went calmly to attend to his morning cows.

In the course of the day Master McIlvaine happened to explain the mystery of the clock, and his father comprehended how it had come to pass that his daughter and her lover had sat up all night. It was, however, too late to recall his peremptory leave-taking of the young man at the front door. Mr. Slocum's feelings were permanently outraged, and it is hardly probable that he will ever again expose himself to the treachery of the McIlvaine clock. Thus, Master McIlvaine's love of scientific experiment wrecked his sister's matrimonial prospects, and led a worthy young man into a painful and confused position.—N. Y. Times.

The Census Results.

Probably the State of New Jersey, when all the census returns have been made known, will show less than ten per cent. increase, or not more than 75,000 since 1875; and about twenty per cent. since 1870. With the exception of Mercer county, the returns of the census district, including the counties of Hudson, Union, Somerset, Hunterdon, Mercer and Middlesex, show a smaller rate per cent. of increase for the past five years than for the period from 1870 to 1875. For the past ten years the rate per cent. of increase for this district has been about twenty-eight; while from 1875-80 it has only been about ten. The rate per cent. for the State for 1870-75 was about thirteen, and for the past ten years will probably be not far from twenty; that is, New Jersey will probably show a population of some one million and ninety thousand inhabitants.

As New Jersey contains 7,576.68 square miles, this would be at the rate of one hundred and forty-four inhabitants to the square mile—a density of population only exceeded if at all by Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The population of this State in 1737 was only 47,369; in 1745, 61,403; in 1784, 149,435; and in 1790, 184,139. During the half century following the latter year our population only doubled; while that of the United States increased more than four-fold. Between 1840 and 1850 New Jersey increased thirty-one per cent.; while the country's increase was thirty-six. From 1850 to 1860 this State gained thirty-seven and a quarter per cent; the United States, thirty-five and a half. From 1860 to 1870 New Jersey's population advanced thirty-four and eight-tenths per cent; that is to 906,096; that of the United States, twenty-two and six-tenths, or to 38,558,371. From 1870-75 New Jersey had increased twelve and six-tenths per cent; the population then being 1,020,584.

If the proportion of increase of our census district holds good all over the State, the increase from 1870-80 will probably show a rate of about twenty per cent. Whether this will be below the rate in the whole country cannot now be known; but considering the size of New Jersey, it is very fair. In 1870 the density of population was one hundred and sixteen to the square mile; in 1875 one hundred and thirty-four; while in 1880, it is, probably, one hundred and forty-four.

Of the six counties in this census district the rate per cent. of increase during the past decade was as follows: Hudson, 42; Union, 32; Mercer, 25 1-20; Middlesex, 16 1-10; Somerset, 15; and Hunterdon, 4. The rate during the past five years has been considerably smaller than that of the first half of the decade; Somerset county having actually decreased from 1875 to 1880, one per cent.

The rate per cent. of increase of the counties mentioned, during the preceding decade, 1860-70, was, with the exception of Somerset (7), Hunterdon (9) and Mercer (24), considerably larger than that of the last, viz: Hudson, 105 4-5; Union, 50 7-10; and Middlesex, 29 1-3.

Of course the cities increase more rapidly than the country districts; consequently a larger rate of increase is shown in those counties which have the greater number of towns.

The average rate per cent. of increase in the following ten cities of this State, during the ten years last past, has been 43 6-10 per cent., viz: Newark, 30 6-10; Jersey City, 41 3-10; Camden, 108; Hoboken, 50 3-10; Trenton, 30 9-10; Elizabeth, 35 1-10; New Brunswick, 14 1-10; Perth Amboy, 68; Plainfield, 56 5-10 and Rahway, 1 1-10.

The average rate of increase of the seventy-two largest cities in the United States has been, during the same period, 34 8-10 per cent.; that of the six largest cities 35 per cent., viz: New York, 24 8-10; Philadelphia, 24 9-10; Brooklyn, 40 3-10; Chicago, 58 9-10; St. Louis, 30 6-10; and Boston, 40 5-10. It will thus be seen that the average rate per cent. of increase of ten of the cities of New Jersey exceeds that of the six largest cities in the country; while the rate of eight of the cities of this State exceeds that of New York and Philadelphia.

The following is the absolute population for the ten Jersey cities mentioned above during the past twenty years:

	1880.	1875.	1870.	1860.
Newark	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

Rahway	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Perth Amboy	[illegible]	2,770	[illegible]	[illegible]

The average rate of increase during the past twenty years of the ten cities was 110 7-10 per cent. The separate rate of increase was: Jersey City, 220; Hoboken, 217 7-10; Camden, 190 5-10; Plainfield, 147; Perth Amboy, 109; Trenton, 74; Elizabeth, 70; Newark, 38 8-10; New Brunswick, 49 1-10; while Rahway shows a decrease of 11 per cent.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

THE census shows that New York city supports 3,969 grocery stores; 1,147 bakers in business for themselves; 1,292 brokers whose names are entered as being in business; 663 printers in business for themselves alone; 1,808 shoemakers now carrying on business, besides the journeymen; 1,332 merchant tailoring establishments, besides 723 clothing establishments; 3,120 dealers in wines and liquors besides the lager beer saloons; 3,427 lawyers who have registered, and it is supposed half as many more not reported; 1,240 lager beer saloons registered.

A Huge Blast.

The third big blast of the limestone quarry of the Glendon Iron Company, near Easton, Pa., will soon be set off, and it is expected that 50,000 tons of limestone will be dislodged. The quarry is situated on a hillside, into which run four drifts a distance of fifty feet. At the inner end a drift runs off at right angles on both sides for sixteen feet, making the drift in form like the letter T. At each joint and at each end of the cross drifts a blast fifteen feet deep has been sunk. In the shafts and drifts a large number of chambers have been made, and into these about fifteen tons of powder will be placed. The powder will be exploded by electricity. The work of preparing for the blast has been going on for over a year.—Iron Era.

Watch Your Drains.

The Hightstown Gazette says: "From all parts of the country there comes reports of malarial fevers and other diseases resulting from imperfect sewerage and drainage. These hot days interrupted by showers, offer the best facilities for the spread of the fatal death-germs. A neglected drain, an overflowing cesspool or a filthy hog pen may bring sorrow to your own home, or start an epidemic that shall affect the whole community. You can not be too careful in the disposition of the refuse from your kitchen. A little precaution now may save you a large doctor's bill and a life-long regret."

THE extremely heavy wheat crop of last year is exceeded this year, and reports just received pronounced it the largest one grown in this country, reaching 500,000,000 bushels, as against 450,000,000 bushels last year. Ohio, Indiana, Minnesota, Illinois and New York report very heavy crops, while Kansas will fall somewhat short of last year. The corn crop promises to be exceedingly large, and is estimated at 1,500,000,000 bushels, or more than thirty bushels for each person in the United States. The great yield of this cereal will go far toward supplying the short hay crop, and the latter, at least in this section, is sure to be high. Oats is pronounced to be a fine crop throughout almost the entire country, although short and light in New Jersey. The yield is calculated at 450,000,000 as against 413,000,000 last year. The rye crop is also very heavy, and estimated at nearly 30,000,000 bushels, as against 26,000,000 last year. Potatoes in all sections are looking very finely. Apples will be plentiful as will also grapes, but pears will be a light crop.

IN the archives of Pike county, Pa., is a record book that contains the following account of the late Lewis Cornelius, of Milford, Pa., who was famous for his immense size: "Lewis Cornelius died Sept. 26, 1841. His height was 6 feet; his weight was 545½ pounds, without clothing; his circumference below the waist was 8 feet two inches; his circumference above the waist was 6 feet 2½ inches; his circumference of arm, above elbow, was 1 foot 9 inches; his circumference of wrist was 1 foot 3 inches; his circumference of thigh was 4 feet 2 inches; his circumference of calf of leg was 2 feet 7 inches; his circumference of ankle was 1 foot 7 inches."

How to Correct and Improve
YOUR SIGHT

IMPROVEMENTS OF THE DAY.
—One of these is found in KING'S PATENT COMBINATION SPECTACLES.

As the name indicates, they consist of a combination of silver and steel frames, the silver bridge making a more elegant, durable and flexible frame and enabling any dealer to adjust it to any face, so that the center of the lens is in the direct line of vision, thus giving the greatest benefit possible to be derived from the use of spectacles.

It also enables anyone to adjust it themselves to the position where it best corrects the sight.

All persons buying the COMBINATION SPECTACLES have their eyes fitted by King's New System, the method used by Professional Oculists and the only true means of accurately testing the vision.

THIS SYSTEM IS COPYRIGHTED, and can only be used by Mr. King's Agents, all of whom are instructed in its use.

The KING SPECTACLES are the first in merit over a million pair now being in daily use.

We are glad to announce that the Sole Agent for this place and vicinity is

MISCELLANEOUS.

A DENIAL!
SIMPSON & CO.,
(Late Wilson & Simpson,) respectfully announce to the public of Plainfield that they have not cut ICE of SYLVAN LAKE or RANDOLPH'S POND, in this city, for the PAST FOUR YEARS; therefore the report in circulation now that they are supplying their patrons with the ICE of said lake or pond is INCORRECT, or in broader terms, FALSE, as the depth of water at best of times is insufficient to allow of its being cut, independent of filthy state of the pond which is gradually filling up. All the ice harvested by them is cut off their own pond in WASHINGTON VALLEY, and made from Pure Spring Water.
They are sorry to be obliged to take this means of correcting the false report, but do it in self-defence.

A CARD.
Being compelled by the increase of business to have an assistant, I have taken in my employ Mr. A. J. Mills, a mechanical specialist, and first preceptor for five years being the celebrated Norman W. Kingsly, M. D. S. D. D. S. of New York city, and for six years with Dr. Kingsly of Elizabeth, I feel confident I can recommend him to my patients and the public as a competent, mechanical operator in every particular. I will therefore take this method of proving to those that wish to take advantage of the lowest fair price that a first-class set of teeth can be made for, viz: for 3 months, commencing June 1st, I will make whole sets of teeth on celluloid for $10, and guarantee them to be made of the best material that can be produced. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect. We would strive to do only first-class work, and hope by so doing at the end of 3 months to secure favor and patronage by perfection in operations, rather than by cheap competition.
